The Harvey Council met at the clerk's office, March 9, 1891, pursuant to adjournment; members all present. Communication read from county treasurer re grant to Gunsen's Narrows' road. Auditor's report read and adopted; Samuel Purser's account for supplies for Mr. Abbott read. A by-law was passed appointing pound-keepers, pathmasters, fence viewers and deputy returning officers for the current year. The clerk was instructed to remove from the Harvey collector's roll the taxes charged against Mrs. Holt for the year 1890. The collector was instructed to push the collection of the unpaid taxes for 1890. Orders drawn on the treasurer as follows, viz: Arch. Wilson, $7 for gravel; clerk on postage account for 1891, $6.00; Wm. Weir, $45 salary as Treasurer for 1890. The clerk was instructed to request the County Treasurer of Peterborough to remove from his books the sum of $4 for statute labour charged against west half of lot 9, con. 10, Harvey, for 1890, as the statute labor was performed by Mr. Townsend. Mr. Hilliard's application to be allowed to commute his statute labor in Harvey for five years was granted, provided he agrees to keep in repair that part of the Burleigh road in Harvey for the said term.

The council adjourned to meet at the school house, near Scott's Mills, on the 6th of April next.

M. I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES for [illegible] years, and in every instance in which I have used them they have proved [illegible] over my head, and got quite well in a week. ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

LEGALIZATION OF SALVATION ARMY MARRIAGES.

Cost of the Parliament Buildings—Labor Legislation—A Lively Debate on the Cabinet Changes.

TORONTO, March 12.—In the Assembly yesterday the changes in the Cabinet were discussed.

The Assembly had a short session yesterday, most of the time being taken up with a discussion on the changes made in the personnel of the Cabinet since the House last met.

Mr. Mowat explained that Mr. A. M. Ross, who had been Treasurer for some years, retired by an arrangement on account of growing infirmities. This made it necessary to appoint a new Treasurer and their choice fell on the member for Monck, Mr. Harcourt, who was an experienced man of business and one of the most accomplished speakers in the House. The defeat of Mr. Drury made it necessary to appoint a new Minister of Agriculture. When that gentleman was first appointed, Mr. Dryden's qualifications made it difficult to choose between them. They therefore came to the conclusion after Mr. Drury's defeat to appoint Mr. Dryden. Mr. Bronson was brought into the Cabinet, but because of his extensive business interests was unable to take a portfolio. He was one of the ablest business men in Canada and his advice would be of value to the country. He was a resident in the eastern part of the province and would represent the wishes of the people of that part. It was quite in accordance with British usage, said Mr. Mowat, to have one or two members in the Cabinet without portfolios. It was the practice in England. In Canada Hon. Frank Smith and Hon. J. J. C. Abbott were in the same position.

Mr. Meredith: "They are Senators!"

Mr. Mowat said that there were members without portfolios in the cabinets of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Quebec. It was therefore in accordance with constitutional usage in Canada. Mr. Meredith found fault with the number of lawyers in the Cabinet. Appointing a member to the Cabinet without a portfolio was objectionable in principle. Some of the reasons advanced for the change might be correct, but the paramount reason was that the influence of a Minister might be exercised in the election. The appointment of the member for Ottawa, Mr. Bronson, was highly objectionable on public grounds. Anyone having a contract with the Government should be excluded from the House. Mr. Bronson was the holder of timber licences under the Government, and therefore should be disqualified from sitting. The appointment was highly improper, especially as the reason advanced for it was that the Government would have the benefit of his advice on matters relating to timber limits. Mr. Bronson represented the timber interest in the Cabinet, and from that interest came one-third of the revenue of the province. His duty as an adviser of the Crown and his interests as a business man would conflict. The appointment was unfortunate and ought not to have been made. Was it fair that Mr. Bronson should be called upon to advise the Crown on a matter in which perhaps his whole capital was invested? The appointment, Mr. Meredith repeated, was a most unfortunate one.

Mr. Meredith then turned his attention to the appointment of Mr. Dryden as Minister of Agriculture and condemned his interference in the recent Dominion elections. It was highly desirable to avoid introducing party politics into questions of agriculture. Mr. Drury did not do so when he was Minister. Surely it was not right to pit the agriculture interests of the Province against those of the Dominion. The interests of the Province could be better served by showing the farmers their glorious future rather than by belittling it. Energy and hope must back the capital of any country, and he trusted the Minister would not try to destroy that energy and hope.

Mr. Fraser said that Mr. Meredith had criticised the Government as a Government of lawyers. Did he mean that a government of lawyers would be less honest than any, other? Did he intend to convey the impression that his own profession could not be entrusted with public affairs? If so, he was casting a reflection on his own profession and besmirching his own professional brethren.

With regard to Mr. Bronson's appointment Mr. Fraser said that if a man was entitled to be sent to the House as a representative of the people he was not disqualified from acting as a member of the Government. There was less force in the objection seeing that Mr. Meredith himself voted for Mr. Carling, the brewer, who had intimate relations with the Inland Revenue Department of the Dominion Government. [Laughter.] The advice Mr. Bronson might offer would not be other than his honest conviction. It was of vital importance to have a lumberman on the Cabinet, because if the advice was honestly given it would be of great value.

Mr. H. E. Clarke said it was not right that a man having such large business relations with the Government should be placed where he could rule the decisions of the Government. It was the first time in the history of the country when all the Provincial Governments had taken part in a Dominion election. He hoped the Attorney-General was satisfied with the success of his efforts about Toronto. A scion of the house of Mowat was put up against a Conservative candidate. That night a cartoon showed the Attorney-General himself singing "O! where is my boy to-night?" [Loud laughter.] It was worth while bringing out the young gentleman in order to have the cartoon. The Minister of Agriculture, in supporting the policy of unrestricted reciprocity supplied by Erastus Wiman, which Edward Blake, a wiser leader, said led to political union, said the farmers of this country were impoverished. The fact was, the farmers were better off than those of any other country. Mr. Clarke taunted the different members of the Government with the lack of success their efforts met with in the recent election.

Mr. Clarke next took up the statement of Mr. Mowat on a public platform, that his Government had been supported by a popular majority of 15,000. This he showed to be fallacious. The total vote cast against the Government was 158,962 and the vote for the Government was 157,444, leaving the Government in a minority of 1,498. By reason of the distribution of seats the Government had a large majority in the House, although a minority in the country.

Assembly Notes.

The Attorney-General, following the English law, introduced a bill to amend the law [illegible]solemnization of marriage. It makes valid every marriage duly solemnized according to the rites and customs of the Quakers, and is also retroactive. It also provides that:

Whereas it appears that in the religious society called the Salvation Army there are official persons known as commissioners and staff officers whose position and duties in the society are substantially the same as those of clergymen and ministers in the churches and religious denominations mentioned in the first section of the act respecting the solemnization of marriages, the said act and the act respecting the registration of births, marriages and deaths shall hereafter apply to the said religious society and any duly appointed commissioner or staff officer of the society, being a man, chosen or commissioned by the said society to solemnize marriages and resident in Canada, shall have for the time being the same authority for that purpose as a clergyman or minister under the said act.

All the duties imposed upon and rights given to clergymen and ministers by the said act are hereby imposed upon and given to such commissioners and staff officers aforesaid.

The report of the Commissioner of Public Works was presented yesterday. With regard to the new provincial Parliament buildings it states that the masonry and brickwork of the western wing are nearly completed and ready for the roof, the work on the central portion and eastern wing is also in a forward state, and the whole building will be roofed in before the close of the building season of 1891. The expenditure up to Dec. 31, 1890, on capital account for the new buildings was $563,946. The expenditures in 1890 were $120,987 to Carroll, Gaylord & Vick for masonry, etc.; $11,098 to the Lionel Yorke estate for carpentry; $7160 to the St. Lawrence Foundry Company for iron work and $3000 to Mr. Waite as architect.

During last year the expenditure on Toronto Insane Asylum was $5820; on the Mimico branch, $171,931; on the Central Prison, $10,742; on the School of Practical Science, $55,780; on the Normal and Model schools, $11,430; on Osgoode Hall, $3000. The total expenditure in Toronto was about $269,800.

The total amount spent on public works and buildings in the province from Confederation to Dec. 31, 1890, was $7,596,310, of which $626,029 was spent last year.

Mr. Tait presented a number of petitions from Knights of Labor, Carpenter's and Builders' Unions and other labor organizations praying that all land held for speculative purposes should be taxed to its full value; that improvements made by labor should be exempted from taxation; that all persons in charge of stationary engines should undergo an examination; that the entire electorate of any municipality should be allowed to vote on money bylaws; that municipal councils should be given power to pass bylaws regulating the erection and construction of scaffolds.

THE BROCKVILLE TRAGEDY.

Trial of Ulman for Killing His Daughter's Suitor.

BROCKVILLE, March 11.—Thomas Ulman, charged with the murder of Oscar Vancamp last August, has been on trial all day. Vancamp's body was found on the Grand Trunk track last August badly mangled by a train and was buried next day, it being supposed he had met his death accidentally. However, afterwards sufficient evidence cropped up to warrant the indictment of Ulman for murder. It was shown by the evidence to-day that Vancamp was paying attention to Ulman's daughter and that Ulman objected to his doing so; also that he had threatened to kill Vancamp, and that on the evening of the night on which Vancamp's body was found Ulman and Vancamp were heard quarrelling.

Brant Spring Assizes.

BRANTFORD, March 11.—At the Brant Assizes yesterday a young man named Adolphus Sennett, who was charged with having set fire to a stack of hay in the vicinity of Eagle Place, and belonging to Mr. W. G. Raymond, was discharged.

Osgoode v. Smith.—A claim for $3000 made by plaintiff for wrongful arrest and false imprisonment. Early in the year plaintiff, Osgoode, hired a horse and rig from defendants, Messrs. Smith Bros., and failed to return or account for it, and at their instance he was arrested and brought back from Guelph, tried before Judge Jones, and discharged. The case was compromised by defendants paying $25 on account of costs, and withdrawing all claims against plaintiff.

SPENCER AND HICKS-BEACH.

Home Rule and Capital and Labor in the Campaign.

ROCHDALE, March 11.—Lord Spencer speaking this evening said the position of the Liberals toward Home Rule was unaltered. The present lamentable episode in the history of Ireland had raised further difficulties, but would not kill Home Rule. The Liberals fought for measures not for men.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, President of the Board of Trade, speaking at Cirencester, said Parnell, though disowned by Mr. Gladstone and the Irish bishops, was still the most popular man in Ireland. Parnell had openly declared that the Irish Parliament must be independent. Henceforth, therefore, the Liberal dream of Home Rule consistent with the supremacy of the Imperial Parliament was groundless. The real question before the country in the coming election would relate to capital and labor, both parties putting Home Rule aside.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Fears of Trouble Balfour Orders all the Constabulary on Duty.

LONDON, March 11.—The Parnellites and the anti-Parnellites are already in discord over St. Patrick's Day, and it is feared that the celebration will be attended by many outbreaks between the factions.

It is stated that Balfour has given orders that all constabulary be kept on duty that day, large bodies to be concentrated where ever there is most danger of rioting. Parnell will, it is understood, spend the day in Cork.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 12.—Victor Cummings, a market gardener, was thrown from his rig yesterday and fatally injured in consequence of his foot becoming entangled in the lines.

The members of the Association of Provincial Land Surveyors resumed the business of their sixth annual convention yesterday morning in the Canadian Institute.

In the afternoon a deputation from the Association of Dominion Land Surveyors, consisting of President Dennis, Messrs. Klotz, Fawcett, McAree, Drewry and Ogilvie, was received and an attentive hearing granted them. The deputation urged upon the Ontario Association the benefits of affiliation with the Dominion association. A long discussion on the question of affiliation followed, but no definite action was taken and the matter laid aside for further consideration.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Saukey, Van Nostrand, Gibson, Niven, Butler, Chipman, Bolger, Kirkpatrick, Stewart, Klotz, Aylesworth, Webb, Casgrain and Unwin was appointed to wait upon the Attorney-General and the Commissioner of Crown Lands and ascertain their views in regard to the incorporation of the association.

WRINKLES AT $300 EACH.

Beautiful and Rich Mrs. Huntington Tells About a Big Bill.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Mrs. Collis P. Huntington is not at all disturbed over the published story which told of a suit a massage doctress has brought against her husband for $900 for reducing his wife's neck of surplus flesh so that a diamond necklace would fit it, and for taking three wrinkles out of her face at $300 per wrinkle.

Mrs. Huntington is a beautiful woman—not at all too stout—and one marvels that she should have thought it necessary to consult Mme. Rowland at all.

"I found that I was becoming stout, and you know what that means to a woman; so I concluded to try massage," said Mrs. Huntington. "I do not think I called at her place more than 20 times, and she charged me $900. When she handed me my bill I did not even look at it until I reached home. Then you can imagine my astonishment when I saw the amount. She evidently thinks that we are able to pay, and that she is at liberty to charge whatever she pleases."

Fires and Explosions.

CHICAGO, March 11.—The Archer Manufacturing Company's premises were destroyed by fire to-night. Loss $200,000.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 11.—To-night at 11.30 o'clock a heavy explosion of gas blew out the entire rear of J. R. Weldin & Co.'s building, Diamond and Wood-streets. The building, which occupied the site of the Wiley House blown down by a cyclone which killed 13 persons a year ago, was destroyed together with the Germania Bank and the Chamber of Commerce building. Total loss $300,000.

A $50,000 Wash Bill.

WATERBURY, Conn., March 11.—Mrs Rice has brought suit against Rev. Father McAlleny of Meriden for $50,000. Mrs. Rice, who is a sister of the clergyman, claims to have done his washing for ten years and now sues for her wages.

Dropped Dead.

LYN, Ont., March 11.—A man named Robert Smith, who was employed by W. H. McNish of Elm Grove farm, on going from one house to another, a distance of a few yards, dropped dead yesterday evening. The cause is supposed to be apoplexy. He leaves a wife and family.

THE GABLES COLLAPSED

AND MANY CHILDREN MET DEATH IN THE RUINS.

Terrible Calamity in a Westphalia Synagogue—The Captain and Crew of a British Vessel Lost by a Wreck off Falmouth—Women and the Liberal Professions.

BERLIN, March 11.—The gables of the synagog at Mensel, Westphalia, had long been regarded as in an unsafe condition and their stability was not improved by the strain they were subjected to during the recent severe weather. This morning the gables collapsed and buried a number of children in the ruins. So far the bodies of four children have been recovered. The search at the ruins is still proceeding. It is hoped some of the little ones who were buried may be found alive.

THE SNOWSTORM IN ENGLAND.

Traffic in England as Well as Germany Interfered With.

LONDON, March 11.—Snow fell in London all last night and the storm has taken a fresh start, but in a milder form, in the north of England and in Scotland. In Dumfries the thermometer registered 15 degrees of frost. In the southwest of England a gale has been blowing intermittingly during the last 24 hours. Business at Bristol is suspended Trains are snowed up in all directions. The Duke of Edinburgh, who was going to Devonport to resume his naval duties, was unable to travel beyond Taunton. The blizzard rages with unabated fury at Tiverton, where there are snowdrifts 20 feet high.

All the continental mail boats were several hours late. A Norwegian bark took fire in the channel last night while trying to light signals of distress and was destroyed.

Storms on the German Coast.

BERLIN, March 11.—Severe snowstorms prevail on the German Coast. Railway communication is greatly impeded and trains are snowed in at Hamburg, Holstein and Mecklenburg. Inland the weather is more mild, but heavy rains are falling and are causing the rivers to be flooded.

Crops in Ireland.

DUBLIN, March 11.—The Irish local Government Board has issued its report on the situation in the congested districts. The corn crops are generally good and green crops are up to the full average. Other farm products, except potatoes, are up to the standard. In brief, the report represents the small farmers to be in good circumstances, but confronted with a scarcity of potatoes which has not been equaled in 30 years.

Women and the Liberal Professions.

BERLIN, March 11.—The Reichstag after a lengthy debate has rejected the petition to admit women to the liberal professions.

Jackson, Who Carried Off His Wife, Has to Defend His Home.

MANCHESTER, March 11.—Jackson, who ran away from Clitheroe, carrying off by force his own wife, is still besieged in his house at Bradford by the friends of Mrs. Jackson. The blockade was kept up throughout the night in spite of the blizzard. The police guarding the house had to be relieved every hour, owing to the intense cold. Fresh supplies of sympathizers supplied the places of the besieging party as needed. They threatened to take the house by storm, but the rapid reinforcement of the police prevented. Now they declare they will lynch Jackson the moment he dares show himself abroad. But he remains securely barricaded within his well-guarded house, and with friends to assist in his defence. He obstinately refuses to surrender Mrs. Jackson into the hands of her friends.

Behring Sea Settlement.

LONDON, March 11.—The Standard, commenting on the Behring Sea papers, says: Both nations will rejoice to know that the differences have narrowed until they have reached a shape at which both sides can agree to arbitrate. Nothing could be more barren or irritating than an attempt to appraise the relative value of the political gains.

The Times says: It is difficult to imagine that Mr. Blaine can persist in keeping the quarrel open after Lord Salisbury has accepted the bulk of his own proposed terms for a conference, or can make it a grievance. The terms declined have been shown to be manifestly unjust to England.

Went Down With the Wreck.

LONDON, March 11.—The British ship Bay of Panama has been wrecked off Falmouth and the captain, his wife and 12 of the crew have been drowned.

Household Suffrage for Belgium.

PARIS, March 11.—The Temps announces that it is in a position to confirm its statement that the Newfoundland negotiations had resulted in an agreement which would be submitted to French and English parliaments at the end of the week. The Temps adds that the status quo will be maintained until the decision of the arbitrators, to whom the dispute will be submitted, is rendered.

A Novel Commercial Enterprise.

BRUNSWICK, March 11.—A series of daring burglaries have lately alarmed the wealthy classes and baffled the police, owing to the skill with which they have been conducted and the intimate knowledge of houses and habits of the inmates shown by the robbers. At last the leader of the gang has been captured while in the very act, and to the surprise of everybody proves to be Heinrich Korust, a prosperous and respected merchant.

THE COLLIERY DISASTER.

A SPRINGFIELD JURY SAY IT WAS ACCIDENTAL.

Riders Respecting Safety Lamps and Powder, Daily Inspection of Sections of the Mine, and the Purchase of a Gas Tester.

SPRINGHILL, N.S., March 11.—The coroner's jury in the Springhill disaster find that the miners came to their death by an explosion which originated in No. 3 bord of No. 1 balance in the west side of the east slope on Feb. 21, 1891. They further believe the explosion was caused by the flame from a shot fired in said bord igniting coal dust and a certain portion of gas which might have been present at the time. They also believe that there was an unusual flame from the same shot, owing to a slip in the stone. They believe the explosion was accidental, that no blame attached to the management and that they have taken every precaution for the safety of their workmen. The jurors make these recommendations:

1. In future where safety lamps are used and in very dusty places powder should not be allowed.

2. They recommend that gaseous portions of the mine, before the men resume work after dinner, should be examined by competent officials.

3. They recommend that the local Government procure for the use of the Deputy Inspector of Mines a Shaw machine for testing gas.

PECULIAR FORGERY CASE.

A White Man Charged With Stealing the Franchise of an Indian.

CALEDONIA, March 11.—James Johnson, a white man living on the Indian reserve, was before D. McGregor, J.P., on the charge of perjury. Mr. DuVernet of Toronto appeared for the prisoner. It seems there are two Johnsons on the voters' lists, one a white man and the other an Indian. Only one voted at the last election, the white man, and the charge was that he had no right to vote, he having been struck off by the judge, and that the lot he lives on was not the same as described in the voters' list. For the prisoner it was claimed that he was the man on the list, that he had voted at the elections before, and he believed that to be his name, as there was only one other James Johnson living on the Reserve, and he took the oath accordingly. The magistrate sent him for trial at the spring assizes, bail being allowed, himself in $400 and two others of $200 each.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 11.—A Yarmouth despatch says a bloody affray occurred at Saltrock in that county on election night between William Porter, John White, John B. White, Joseph Borgue, Henry White and Sylvine Muises. The two latter were terribly beaten. Hundreds of men have since been engaged searching for his body without success. Porter and the two John Whites are under arrest.

A Turk and His Wives.

NEW YORK, March 11.—Four closely veiled Turkish women surrounded a bearded Turk in the rotunda of the Barge office yesterday and attracted a good deal of attention. They landed from the steamship La Gascogne and were one family, a husband and his four wives, bound for the Sandwich Islands. The head of the party is Shiek Chan Solyman Galdikaw, who came overland from a little town in Galicia, Asia, called Mona. He manufactured sugar and confections. He was bound to the islands, where he has recently purchased a sugar plantation. The women are pretty. They are Circassians, purchased in the slave market of Turkey.

THURSDAY, MARCH 12, 1891.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

Those who have watched the career of Sir John Macdonald, know that he has never yet hesitated to cut old alliances, if it appeared that new ones would better serve his purpose. Prior to 1876 Sir John and the Conservative party were ardent free traders, but he recognized in the protection cry a chance to carry the country and he quickly made the change. The country has had twelve years of that policy, and its condition is worse to-day than it was when it was inaugurated. Sir John knew this and he hurried on the late election, and even went so far as to make limited reciprocity a part of his platform. But even this did not work; old Canada has pronounced against him, and it now looks as though Sir John intends swimming with the tide and throwing the manufacturers overboard. The following significant article, evidently inspired from headquarters, appeared in the Montreal Star, which has been one of the ablest and staunchest advocates of the N.P. for a dozen years, on Saturday evening last:—

"We are permitted to announce to the manufacturers of Canada, that, if they are disposed to look the practical situation fairly and squarely in the face, they had better put their workshops and workhouses in order. Indiscretions in the working out of the National Policy forced upon the government have made parts of it less palatable than they might have been. Excessive protection in some places has bred discontent, while a coddling protection of things not made, or badly made in Canada, has impaired to some extent the strength of the National Policy. These mistakes in administration are no argument against the absolute necessity of the policy at the time it was inaugurated or the wisdom of maintaining it if wisely dealt with. Greater prudence, caution and regard for common sense are essential to a continuance of it, even in a modified form. The bigger manufacturers of Canada had better commence a movement towards concentration by the manufacture of specialties and such consequent distribution of patronage as will prevent cut-throat competition. Technical schools are urgently needed for the proper education of apprentices. A higher standard for foremen in all branches of industry, a more exacting demand for improvement in the make of things, a better disciplining of mechanics, higher expectations in excellence of work from the work people, and proper regard for, and fair increase in compensation for improved excellence, may do much to put our people in a position to compete with foreign makers, a competition that will always grow keener as it becomes less and less excluded."

Equally significant is the article that appeared in the next day's issue of the Star upon the subject of "Canada's Future":

Both political parties have had a great shaking up in the general elections, but the result does not so far indicate very clearly what is to be Canada's future policy. It may be gathered that fully half if not a majority of the people of Canada are tired of the present tariff, that they do not want unrestricted reciprocity nor commercial union and still less annexation, but the campaign has not developed any generally acceptable substitute for these policies. At present the policy of the Canadian people seems to be one of negations, and although a policy of negations might possibly do to get into power with, it will not do to carry on a government with. Mr. Blake's note of alarm about a drifting Dominion comes none too soon. Canada is drifting now and it is to be feared drifting in the one direction in which the great majority of Canadians do not want to go. Old Canada (Ontario and Quebec) has declared against the class policy which has gradually usurped the place of the National Policy and in favor of a policy that will certainly lead to annexation, although the leaders were careful to denounce annexation. How long will old Canada allow itself to be checked by Manitoba, British Columbia, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick? We need a policy which by conserving the material interests of all sections of the Dominion will unite all sections in defence of the national unity, national independence and national institutions, which are dear to all and which are well worth preserving. There are few Canadians who would not be willing to fight for these things, but a more practical question to-day is how many Canadians are willing to make deliberately material sacrifices for them, and the vital question for our political leaders is how to minimise or obviate such sacrifices. If Canada is to be saved means must be found to actively stimulate immigration, to develop our commercial relations with the rest of the empire, and above all to make a clean sweep of the abuses which have become as essentially a part of our political system as the ballot-box, and which have set class against class and province against province. There can be no general contentment in Canada while the system of bribery by provincial subsidies and public works continues. There can be no general contentment while we maintain a tariff that has gradually become identified with the interests of a class rather than with the interests of the country as a whole, and which is characterized too largely by sectionalism. If there is room for reform in our customs laws, how much more room is there for reform in the administration of those laws. Less vexation is caused by the tariff itself than by the uncertainties, the inequalities, the eccentricities of its administration.

In short, the great problem for the Canadian statesman is how to make Canadians, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, one in material interests and one in sentiment, and it does not require a prophet to say that if such unity is unattainable the existence of Canada is doomed."

Let any reader peruse these two extracts, and compare the position taken now by a leading Tory organ, with the position assumed by the Tory party in the past, and especially in the last elections, and then he will ask with feeling, What does it mean? The Star significantly says "we are permitted" to talk the heresy from a Tory standpoint which it is talking in the above extracts. "Permitted," and by whom? By Sir John? And why not? The Old Man has taken just as sharp a curve, and his fine sense of honor will not restrain him if he thinks he can make a party advantage by throwing the manufacturers overboard and conciliating the mass of the people by more extended trade relations.

Information for Sugar Beet Growers.

A bulletin will shortly be issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture of special interest to beet growers. It will present in a condensed form the data concerning which the most frequent inquiries are made by persons desiring to grow sugar beets. It will review briefly the climatic conditions, the varieties, soil, fertilizers, rotation, preparation of the land, planting, and all the details of culture up to and including the harvesting and delivery at the factory. Estimates are given of the cost of growing sugar beets in various countries. The production of seed, to the scientific methods of which pursued in foreign countries, is chiefly due the extraordinary increase in the sugar contents of the beet which now makes it so profitable a crop, is given a special chapter. The bulletin contains also some suggestions and information with regard to the manufacture of sugar of a nature to be of interest to all growers of this crop, and some statistical information showing the comparative development of the cane and beet sugar industries, together with the consumption of sugar per head in the principal countries during the year 1889. There are several illustrations presenting the various implements best adapted to the culture of sugar beet. The bulletin, says an American exchange, will be very brief and practical in its character. Applications for copies should be made to the Secretary of Agriculture or to the Chemist of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington D C.

All for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $30.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English word (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words, "Ladies' Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered, in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honourable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health."—Mrs. A. McCullough, Digby, N. S. 2w11d

A True Bill.

Wm. Gillespie, Wolfe Island, Ont., says: I had indigestion and stomach cough for three years. Worth Nearly a Million!

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

HAVE NOT LOST A SINGLE DAY

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Pavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

"CANADA, OUR HOME."

AS ILLUSTRATED BY THAT TYPICAL CANADIAN, DR. CLARK.

Sketch of the Life of the Superintendent of the Provincial Lunatic Asylum—His Speech at the Canadian Press Association on "Canada, Our Home," Given Verbatim—A Notable Utterance.

Although Dr. Daniel Clark, superintendent of the Provincial Asylum for the Insane, was born in Scotland, he became a Canadian in his seventh year. By reason of his inherited instincts, his best and his training, and the inspiration afforded by the expanse and resources of the glorious country of his adoption, he has become a typical Canadian. Before he left Scotland he had a little schooling; but from the time he arrived in Canada until his fifteenth year he had but three months under a dominie. At that age he left for California, landing in San Francisco in August, 1850, and he immediately set out for the gold diggings. Having struck paying dirt and acquired a surplus in a year, he returned home and entered the Simcoe Grammar School. He early exhibited a fondness for the muse, and his tenacity of memory soon placed him in the front rank as a student. Afterwards he became a student at Knox College, at Toronto. At this time Dr. Clark's purpose was to become a missionary, and in order to perfect himself for the work, he entered upon the study of medicine. After several sessions at the Toronto School of Medicine and the Victoria Medical School, in 1859 he went to Edinburgh University, and afterward perfected himself in hospital practice in London and Paris. Before returning home he made the grand tour of Europe. In 1860 he settled down at Princeton, Oxford County, Ont., and there laid the foundation of his future professional fortune.

During his busy country practice, he found time to edit the Woodstock Review, founded by his brother-in-law, Mr. Gissing. In 1864, in order to see more practical work in his profession, he was appointed on the Surgeon-General's staff of the U. S. army, and witnessed the stirring scenes of the American civil war which culminated in Appomatox. Returning home he resumed practice at Princeton, and in 1876 became president of the Medical Council of Ontario. In 1875 he was appointed superintendent of the Asylum for the Insane of Ontario, which office he still holds with advantage to the unfortunate in his charge and with honor to himself. He has been a voluminous writer of books and pamphlets, and, in his specialty, these have been translated into foreign languages, as he is recognized as one of the foremost authorities of the day. Dr. Clark is also professor of medical psychology in Toronto University, and take him all in all he is a self-made Canadian whose reputation is not limited to the bounds of his province or his country.

Dr. Clark is therefore thoroughly qualified, both by natural traits and experience, to be the speaker of the brave words for Canada which fell from his lips at the recent banquet of the Canadian Press Association in response to the toast a speech which electrified the journalists of the Province of Ontario, and which caused even its Premier to join in the genuine Saxon applause which punctuated every paragraph. Dr. Clark spoke that occasion, as follows:

This is a sentiment which needs little preparation. For anyone to give expression to his feelings in respect to seeing this fair land where our lot has been cast by birth or by adoption, needs no apologist for its existence.

Canada cannot boast of a numerous population as many of the nations of the earth can, but it is not to be forgotten that mere numbers never made a people great. It is quality and not mere density of population which claims respect. China has to-day a population of as many millions as there are days in the year; but the eastern empire is not consulted in the congress of nations. Mexico and Brazil on this continent far outnumber Canada, yet they have no influence in international matters. India, with a population of nearly two hundred millions, is kept in subjection by a comparative handful of Britains, although at one time she was the seat of empire. Mere cities surrounded by sparsely settled countries at various times in the epoch of history laid the foundations of kingdoms and empires. Need I mention Nineveh, Babylon, Rome and Venice? Rome conquered that part of the world which extended from the British Isles in the west to the banks of the Euphrates in the east and from the mountains of northern Africa in the south to the frozen north. The eagles of this mighty city carried conquest and law and literature to every part of the earth. For a man to say he was a Roman, carried with it supreme honour.

Why go to ancient history for examples of a little folk becoming a great and grand people? Britain is only a small island—a mere speck on the Atlantic ocean. On an artificial school globe of good size you can cover it with your thumb. Yet, like the great human family it pulsates all that makes a people great to the utmost boundary of her dominion; and fealty to this grand old empire is as strong in the uttermost ends of the earth as in the very shadow of St. James' palace. This loyalty and patriotism and love might be expected of a people towards this little isle of which the American Holmes sang:—

"One half her soil has waited the sun,
In marjora, heaven, poets, agree."

We in Canada are one of the outposts of this great nation, under the ample folds of whose flag lives one-sixth of the human race. Too like has never been seen since "the morning stars sang together" at the creation or "nations thundered to the setting sun, and from the river to the ends of the earth."

It is true that during the twelve centuries of its existence it has been in Egyptian bondage, it has waded through many a Red Sea of blood; it has drunk deeply often of the bitter waters of Marah; it has traversed many deserts; it has been smitten by many plagues and sorrow, and often been despoiled by the Balaams of the ages. But in spite of all, it entered the Promised-Land of national greatness, and let that people that is without sin cast the first stone at this grand member of empire.

It is also often said that we are situated so far north on this continent that there is little capacity for expansion to make us a great people were we to work out our own destiny, as many suggest. Such ignore the facts of history. It is astonishing that the most of the great nations of all ages existed on lines of latitude no further south than is the Niagara district of this province. Take a map and see for yourselves. Not only so, but as a rule the conquerors of nations came from the north. We all know how weak Greece was in her palmy days, considered numerically. Sparta, Athens and Corinth were jealous of one another. No sooner did the Southern Persian hosts display their glittering spears and their burnished shields on the European side of the Hellespont by the millions, than Sparta forgot its enmities; Athens laid aside its pride; Thebes in Beotia forgot its quarrels and man to man and shoulder to shoulder the Greeks faced the Southern invaders and the bloody gate of Thermopylæ, the ensanguined fields of Marathon and Platæa and the gory wave of Salamis proclaimed in heroic deeds that Greece was living Greece still.

Need I tell you how the time came when the Northern invaders from Macedonia in turn conquered this classic land with its victorious world-wild victors? Need I state how the Northern Gauls swept over Italy and laid Imperial Rome in ruins?

Why recite the deeds of the gallant Swedes down in Central Europe, although they came from sterile plains and bleak mountains—farther north than the Hebrides. The Danes issued from the sand plains and dreary marsh lands, which lie in a little peninsula between the Baltic and the North Sea, and carried conquest and terror not only to the British Isles, but throughout Europe and into Africa it is said. Yet they had their home as far north as Scotland or the Behring Sea. Russia was not quite two centuries ago only composed of semi-barbarous hordes issuing from Scandinavian forests not far from the Arctic circle. Yet since the existence of the great grandfathers of many now living, it seized Finland, grabbed the robber's share of Poland, conquered northern Asia, captured a large slice of the north-west part of this continent, subdued Central Asia, and is now as near British Cashmere in India as Toronto is to Montreal, and if let alone would to-day be in possession of Constantinople and the Dardanelles. This northern empire is to-day, by reason of its aggressiveness, a standing menace to Europe, and yet its capital is as far north as Labrador and Southern Greenland.

With these and such historic records before us, Canadians can see the grand possibilities in our great country, and we as the Norsemen of this continent, even if left to ourselves, need fear no foe unless history belies itself and we prove traitor to the best interests of the Dominion.

These interests are not mercenary, nor even financial, but are largely sentimental. If we lose the sentiment of love of country, love of kindred, love of laws and love of institutions—in short—loss of patriotism—then should we be allowed to perish miserably, as such dead peoples have done in the past, and without hope of a resurrection. Such is not our destiny, for we have already more than fulfilled the prophecy of the Druid priest to Boadicea, Queen of the Britons, in that

"Regions Cæsar never knew
Our posterity shall sway
Where his eagles never flew,
None invincible as they."

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Entertainment by the Royal Edinburgh Concert Company Last Night in Toronto.

MacLennan's Royal Edinburgh Concert company gave the first of two concerts in the new Auditorium last night to a fairly good house, although far from as good as the high and finished character of the entertainment deserved. The second concert will be given to-night in the same place, and, no doubt, as a result of the really first class abilities of the artistes, the audience will be largely increased. Of the company it can be unhesitatingly said that each member is a highly trained artiste, possessing vocal and musical powers far above the average.—Toronto Mail, Dec. 18th, 1890. At the opera house, Peterborough, March 18th.

The most attractive entertainment of the season will be the concert on Tuesday evening, 17th March, under the auspices of the Catholic Association, in Bradburn's Opera House.

Those of our readers who have had the pleasure of hearing Mr. S. H. Clark, the talented elocutionist, will be glad to know that an opportunity will be given them of renewing that pleasure at the Catholic Association concert here on the 17th March. When last in Peterborough, Mr. Clark recited "The Chariot Race," taken from General Lew Wallace's great work, "Ben Hur," and the audience were entranced at his vivid description of the exciting incidents of the race in the vast amphitheatre at Rome. At the coming concert Mr. Clark will recite an equally stirring piece, but one not heard here before, being an adaptation by himself of "Casca weights, owners up." Mr. Clark has a beautifully modulated voice, fine stage presence, and is possessed of that intense nervous dramatic power that enables him to completely enter into the spirit of the actions he is relating and to carry his audience with him.

The plan of reserved seats for the Catholic Association concert on the 17th March is now open and seats may be reserved at W. M. Greatrex's store, Hunter street.

St. John's Lenten Lecture.

A Practical Address on Bible Topics by Rev. Canon DuMoulin—The Bible as a Literary Work—Its Human and Divine Elements.

One of the most interesting and instructive lectures so far of the Lenten series in St. John's Church was delivered Wednesday evening by Rev. Canon DuMoulin before a large congregation. His subject was the "Bible," and, in opening, he said there were three books all members of the church possessed—the Bible, the prayer book, and the hymn book. They had them in the church and in the home, but if they would keep them constantly in use and have them in their hearts and make them a part of their Christian life, they would do well indeed. With this fact in view, the reverend speaker said he would give some plain remarks concerning the first of these books. In previous lectures during Lent he had dealt with the prayer book and hymn book; now he would take up the Bible, an endless theme, but as he did not purpose giving an endless address, he would select from the topics of interest clustering round the sacred volume three of the most striking—the literary, the human, and the divine elements in the Holy Word. The complaint was sometimes made that the Bible could not be understood and was unintelligible, but that complaint was made by men who picked up the book and read at haphazard in different places without knowing anything of the writer or

THE THINGS OF WHICH HE WROTE.

If these casual Bible readers would remember that the Holy Book is a collection of 66 volumes, written by 50 authors, the composition of which extended over a period of 1600 years, that it was in fact a whole library and should be treated as such, there would be none of these complaints. In reading works of history or secular subjects, they were dealt with systematically, read from beginning to end, and not at random, as some people attempted to read the Bible. To be properly understood the Bible, which was the most ancient book extant, should be read carefully. One cannot expect to get an intelligent understanding of any book unless the writer, the circumstances and period of the writer are known. If the books of the Bible were given similar treatment, those complaining of the unintelligibility of the Holy Word, would see it in a new light.

Then the human element characterized every part of the Bible. As man's fall was brought about by himself, so his redemption was accomplished by a man, and it has ever been God's design to have the Gospel proclaimed by man. God to do this, but he chose men. When God raised up and commissioned men to teach and preach, he didn't destroy their humanity nor their individuality. So each writer of the Bible has stamped his personality on his writings. Each has his own style and peculiarities. Moses, Samuel, David, Ezekiel, the apostles and the other prophets and priests who wrote God's Word, must not be thought of as ghosts, phantoms, impersonal beings of the past, but as men of flesh and blood like ourselves, with the same natures and dispositions, and the impress of their individuality was as plainly marked on their writings as was the personality of great men to-day stamped upon their productions. In this respect the Bible was a perpetual stream, a deep well of consolation. We can see the reflection of our own characters, our infirmities and difficulties, in the different writings, and they bear messages directly to us. This had a humanizing, endearing influence and brought us into closer communion with the Bible. The Bible writers appeal to us not as strangers, but as fellow citizens and saints in the household of God.

MIGHT HAVE EMPLOYED ANGELS

THE DIVINE ELEMENT

in the Bible was then dealt with. The relation of father and child was that in which God stood to us, and as between father and child there was communication of thought and idea, either by signs or words, so the Bible was the medium of God's communication to us, and prayer the means by which we communicate with Him. Hence God's revelations are characterized by paternity. The Bible contains His advice, wisdom, comfort, compassion, and instruction for our guidance through life; His strength in our weakness and His forgiveness for our sins. There was also a certainty, an unequivocal positiveness, about God's word that was most satisfying. Philosophers surmise and have theories about this and that, but God's word is distinct, clear, sure. This certainty was shown in the narrative of the creation, the fall of man, the Bible story all through, and the way of salvation—which is and ever has been, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Again, it is sometimes difficult to understand the Bible. This was a source of satisfaction. If the word was as plain and simple as a primer, we might doubt that the all-wise and all-powerful. It was a reflection of the mind of Him "whose ways and knowledge and purposes were inscrutable." And, while He has written everything necessary for our salvation and instruction as plainly as a, b, c, there are parts which eternity only will see explained. The revelation of God, like a noble stream, has deep places. We should read and study and ask Divine help to enlighten us, and in so doing our faith will be so strengthened that nothing shall shake it.

In conclusion, said Canon DuMoulin, "what would you think of a man who owns this wonderful volume, this inestimable treasure, and seldom or never reads it, but leaves it on the shelf for months at a time? Too often we cry out loudly that the Bible is the only religion of Protestants; we display it on cushions, on horseback and in processions; we have it in lodge rooms and make it a war cry and battle cry—and never read it. Let us, he said, read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest, for "Blessed are they that hear the Word of God and keep it."

Orange Grand Lodge.

Conclusion of the Annual Meeting—The New Officers Elect—Next Meet Year at Napanee.

Wednesday afternoon, after the Grand Lodge had resumed, a telegram of congratulation was received from the Most Worshipful Grand Master of British North America, Bro. N. Clarke Wallace, M.P., Toronto, which was returned.

The Grand Lodge considered the necessity of more thorough understanding of the principles of the Order throughout this jurisdiction, and the lodge appropriated a sum of money, the amount to be fixed by the executive, to engage an organizer for this purpose, Senator Cromey agreeing to supplement it with a like sum.

A resolution of condolence was passed to the family of the late Rev. Wm. Patterson, of Hall's Bridge, Deputy Grand Chaplain.

The Orange Mutual Insurance scheme was considered.

A resolution of thanks was tendered to the Foresters for the use of the hall.

The Grand Lodge then adjourned till evening.

The lodge assembled at 7 o'clock and proceeded to the election of officers as follows:

Best Three in Four.

Peterborough Curlers will Possess the Trophy this Season.

The fourth game of the Lindsay-Peterborough challenge cup series was played Wednesday, and resulted in a win for Peterborough. The home curlers have won three of the four games played, and will in all probability hold the trophy this season. The schedule calls for six games, but it is feared the soft weather will prevent the completion of the conditions. In Wednesday's game the ice was very soft, and a close match was played, Peterborough only winning by four points, those playing at home being ten behind, which was more than made up by the rinks at Lindsay. Skip Fiavelle was unable to play on account of illness. The scores were:

Carter's Prize Prolific Barley.

The Dominion Government's Distribution of Two-rowed Barley.

In February, 1890, the Government of Canada, on recommendation of the Hon. the Minister of Agriculture, made provision for the importation of 10,000 bushels of two-rowed barley from England, to be sold to farmers in Canada for seed. This was imported in 5,000 bags of 112 lbs. each, the "Prize Prolific" being the variety chosen for the purpose, and this barley was offered at the cost of importation, $4 per bag, the Government paying freight charges to the nearest railway station to the purchaser. By this arrangement farmers in every part of the Dominion obtained the barley at a uniform price, but one bag only was available to each individual. This restriction was made at the outset so as to secure a wide distribution for the grain, and prevent a too rapid exhaustion of the stock, so that applicants from distant portions of the Dominion might not be disappointed. This limitation lessened the sales, and as soon as it was ascertained that the barley on hand would be more than sufficient to meet the demand on the basis of one bag only for each purchaser, the restriction was withdrawn. About 3,200 bags were sold to 2,600 purchasers, leaving nearly 1,800 bags on hand.

I am now instructed to offer the remaining stock at three dollars per bag, freight prepaid to the nearest railway station to the purchaser, with no restriction as to the number of bags which any individual may buy. All orders must be accompanied by a remittance sufficient to cover the amount of the order. The applications will be entered as received, and the orders filled in rotation as long as the stock holds out.

The germinating power of this barley has been tested from ten samples taken from different bags, the average vitality is 90 per cent. and the growth strong.

All communications should be addressed to the undersigned.

An Example Worth Following

Mrs. ——, living near Stratford, Ont., has had an experience worth relating, and her plain, truthful story may in some measure be the means of guiding aright other women, who now suffer as Mrs. —— once did. In her letter to us she says:—"Eighteen months ago my health began to fail. I was nervous and always felt weary and worn out; I did not sleep well, and got up in the morning almost as tired as when I went to bed. I was an invalid in the housework by my daughter, a girl of seventeen, who owing to my continued weak condition, was obliged to work a great deal and neglect her studies. A relative from Toronto paid us a visit and was surprised to find me so changed. Without asking my permission she drove to Stratford, and came back with a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, which she told me I must commence to use. I had often heard of it before, but had not thought of using it for my own troubles. I commenced its use, and in two weeks felt much stronger and slept better. After using it for about five weeks I was as well as ever before. Now my appetite is good, I sleep soundly, rest as peacefully as a child, I am fatter, and my digestion is perfect."

TWO DASHING GIRLS.

A YOUNG ENGLISHWOMAN AND A TEXAS SENORITA.

Their Remarkable Journey From Texas Into and Through Mexico—Penetrating the Mountains and Valleys Unattended—Safe Home Again.

There are two young ladies spending a few weeks in San Antonio (Texas), who have recently, says a correspondent, had a most remarkable experience. It has been long the prevailing opinion among Americans and people of foreign countries that traveling in unfrequented parts of Mexico is not without its dangers, and there are, in fact, comparatively few men in this country who would start upon such a venturesome journey as that undertaken by Miss Mary Jaques of Java Lodge, Hampshire, England, and Miss Emma Hartley of Junction City, Tex. The father of Miss Jaques is the owner of an extensive cattle ranch near Junction City. Last summer Miss Jaques arrived in this country to spend a few months. She proceeded to the ranch and soon became acquainted with the people of the frontier village, among the list of her new friends being Miss Hartley. The English girl was delighted with frontier life and its free and reckless ways, and she was soon imbued with a spirit of daring fully equal to that possessed by her companions, who had spent all of their life in Texas.

In the latter part of last August the idea occurred to Miss Jaques that she would like to visit the City of Mexico, and in looking about her for a suitable companion she chose upon Miss Hartley. After much discussion of the subject these two young ladies decided that they would not travel to the ancient capital of the republic by the ordinary way of railroads, but that they would make the journey in a vehicle, and alone. When they made their intentions known at the ranch and in Junction City, their friends held up their hands in horror at the mere thought of such a venture, which they believed would result in certain death to the venturesome young ladies. In the absence of her relatives, however, Miss Jaques had her own way about the matter, and Miss Hartley stood firm in her resolve to be the companion of the young English lady in the novel trip.

The town of Junction City is nearly 200 miles from the Mexican border, the entire distance to the City of Mexico from that place being about 1,600 miles. A light wagon and a team of Texas horses were purchased and all arrangements for the trip had been perfected early in last September. In the wagon was stored a complete camping outfit and a small amount of provisions. It being the intention of the ladies to procure the necessary supply of eatables from the people along the line of their journey, the provisions taken along were only to be used in cases of necessity.

It was a bright morning in September when they set out from Junction City, but not under very promising auspices, as the people of that town predicted openly that they would never reach the City of Mexico alive. The only firearms carried by the ladies were a brace of pistols, and as Miss Hartley was an expert shot, Miss Jaques felt that any intruders on the peace of their journey would meet with a warm reception. The country lying between Junction City and Piedras Negras, where they crossed the Rio Grande River into Mexico, is a desolate, mountainous region, the only inhabitants being ranchmen, the habitations being at intervals of from twenty-five to fifty miles. The journey to the Rio Grande River occupied four days. It was at the Mexican border that the ladies met with their first obstacle. They found that the Mexican duties on their horses and wagon would cost them more than a new outfit. They conferred as to what would be the best thing for them to do under the circumstances, and finally they decided to dispatch their own team and wagon back to Junction City. This was done and they crossed the bridge to Piedras Negras on foot and purchased another outfit in that city and again set out on their journey of 1400 miles overland to the Mexican capital.

The journey to Monterey was made over mountain trails, but they were beset with no severe difficulties. They were treated with universal courtesy and respect by the natives, and were given every assistance asked by those whom they met. They were mentally prepared for danger and adventure, but in this they were disappointed, the most thrilling incident of the trip being the riding of a drunken soldier into their tent by mistake. The astonished, but ever-courteous Mexican quietly retired with profuse apologies for his intrusion. In the higher altitudes they experienced some discomforts, owing to the chilly nights and the scarcity of wood and coal for camping. They passed through sections of country which had never before been penetrated or traversed by any foreigner, and the astonishment of the natives was very amusing to the ladies. Every night of the journey, which occupied nearly three months, was spent in their camp tent alone and unprotected. They traveled by the way of Monterey, Saltillo, San Luis Potosi and Pachuca. At Pachuca they spent several days visiting the mines, ironworks and reducers.

They spent several days in the City of Mexico and started to make their return journey by overland, but owing to the severe weather experienced on the uplands they were compelled to abandon their team and wagon at San Luis Potosi and finish their trip by rail. But, determined to enjoy the unsurpassed climate and scenery of Mexico to the utmost, they traveled a good part of the way on the locomotive.

Miss Jaques will go from San Antonio to Junction City, where she will spend a few weeks, and will then return to her old home in England, Miss Hartley to accompany her for a visit. Both ladies are very prepossessing and intelligent and they have their minds stored with valuable information concerning Mexico and the people of that country.

Courtship in the Year 2000.

While the unmarried woman of the year 2000, whether young or old, will enjoy the dignity and independence of the bachelor of to-day, says Edward Bellamy in The Ladies' Home Journal for February, the insolent prosperity at present enjoyed by the latter will have passed into salutary, if sad, eclipse. No longer profiting by the effect of the pressure of economic necessity upon woman, to make him indispensable, but dependent exclusively upon his intrinsic attractions, instead of being able to assume the fastidious airs of a sultan surrounded by languishing beauties, he will be fortunate if he can secure by his merits the smiles of one. In the year 2000 no man, whether lover or husband, may hope to win the favor of maid or wife save by desert. While the poet, justly apprehending the ideal proprieties, has always persisted in representing man at the feet of woman, woman has been, in fact, the dependent and pensioner of man. Nationalism will justify the poet and satisfy the eternal fitness of things by bringing him to his marrow-bones Breadstuffs.

On the curb in Chicago, at 3.30 p. m., Tuesday, May wheat was quoted at $1.00½; puts, 99½c; calls, $1.01. Puts on May corn 58½c; calls, 63½c.

The United States Government estimate of wheat in farmers' hands is 112,000,000 bushels, which is considered a bearish feature. Corn, 520,000,000 bushels reserve, as against 900,000,000 bushels a year ago.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Wheat—Closed ¼ to ⅜c lower. There was considerable selling out during the last hour on rumors of private despatches giving the closing of the Liverpool at a decline of 1d. The mild weather everywhere, liberal receipts in the Northwest and despatches from New York claiming that Liverpool was selling, also encouraged the trade in realizing on the advance. Corn—The market closed ¼ to 5 8c lower on realising sales and sympathy with the easier tone of the wheat market. Oats—Closed unchanged. Barley—Steady. Receipts—Wheat, 69 cars; corn, 548 cars; oats, 2... cars. Provisions—Were active and firmer, in sympathy with the better prices for hogs. Pork advanced 12½ to 20c, lard 5c and ribs 5c.

Barley Markets.

CHICAGO, March 10.—Barley—The readiness with which sales were made and the prices realized presented the market as clothed in about the same features as have lately been revealed. The demand was ample for the supply, yet it was without urgency. Choice grades were firm, and lightweight ordinary lots were saleable. Yet it required a good deal of straining to secure the prices which were realized. Good weight malting barley, clean and sound, was quotable at 68 to 70c., with choice heavy and light selling up to 74 to 75c.

BUFFALO, March 10.—There was a stronger tone to the barley market, as it is claimed that a large amount is being used in Canada for food, as oats are scarce at 50 to 52c. No. 1 Canada is scarce here, or at least but little is offered; No. 2 quoted at 91 to 92c.; No. 3 extra, 83 to 85c.

Live Stock Markets.

TORONTO.—Business at the cattle market Tuesday was better than it has been for some time. Though prices were but a very little better than a week ago, things sold quicker and it was not long till everything was sold out. Seven loads of cattle went to Montreal. There being a fair market in Montreal yesterday the cattle sold well. Some very choice butchers' cattle found a ready sale at 4¼c. and others from 3¾c. to 4¼c. Medium brought from 3½c. to 3¾c. and inferior 3c. to 3½c. only a few going under 3c.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE

THE HOUSE MET FOR TEN MINUTES YESTERDAY.

A Batch of Petitions Presented—To Punish Bribery—To Teach Embalming—Endorsed by the Undertakers' Association.

TORONTO, March 12.—The Assembly met yesterday, read a few petitions and adjourned, the whole proceedings lasting only about 10 minutes.

Mr. E. F. Clarke presented a petition from St. George's Society praying for power to acquire and dispose of shares in the St. George's Hall Company, to which it was granted a building lease of its Elm-street property.

Mr. Meek presented a petition from Bishop Macdonell of Alexandria, praying for the incorporation of himself and successors as "The Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation for the Diocese of Alexandria in Ontario, Canada," with the usual powers regarding the acquirement and possession of property.

Petitions were presented from the county council of Elgin by Mr. McColl and from the council of Kent by Mr. Clancy, asking for the appointment of inspectors of milk in all the cheese-making districts of the province.

Mr. Allan presented a petition from the Wellington County Council praying that the legislative grant to high schools might be increased.

A petition was presented from the Carleton County Council by Mr. Moak, praying that no change might be made in the present law to curtail the authority and control councils now enjoy over county jails.

Mr. Whitney intends to reintroduce his bill of last session increasing the penalties for bribery at elections. In addition to the present punishment of a $200 fine he proposes to add a punishment of not more than three months in jail at the discretion of the judge. He also wants to make it obligatory on the County Crown Attorney to attend all election trials for the purpose of instituting proceedings for bribery.

The bill respecting Collegiate Institutes which Mr. Ross has introduced makes a number of important changes. It provides for the establishment of a commercial department in all these institutions and the appointment of a specialist in commercial subjects, including stenography, the appointment of trustees in December, the disqualification of members of municipal councils from serving as trustees, the representation of Public School Boards on the Collegiate Institute Board the same as Separate School Boards are now represented, change in the mode of disposing of real estate, making it less cumbersome. It also gives authority to county councils to impose fees not exceeding $10 per annum on pupils from the country, the intention being to shift the burden of maintaining high schools from ratepayers generally to those using the schools. No change is made in the matter of fees from the high school district.

The Public Schools Bill will institute a leaving examination with a wide course in English literature and commercial subjects. Provision is also made for contributing to the cost of the inspection of public schools in cities and towns separated from the county. Under the Act of 1871 the Government recognized liability for the inspection of rural schools only. This will be changed. In cities with over 300 teachers provision will be made for additional inspection, and city inspectors will be placed under the same obligations regarding the discharge of their duties as county inspectors. The inequality of school sections will be remedied by making the option that was allowed municipal councils of giving $160 to each school section within the township obligatory. County councils will be relieved from giving for the maintenance of rural schools an equivalent of the Government grant. This will equalize the disproportion between the various school sections.

The members of the different committees met yesterday and organized for business. The chairmen elected were: Railway, Mr. Fraser; Private Bills, Mr. Gibson (Hamilton); Privileges and Elections, Mr. Harcourt Municipal, Mr. Hardy; Standing Orders, Mr. H. P. O'Connor; Public Accounts, Mr. Clarke (Wellington); Printing, Mr. Balfour.

A deputation from Halton consisting of Messrs. J. H. McCallum, D. Wheelihan and J. A. Fraser waited upon the Provincial Treasurer yesterday with reference to the inspectorship of licenses in that county. The present inspector, Mr. W. D. Brothers, has gone to California for his health and his stay there may be prolonged indefinitely. As it will soon be time to grant new licences these gentlemen were anxious to have a new inspector appointed and proposed the name of the latter, Mr. Fraser, who was inspector before the Scott Act was adopted.

The Attorney-General has introduced a bill to regulate loan companies. It is simply a copy of the Dominion law on the subject, being sections 68 to 102 inclusive, of chapter 119, R.S.C. The only clause of the Dominion law omitted is that providing that an annual statement of assets and liabilities, etc., must be made to the Minister of Finance. It has been customary to attach these regulations to each particular charter granted, but it is thought the public will be better protected if they are incorporated in a statute.

The members of the Press Gallery met yesterday and organized for the session. Mr. Horace Wallis of The Mail was elected president and Mr. A. C. Campbell of The Globe secretary.

Reducing the Seal Catch.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Treasury Department is considering a proposition to reduce the annual catch of fur seals in Behrings Sea as fixed by the existing lease, in order to guard against possible extinction of the species.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 12.—At a meeting of the Geological and Mining Section of the Canadian Institute held last night this resolution was passed:

The Geological and Mining Section of the Canadian Institute are of opinion that until a provincial department of mines is established the mining and metallurgical interests of Ontario cannot receive that attention which their importance demands, and therefore recommend that a mining convention be called to meet in the city of Toronto, at the Canadian Institute, on March 31 at 10 o'clock a.m., to consider measures for the advancement of the mining industry and the advisability of establishing a provincial department of mines. The Institute is hereby requested to give notice calling upon the various mining localities throughout the province to send delegates to meet the delegates appointed by the institute for the purpose of laying their views before the Provincial Government.

The motion was seconded by Mr. J. F. Latimer, Toronto, and unanimously carried.

The Court of Appeal yesterday heard argument in the case of the township of South Colchester and the trustees of the Colchester Baptist Church, an appeal from the judgment of Mr. Justice Rose ordering the plaintiffs to pay the amount of an award. The township expropriated part of the burying ground belonging to the church and ran a road through it. One Hayne claims that the graveyard is his property and not that of the church and the dispute is one of title. Judgment was reserved.

A cross petition was yesterday filed in the South Norfolk election case by Mr. Charlton, the member-elect, against the defeated candidate, setting out the usual charges of bribery and corruption.

PORT ARTHUR, March 11.—Andrew Graham of Rossport had been to Schreiber to make purchases, and was standing on the platform of the car with parcels under each arm, when he was thrown from his feet and fell under the wheels and badly mangled. He died in a few hours. The remains were sent to Barrie.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

BALFOUR OUTLINES THE WORK OF RELIEVING DISTRESS.

Chili's President Assassinated — 800 Natives Murdered — Loss of a Ship With All Hands—Arbitrators to Decide the Newfoundland Question.

LONDON, March 12.—In the House of Commons this evening in committee of supply Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, asked a credit of £35,831 for the relief of distress in Ireland. He explained that the Government had adopted every possible means to expedite relief works, which otherwise could not have been begun before April or May. He spoke highly of the assistance farmers, priests and landlords had rendered, which had saved the Government much expense. Altogether 600 men were employed on these works, and about 40,000 persons had been relieved. He had carefully enquired into the condition of every district, availing himself of every information, official and unofficial, and many private sources. He never allowed a stint of actual starvation to be 24 hours in his possession without instructing an immediate special enquiry, and in every case of absolute destitution reported he had found complete, and in many cases fraudulent, misrepresentation. There had been no case of starvation on the mainland, but there had been a great risk of starvation on the islands, and therefore special steamers had been chartered to investigate the condition of the inhabitants and to convey meal and other supplies to them. He dwelt upon the difficulty of obtaining an adequate supervision of relief works in order to ensure that all deserving and no undeserving persons should be employed. In some districts where reliable lists of deserving persons could be obtained 7 shillings was paid weekly to persons on relief works, but in other districts where it was impossible to obtain such lists the men were paid only in kind, meal to the value of 11 pence being given daily to each workman. This had the effect of diminishing the demand for work.

Total number persons engaged on relief works up to Feb. 28	7,997
Total amounts of wages paid	£31,159
Weekly wage bill	3,000

Mr. Morley said he generally approved the points of Mr. Balfour's relief scheme for Ireland.

Thomas Wallace Russell (Liberal) said that never before had distress in Ireland been so admirably met as at the present time.

The credit asked for by Mr. Balfour was adopted.

The House, 150 to 40, adopted a vote of £136,000 for light railways in Ireland.

The Newfoundland Question to Be Settled by Arbitration.

LONDON, March 12.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer, admitted that there was a basis of truth in the report that the French and British Governments have decided to refer the matters in dispute in connection with Newfoundland to arbitration.

ROME, March 12.—The revolutions concerning the banditti of Massowah, in which St. Liviaghi is implicated, show thus far that over 800 victims have been robbed and murdered by the local gendarmes, who are formed in a gang.

BUENOS AYRES, March 12.—Advices from Chili state there has been fighting between the revolutionists and Government troops and that the former were victorious. It is reported the republic offered to mediate between the contending factions.

Cutting Down Her Military Expenditures.

BERLIN, March 21.—Advices from Berlin show that the Government continues to cut down the expenditures for military equipment. At Spandau the force employed in the manufacture of small arms has been reduced from 2000 to 600, and work is also less active at the dockyards since the Reichstag gave notice that extravagance in naval construction would not be permitted. It is stated also that for the present the plan of converting the city of Breslau into a great fortress will not be carried out.

FOUGHT ON A TRAIN.

Another Attempted Murder on a Spanish Railway Train.

MADRID, March 12.—The woman found murdered in a railway train at Seville yesterday was a French dressmaker. The post mortem examination showed that she had been repeatedly stabbed with a knife and that her throat had been cut. The assassins were surprised at their work by the stoppage of the train and jumped out, dropping some bank notes and gold, which were afterwards found covered with blood. Three men have been arrested on suspicion of being the murderers.

Last evening a robber entered a first-class carriage on a train at Saramoosa and with a knife stabbed one of the passengers, inspector-general of telegraphs. The latter overpowered the assassin and threw him off the train. The man was afterwards captured in a dying condition.

BLAINE DISSATISFIED.

Lord Salisbury's Response Fails to Please Him.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Mr. Blaine is anything but satisfied with Lord Salisbury's response to his arbitration proposal in the Behring Sea matter. The practical consequence of Lord Salisbury's latest despatch appears to be that Mr. Blaine will have to make a further retreat than he effected by his note of last December to the British Minister if he wishes to settle the Behring Sea question before he leaves office. The prevailing opinion here is that he will complete the retrograde movement then begun by availing himself of Lord Salisbury's admission that the United States now has all the rights that Russia had in Behring Sea and agreeing that an arbitration shall decide what these rights were at the time Russia possessed them.

A RED-HOT CENT IN HIS SHOE.

The Peculiar Manner in Which a Colored Man Met His Death.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—Walter Munroe, a colored man, died at his home in Germantown from blood poisoning produced in a singular manner. Not long ago he fell into a dose at the saloon of John A. Smith, 4940 Germantown-road, and some of the habitues of the place, thinking to have some fun at his expense, dropped a red-hot copper cent into his shoe. His foot was badly burned and the wound rapidly developed into blood poisoning. Just before he died he informed the police of the way he received his injury and several arrests followed.

MURDERER WILLIAMS.

JUSTICE IS SLOW, BUT APPEARS TO BE SURE.

Arrested at Albany, N. Y., for a Crime Committed a Year or More Ago—Extradition Proceedings to be Taken at Once.

LONDON, March 13.—A telegram was received this morning from Albany, N.Y., announcing that Williams, the murderer of Lyman, was under arrest there. The utmost secrecy surrounded the telegram as the authorities did not want the report out until it was confirmed. Magistrate Bartlet has referred the matter to the Ontario authorities as to the best course to adopt. It is very probable that Detective Campeau will be sent to Albany to investigate the truthfulness of the telegram. It will be remembered that in the summer of 1889 Williams, a colored man, and William Lyman, a waite man, a driver for W. J. McKee, quarrelled while loading lumber. At 6 o'clock while Lyman was in the stable and in a stooping position, Williams struck him on the head with the neckyoke, smashing in the skull, from which he died. Williams was tracked over to Detroit, but there all trace of him was lost. It is now believed he is in the clutches of the law.

Van Camp Died Accidentally.

BROCKVILLE, March 12.—The jury in the case of Thomas Utman, who was charged with having murdered, near Prescott, in September of last year, one Oscar Van Camp, and afterwards placing the body on the railway track to be run over by a train and so hide the crime, returned a verdict at a late hour last night unanimously acquitting the prisoner.

AYLMER, March 13.—Aylmer was visited by another fire last night, involving the destruction of the block of buildings owned by the Farthings estate, and occupied by Marlett & Sherk, grocers, and Halstrop & Mann, furniture dealers. The greater part of Helstrop & Mann's furniture stock was destroyed, and also a very large portion of Marlatt & Sherk's. The loss to the Farthings estate on building is $2500. Insurance $3000 in the Fire Assurance Association; Marlatt & Sherk's loss $3000, fully insured for $2500 in the London Assurance Company. Halstrop & Mann's loss $2000; insured in the Imperial for a like amount.

A WIDOW RESPONSIBLE.

A Bridegroom Arrested For Bigamy a Week After His Marriage.

MILTON, March 12.—Yesterday Hugh Foster, aged about 40, was brought from Toronto township by Constable Bradley and lodged in jail. He has a wife and family here very respectable. Last fall he left them and went to Muskoka with a widow, driving there and back with a rig which he hired here. For keeping the rig too long he spent a month in jail. He did not take up with the widow again but went to Toronto township, where he was married on the 3rd inst. to a girl belonging to a respectable family named Clarkson. A Miltonian hearing of the second marriage caused Foster's arrest by telling the girl's family about his Milton wife.

QUEEN OF THE LAUNDRESSES.

The Procession of Parisian Laundresses This Year.

PARIS, March 13.—The procession of the laundresses in Paris, which is always one of the sights of the city, was this year a most marked success. In fact people say it has not been equaled in years. There were hundreds of thousands of people along the boulevards, all eager to see the parade and all testifying to its excellence as compared with the last ones. The heroine of the occasion, she who has been elected by her fellows as the queen of the laundresses, is Mademoiselle Louise Sicard, a beautiful brunet of twenty-six summers. She is a statuesque creature of a tall and commanding figure, which, though powerfully built, is nevertheless exceedingly graceful. Her profile is classical, out of a type which is common enough in the province of which she is a native. She has a low forehead, a head of wavy jet black hair, dark, ardent eyes and an open-hearted smile. She was not long in winning a popular place in the good graces of the assembled multitude. After her election as queen she held a reception at one of the public laundries, where she received the devoirs of her faithful subjects for the nonce. Her hair was decorated with flowers, and she wore a beautiful bouquet in her corsage. The coach which is reserved for the triumphal procession of her soapsuds majesty is a brake, draped with crimson velvet, heavily fringed with gold. It is decorated with real camellias and the seat behind the box is canopied with these flowers, which were so much affected by the heroine of Dumas' celebrated novel. The coachman extraordinary to the queen drove four horses and took his seat supported on each side by a negro decked out in fantastic clothing.

BEWARE MY REVOLVER.

An Exciting Scene in the Italian Parliament—Crispi's Warning.

ROME, March 13.—A most exciting and disgraceful incident took place last evening during a debate in the Chamber of Deputies. Signor Imbriani, excited by some remarks made, shouted to the Crispi group: "You are servants of Austria." Crispi replied: "Servants, no; good friends, yes."

Imbriani repeated his remark: "You are servants of Austria."

To this Crispi retorted with a gross insult, intended for Imbriani. The latter called Crispi to withdraw the remark, but the ex-Premier refused, saying that while he held the position of a minister of the state he had been forced to endure the annoyance of Imbriani. "But now," angrily cried Crispi, "I am no longer to do so, as I am only a deputy. In my pocket is a revolver; beware!" A scene of excitement ensued.

CIGARS AS MEDICINE.

They May Be Sold on Sunday in Massachusetts to Relieve Catarrh.

BOSTON, March 12.—Wendell Jones, postmaster at Dorchester, bought half-a-dozen cigars at a drug store last Sunday, and, there being a law which forbids the sale of articles on Sunday for other than medicinal purposes, a policeman who saw the sale promptly entered complainant and the drug clerk was held to answer to-day.

The clerk told Judge Churchill that he knew that Postmaster Jones is a sufferer from bronchial catarrh and that to the best of his belief smoking has a tendency to relieve this trouble. He sold the cigars purely as medicine. Judge Churchill found that the Sunday law had not been violated.

The American Association is weakened perceptibly, but the gap can be filled up by the admission of Toledo, which city is still anxious to remain in the swim."

Messianic Prophecy.

NO. III.

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

Prof. Workman in his "new theology" tells us that "Prophecy, like poetry, is capable of innumerable applications;" " " a truly moral poet is in his own degree an inspired teacher. There is a prophetic element in all sanctified poetry." He believes also that the heathen poets were inspired. He says, "It is unwise to depreciate pagan prophecy." From the teaching of the inspired poets and heathen prophets Prof. W. must have formed his new doctrine. He can't find ground for it to stand upon in the Holy Scriptures. He tells us "a SCIENTIFIC interpretation of the Old Testament without any reference to the New Testament is possible." Page 437. With the New Testament closed he tells us that David was not the author of the 110th Psalm, but a poet of David's time "wrote it," while Christ tells us, Mark xii, 36, and Peter in Acts ii, 34, that "David himself said by the Holy Ghost, 'the Lord said to my Lord, sit thou on my right hand till I make thy enemies thy footstool,'" a quotation from the 110th Psalm word for word, and which appears in no other place in the Old Testament. Prof. W. says David did not write this Psalm, Christ says he did; who are we to believe? Will we not believe Him who said, "I am come a light into the world?" This "new theology" is the result of keeping the New Testament closed, and is called by Prof. W. "scientific exegesis." The common sense name for this sort of thing is "going it blind." If Christ's authority is to be set aside on such important questions we will very easily drift into Unitarianism, and deny His divinity altogether. Away with the old, and give us a new Bible! The old Bible that our fathers read won't do for this scientific age. We do not need the Holy Spirit to interpret the Bible now-a-days. We are told on page 435, "one must interpret the Bible as one would interpret another book, with grammar, lexicon and complete critical apparatus." The Lord have mercy on the common people of to-day who know nothing of lexicon or critical apparatus. The New Testament writers were not skilled in the "higher criticisms," and perchance for this reason they were not as well qualified to make as "critical use of the sacred Scriptures" as a doctor of philosophy of the 19th century.

But we gather comfort from this fact that the people of their day took knowledge of these men that they had been with Jesus and learned of Him. What a schooling these men must have received during the years they were with Christ. He opened "their understandings that they might understand the Scriptures.—Luke xxiv, 45 And beginning at Moses and all the prophets he expounded unto them the things concerning Himself—Luke xxiv, 27. Were they qualified then to speak and write with authority on Scripture, its meaning and application? Were they? Shame, a thousand times shame, on the church calling itself evangelical, that will disseminate teaching calculated to weaken faith in the Old and New Testament, writers as this so-called "new theology" undoubtedly does. When plumbed with the plumbline of God's word, this new doctrine is like a bowing wall or a tottering fence. I have an idea that there are something over 200,000 Methodists in Canada, who, when they hear (and hear they will) that this kind of theology is being taught in Victoria University, they will very reluctantly put their hands into their pockets to support said institution. Most Methodists believe Christ when He says: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice."—John xviii, 37. If Christ and His apostles could not interpret the Old Testament, Prof. W. needn't try.

The discerning mind can easily detect in this doctrine the workings of a spirit other than the Holy Ghost. The Arch Heretic is not far off when you find any one questioning the plain written word of God. If Prof. W. is right, Christ and the New Testament writers were wrong. As well may we doubt the divinity of Christ as to doubt His word, and set up man as a more competent critic than He. Confused be the face, paralyzed be the arm, discomfited be the soul of any man who would dare attempt to pull out the KEYSTONE of prophecy which is none other than of Whom the volume of the book speaks. We care more for the views concerning Messianic prophecy, of Jesus Christ and His inspired apostles and evangelists, than we do for the opinions of any Dutch or Canadian critic who daubs with untempered mortar. What say you, reader? We read on page 442: "In the Davidic age there is no Messianic prophecy in the strict sense of the term." That's straight talk. No beating around the bush here! Nothing in the Psalms concerning Christ? Nothing. What next? "Scientific exegesis" we know little or nothing about, neither have we lexicon or "complete critical apparatus" or any "critical appliances" at hand, and may the Lord deliver us from any such weapons, valuable as they be, if we failed to make better use of them than Prof. W. has make in this lecture. St. Paul and St. Peter quote profusely from the Psalms and apply their quotations directly to the person of Christ.

We are told (page 461) that David, when he spoke these words, prophesied them not of the resurrection of Christ, viz: "Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell, neither wilt thou suffer thine Holy One to see corruption" Psa. xvi, 10. Peter quotes THESE SAME WORDS to prove the resurrection of Christ. Prof. Workman tells us on page 461, "To suppose that Peter is here interpreting the passage from the Psalm as though it contained an idea of the resurrection of the Messiah, is to overlook entirely the principle of apostolic application or accommodation." There is no evidence whatever to indicate that the doctrine of the resurrection was conceived in David's day. This fact Peter must have known. Hence he that the passage taught the resurrection of the Messiah." Now, reader, let us ask Peter if the passage refers to the resurrection of Christ or did David speak them in that light. Listen. "For David speaketh concerning Him (Christ). I foresaw the Lord always before my face. " " " He (David) seeing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ, that his soul was not left in hell, neither his flesh did see corruption." Acts, ii, 25-31. That settles it. With the New Testament closed we don't see this, of course. We believe Peter when he tells us that "David was a prophet"—Acts, ii, 30—and, being one, could, by the power of the Spirit of God, say, "Behold the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare; before they spring forth I tell you of them." Isa. xlii, 9. David had this supernatural gift, this God-given power to foresee and foretell events yet future, which means much. Paul quotes second Psalms and seventh verse, in Heb., v, 5, viz: "Thou art My Son, this day have I begotten thee," and tells us it refers to Christ. Prof. Workman tells us in good old Anglo Saxon that "there is no immediate reference in second Psalm to Him." 444. Methodists, do you approve of this teaching? You are paying for having it taught to your young theologians for the past six years. You do not know this perchance. You know it now. Such teaching is a scandal on Methodism and a libel on the Scriptures Any man propagating such doctrine is a worthy candidate for canonization in the calendar of unbelief. And any church paying men large salaries to teach such theology which handles the word of God so deceitfully shall be spued out of God's mouth unless she repent. Paul in Heb. i, 8 quotes from Psa. xlv, 6, and tells us plainly that these words were spoken of the Son of God, viz., "But of the son he saith, 'Thy throne, O, God is forever and ever a sceptre of righteousness is the sceptre of Thy kingdom. Of the 110 psalm, Prof. W. says: "Its author was not David, but a poet belonging to his time; and its character is not Messianic in the strict sense of the term. " " " The whole contents of the psalm show that it was addressed to some one by the psalmist, and not by the psalmist to the Messiah." We will open the New Testament and see if this is true. Christ applied this psalm to Himself in Luke xxiv, 42, and said:—"And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, "The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand till I make thine enemies thy footstool." Jesus tells, in Mark xii, 36, that David spake these very words "by the Holy Ghost," and spake them originally and predictively of the very Christ now speaking to them. And His application of this Psalm so confounded the Pharisees and hypocrites gathered around Him that it is written, "Neither durst any man from that day forth ask Him any more questions." A greater than Prof. Workman is here. Peter also directly and personally applies these same words, from ex Psalm, to Jesus. Hear him: "The Lord said unto my Lord, sit thou on my right hand until I make thy foes thy footstool. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly that God hath made THE SAME Jesus both Lord and Christ." Acts ii, 34, 36. This ought to be enough to convince the most sceptical that Christ and His apostles believed that the person of the Messiah was spoken of in the Psalms. Paul quotes that passage from the 110th Psalm three times in Heb., viz.: "Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec," which could refer to none but Christ. "Search the Scriptures," is a command that should be emphasized by all true teachers. Scholars and theologians we need, and should prize them if they are sound in the faith; but the great mistake of to-day is this, we trust too much to man to search the Scriptures for us. Would to God that a great army of preachers and people would arise that would tally with Solomon's description of the "valiant in Israel," viz.: "They all hold swords, being expert in war; every man hath his sword upon his thigh, because of fear in the night." S.S. iii, 8. The sword of the Spirit is THE WEAPON—any other blade will double up at the first shock of war.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $30.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English word (of not less than three letters) formed from the letters contained in the two words, "Ladies' Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered, in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honourable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover loans and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

"It is the Safest and Fairest Policy I Have Ever Seen,"

Was the remark made by a prominent representative of one of the largest and best American Life Insurance Companies when he had carefully examined the Ordinary life policy of The TEMPERANCE AND GENERAL Life Assurance Company.

This is the only policy offered to the Canadian public that cannot either lapse nor expire as to its paid up value till death ensues, after three annual premiums have been paid on it.

Our Limited Payment Life Policy, or Instalment Bonds, our Common Sense Renewable Term Policies, and our Survivors' Endowment Bonds are all premised of new and excellent features and are all worthy of careful consideration.

A MYSTERY.

One That Has as Yet Utterly Failed of Explanation.

The bullfrogs wept by the river bank,
And the water-toad combed her hair;
The sea-serpent sighed as down he sank,
And the tadpoles shrieked in despair.
"Oh, why did you come? why are you here?"
Cried the mermaid in accents of woe,
The oyster called through the twilight drear,
"Say, why in the world don't you go?"

Glum grew the gloom, gloomier and glummer:
The fish writhed around on their heads,
Forgies moaned, "'Tis chilly for summer;
I wish we were home in our beds."
Faint burned the light, fm-and recent, clear
Supplied by electric eels.
Porcupine-fish clung together in fear;
The sea-horses kicked up their heels.

"Oh, why are you here? why did you come?
How long are you going to stay?
Why don't you speak? You can not be dumb!
Say, when are you going away?"
Oh, why did they weep? why did they grieve?
Oh, why were they downcast and blue?
Oh, who or what did they beg to leave?
I'm sure I can't answer—can you?
—Helen Grasbery in Harper's Young People.

THE ONLY OUT ABOUT HIM.

The teams loaded to the top with supplies for camp were on the point of starting for the woods, the impatient horses pawing the snow and tossing off showers of bell tones; whips were cracking and men were exclaiming and boys were running, and Mr. Sibley was getting angrier every minute. The second teamster was nowhere to be found. "By gracious, I'll discharge him!" roared Mr. Sibley. "You run right home, Annie," he said, in a different tone, to the young girl with a face like a bunch of flowers, who came along and paused on the edge of the confusion. "Your mother wanted them crackers right away. Can't you find him?" as old Peachblow came across the square.

"Reckon he's discharged himself," said one of the men, snapping his long whip.

"Just when he'd orter be on the spot or die! And if they don't make Palterer's to-night the storm'll be on them."—

"It's no use, sir, said old Peachblow. He's over at Boosey's, used up. He don't sense nothing."

"Then I'll give him his come-uppance to-morrow!" roared Mr. Sibley. "You bet your life I won't keep a man who drinks or smokes tobacco."

"Could I do instead, sir?" asked a young fellow standing by, whose glance had flashed on and off the pretty girl like the light that plays from the glass in the sun, while at the word tobacco the men gave that placid stare at each other which answers all the purposes of a wink.

"You! What in thunder do you know about horses?"

"I think I can drive that team, sir."

"What could you do in the camp after you get there, with your build?" glancing the newcomer over—a pale, slender stripling. "Look's if you were made of white satin ribbon."

The young man laughed, showing his white and even teeth. "Do!" he said. "Not much, sir, perhaps, but find my way out. I don't suppose I could handle the logs."

"Where'd you come from?" suddenly.

"Over beyond," with a backward movement of his head in a direction across the bay.

"What do you call yourself?"

"John Dean."

"John Dean. What were you doing last?"

"Running a machine."

"Why ain't you running a machine now?"

"Wanted a change," indifferently, his hands in his pockets, perhaps that no one might see how they were trembling

"Well, I don't see but I shall have to risk it. 'Can but try,'" said the busy little man. "John Dean! Get up there and take the strap and drive to No. 16. Don't urge them horses because they're free. It's the best team in the state, and I'd rather lose their weight in spruce gum than have them go lame. And don't waste no time bringing them back. Do you hear!" For John Dean had already climbed the seat and taken up the reins, and the whole procession was starting while he spoke. "And no swearing, boys!" Mr. Sibley cried after them. "Blamed if I'll have swearing in my camps!"

"Like ter see yer drive those blazed cattle er mine without it," said a big fellow on one of the teams. "Gol darn yo, can't yo stand up?"

The best horse in the state! John Dean almost trembled again as he took the reins. What did he know about horses, indeed? Was taking their charge something on the same line as that he had left? But what else was there to do? Yes, it was a bad beginning—but his intentions—with intentions of bed rock, maybe he must! Well, nothing venture nothing have. And it was a great stroke of luck, take it much after—

"Pick up your reins, lad," said the little old man on the team behind. "Them horses mean business."

John gathered up his reins. But presently came the voice again, "Hold in going down hill, if yog don't want to break their knees."

John held in. And how it was: "Don't saw them horses' mouths that way! They ain't made of iron."

"Who's driving these horses, anyway?" asked John over his shoulder.

"You hadn't orter, I: Would better change an' take my old plugs."

"I'd like to," said John. "But these horses were put in my charge, and I can't. But you might go ahead and let me see you do it."

"Well, Miss Nancy, I'll do better 'n that, or my name ain't Peachblow. Whoa, there, whoa, I tell ye," with some further language that would have made Mr. Sibley's hair stand up. "Come now, I'll tie my lines to your team a spell, an' learn ye what I know. 'Twont take long." And he was presently sitting beside John, and instructing him with as much zeal as if he were preparing him for the hippodrome.

"I allers take to the young fellers," said Peachblow. "An' it's easy enough going up, with this load, and the rest along. But you've got to come back, alone; more snow coming, with critters in the woods, an' the way half blazed. So keep your bearings young man. Chaw?"

"Used to," said John. "But it's against orders now."

"Moist grade?"

John laughed. "Don't like them," said he.

"Guess we've got a young reverend with us," said Peachblow, when they put up at Palterer's that night. "Don't chew, don't drink, don't cuss. No cards either."

"Not a cent," said John.

"Look here, sonny," cried another them, "you're in the wrong company."

"Oh, no," [illegible] "I'm wrong if I chaw, or drink, or play cards, but I'm right if I don't, and if I drink it goes to my head. If I play—[illegible]"

"Well, you're going to be sick then," said the big fellow, cutting off a chunk of his [illegible]

[illegible] black sweet and advancing upon Johnny.

"Give it to him, Sam!" cried Palterer.

"I wouldn't advise you to try it on," said John, as he stood by the big fireplace.

"How you take this!" exclaimed the big fellow, putting one hand on Johnny's shoulder, and with the other making a motion to force the tobacco between his teeth.

"And you take this," cried John, a smile on his face: and a swift, straight blow sent the man across the room backward, tripping, staggering and falling in a heap.

"Anybody else?" said John, looking round with an expression of imperturbable good nature. "Anybody want to drink with me? Or have me take a hand at poker? No? Then we'll call it square, and begin friends, if you please."

And in the hour that followed over Palterer's beef and potatoes the stories that John told, and the drolleries that he practiced made even the big bullying Sam forgive him.

"Too sweet to be wholesome, though," said Sam to Peachblow, on the shakedown later. "There's some out about him."

"He's all right," said Peachblow, sleepily. "Came from Boston. Lessons from John L. Lick you out of your boots if you don't let him alone. That's all the out there is about him."

"Knows too much," growled Sam. "Who is he, anyway? Where'd he come from? What's to hinder his taking the team and whipping into Canada? Blamed if I believe the boss'll ever see his mares again!"

As soon after reaching camp as the horses were rested, which gave him a little time to familiarize himself with the lumberer's work, John started down in spite of Sam's prediction and reached Palterer's without any event, and there the next day he took in Mrs. Sibley and her daughter, who had come from a place across country where they had been spending a day or two, and who, with the straw packed beneath them and the buffalo robes tucked in about them, were made sufficiently comfortable.

But here John's trouble began. Whether it was because when he went over this part of the road he had been learning how to manage his horses, and had consequently taken little note of the way, and now could not tell the main road from the wood paths that ended nowhere, but uncertain of which teams had broken the way through the snow or whether it was by reason of glancing over and anon at that little blossom face of Annie Sibley's beside him, something had confused his recollection: he began to feel that unfamiliar at the best, the way was far too unfamiliar now for safety, and presently his tremors grew into a settled apprehension, and he saw that he had lost the road, and that with his employer's family in his care.

To his surprise, Mrs. Sibley took the matter rather as a jest than otherwise, and when they had turned about and chosen another track, and come to the end of that in deep woods and snow, she was all ready to go back and try another. Perhaps she assumed the gayety to prevent her daughter's alarm, for the rich soft color came and went on Annie's cheeks like a danger signal and with every glance he gave them John regretted more and more his rashness in undertaking to handle that team.

They stopped at last to rest and feed the horses, and then, went on only to be lost again on another false lead: and all at once it was twilight about them and there were stars hanging overhead like fruit upon the branches of the great pines.

Mr. O. C. Rowse's new store is one of the handsomest and most attractive in town. The chill of painter and decorator have been brought into play, the interior glows with bright, cheery colors, and is better lighted than most of the stores in town. The large plate windows and doors at front and back and the bulls-eye in the rear part make the store seem on a dark day as light as is necessary, the effect being strengthened by the light colored paint and paper. Mr. Rowse's store is full of novelties and the latest shapes in dry good. In his handsome new premises Mr. Rowse ought and no doubt will succeed in doing a large business. The flat above the store proper is being fitted up for a dress making establishment.

Mrs. Tracy's Sudden Death.

Mrs. John Tracy, wife of one of Hastings' prominent merchants, expired suddenly Wednesday evening. She had been in delicate health for some time past, but no anxiety was felt. On the day and evening mentioned she attended to her usual household duties and between 8 and 9 o'clock ascended the stairs for the purpose of retiring for the night. A rapping on the floor from her bedroom alarmed the family, who at once went to learn the cause, and were shocked to find Mrs. Tracy in a semi-conscious condition on the sofa. Medical aid was summoned, but before Dr. Coughlan arrived life was extinct. Heart disease is supposed to have been the cause.

Lenten Days.

A first touch of spring-time thrills
The softened air—the leaf buds swell—
Of violets the breezes tell,
And singing flow the ice-freed rills.

The days of prayer and peace are here,
Oh, Lord, the story of Thy cross,
Thy heavenly gain and earthly loss,
Hath sanctified the budding year.

So near the blessed kingdom lies,
We almost seem to touch its brink,
And ready for its joy we think
Ourselves, and then—the vision flies.

Its charm destroyed by deed unjust,
Or thoughts of self—ah, Master meek,
How oft Thy pardon must we seek,
And, humbled, own that we are dust!

And yet your calm is not in vain,
Your memory helps us, Lenten hours,
Toast flies with birth of early flowers,
Until ye come to us again.

Law Society.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Law Society was held yesterday. These officers were elected:—

VICE-PRESIDENT—A. P. Poussette, Q.C.
SEC.-TREAS.—E. B. Edwards.

Reports read showed the Association was in a very satisfactory position. The committee were instructed to take measures to receive the appointment of a shorthand reporter to the County Court. A discussion took place upon the question of the election of Benchers of the Law Society, which is now pending. In order to secure a more just representation of the country members of the bar, a committee was appointed to issue a circular to other associations throughout the Province, asking their co operation.

The St. Patrick Day Concert.

The readers of the EXAMINER are again reminded of the prospectively delightful concert to be given under the auspices of the Catholic Association on Tuesday evening next. The organizers of the programme have been fortunate in securing the services of excellent talent for the occasion, and the programme as promised will be an charming one. The public knowledge of the capabilities of the performers justifies the high expectation of enjoyment they have formed. They include Mr. S. H. Clarke, the distinguished elocutionist, of Toronto, Miss Maud Stevenson, Guelph, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, Mrs. J. G. Macklin, Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, Miss Annie Dunn, Mrs. T. Dunn, and Mr. T. Dunn. They will be assisted by the Peterborough Amateur Orchestra. Admission tickets, 50c. and 25c. Reserved seat plan at Greatrex's drug store.

Sons of England.

At the last regular meeting of Peterborough Lodge, S. O. E., it was decided to hold an entertainment on Tuesday evening, 2nd April, and a good committee was appointed to make all arrangements for the same. An elaborate and comprehensive report of the Delegates to Grand Lodge, which met recently in Hamilton, was read and considered. The report shows marked progress in the order. During the past year 26 new lodges were opened, one of which started with 80 charter members, 2,300 new members were initiated, making a total membership of 8,900; $12,160 had been paid to members during the year in sick dues, and $5,970 in funeral benefits. The beneficiary has made rapid strides, and owing to the extremely low rates has become very popular. The order has every reason to be proud of its past record.

Fruit Growers' Association.

Mr. E. B. Edwards, secretary of the local association, this morning received a letter from Mr. Woolverton, secretary of the Ontario Association, in which he states that owing to the meeting of the House at Ottawa being postponed until the end of April, the delegation which is to visit Ottawa after the opening of the session, will probably be too late to take part in the meeting which is proposed to be held there. Arrangements, however, will be made by which one or two prominent fruit growers will be present. Mr. Wolverton says: "With regard to the meeting, do not depend too much upon the assistance you will get from us. The most successful meetings are where a good many local men give papers, and where everybody takes part in the discussion. I don't think it wise to call a large meeting of interested people to simply listen to addresses on fruit culture, and I don't think it would be wise to mention the names of the speakers we send you any more prominently than you do your local men, as our part will be simply to help you in holding your meeting, and not in any sense to give lectures." The meeting, therefore, will be held probably about the 24th of this month, the exact date depending in some measure upon the engagements of the outside men.

Bridgenorth.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Thursday evening a very pleasant and interesting event took place in our quiet village at the residence of Mr. James Mann, jr. The occasion was a social gathering of the teachers, members of the Bible class and other friends of the Methodist Sunday school. Sweet music filled the house, there being no less than four musical instruments manipulated by skilled players. Several social games were engaged in, to the amusement of the company. The hostess announced a change in the proceedings by calling on Miss Clarke teacher, for a reading, who responded by giving in good form a comic selection entitled "Biddy's Trials Among the Yankees." She was heartily encored by the company, and returned, announcing that she had a reading now especially for Mrs. Houck, teacher of the Bible class since her residence in Bridgenorth. The following address was then read by Miss Clark, and the presentation made by Mr. Pope:

Dear Mrs. Houck:

We, the teachers and members of your Bible class, Bridgenorth, who have profited by your devoted taition and untiring zeal to promote our best interests, both spiritual and temporal, desire at this time to bear testimony of our appreciation of your service since you came in our midst.

We believe your highest aims have always been to point sinners to Christ and build up His believing children, and your kind words and repeated self denials have aroused our gratitude and won our love. We now take this opportunity of presenting you with this autograph quilt as a slight token of our esteem and respect coupled with the prayers for many years' usefulness, and in the end the reward of duty faithfully done.

Signed on behalf of teachers and Bible class of Bridgenorth Methodist Sabbath School,

MRS. POPE,
JAMES MANN.

Mrs. Houck was taken by complete surprise, as no inkling of the occasion had come to her. Mr. Houck, in replying, said he had frequently heard her say these one of the observing features about her work was the kindness and interest manifested by every member of the class and school. He heartily thanked them, not only for Mrs. Houck, but himself, assuring them that no one was more pleased with the address and remembrance than Mrs. Houck unless it was her husband. The evening was brought to a close after supper by an expression of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Mann. A few verses of "Shall We Gather at the River," was sung, Mr. Houck led in prayer, and all repaired to their homes.

Investment of Trust Funds.

Recently it was announced that the Government had decided to issue 3½ per cent. stock in sums of $100 and multiples, to be used in connection with Post Office Savings Banks, and the investment of trust funds. This provision with respect to trust funds is likely to come into active operation soon as regards trust funds in the United Kingdom. For years great difficulty has been experienced in finding investments for trust funds where absolute security was of more importance than a high rate of interest, and as trustees were very much limited as to the securities in which they could invest, a Departmental Committee was appointed about a year and a half ago to consider the investment of trust funds in Colonial inscribed stocks. This committee has now reported unanimously in favor of the use of Colonial stocks for trust funds; and appended to the report is a draft bill which authorizes the Commissioner of Inland Revenue to register any Colonial stock to which it is desired the Acts should apply, on the due carrying out of certain regulations. It is expected that Mr. Goschen will act on this report during the present session of Parliament, and trustees will then be able to take advantage of the Canadian 3½ per cent. stock, so soon as it has been registered. This will, no doubt, attract a certain amount of investment from the United Kingdom, which will have the effect of counterbalancing the withdrawals from the Post Office and Government Savings Banks, caused by the chartered banks allowing 4 per cent. interest, while the Government only allows 3½.

The Jamaica Exhibition.

The occurrence of the Dominion elections has so thrown everything else into the background that scarcely any attention has been given to the Jamaica Exhibition, and it has not received the amount of notice to which it is fairly entitled. It is, however, satisfactory to learn that although political events in Canada have somewhat distracted attention from the Exhibition, yet the Canadian exhibits have attracted even more attention in Jamaica than was expected. The Canadian products have not only attracted great attention, but much practical good has resulted in the way of sales, and it has been demonstrated beyond doubt that there is a very considerable market in Jamaica for Canadian products, and the probabilities of a large and profitable trade growing up, as a result of the Exhibition, are exceedingly good. The Jamaica papers are daily filled with complimentary references to Canada's exhibit, and, indeed, it may be said to be the great feature of the exhibition.

A Canadian Memorial Window

Our readers, says the Guardian, will be pleased to learn that Hon. Senator Sanford, of Hamilton, has intimated the laudable purpose to place, at his own expense, a Canadian memorial window in City-road Chapel, London, England. He has already communicated with the English Wesleyan authorities in reference to the matter, and received their approval. It is proposed that the window shall contain portraits of some eminent Canadian Methodists. The names that have been spoken of for this honor are Dr. Egerton Ryerson, Hon. James Ferrier, Rev. Geo. McDougall, President Nelles and Edward Jackson. This will serve the double purpose of forming a link between English and Canadian Methodism, and of perpetuating the memory of some worthy representatives of different departments of our Canadian Methodist work.

BOTH KING AND KNAVE

THE RECENTLY DECEASED HAWAIIAN KING A JEKYLL-HYDE.

Strange Story About Kalakaua—Outwardly Polished Secretly He Yearned for Savage Orgies and Sacrifices—The Mystic Order of Kilo-Kilo.

Kalakaua, King of Hawaii, whose funeral procession formed such a splendid pageant at San Francisco on January 22, was a very notable man. A great deal has been written and published about him since and before his death, but little has been said of the main spring of his ambition and hope, although whole volumes might be filled on the subject. The purpose of this article, however, is not to present a critical analysis of his character, but simply to depict a few incidents in his career which may possibly furnish a key to it. For David Kalakaua led a dual life, and the reality in his case is far more fascinating than the improbable and revolting creation of Stevenson's brain, which has taken such a hold upon readers of our national literature.

HE WAS A HIGH CHIEF.

David Kalakaua was an alii or high chief of the Hawaiian Islands. His ancestors, once powerful in their own districts, had been completely overshadowed by Kamehameha and his followers, and he inherited little beyond the pride of birth and a capacity for animal enjoyment for which his family has been noted for ages, according to Hawaiian tradition. It never once entered into his head that one day he should be called upon to rule the kingdom created by the genius of Kamehameha and consolidated by the patriotism and talents of his descendants. If such a dream had ever been presented to Kalakaua's brain it might have modified his character and awakened his ambition at an earlier period. But as it was he simply lived to enjoy life until his own and his wife's patrimony had been dissipated. Even when the lightning of a purchased legislature struck him and he began to rule the kingdom "by the grace of God," his credit did not rapidly improve, and he was driven to a great many ingenious shifts to gratify his appetite and keep up appearances.

To the day of his death, during every vicissitude of chance and fortune, David Kalakaua was a Hawaiian chief, living preferably as close to the old life of his people as was possible under the fierce puritanism of missionary fathers and their descendants. After ascending the throne he took special pains to appear as a refined and patriotic ruler. His foreign travel, which gave him a fair shine of outside polish, was undertaken in a measure to this end, and to inform himself of the methods of foreign rulers, that he might conform generally to the surface requirements of his exalted station, while secretly indulging in his tastes according to the usages of his fathers.

THE ANCIENT HAWAIIAN CHIEFS

were priests as well as kings. Their will was absolute in all things. They had the power of divination, could read omens and forecast the future far more accurately than was common among professional soothsayers and prophets, for the reason that they had the power of life and death, of war and peace, of misery or prosperity in their own hands. When a prophet is able to verify his prediction he has an immense advantage over one who has to take chances on its fulfilment. Hence it happened that the chiefs of the olden time, when they sacrificed and read the omens, seldom received a lying message from the gods.

David Kalakaua secretly surrounded himself with kahunas, or priests, who taught him the traditions of ancient times and established what might be styled a school for prophets. He entered into this study with great earnestness, and soon became one of the most potent and proficient among them. He was specially absorbed by the idea that he was destined to restore the ancient ways, and yet, while and encouraging debasing superstition, he was posing in the eyes of the world as a civilized ruler and a shining example of the elevating influence of Christianity. From the Christian sacrament at the altar in the episcopal cathedral to the heathen ceremonial in the privacy of the palace was said not to be an unusual change of scene in the dual life of this remarkable man.

The Kilo-Kilo was organized and incorporated as a benevolent society. Officers were appointed and members enrolled, and for several weeks the palace was the scene of nightly orgies, while the flag or symbol of the order was flying from the tower. Kalakaua had prepared a treatise showing its antiquity as practised by Hawaiian chiefs about 97,000 years before the Christian era. These proceedings were soon known throughout the islands. An uneasy feeling disturbed the foreigners, while a spirit of unrest and expectations of some great change took possession of the natives. The hula was revived. Feasting and dissipation, music and dancing went on without ceasing within the palace, the gates of which were closed to foreigners, loopholed and fortified and

GUARDED BY SOLDIERS.

The death of the king's sister, Princess Likelike, about this time, added to the feeling of exasperation with which the foreigners in Honolulu viewed these proceedings, because it was notorious that she indignantly refused to join or countenance the Kilo-Kilo, and expressed her preference for her foreign friends and entire sympathy with christian teaching and doctrine. Her death was attributed to the kahunas, who intimated that one of the royal family must die to propitiate Pele and stop the lava flow from Mauna Loa. She died, rumour had it, as the sacrifice to Pele and the lava flow stopped. Certain it is that her death was at once a shock and surprise, and had its influence upon the revolutionary movement, which shortly after abolished the Board of Genealogy, trampled upon the Kilo-Kilo, whipped Kalakaua into constitutional traces, and destroyed forever his ambition to restore the ancient faith, customs and traditions of the Hawaiian race.

That such an idea should have been seriously entertained by any man in Hawaii at the present day would have been remarkable enough, but that a man of Kalakaua's education, intelligence and experience should have acted upon it in the later years of his life, and at the very pinnacle of success, is one of those anomalies which cannot be explained or understood.

A Curious Trunk.

The following puzzle is said to have been composed by the bishop of Oxford:

I have a trunk with two lids, two caps, two musical instruments, two established measures, and a great number of articles a carpenter cannot dispense with, then I have always about me two fine fish, and a great number of smaller ones, two lofty trees, fine flowers, and the fruit of an indigenous plant, two playful animals, and a number of smaller and less tame breed, a fine stag, some whips without handles, some weapons of warfare, and a number of weathercocks, the steps of a hotel, the house of commons on the eve of a division, two students or scholars, and some Spanish grandees to wait upon me.

Answer.—The human body, eyelids, knee caps, drum of the ear, feet, nails, soles, muscles, palms, tulips, hips, calves, hair, heart, lashes, arms, blades, veins, insteps, eyes and nose, pupils, tendons.

"Wimmodaughate" Brings an Octoroon and Octogenarian Here.

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 13.—The few drops of negro blood in the veins of beautiful and white Miss Francis Smith have disrupted "Wimodaughate," an organization in this city, whose name is derived from the words wife, mother, daughter and sister. The origin of this prosperous club was a desire to form a society to teach women equality. Miss Dasha, the originator, was horrified to learn that there was African blood in Miss Smith's ancestry, and invited her on that account to leave the club. This she did. Since this occurred Miss Smith has been reinstated. Many of the more aristocratic ladies of the club now threaten to abandon it.

Killed by a Mad Bull.

HAVERHILL, Mass., March 13.—Hon. John E. Carr of this place, ex-member of the New Hampshire Legislature, was killed this morning by a mad bull. Mr. Carr went into the pasture where the bull was confined, armed with a pitchfork. The animal rushed at him and tossed him in the air. Mr. Carr, although dazed, rose to his feet and plunged at the bull with the pitchfork, severely wounding the beast. The animal again rushed upon him. Mr. Carr drove the prongs of the fork into the beast's shoulder, but being weak from many bruises it threw him to the ground. The bull rushed upon him, gored him frightfully, and stamped upon his senseless body until life was extinct.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

PARNELL TO THE PEOPLE

WHAT HIS NEW MANIFESTO DEALS WITH.

The Irish Leader's Latest Effort a Disappointment to His Friends — William O'Brien Declared a Bankrupt — The Liberal Electoral Platform.

LONDON, March 13.—Parnell's absence from the House of Commons Thursday during Balfour's graphic narration of the distress in Ireland and the relief measures adopted by the Government has caused intense surprise in Ireland. Parnell mysteriously vanished Wednesday. It transpires that he traveled to Brighton and stayed at Walsingham terrace with Mrs O'Shea. He remained secreted until 6 o'clock tonight, when he appeared in the House of Commons and after remaining two hours returned to Brighton. A messenger boy has called at the House of Commons daily for Parnell's letters. In reply to the official inquiries the boy declared Mrs O'Shea had sent him. Even the friends of Parnell declare that his continued neglect of Ireland for "Kitty" will completely ruin his cause.

TO THE IRISH-AMERICANS.

Parnell's New Manifesto a Disappointment to His Friends.

LONDON, March 13.—Parnell issued a manifesto this evening. It is addressed to Irish-Americans and is principally composed of an appeal to Irishmen in the United States for assistance. He defends his position and declares he has always worked in the interest of his bonded countrymen, although often misconstrued. The manifesto is a great disappointment to Parnell's friends, who had thought he would exonerate himself in relation to Mrs. O'Shea. That lady, however, is not referred to in the document. Parnell appeals to his fellow-countrymen in America to "once more assist him in quelling mutiny and disloyalty to Ireland and in securing a really independent parliamentary party so that we may make one more, even though it be our very last, effort to win freedom and prosperity for our nation by constitutional means."

O'Brien a Bankrupt.

DUBLIN, March 13.—The court has adjudicated William O'Brien a bankrupt on the petition of Lord Salisbury in the latter's suit to recover £1700, the costs in the action for libel brought against him by O'Brien and in which the latter was nonsuited.

Herman Raffalovitch, the father-in-law of Mr. O'Brien, has offered to discharge the debt, but Mr. O'Brien has declined to accept the favor.

The Liberal Electoral Platform.

LONDON, March 13.—Mr. Gladstone has been in consultation with Mr. Morley, Sir William Vernon Harcourt and Sir G. O. Trevelyan on the scope of the Liberal electoral platform and is preparing to announce it at Hastings. It is learned that Home Rule with a definite exposition of the questions of Irish representatives in the Imperial Parliament, land and police relations to the Irish Government, continues to hold the front rank.

The British Blizzard.

LONDON, March 13.—While throughout the London district a thaw has set in, there are no signs of moderation in the severity of the weather experienced in the southwest of England. A heavy snowstorm prevailed throughout the night in Devonshire and Cornwall. As for the country roads, they are utterly impassable, huge snowdrifts completely preventing any communication between the different towns and villages.

LONDON, March 13.—The steamship which was wrecked off Start Point Monday last during the severe gale was the Myrama of Liverpool. When the steamer struck upon the reef the crew took to the boat in an effort to reach the shore through the heavy sea and the huge breakers made such an attempt one of pure desperation. One of the boats containing the steamer's officers was struck by a heavy sea and foundered and all the officers were drowned. The second boat, containing the sailors and firemen, capsized twice and twice righted herself. Each time she went over a number of men were drowned, while others succeeded in righting the boat, which was almost entirely filled with water, but kept afloat by reason of her water-tight compartments. Eventually four Swedish seamen reached the shore, but one of them died from exhaustion soon after being handed out of the surf. The three survivors were terribly battered by the surf, and were half dead when they were taken out of the water.

The Myrama was bound from London for Colombo. The captain, the chief engineer, three mates and the steward were in a small boat, while 22 of the crew left the wreck in a life-boat. Owing to the surf they had to put out to sea. After the life-boat had capsized the second time the survivors of the crew clung to the keel, but all were washed off except the 4 who afterwards were washed ashore.

The British iron ship Dryad, 1035 tons, from Shields, bound for Valparaiso, has been wrecked at Stuart Point on the east coast of Devonshire. The officers, passengers and crew, in all 34 persons, were drowned.

Among the schooners lost off Stuart Point was the Lunesdale. Four of her crew were drowned. The captain was among those saved. The schooner Lizzie Ellen was also lost and two of her crew were drowned. Seventy lives at least are known to have been lost off the coast during the blizzard, and not less than 10 men perished from cold and exposure after they had succeeded in reaching land. A number of vessels are missing, and the gravest apprehension is felt that the list of wrecks and number of lives lost will be greatly swelled.

The Disabled Suevia.

LONDON, March 13.—The Hamburg-American line steamship Suevia from New York, Feb. 26, for Hamburg, which was reported yesterday as being disabled 60 miles off the Lizard, is still breasting the channel seas without anything definite being known as to her exact condition.

The powerful channel tug Lincoln started out in search of the disabled vessel but was obliged to put into Falmouth yesterday. A more powerful channel tug set out from Southampton to-night.

A Railway for Newfoundland.

LONDON, March 13.—In the House of Commons last night the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that the Government of Newfoundland had been informed that, under certain circumstances, the Government would give the imperial guarantee for a loan for building a railway on the island and for other similar purposes. The matter had not yet reached definite shape, and he could not make any statement as to the terms.

3711 Immigrants in a Single Day.

NEW YORK, March 14.—There arrived at this port to-day 3711 immigrants, the largest number to arrive on any single day this season.

One Ends the Life of a Three-Foot Dwarf — An Empty Baby Chair.

NEW YORK, March 13.—There is a boarding house at No. 10 First-street where the freaks of dime museums down in the adjacent Bowery live. At the breakfast table yesterday morning there was a vacant baby chair. It was usually occupied by General Turner Wood, the midget who was 36 inches high, weighed 90 pounds and was 63 years old. He did not come down yesterday morning and Colonel Picket Nelson, who is eight feet high, and who traveled with the dwarf in a combination known as "The Long and Short of It," went up to wake him. Finally fearing that something had happened, he broke the door open and saw the General lying in bed with his head bandaged, his lips purple and his body livid double, as though he were suffering from violent cramps. But the little dwarf was dead after 60 years of fun and freak life. His banjo lay on the bed beside him and his tiny little fingers hung lovingly about the strings. He had picked his last negro melody upon the familiar instrument. He had been subjected to excessive [illegible]

IN AFFLICTED CHILI.

AWFUL BOMBARDMENT AND HORRIFYING LOSS OF LIFE.

Terror Reigns, Famine Imminent—Fifty Persons Slaughtered in Revenge for the Death of a Single Colonel—A Roman Catholic Bishop Likely to be Shot.

BUENOS AYRES, March 12.—Advices from Chili state that there has been further fighting between the insurgents and the government troops and the former were victorious.

"A bloody battle has been fought at Pisagua. The rebels were defeated, having 40 killed and 34 wounded. Their commander, Colonel Salvador Vergara, was seriously wounded, but was carried away by his soldiers.

"The government continues to exile all persons who are in any way inclined toward the rebels. Both natives and foreigners are suffering. Several German and English merchants have been given 36 hours to which to leave the country forever.

"A perfect surprise, to say the least, has been the decree of the Government expelling from the country the representative of a foreign nation—the Consul of Austria at Valparaiso. The consul, it seems, was very much inclined toward the rebels, and in an unguarded moment stated his feelings and opinion of Balmaceda to a friend.

"The Government prisons are filled to overflowing with prisoners—not the scum of society, but with revolutionists who are considered worthy of imprisonment by Balmaceda, who is styled by the revolutionists "the modern despot." Confiscation on a grand scale is being resorted to by the Government. Only last week the entire property of Don A. Edwards, the richest man in Chili, was confiscated by the Government.

It Was an Awful Bombardment.

"The most terrible disaster took place at Fort Coronel. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon when the Esmeralda appeared in the harbor and demanded the surrender of the town. This was refused. A perfect shower of grape and canister was followed by solid shot. The people fled to the heights for safety, while some took refuge in the railroad station. The bombardment continued amid the screaming of women and children and the imprecations of men when suddenly a shot struck the railway station. This was followed by several others, and before anybody could escape the roof and the next wall fell in, burying over 200 men, women and children in the ruins. The firing continued and this, added to the cries of the dying, caused the commander to surrender to the cruiser.

"As soon as word was sent to the cruiser the surgeons of the ship, with a detachment of marines, was sent to help clear up the wreck and lend assistance to the wounded. Sixty-seven dead bodies were taken out and about 100 persons were more or less injured.

"The blockade of Valparaiso is beginning to tell. Provisions are scarce and expensive. The two cruisers which are now blockading the port keep up an incessant vigilance, and nothing can get in or out. A desultory fire is kept up, which is far more fatal than a bombardment.

"The commandant of the city will try to dislodge the enemy by means of a midnight attack with torpedo boats, of which the government has several here. It is not probable that this will have good results in view of the excessive vigilance kept up by the rebels and of the strong cordon of lookouts.

Avenged a Colonel's Death.

General Urrutia, who commands the rebel army has his headquarters on the Island of Santa Maria and has there over 5000 fully armed and disciplined men. Those men, it is said, are being held until such time as an attack on Santiago may be feasible, when they will be used. The revolutionists also have large bodies of troops stationed at Pisagua and Chanaral.

Colonel Annibal Naraujo, who was taken prisoner by the revolutionists at the battle of Ovalle, was shot by them. The government forces thereupon marshalled over 50 revolutionary prisoners and put them to death.

The War Department to-day made public the strength of the army. The government has now ready for the field 30,000 fully armed and equipped men. The army has been divided into seven sections, with the minister of war as commander-in-chief, as stated in my last letter. The greatest difficulty the department has is the conveying of supplies and troops from one place to another. This is impossible by water, as the rebel navy is in full control of the sea and constantly watches all crafts which pass by.

"The Government of Bolivia and the representatives of foreign powers are protesting against the compulsory service in the army. Foreigners have either one of two alternatives—to either enlist under the Government banner or leave the country inside of 96 hours. About 50 Roman Catholic priests have been arrested at Valparaiso. They are accused of abetting the revolution. They were brutally treated by the police.

"All the property of the following families has been confiscated: Borgono, Toros, Quadros, Danilas, Delanne Riguelme Velasco, Steban Rivas, Scatto, Satomayor, Valdevieso, Varella, Valledor and Barros Arano.

Roman Catholics Aroused.

"The Roman Catholics are up and in arms at the imprisonment of Bishop Fontevilla. He is held on board the Blanco Enc Alada as a prisoner, and should Balmaca, the revolutionary chief, be shot he will meet with the same fate. The revolutionists have notified the Government that they will follow out the proverb of 'an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' If any of the rebels' chiefs are shot all the prisoners of any prominence in the hands of the rebels will at once be executed.

"In view of the fact that all of the Chilian ships have gone over to the revolutionists, and that it has no ships with which to operate, the Government has decided to purchase all the merchant vessels in the waters of Chili, if after the necessary inspection they are up to the required standard. Ships will also be bought at Buenos Ayres and Montevideo, if possible.

"In spite of wholesale arrest of men and women by President Balmaceda, there is no doubt that a strong feeling of friendship towards the revolutionists exists in Santiago. A decree has been issued by the President prohibiting all persons from leaving the country without a passport."

Seven Years for a Sneak Thief.

MONTREAL, March 13.—Nellie Hayes alias Carr, who was arrested last autumn with her partner, W. T. Hayes, for stealing a diamond ring from Henry Birks & Co., was to-day sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary. Sentence has been suspended over Hayes until his father arrives.

KIDNAPPED IN CHICAGO.

A SCHEMING VALET'S PLOT TO CAPTURE HIS MASTER'S FORTUNE.

His Tricks His Former Employer's Widow Into a Marriage With Him and Then Has Her Abducted When She Refuses to Live With Him.

CHICAGO, March 13.—Mrs. Tillie Mowery reached her home, at No. 1110 West Polk street, Monday morning, almost prostrated with anxiety and nervousness, and scarcely able to tell her strange story.

Less than four years ago she was a bright and beautiful girl residing with her parents in the little village of Colfax, Ill. She was the belle of the town. Then her family removed to Chicago and there she met William Mowery, a young Englishman of good family, who had come to America some time previously with his valet, Hubert Secor. Mowery's parents had disowned him, and he came to the United States to spend what remained of his fortune. It did not take him long to do it, for he soon found himself without a penny or employment. For a time Secor supported himself by what little he could earn and the pair drifted about the country from one city to another. When they came to Chicago they were entirely destitute, but Mowery was of such pleasant address that Tillie fell in love with him and they were married.

Finally Mowery secured a position with James S. Manning, a civil engineer, and started west with him on a prospecting trip Secor also became one of the party. Before going away Mowery, for the first time since he left home, wrote a letter to his father's attorney requesting that a reply should be sent to Colfax, Ill., where he was going. He had been in Colfax but a month or two when he received a letter from England, telling him that his father and mother were dead and that he was heir to a large fortune. The next day Mowery was killed in a mine explosion, but Secor escaped.

Death of Mowery.

Mowery had never told his wife about his former life and she knew nothing of his antecedents or even where he was born. Secor was the only one in America who knew Mowery's history, and it is said he immediately commenced to plan to put himself in possession of the dead man's fortune. Without him Mowery's widow would not be benefitted, for in England they did not know of his marriage.

By the death of Mowery the young wife and her girl baby were left without means of support, so she returned to her father's house and sought employment, but long without avail.

Finally, through sheer necessity, she says, she applied for appointment at a detective agency on Washington-street.

Being young, attractive and intelligent she was employed on condition that she go to Wapaca, Wis., and "pipe" or shadow Hubert Secor, then their agent at that place, and whom, it would seem, she had not met. The salary was to be $3 a day.

With some reluctance she consented. At Wapaca she found everying going smoothly the first week. Her salary then stopped. She could get no money from the detective agency and she says her letters to and from her mother were intercepted, so that for more than three months she was kept in the little Wisconsin town without means to leave the place or any opportunity to communicate with her friends here.

Enter the Plotter.

During this time she met Secor and undertook to assist him in working up a murder case in the town. When she became desperate for want of money she was given to understand by Secor that she could only get her wages by remaining there three months, and if the business in which they were engaged proved successful she would be well paid. She remained till the end of the time. Then Secor told her there was but one way she could secure her money from the detective agency and that was through him, and in order to secure it she would have to go through the form of a marriage with him and acknowledge herself as his wife. This she at first refused to do, but at last, being without means to leave the town, she consented.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Justice Daly of the town, she was refused money by Secor unless she would consent to live with him as his wife. Again she refused in the most positive terms, and finally managed to send to her mother, Mrs. Sykes, to whom she explained her pitiable condition. Money was sent her, and she found herself once again free and in Chicago.

She then sought and found employment with a knitting firm on Van Buren-street, but she was not permitted to pursue her employment unmolested, and Secor at first wrote letters asking her to return, to which she paid no attention. He then wrote threatening letters and had a member of the detective firm try to induce her to return. But she steadfastly refused to recognize the marriage of Secor as her husband. Detectives were then employed to shadow her and ascertain where she lived, where she was employed and at what hours she went to work.

Kidnapped.

This surveillance was kept up till last Saturday morning, when she started out to work at 7.30 o'clock as usual. She had walked from her residence to Canal and Polk-streets when a man, apparently a police officer, having on the regulation uniform with belt, club and shield, walked up behind her and, tapping her on the shoulder, said:

"Tillie Mowery, I believe?"

She said, "Yes, what do you want?"

He said, "I have a warrant for your arrest."

She consented to enter a cab, and immediately three men jumped in and surrounded her so that she could not see which way she was being driven.

When the carriage stopped she found herself at Forty-eighth-street. There they boarded a train, and the man who made the pretended arrest took off his uniform and put on a citizen's overcoat and hat. She then made up her mind to submit quietly till she could find an opportunity to telegraph to her friends here or make her escape. When the train reached Portage, Wis., she was taken to a hotel. There she requested her abductor to send a despatch to her mother telling her to take care of her child. This he consented to do, and during his absence she managed to put herself in communication with the landlady of the hotel and explained the condition of affairs.

A genuine message was then sent to her mother and the sheriff was called in and took her in charge. The abductors disappeared at once, but not before Secor had put in an appearance and wanted to take her to Wapaca. When he discovered the presence of the sheriff he fled. Mrs. Mowery says she can identify the men who abducted her.

RESEMBLED A SLAUGHTER HOUSE.

LONDON, March 13.—A horrible tragedy occurred at Bury to-day, the details of which present a picture of frenzied brutality almost incredible. For seven years James Chadwick, a butcher, and Mary Scott lived together as man and wife, though they were bound by no marriage ceremony. A short time ago the woman left Chadwick and took apartments in another part of the town. Chadwick repeatedly asked her to return to him, but she steadily refused to do so. This morning Chadwick again went to Miss Scott's lodgings armed with a long knife used in slaughtering animals. Without a word of warning Chadwick seized Miss Scott by the throat, and, drawing his knife, slashed the woman across the mouth, the sharp blade cutting back to the ears on each side. He then drew the knife across her throat, and, making another thrust, plunged it into her heart. As the unfortunate woman sank to the floor dead the frenzied butcher attempted to cut his own throat, but though he managed to inflict a severe wound, he was not successful in severing an artery. Having wounded himself as he doubtless believed, fatally, the fiend sprang upon the body of Miss Scott, now lying dead at his feet, cut and hacked it until it was covered with gaping wounds.

The bloody work was done so quickly that the horrified landlady was powerless to stay Chadwick's murderous hand, but as he knelt over the body of his prostrate victim plunging the knife into her again and again, a stream of blood pouring from his own wound the while, the woman rushed upon him and disarmed him.

Chadwick then rose to his feet and glared about him. His eyes fell upon a table-knife lying upon the dining-table in the middle of the room. As quick as thought he sprang to the table, seized the knife and with one sweep of his hand drew it across his already gashed throat, nearly severing his head from his body, falling dead within a few feet of the victim of his jealous rage.

The room in which the terrible scene was enacted resembled a slaughter house. The walls and articles of furniture were covered with the blood which spurted from nearly a score of wounds, and the garments of the landlady, the sole witness of the butchery, were drenched with blood almost as thoroughly as though she had been gashed with the knife of the infuriated butcher.

Messianic Prophecy.

NO. IV.—CONCLUSION.

To the two hundred thousand Methodists scattered abroad throughout the Dominion of Canada, greeting:

What have I now done? Is there not a cause? Answer ye 200 000 Methodists in the Dominion of Canada. Can we be loyal to Christ and sit mum under such teaching?

Let us look at the first Messianic prophecy in the Bible found in Gen. iii, 15, where are told that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head, "It shall bruise they head and thou shalt bruise his heel." Of Christ only could it be said that he was the seed of the woman of whom it is written, "made of a woman," "born of a virgin," without any participation of man. This singular expression is not found in any other part of Scripture, and could be applied to no other than to Christ. Thus it was that God was pleased to extract the confusion of Satan from that sex, for through woman came sin, so also through woman came salvation. Jesus Christ, that blessed seed of the woman, that TRIUMPHANT DELIVERER, who was to spring from the general mother of the human race, and so was to stand equally related to Jews and Gentiles, has bruised the head of the old serpent, the Devil, that is to say, has destroyed his empire, has wrested from him supreme authority which he had usurped in the world, "for by death he hath destroyed him that hath the power of death, that is the Devil." Prof. Workman tells us on page 441 that this prophecy MERELY TEACHES "that the human race shall bruise or crush, or overcome the reptile race. Thus the verse literally teaches the natural enmity between mankind and reptiles. The passage, therefore, IS NOT MESSIANIC prophecy at all." The 53rd of Isaiah is

AGAIN ASSAILED.

This time it is the 9th verse which is attacked, viz.: "And he made his grave with the wicked and with the rich in his death; because he had done no violence, neither was any deceit in his mouth." If any prophetic utterance in the whole of the Old Testament referred originally, literally and personally to Jesus Christ, it is this one, and all Bible students know how literally these words were fulfilled in Christ. His grave was made in the midst of those wicked husbandmen who said: "This is the heir come, let us kill him," and who carried out their wicked design and with wicked hands killed the "Prince of Life." Again: "When the even was come a rich man of Arimathea named Joseph * * begged the body of Jesus * * and laid it in his own new tomb,—with the rich in His death." Matt. 27, 57 60. Fulfilled to the letter was this ninth verse of Isaiah, 53. What does Prof. Workman say of this verse? HEAR HIM:—"The ninth verse of this chapter (53rd Isaiah) has not been applied to Him (Jesus) by the evangelists and should not be applied to Him by any one. To try to torture the original into a translation suitable for such an application, is reprehensible." 447. In the name of all that is sacred and holy, to whom then does these words apply? The passage just before this one tells us they apply to Him of whom this was true, "for the transgressions of my people was he stricken." Who does that originally refer to? And again in the 12th verse, "and He bore the sins of many and made intercession for the transgressors." If we are wrong in applying the ninth verse in this chapter to Christ, and in doing so we are guilty of torturing Scripture, we are verily guilty of the same crime if we apply one single verse of the whole 53rd Isaiah, to the "Messiah, of whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write." This is falsely called the "Ethical Theory of Messianic prophecy." Something new, forsooth! No, this so-called "new theology" is not new. It is decripit with age. It is as old and as hoary-headed as the father of lies, and is nothing more or less than a "doctrine of devils," and there is no mistake about that. Away with it to its own place and give us sound teaching. Let the Holy Ghost be in all our universities, and He will put a stop to this teaching. Christ, the great teacher, should first be consulted, man second, as to application and interpretation of prophecy. He is supreme authority, for we read: "The Spirit of Christ, which was in them (the prophets) did signify, when it testified beforehand, the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow." I Pet. i, 2. Prof. Workman tells us, "The doctrine respecting Jehovah's anointed, as presented in the * * * O.d Testament, it should be carefully borne in mind, must be confined exclusively to Old Testament teaching, irrespective of New Testament application or interpretation." 422 (Strong language.) Again on page 437, we repeat, he says, when investigating the meaning of the Old Testament we may keep the New Testament closed. Verily "the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God." Methodists, this theology blackens our escutcheon. It is a

DISGRACE TO METHODISM.

Let us away with it. Well may we blush to think that these views are not only held but taught in Victoria College, as Prof. W. tells us: "I have been holding and teaching my view of the subject (Messianic Prophecy) for upwards of six full years."—(from Christian Guardian Dec. 17th, '90.) It is written "if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch." How much longer is the Methodist church going to tolerate this teaching, which tells us (when we read Isaiah, 14, viz., "as many were astonished at Thee, His visage was so marred more than any man, and His form more than the sons of men; and again in Isa. liii.—He is despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief, but: He was wounded for our transgressions, He was bruised for our iniquities, etc. * * * And the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." * * * He bore the sin of many and maketh intercession for the transgressors) that these words have no definite personal prediction or reference to Jesus Christ? Teaching which drains the sweetness out of the whole of the Old Testament by excluding the person of the Messiah from it, and which challenges the truthfulness and stability of the New Testament. The Old as well as the New Testament bears with me to the person of the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sins of the world. "To witness."—Acts x, 43. "For the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

HIM GIVE ALL THE PROPHETS

If Prof. Workman and his colleagues think they can smuggle this kind of doctrine into Methodism without from the common people, they have made a grand mistake—a protest which will ere long assume practical form. Where are our "defenders of the faith"?—men like Dr. Carman, Rev. John Potts, Dr. Sutherland and others, who are always to the front armed to the teeth when any attack is made on Methodism, but now when the word of God is assailed there is not found one of our mighty men to come out and handle "without gloves" this "scientific exegete," falsely so-called, and demand his dismissal, unless he owns up like a man that he has been in the wrong. Verily, "truth is fallen in the streak." The glory of Methodism has departed if she tell us there is nothing in this new doctrine opposed to Scripture or Methodist theology. As one of the common people, and one who has helped to support the institutions of our church, I protest with might and main against this miserable, thieving doctrine that would steal the beauty, meaning and sweetness from a great portion of the word of God.

We are told, page 467, that the prophets had very limited and indefinite prophetic insight. He says: "An understanding of this indefinite character of prophecy will help us to appreciate the possibility of its non-fulfilment." Hence we are taught to believe, on page 465, "that many of Ezekiel's prophecies, as well as all those Hebrew prophecies relating to Israel's future, are simply not unfulfilled, but

"IMPOSSIBLE OF FULFILLMENT."

This is a libel on the prophets. The canonical prophets, almost to a man, prophesied of Israel's future, so that these holy men of God were moved by the Holy Ghost to prophesy her. God says, "Woe to the prophets that do this." Ez. xiii, 23. How could they do else, according to this doctrine? for we are told, on page 475, "Messianic prophecy in the original * * * is poetry, highly imaginative Hebrew poetry." Where is the Holy Ghost in this new theology? He is ruled out. "All Scriptures is given by inspiration of God and is profitable," &c. II Tim. iii, 16. No, that is not true. Some, and a great deal, is given by the mere "imagination" and germinal ideas of man, and is not true, hence good for nothing, thus saith Prof. Workman and his colleagues. Who inspired Daniel, 500 years before it happened, to prophesy and tell to the very day when Messiah, the Prince, should be cut off? What about Daniel's Messianic stone that is to fill the whole earth? When Zec, ix, 9 was fulfilled, viz.: "Fear not, daughter, of Zion, behold thy King cometh sitting on an ass' colt, then remembered the disciples that these things were written of Him." Jno. xii, 15, 16. The disciples here evidently believed that original references was made to the Messiah in the Old Testament. "Unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given, and the government shall be upon His shoulder, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The Mighty God, The Everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace" (Isa. ix, 6) is Isaiah's announcement of the Messiah 740 years before He was born a little baby in Bethlehem's manger. We feel confident that our people will plant their heels solid on this miserable Judeo-German rationalism and stamp it out. Six years of this teaching in Victoria University is just six years too much of it. We will hope for better things. "To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Isa. viii, 20.

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good."

A 1 for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $20.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom we received the best list of English word (of not less than three letters) formed from letters contained in the two words, "Ladies' Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered, in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honourable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood disease which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

THE ONLY OUT ABOUT HIM

"Oh!" said Annie, with a shock of horror in the cry. "We are lost in the woods. And it is night!"

"We shall be all right to-morrow," he said, cheerily. "When we have tried all the wood paths one of them must be the right one." And he proceeded to tread down a circle in the snow, and with the hatchet to cut off the tender hemlock boughs with which first he heaped the sledge, and then made a dry spot for the horses, which he fed and blanketed. And after they had divided the ample luncheon they had brought from Palterer's, he had the mother and daughter lie down on the hemlock boughs, covering them with the thick robes, and took up his round as a sentinel about them.

"Oh, mother," he heard Annie whispering, "there are wolves in these woods! They will smell the horses!"

"Not down as far as this," said John. "Peachblow says there isn't a wolf south of the camp. You can sleep as safe as if you were down in Port. I shall keep watch all night." And he did, pacing round and round his little bivouac, watching the stars wheel slowly down, where the roof of the forest boughs was thin, and pausing now and then to gaze at the young girl in her innocent sleep, where the long lashes swept the pale rose cheek, and the lips seemed to him to be half parted, as if they must be speaking to angels in her dream. He felt, with a sinking heart, as he gazed, that if she knew who it was that watched her, she probably would have less feared the wolves. More than once, the mother, waking from her own weary drowse, saw him leaning there against the bole of a big tree, with folded arms, his eyes upon the sleeper as if upon a saint in a shrine, and then a look of anguish writhing over his face, as he turned away, that belonged not to a strong and happy youth, but such as one might have if shut out from heaven.

But in the first gray of the morning the horses were put in, and while the others still lay on their hemlock boughs the team was making its way out again.

"I have found the lay of the land by the way the stars were going," he said to the mother; and before long they were in the open road—dawn flushing all the heavens above, the snow below, and turning the whole forest into a twinkle of rainbows—and on the way to a safe end of their journey.

"He's a man worth keeping," said Mrs. Sibley to her husband. "I wouldn't lose sight of him."

"He's brought home the horses all right," said Mr. Sibley. And he took John home with him that night, and found plenty for him to do next day in the great warehouse of supplies, and listened to various suggestions that seemed to occur to the youth as a new comer there, kept him busy, and when spring came sent him behind the Morgan colts with a wallet full of money to pay off the men in camp.

"He's a treasure, that lad," said Mr. Sibley, when John returned with his vouchers all correct. "Luckiest day's work I ever done when I come across him. Saved me his keep a'ready in small leaks. He's too good to last. Some out about him somewhere. Durnd of I can find it though."

"I don't believe in crossin' bridges 'fore you come to them," said the fussy little man's wife. I don't believe you'll ever come to this one. He's as good a boy as treads sole leather"—

"As good a boy as hasn't been found out. Well, you spread your saying grace over him, mother, and less see if he'll want a better home 'n this is."

And in his few spare half hours John was invited into the sitting room, and presently if anything was wanted by the house people it was to John that they went instead of to the busy husband and father, and it was taken for granted that on Sundays he should have a seat in the family pew. And thus one year passed and another; and the third year found John Dean keeping Mr. Sibley's books and his bank account, collecting his moneys, making his payments, going and coming between the lumber camps, engaging and paying off the men—in short, the trusted and faithful intimate of his business, always firm and strong and ready, always bright and gentle and obliging. Mr. Sibley used to say it was as good as an open fire and a mug of cider to see John's face on a gloomy evening; and there was many a rosy young girl in the Port who thought no less and looked shyly askance at his face once so bleached and now with a healthy tan and a ruddy color beneath the white brow, at his wholesome mouth, whose bright laugh was not hid by the tawny shadow of the the recent mustache, at the sparkle of his happy eyes, at his shapely shoulders and his easy bearing.

But of late this cheeriness of John's that Mr. Sibley liked was going under a cloud. Mr. Sibley thought he must be "fred and was for giving him a vacation. Mrs. Sibley thought he must be ill and was for dosing him with herbs. Annie Sibley, if she thought anything about it, only showed her thought by a lightened color on her cheek and a brighter star in her eye when his name was mentioned, or when she saw him coming up the garden walk.

Certainly an unknown young fellow who had found a place almost without asking for it, had been taken into his master's confidence and into his family and had every reason to think his future secure and fortunate ought to have worn a gayer face than John Dean was wearing now. It is true his good nature was continually the same on requirement, but gradually all jests and quips and drolling, as Mrs. Sibley called it, had ceased, and he went about his work pale and preoccupied and silent, and Sundays he strayed off over the fields, instead of listening to little Annie singing in the choir or walking home with her as he had been used to do. Perhaps it did not occur to him that any one might be troubled by this; perhaps he was not aware of it himself; he certainly did not see the paling of the bloom on Annie's cheek.

But Mrs. Sibley did, and it smote her heart to see the girl's eyes follow John and fall again, she taking shame to herself that they did, to see the unconscious pretty ways in which she tried to win him out of his gloom. "She might do worse," said Mr. Sibley, when his wife spoke to him about it, as a good wife should. "He's a likely fellow. I'm going to raise his salary the first of the year. And he'll be a rich man yet"—

"But—father—you—you wouldn't be willing to let the first comer have her—and he, as you may say, a sort of—of—hired man!"

"Hired man be—I mean," said Mr. Sibley, who didn't allow swearing, "he's my confidential man of business!"

"But we don't even know where he came from!"

"Steady as a clock, faithful as a dial. Thoroughbred and shows it in countenance, of course, but I can't find it. Perhaps that's it. I guess we can find out where he came from. I'll ask him. I don't never want her know, though, a mite more'n I know about him. Always under our eye, an' this the third year. What's she pale about? Does she think I would? like it? You tell her I say she might go further and fare worse!"

"Oh, father, I couldn't speak to her about it!"

"Well, then, you turn over an' go to sleep an' let the Lord take care of it. When I see two young folks stumbling love I don't believe I can improve on natur."

Perhaps the spiritual had caused the same reverence for Annie in her priest innocence that John himself had, as he watched her going about her simple duties and pleasures like something just above the earth but not on it. Every one in the Port had a touch of this same feeling about Annie Sibley—the old woman to whom she gave an arm on the street, the little child whose hurt she soothed, the sick girl with whom she watched. Even the sailors in her father's lumber schooner counted it luck if they saw her sweet face before sailing, as other people do when they see the moon over their right shoulder. She had the gentle word, the gentle deed, for all people, the tender judgment, the unfailing pity.

"Annie Sibley," said old Peachblow, voicing the sentiment of all the community, "she's as nigh perfect as they make 'em."

It would have been no wonder, then, had despair fallen on John Dean when he found that he, too, was under the spell, and that he would rather be condemned for life to the solitary cell with bread and water than pass that life without her. And what was he that he should dare—

As he sat there on the doorstep his head fell forward on his knees, and a sob escaped him full of anguish. In the next moment some one sat down beside him, a hand stole into his, and Annie was whispering some indistinct, comforting murmur. How could he help returning the clasp of that little hand with an unconscious strength of grasp that was almost pain, suddenly raise it to his lips and cover it with kisses, and as suddenly fling it from him as though its touch had stung him, and then seeing her withdraw, startled, grieved, hurt, turn and snatch her to his wildly beating heart and hold her as if they were one body and one soul.

"Oh, what have I done, what have I done!" he cried, as he opened his arms and released her. "I love you! I love you! and I must leave you. I must go away from here, for I can never marry you!"

But for all answer little Annie had only clung to him the closer, her face upturned on his shoulder, with its appealing eyes, the red lips parted, the blush going and coming, the trembling smile melting to one of tenderest sorrow.

"I ought to have gone before it came to this!" he said. "I have been meaning to go, day after day. And I could not, I could not! My will was strong, but it could not drag my feet after me!" He disengaged her clasp, and took her face between his two hands, his great gray eyes looking into hers long and passionately. "Kiss me!" he said. "Once. For the last time. And now forget me!"

He told Mrs Sibley that night that as soon as Mr. Sibley returned from his western journey he should have to leave them.

"Leave us, John!" said she. "What for!"

"It's about time," he answered carelessly. "My traveling cap is on."

"But John—why, John! Are you dissatisfied! Isn't Mr. Sibley doing right by you? Has anything—has anything made you unhappy!"

"Unhappy!" he said, with an air of surprise. "Oh, I'm not unhappy," he answered, with a look in his eyes then that made her heart ache.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. We would advise all our readers not to neglect the opportunity to call on their druggist and get a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs. Trial size free. Large Bottle 50c. and $1. Sold by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Now, Give Attention.

To the purification of your blood, for at no season is the body so susceptible to the benefits to be derived from a good medicine, as in March, April and May. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the people's favorite spring medicine. It stands unequalled for purifying the blood, curing scrofula, salt-rheum, etc., regulating the kidneys and liver, repairing nerve tissues, strengthening and invigorating the whole body, as well as checking the progress of acute and chronic disease, and restoring the afflicted parts to a natural healthy condition. If you have never tried Hood's Sarsaparilla, let your "spring medicine," do so this season.

Tuesday Night's Concert.

The "Low Back Car" is one of the numbers that will be recited by Mr. S. H. Clark at the coming concert under the auspices of the Catholic Association, on the evening of the 17th March, at Bradburn's Opera House. Perhaps nothing could better show the versatility of the talents of this great elocutionist than the contrast between his rendering of the spirited scene of Ben Hur's Chariot Race and the touching little comical poem of the "Kitchen Clock" at the entertainment given here on last St. Patrick's evening. A similar change of character and scene will be shown at this concert when he will give touches of character both grave and gay and particularly in the Low Back Car one of the sweetest and tenderest of Samuel Lover's pleasing poems. 1d

The Charge Unfounded

At the police court this morning a young woman named Edith Crowe, who was arrested yesterday, was accused of the theft of about $100 from Mrs. Ensign. The latter is agent for the Vermilyea Corset Company, and employs girls to assist her. She lives on Simcoe street. Tuesday evening she put her purse, containing the money, under a bust form; the next afternoon, when she went to get it, it was gone and has not since been found. There had been several parties in the house and Mrs. Ensign did not suspect any one until the girl Crowe aroused her suspicions by her conversation. The other ladies she considered above suspicion. The arrest was consequently made, but at the trial this morning no evidence whatever of a convicting nature was received against the prisoner. Beyond Mrs. Ensign's suspicions there was nothing to connect the girl with the theft. She had been in the room and sat beside the bust form which concealed the purse, but Mrs. Ensign did not know whether the girl was aware of the presence of the money or not. The prisoner was discharged. Mr. A. P. Possette conducted the defence.

Ten Years in Penitentiary.

A Life Sentence That Was Not Completed—An Old Crime Recalled.

Yesterday Peterborough was visited by a man who has for the past ten years been confined in Kingston penitentiary, but who now rejoices in unexpected liberty. He was committed for manslaughter, but has just been pardoned, and stopped in town on his way to Chicago, where he will, it is hoped, endeavor to wipe out the disgrace which blighted his life, by living a sober, honest and industrious life. The man's name is Nelson Hamblin. Old residents of Peterborough will remember that almost ten years ago, on a Sabbath morn, the 3rd of September, 1881, Joseph Larocque, an employee of T. Fitzgerald's livery stable, was stabbed and killed by Nelson Hamblin. The encounter occurred at the corner of George and Charlotte streets shortly after midnight. The two had been drinking together at Mrs. Berube's. There they quarrelled, and on the way home met under the gaslight at the corner. Larocque struck Hamblin, then they clenched, and Larocque was stabbed several times in the region of the heart by a pocket knife in Hamblin's hand. The blade was broken. Larocque lived only a short time, and Hamblin, being tried and convicted of manslaughter, was sentenced to penitentiary for life by Mr. Justice Armour. Mr. D. W. Dumble conducted the defence, and was always of opinion that the sentence was too severe. Others concurred in this belief, and Mr. Justice Armour himself is said to have admitted subsequently that he had acted more harshly than the case warranted. The accident was the result of a carouse and Hamblin was not of a violent character. But about that time the authorities were doing their best to stamp out the too common practice of using knives in drunken rows, hence Hamblin's heavy punishment. Mr. Dumble has ever since taken a warm interest in the young man's case, and the petition gotten up at his instance has been successful. After serving nearly ten years Hamblin has been pardoned.

St. Paul's Church

Lecture Under the Auspices of the Mission Band—Master Arlidge Sings.

The audience which attended the Mission Band entertainment in St. Paul's church Friday evening was not large, the storm no doubt preventing many from being present who had intended being there. However, the programme gave every satisfaction. Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Lindsay, gave a very interesting lecture, and Master Arlidge, though suffering from a cold, delighted the audience with his sweet voice. Rev. Mr. Torrance occupied the chair. After the opening hymn, and an anthem by the choir,

Rev. Mr. JOHNSTON, of Lindsay, began his lecture on Hymns and Hymn Writers. Mr. Johnston's object was to show that the hymns used to day displayed unmistakably in their composition the character of the times in which they were written. The hymns written during the Reformation were not like those of the evangelistic type composed at the time Methodism was first established. In dealing with hymns generally, Mr. Johnston said a hymn was a hymn only when it expressed adoration, thanksgiving and trust. When it embraced a prayer it was no hymn. It was a noticeable fact that hymns do not contain doctrines, as a rule. One of the latest works by a Presbyterian minister on the Catechism contains the doctrines of the church. Mr. Johnston said he was asked by the writer to preface it by an appropriate hymn embracing, as far as possible, the doctrines discussed in the book. He had great difficulty in finding a suitable hymn. Hymns were more spiritual, more outpourings of the soul, and do not embrace any doctrine. The Armenian and the Calvanist can sing the same hymns, though they are in point of doctrine antagonistic to each other. Regarding favourite hymns, Mr. Johnston referred to the list published in a late number of the Sunday at Home, comprising one hundred of the most appreciated hymns, mentioning particularly four or five of these. One of them, "Art Thou Weary?" he asked the choir to sing by way of variety. Master Arlidge sang the first two lines of each stanza, containing the question, the choir joining in the answer. The singing of the hymn in this way was most effective. Continuing his lecture, Mr. Johnston went into the history of the composition of the hymn, its author, the period when it was written, etc. He dealt similarly with other hymns, speaking specially of Watt's hymns, of which the Presbyterian hymn book contained a number. Charles Wesley and his hymns were also spoken of. Mr. Johnston said his object was to encourage a desire to learn more concerning the hymns and take a deeper interest in their history. A vote of thanks to Mr. Johnston for his excellent address was moved by Mr. J. H. Roper and seconded by Mr. G. M. Roger.

Master Arlidge then sang a solo, and, after a closing hymn by the audience, the gathering dispersed.

A Voice from Vancouver.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR EXAMINER,—Before leaving for Port Simpson I will drop you a few items of correspondence in reference to this city of the West. As many of your readers have had the pleasure of a trip on the C.P.R. to Vancouver, it would be imposition on my part to describe what has been seen, or at least pictured to them before.

Victoria, the capital of British Columbia, is situated on a fine harbour at the south of Vancouver island. Its population of 15,000 consists of Chinese, English and Americans, with not a few Canadians from the Eastern Provinces. It has direct communication with the Western States on the south and Alaska on the south, by lines of steamers plying regularly between their respective ports. The electric street railway system is worked here to a great advantage, being much ahead of the old horse-car system. The Island Railway runs from here to Nanaimo, where extensive coal works are in operation.

As to climate, it is perfectly delightful, there being no snow only that which may fall during some night, but disappears before noon the next day. There are to be seen flowers blooming in the gardens, and, as I am told, the severest part of their winter has been since I arrived, and I thought the weather very mild indeed.

Building is being carried on extensively in this place at the present time. Old blocks are torn down to give place to larger and more commodious ones. Several new churches are under course of erection. The new Methodist church, a stone building costing between $60,000 and $100,000, will be opened in May, while the Roman Catholics are building a large cathedral of brick. Mechanics earn from $3 to $4 a day, with board at $5 and $6 per week. A man with a good trade cannot fail to do well here.

Yesterday, as you know, was election day. Everything was very quiet here, for the boasting loyalists had things pretty well salted, while our poor friends the Liberals—dubbed annexationists—were compelled to grin and bear with a certain defeat. On the authority of Mayor Grant of this city, it is stated that 2000 persons of this electoral district were disfranchised. With the chance of gaining many of these 2000 our Liberal friends would have undoubtedly taken the day; as it was, the Liberal candidates lost their deposit money. The following is a statement:

CONSERVATIVES.
Prior	1068
Earle	1079
LIBERALS.
Templeman	449
Marchant	410

But on the whole the old Chieftain has not much of a heap to crow on. Ontario and Quebec proved themselves true to the nation's weal, and it is a puzzle why the maritime provinces stood as they did. Let the Government now show their loyalty in action and not in word.

I sail for Port Simpson by the "Boscowitz" to-night and will reach there (D. V.) Monday night or Tuesday morning next. I will be only too pleased to furnish your interesting paper with a few jots now and then from Port Simpson.

Agricultural Deputations.

The Electoral Districts Agricultural Societies Wait Interested Grants.

(From the 'Globe.)

A large deputation representing the Electoral Districts Agricultural Societies of the Province waited upon the Hon. Mr. Dryden on Friday afternoon. The object of the visit was to procure an increase in the annual grant of from $700 to $1,000, and that of the increased grant one half and no more shall be subject to division among township and horticultural societies instead of three-fifth as is at present required. Hon. E. Harcourt, Hon. E. H. Bronson, and Hon. J. M. Gibson were present with the Hon. Minister of Agriculture to receive the deputation, and these members of the house were there to lend the weight of their presence to the request of their constituents:—Messrs. G. B. Smith, E. J. Davis, R. Tooly, H. Smith, James Oakland, J. R. Stratton, W. M. Dack, W. C. Caldwell and J. Earle, Dr. McKay (Oxford), Dr. Burr and Dr. Preston and Thos. Blezard. The deputation represented 70 district societies. Messrs. John J. Hobson, Wellington South; E. Jackson, Newmarket; Andrew Elliott, Waterloo South, and Hiram Morgan, Rossel, spoke in support of the request. The Hon. Minister in reply expressed the pleasure it gave him to meet so large and representative a deputation. They were gentlemen who had for many years been connected with the management of agricultural associations, and whose judgment was, therefore, entitled to great weight on a matter such as that being dealt with. He said he was conscious of the good work that had been done by the agricultural associations in developing agricultural interests, and he thought the time had been reached when a new division of the moneys granted to agricultural societies should be arranged. As they very well knew, there was some of the money that did little good, but was frittered away. It would be a good thing if the money spent in this way could be better distributed so that it would stimulate a healthy rivalry in the improvement of the art of agriculture. He promised to take the first opportunity of presenting the matter to the Attorney General and his colleagues, and the deputation's views and resolution would receive the consideration that their importance called for. Mr. Geo. Elliott and Mr. Wm. Collins were present from West Peterborough, and Mr. M. Knox and Mr. O'Reilly from East Peterborough.

Spring Fashions.

Some of the Latest Fashions Out—Interesting Reading for Ladies.

Last week Toronto was besieged by the fair milliners of the Provinces, bent on making their Spring purchases. The Monetary Times, that great commercial authority, speaking of the fashions that are to rule, states that feathers and flowers are this year displayed in great variety, the latter in buttercups, wheat and heather reproductions being a prominent feature for the coming season, while feathers are not going to be neglected. The orders booked for ribbons, laces and trimmings of all descriptions during the first two days of the opening were very numerous, and their character furnished a fair index of the dictum of Fashion with respect to these lines. Satin and velvet ribbons will be much worn, and cream, faille, moss, faillette, Russian, argente, nickel, granite, turquoise, and Maryland are colors that will be en evidence. New Yorkers, according to an exchange, are buying black silk velvet ribbons with a white pearl edge, and which used in rosettes with lace and grenadine, are prominent ornamentation. Black and colored Italian faille Francaise has also taken the fancy of American women; and colored glace faille Francaise, in combinations too numerous to mention, will embellish as trimming light dress-goods stuffs and bouquets. Serge glaces is an entirely new thing there. It has handsomely colored borders, and the effect when twisted into every conceivable shape, is said to be exceedingly fetching. Another artistic freak is zephyrine gauze. Parisian designers have sent, amongst other products, beautiful flowered effects on satin. To be in the fashion in New York one may qualify, in ribbons, on the strikingly handsome combinations of black grenadine and satin with metal flowers in gold or silver, or brocbe effects. Frisee and satin, gauze and satin, on black ground, with vari-colored flower designs—daisies for instance—serge glaces with metal border, satin grounds with colored brocbe spots, ombre and glace and granite, are safe to buy.

The hats offered to the Canadian buyer are low in the crown and mostly of a light lacy character, and make-up millinery will have more attention than usual. Bonnets are very diminutive, more so than ever before. Straw goods of fancy braiding will be much in vogue; gold braided bonnets also; and the prices for these three or four times those of former years. Something new in bonnet trimmings is the wide sash ribbon, all the way to fifteen inches wide and in many designs and colors. Roman ornamental stripes, checks, clan tartans, etc., will be seen on the streets in due course. Ladies' jackets are seen with braided patterns, and the open front and the reefer will probably lead. The colors are chiefly fawns and blacks. In New York, the blouse and Jersey so popular for the last two years, have given way to the women's shirt, "which in muslin and percale, the Bulletin says, has come to the front with a rush.

Mothers Attend their Own Children.

It is worthy of note that for some length of time mothers in Canada and the United States have themselves treated their children when suffering and sick. The mother's favorite remedy to-day is Paine's Celery Compound, a scientific preparation and entirely vegetable, and one which cannot harm the most delicate constitution. A mother says: "Last spring my little girl, four years old, had a bilious attack, but the constipated bowels, aching head, bad smelling breath, and furred tongue readily yielded to a few doses of Paine's Celery Compound, and she quickly regained brisk health." This grand restorer is the safest and best for all children. It is particularly adapted for the little ones, causing them to regain strength rapidly, giving them appetite, makes them sleep soundly and naturally, and harmonizes their whole network of life. Mothers of Canada, do not fail to procure this valuable compound for your children when they are sick and suffering.

Mr. Gladstone and the Sweeper.

A well known London minister, who got crushed in the crowd on the opening of St. Martin's Free Library by Mr. Gladstone, tells an anecdote of the ex-Premier's kindness of heart, on the authority of a farmer friend. When Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Gladstone regularly attended the church. A crossing sweeper in the parish who had been some time ill, when asked by the vicar if anybody had been to see him, said, "Yes, sir, Mr. Gladstone." "Which Mr. Gladstone?" he was asked. "Why," was the answer, "Mr. Gladstone himself. He often speaks to me and gives me something at my crossing. Not seeing me, he asked my mate, who was keeping it for me, why I was not there. He told him I was ill, and then he asked where I lived. So he came to see me, and talked and read to me."—Christian World.

Scratched 28 Years

A Scaly, Rotting, Skin Disease Was Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $1000.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly over my body, and got under my nails. The nails would drop off or rot off with the sores, and my suffering was endless and without relief. Once these wonderful remedies would not have saved me by have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but not rich enough to be afraid of what it cost. Some of the diseases said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I am sure I must have tried the CUTICURA REMEDIES for much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All most of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and told you would have cured me for $5 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 3 page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my heads and legs to assure me in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cut to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

MARRIED BUT NOT A BRIDE

A PAINFUL WEDDING SENSATION IN OTTAWA.

Miss Katie Warren Immediately After Her Marriage Finds the Bridegroom was Already Married—Flight of the Bridegroom.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Miss Katie Warren, a pretty and well-connected Ottawa girl, was married Thursday night at St. Luke's Church to Frederick W. Hall of Cleveland, Ohio. After the ceremony the wedding party proceeded to the home of the bride's parents. As the wedded pair and invited guests were sitting down to the marriage supper, a friend of the family hurriedly came to the door and asked Hall out and there charged him with having a wife in England. Hall declared that he had a divorce. A painful scene followed, in the course of which the bride's mother took the marriage ring off her daughter's finger and made the bridegroom take it back. Hall then left the room and fled from the house by the back door. It is supposed he left here by the night train. He was a handsome young fellow of gentlemanly address.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 15.—The remains of the infant child of the unfortunate girl Sarah Fox were interred last week in St. James' Cemetery, the interment being delayed until this late date by order of the coroner. In addition to the fracture on the top of the skull two other fractures, one on either temple and each sufficient to cause death, were discovered.

Robert Robertson, 104 Duchess-street, a carpenter, while working on a building on the north west corner of College-street and Spadina-avenue, Saturday afternoon, fell off the scaffolding, a distance of 10 feet to the ground. His head struck a pile of loose lumber and he was picked up insensible. Dr. Overton Macdonald of 329 College-street was called in, and at once ordered his removal to the Homœopathic Hospital, where it was found that the injured man was suffering from a severe concussion of the brain and spinal fracture. Robertson's chances for recovery are very slight.

Before the master in chambers on Saturday a motion was made to dismiss the action of Agnes Dewan against John J. Parker and his wife Mary Ann Parker. The parties live on adjoining farms in the township of Emily near Lindsay, and the dispute arose out of the purchase by Mrs. Parker of the farm which was rented by the plaintiff's husband and on which she and her husband resided. It is alleged that on Oct. 10, 1890, during the absence of Mr. Dewan, the defendant John Parker went on to the Dewan farm and proceeded to take possession in the name of his wife and against the protests of Mrs. Dewan. He brought with him a plow and was about to do some plowing when the plaintiff made an assault on the plow and broke part of it. Parker laid an information before the Police Magistrate at Lindsay against Mrs. Dewan for maliciously and with intent to destroy it breaking the plow. Mrs. Dewan appeared before the magistrate and obtained an adjournment, but was, at request of Parker, compelled to furnish bail for her appearance or go to jail. When the matter came up again she was discharged, as she also was at the assizes later on the same charge. Mrs. Dewan now asks $200 damages, but her statement of claim being some days late a motion was made to dismiss the action. The matter was enlarged till Tuesday.

Mary Townsend and George F. Townsend, her husband, are suing T. H. Pratt and Emma Pratt for damages for slander. The parties reside at Hamilton and the trouble arises out of a quarrel between the two women, each accusing the other, it is alleged, of leading an immoral life. It is also alleged that the female defendant spread reports to the effect that the female plaintiff kept a house of ill-fame, and that by reason of such slander she was turned out of her house by her landlord and also suffered other damage. The solicitor for the plaintiffs asked the master for an order for the examination of the female defendant for discovery before delivery of statement of claim. Judgment was reserved.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 15.—In a dispute over the elections in the house of Samuel Soles at Chezzetcook yesterday, Soles ordered a man out of the house. He refused and Soles took his gun and threatened to shoot him, when the other struck the gun down with his hand and the weapon was discharged, Soles receiving the contents with fatal effect.

Redmond, M.P., and Henry Harrison, M.P., delegates sent to this country by Mr. Parnell for the purpose of raising funds for the Nationalist movement, arrived here this morning on the Etruria from Queenstown. They were met by a reception committee. Ald. Clendineng, a member of the Quebec Legislature from Montreal, and a Mr. Crowe were among the earliest callers. In behalf of the Irishmen of Montreal they extended to the envoys an invitation to visit that city, which the latter said they would be pleased to do while making their Canadian tour.

The Paris Green Route.

BROCKVILLE, March 14.—Miss Elizabeth Robb, aged 35 years, committed suicide at Toledo, this county, by taking Paris green. As soon as it was discovered that she had taken the poison doctors were summoned, but could do nothing to save her life, and she lingered in great agony until noon yesterday, when death put an end to her sufferings. For some time past the woman had shown symptoms of insanity.

The Queen Not in the Best of Health—Discontinuing Gambling in the Army—Death of the Leader of the Catholic Party in the Reichstag—General Foreign News.

DUBLIN, March 15.—Rev. Father McOscar, Administrator to the Primate, preaching at Armagh to-day, said that he had advised the Primate to refrain for the present from taking sides with Mr. Parnell, but that if the latter persisted in his present course the sacraments would be refused to his adherents.

At Newry yesterday the police had to disperse a mob of Parnellites who interrupted a McCarthyite meeting. There were 5000 persons present. At a Parnellite meeting at Middleton, County Cork, McCarthyites interrupted a Parnellite meeting, and the police had to be called upon to suppress a free fight. Parnell spoke in Galway in his usual strain.

Speaking at Newry Mr. Healy advised an alliance with any party, Tory or Liberal, to secure their ends.

PARNELL'S PLEA.

The Irish Statesman's Long-Expected Manifesto Issued.

LONDON, March 16.—Mr. Parnell has made public his long-expected manifesto. The full text of the document follows:

HOUSE OF COMMONS,
Friday, March 13.

To the Irish People of America:

FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN: In 1880 and subsequent years you assisted me powerfully by your influence upon American public opinion and with your generous financial support to create the great movement of the Land League. Without your aid, so freely given and so constantly maintained, Ireland could not for one moment have made headway against her oppressors. Still less could she have attained the singular position of power and the promise of success which she has occupied during the last five years.

At the instant when victory seemed near and certain, the hasty and meddlesome interference of English politicians in the complex organization of our party, aided by a sudden movement among some young law recruits, eagerly seconded by a few malcontents, office-seekers and envious persons who crept into our ranks temporarily destroyed the unity of our forces and sapped the independence of many Irish representatives.

It now becomes my task to restore this unity and reconstruct our movement, lopping off all unsound materials, taking effectual precautions against the admission in the future into our army of any weak, treacherous, self-seeking elements. Fortune has unveiled this danger and given space for this reconstruction before the general election, and the disclosure has brought about a realization of the insufficiency of Mr. Gladstone's proposed solution of the situation to secure the legitimate liberty, happiness and prosperity of your brothers and sisters in Ireland. This disclosure was timely and all-important. The delegates who at my request are now crossing the ocean to your shores are well qualified with experience, ability and patriotism to fully explain and defend my position, which all that is sound, courageous and reliable at home assumed with me at this crisis. I commend them to your hospitality and I am confident that you will extend to them the most favorable reception and hearing. They are each and all well-tried soldiers who have constantly distinguished themselves in our war against coercion and British misrule and who, despite intimidation and influences of the most unscrupulous and far-reaching character, have bravely defended me during these dark days and trying moments with a confidence even greater than in 1880.

"I appeal to you once more to assist me in quelling this mutiny and disloyalty to Ireland; to help me in securing a really independent parliamentary party, so that we may make one more, even though it be our very last, effort to win freedom and prosperity for our nation by constitutional means.

Your faithful servant,
CHARLES STEWART PARNELL.

A Russian Outrage.

BERLIN, March 15.—A Vienna despatch tells of a Russian outrage at the Galician frontier town of Szovaszyn. In that place there was residing for a time a certain Johann Zell, a deserter from the Russian army. With a view to capturing the deserter two Galician tradesmen were bribed by Russian agents to give him employment. When this had been done they made him drunk and took him in a carriage across the frontier, where of course he was arrested and sent to St. Petersburg. The two Galician tradesmen were sentenced by the Austrian courts to one year's imprisonment for connivance in an unlawful act. They appealed against the sentence, but it has just been confirmed, the term of imprisonment being increased to two years.

Alsace-Lorraine Passport Regulations.

BERLIN, March 15.—The Emperor to-day gave audience to a deputation from the Alsace-Lorraine Parliament. His Majesty announced that he was gratified at their expressions of loyalty and regretted that he was unable to relax the passport regulations. The Emperor added that he hoped affairs would soon take a turn which would permit of the facilities of frontier intercourse being extended, which would happen as soon as the populace was convinced that the ties which bound Alsace-Lorraine to Germany were indissoluble.

Foreign Brevities.

A despatch from Durban, South Africa, confirms the report that a Portuguese gunboat has attacked and captured the British South African Company's steamer Countess of Carnarvon while the latter vessel was ascending the Limpopo River with rifles and ammunition.

Mr. Stanhope, Secretary of State for War, has had an interview with the Prince of Wales, and at this interview an understanding was arrived at that in future more strenuous efforts should be put forth to discourage gambling among officers of the army.

According to a despatch the golden palace of the King of Burmah is to be demolished. The chief reason for doing this is to efface all hopes on the part of the Burmese that a native King will ever again reign in Mandalay.

His Hand Cut Off.

LINDSAY, March 14.—James Staples, employed by James Hamilton's carriage works here, had his right hand amputated by a saw yesterday.

OBITUARY.

His Last Words, Uttered in Delirium—a Speech on the Jesuit Question.

BERLIN, March 15.—Dr. Ludwig Windthorst, the Parliamentary leader of the Catholic party in Prussia, who has been dangerously ill for some days, died at 8.15 o'clock yesterday. Dr. Windthorst at midnight was merely able to whisper to replies to inquiries as to his condition. Suddenly, however, his voice returned, and evidently imagining that he was in the Reichstag, delivered an impassioned address in favor of the abolition of the law expelling the Jesuits from Germany. The veteran leader's voice could be clearly heard through three rooms. He never spoke after having concluded his remarks on that bill.

Dr. Ludwig Windhorst was born January 17, 1812, at Kaldenhof, in the Province of Osnabruck, Hanover. His parents were of the agricultural class and were devout Catholics. In 1849 he became a member of the Second Chamber of the Hungarian Diet, and was a leader therein. Later in 1866 he became Chief Syndic of the Crown in Oden. When Hanover was forced to yield to the inevitable and to become in 1866 a part of Prussia it was Windthorst who conducted the negotiations with Prince Bismarck concerning the compensation to be made to the King of the latte State for quietly giving up his throne.

HIS DEATH AVENGED.

TERRIBLE BUTCHERY IN A NEW ORLEANS JAIL.

The Existence of Eleven Mafia Suddenly Terminated—Three Hanged, Eight Shot—Public Sentiment in Louisiana's Big City Sustains the Summary Action of the Mob.

NEW ORLEANS, March 15.—The jury in the case of nine Italians on trial for the murder of Chief of Police Hennessy rendered a verdict Friday evening acquitting six of the accused and failing to agree as to the other three.

The papers last evening were all emphatic in their denunciation of the verdict in the Hennessy case, and The States did not hesitate to declare that the jury had been bribed and that the authorities must find out who did the bribing.

The trial lasted 25 days, and though the evidence seemed conclusive the jury, currently charged with having been tampered with, failed to convict.

Last night a body of cool-headed men, lawyers, doctors, merchants and political leaders, all persons of influence and social standing, quietly met and decided that some action must be taken and the people's justice, swift and sure, visited upon those whom the jury had neglected to punish. This morning a call for a mass meeting at Clay Square, in Canal-street, appeared in the papers, which editorially deprecated violence. The significant closing sentence of the call was: "Come prepared for action."

About 10 o'clock citizens began gathering at the Clay statue and the crowd soon numbered 3000 men. They were quiet but determined. A large proportion were the leading people of the town. There were three addresses, short and pithy and business-like. Each of the speakers said there had been a great mass meeting months before, which had met quietly and dispersed peacefully, so that the law might take its course. The law had failed. The time to act had come. W. S. Parkerson, the leader, is a prominent lawyer here, the president of the Southern Athletic Club. Walter D. Denegre, another of the speakers, is one of the leaders of the New Orleans bar; John C. Wickliffe, also a prominent attorney, and James D. Houston, one of the foremost men of the state.

After denouncing Detective O'Maily, who is supposed to have tampered with the jury, the speakers announced that they would lead the way to the parish prison, Mr. Wickliffe concluding with these words: "Shall the execrable Mafia be allowed to flourish in this city? Shall the Mafia be allowed to cut down our citizens on public streets by foul means of assassination? Shall the Mafia be allowed to bribe jurors to let murderers go scot free?

"Get Your Guns!"

Some one yelled "Shall we get guns?" "Yes, get your guns," said Parkerson. Amid cheers the crowd tramped toward the prison along Canal and Rampart-streets, many arming themselves on the way. The crowd meantime was added to by hundreds of merchants and others. When the jail was reached the wooden door was broken in. Two men in the door prevented anyone entering except those who carried guns, and the intruders rushed into the lobby and demanded of the custodian the keys of the gates, which were quickly given up.

When apprised of the approaching mob the prison officials transferred the Italians to the female department up-stairs. The crowd proceeded thither. As they reached the landing the assassins fled down at the other end and their pursuers followed. In fear and trembling they screamed for mercy. But the avengers were merciless and a deadly rain of bullets poured into the crouching figures. Gerachi, the closest man, was struck in the back of the head and his body pitched forward and lay immovable on the stone pavement. Romero fell to his knees with his face in his hands and in that position was shot to death. Monasterio and James Caruso fell together under the fire of half a dozen guns, the leaden pellets entering their bodies and heads and the blood gushing from the wounds. The bloody executioners did their work well, and beneath the continuing fire Cometzx and Trabinia, two of the men who had not been tried, but who were charged jointly with the other accused, fell together. Their bodies were literally riddled with buckshot, and they were stone dead almost before the fusillade was over.

Slain in Their Cells.

When the group of assassins was discovered on the gallery, Macheca, Scoffedi and old man Marchesi separated from the other six and ran upstairs. Thither half a dozen men followed them, and as the terror-stricken assassins ran into cells they were slain. Jo Macheca, who was charged with being the arch-conspirator, was a short, fat man and was summarily dealt with. He had his back turned when a shot struck him immediately behind the ear and his death was instantaneous. There was no blood from the wound, and when the body was found the ear was swollen so as to hide the wound, which the coroner had great difficulty in locating.

Scoffedi, one of the most villainous of the assassins, dropped like a log when a bullet hit him in the eye.

Old man Marchesi was the only one who was not killed outright. He was struck on the top of the head while he stood beside Macheca, and though he was mortally wounded he lingered all the evening.

Shot and Hanged.

Polizz, the crazy man, was locked up in a cell up-stairs. The doors were flung open and one of the avengers, taking aim, shot him through the body. He was not killed outright, and in order to satisfy the people on the outside, who were crazy to know what was going on within, he was dragged down the stairs and through the doorway by which the crowd had entered. Half carried, half dragged, he was taken to the corner. A rope was provided and tied around his neck, and the people pulled him up to the crossbars. Not satisfied that he was dead, a score of men took aim and poured a volley of shot into his body and for several hours the body was left dangling in the air.

Bagnetto was caught in the first rush upstairs and the first volley of bullets pierced his brain. He was pulled out by a number of stalwart men through the main entrance to the prison and from the limb of a tree his body was suspended, although life was already gone.

The Bloody Work Finished.

Just as soon as the bloody work was done Mr. Parkerson addressed the crowd and asked them to disperse. This they consented to do with a ringing shout, but first they made a rush for Parkerson and, lifting him bodily, supported him on their shoulders while they marched up the street. The avengers came back in a body to the Clay statue and then departed. Immense crowds rushed from all directions to the neighborhood of the tragedy, while the streets in front of the newspaper offices were blocked with people anxious to see the latest bulletins. There was intense suppressed excitement, but from one end of the city to the other the action of the citizens was applauded.

O'Maily, the detective, who would have shared the fate of the assassins if he had been caught, has disappeared and is not expected to return, and members of the jury are in hiding.

The Lynching Endorsed.

The Cotton Exchange, the Board of Trade, the Sugar Exchange and the Stock Exchange met and adopted resolutions maintaining that deplorable administration of criminal justice in this city and frightful extent to which bribery of jurors has been carried rendered it necessary for the citizens of New Orleans to vindicate outraged justice, and declaring the action of the citizens to have been proper and justifiable.

The Stock Exchange expelled J. M. Seligman, who was foreman of the jury at the trial of the assassins.

Not the First Time.

To-day's tragedy recalls a previous crusade here against the Sicilians. In 1856 a Sicilian political club here attempted to interfere with the politics of the day. There were frequent rows and one night during an election the Sicilians attempted to take charge of the polls. A riot followed and 19 or 20 Sicilians were shot or thrown into the river.

The coroner's jury presented a simple finding. They did not say who shot the men.

Matranga, Sunseri, Natalie, the boy Marchesi, Paterno, John Caruso, Pietro and Incardono are the eight men who escaped punishment. Caruso hid in the yard, Natalie concealed himself in the wash house and was discovered, but for some unknown reason his life was spared. Sunseri and Pietro hid in a dog house, and Incardono in a vault. The jail officials spirited Matranga and Paterno out of harm's way.

The foreman of the Mafia jury, Seligman, was arrested at a small railroad station just outside the city this morning while attempting to leave town.

Officer Herron was accidentally shot during the firing, but not seriously injured.

The jurors who were tampered with will be proceeded against.

History of Hennessy's Murder.

New Orleans was startled on the night of Oct. 15 by the report that David C. Hennessy, the popular chief of police, who was only 32 years old and had been on the force since he was 12, had been shot down by Italians in ambush. Just as he turned the corner near where he lived a volley from several guns, which awakened the people for squares around, was heard and Hennessy dropped on a neighboring door step riddled with bullets. The assassination was attributed to an Italian society in New Orleans which ordered assassinations. Hennessy had expressed his determination to annihilate the society and his death was decreed. Although three of his assassins were identified the jury failed to convict.

The President's Message.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Secretary Blaine to-night sent a telegram to Governor Nichols of New Orleans stating that the Italian Minister had represented to the President that among the victims of the massacre were three or more subjects of the King of Italy, and under the United States treaty with Italy Italian subjects domiciled in the United States were promised "the most constant protection and security for their persons and property." The President deeply regrets that the citizens of New Orleans should have so disparaged the purity and adequacy of their own judicial tribunals as to transfer to the passionate judgment of a mob a question that should have been adjudged dispassionately and by settled rules of law. The Government urges the prosecution of all offenders.

The Italian Prime Minister.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In reply to notification of the massacre from the Italians press of New York this despatch was received from the Italian Premier:

ROME, March 15.

Your cablegram received. I have already demanded from the Federal Government energetic and prompt measures. (Sgd.) RUDINI.

The Behring Sea Case in the United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Acting Attorney-General Taft said that this Government would take no steps, so far as he was advised, to secure dismissal of the proceedings instituted by the British Government in the United States Supreme Court involving the jurisdiction of this Government over the Behring Sea fisheries, pending the reported reference of that issue to arbitration.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Destruction of a Tennessee Insane Asylum—Six of the Inmates Perish—Disastrous Fire in Syracuse.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 15.—The beautiful Central Insane Asylum, seven miles from this city, is almost a mass of ruins this morning, and beneath it are the charred bodies of half a dozen of the unfortunate inmates; in the outhouses near by are huddled the poor demented creatures who found an asylum in the grand structure now laid in ashes; and on the lawn the long, parched trees, denuded of branch and foliage, stand, the spectral trunks, with gaunt, outstretched arms marking the spot where stood the massive building, one of the most beautiful and attractive spots in Middle Tennessee.

The fire broke out at 10.15, but before aid arrived from the city at 3.15 the west wing has been destroyed with the inmates:

J. S. JOHNS of Rutherford County.
J. BURT DEXTER of Wilson.
BLUE PRESTON of Cadiz.
JOHN KELLY of Wayne.
W. H. BEASTRY of Hickman.
B. F. HOLLOWELL of Davidson.

At 3.15 the flames were subdued, the lunatics who had been huddled for several hours in the yard in front of the main building were returned to the east wing. About 25 had escaped, the majority of whom were harmless. The dangerous lunatics were kept locked all the time in the east wing and none of them were subjected to expose or danger during the progress of the flames.

The Salina City Fire-Swept.

SYRACUSE, March 15.—The most disastrous fire that Syracuse has ever known took place yesterday. It originated in Heir & Lighton's cigar manufactory at 238 West Fayette-street, in the Hogan block. It instantly spread to the store of M. P. Walsh, hardware, and Cahill Bros.' bakery in the same block. It was but a short space of time after the breaking out of the flames in the cigar store before the old Daniel O'Keef United States Hotel at the corner of East Fayette and Franklin-streets was being licked up. The Hogan block was six stories high, with mansard front. The United States Hotel was but two stories in height and built of brick. It was one of the landmarks of the city. From the Hogan block the flames leaped across the street, catching the Osgood V. Tracy block. Simultaneously it caught in the blocks on the east, the Newell block coming next, the Tracy and the Fay building adjoining the Newell block then took fire.

The Ayres block and the Seneca hotel, together with numerous business houses, were also destroyed.

At 7.35 another fire broke out which burned fiercely until 2.30 p.m., the buildings destroyed being The Journal office, the Cook block, the Montgomery flats, one of the handsomest blocks in the city, six stories in height, with mansard roof. By 9 o'clock it seemed as though the whole city would burn up. The wind blew like a hurricane, carrying flames and sparks far and wide.

By the first fire 10 blocks were leveled at West Fayette and Franklin-streets; by the second, three blocks, one of which covered half the square—the Yates block—and one residence. Over ten families were burned out in flats above stores. Four residences were destroyed in first fire. The loss will reach $3,000,000; insurance about half that sum.

Another fire broke out this (Sunday) morning in the St. James' Episcopal Church, which was totally destroyed, together with the McLennan flats adjoining, occupied by the Standard Watch Company. It is estimated the loss by fire in Syracuse in the last 24 hours will aggregate over $1,250,000.

Fatal Hunting Accident.

ALVINSTON, March 15.—Ira Fosger while out shooting with four other men to-day stuck his gun in a brush pile and went to scare out a rabbit. On returning he grasped the gun near the muzzle, and pulling it towards him discharged it. The shot took effect in his throat and killed him instantly.

EDUCATION IN ONTARIO.

The Annual Report of Minister Ross.

A Special Report on the French Schools—Use of Bi-Lingual Readers—Training of French Teachers—Growth of the Public School System.

The report of the Minister of Education for the year 1890, together with the statistics for 1889, has been laid before the House. It gives the school population of the province for 1889 as 616,028, of which number 500,815 pupils were registered, 263,047 were boys, and 237,768 were girls. The school population that year was only 675 more than in 1888; the number of pupils registered had however, increased 4,492. The average attendance in rural sections was 47 per cent. of the registered attendance, while in towns it was 60 per cent and in cities 64 per cent. With regard to the average attendance, as compared with the registered attendance the report says it is evident that the power conferred upon trustees to compel the attendance at school of children between the ages of seven and thirteen years is not exercised. In 1882 the number of absentees between the ages named was 87 444; in 1889 they numbered 86,515. There are now 5,677 school houses in the province. Notwithstanding the large expenditure for school sites and buildings, and the large increase in the teaching staff of the country, the cost per pupil has but slightly advanced in thirteen years. The average cost per pupil on the number enrolled in 1889 for counties was $7 14; for cities, $15.25; and for towns, $9 19, or an average of $8.44 for the Province. In 1877 the average cost was for counties, $6 01; for cities, $7 52; for towns, $6.51, or an average of $6.25 for the Province.

The number of Roman Catholic schools open during the year were 243, the number of pupils 32,790 and teachers 546.

HIGH SCHOOLS AND COLLEGIATE INSTITUTES.

The number of High Schools, including collegiate institutes, was 120, with 18,642 pupils and 427 teachers. The report refers to the gratifying increase in the attendance at the High Schools, the number having doubled in thirteen years. In 1889 the pupils preparing for matriculation numbered 1,446, 583 for the learned professions, and 7,816 for teacher's examinations.

The total number of pupils attending the several classes of schools in 1889 (excluding colleges and private schools) amounts to 520,827, and the grand total sum expended for all educational purposes in 1889 reaches the high figure of $5,145,370. This result is most encouraging, and speaks well for the educational prosperity of the Province.

Examinations in kindergarten work were held during 1890 at Hamilton, Ottawa and Toronto, and out of the 105 candidates who presented themselves, 20 passed for directors and 35 for assistants.

In 1890 there were 1,293 teachers in training in the 58 county Model Schools, and of that number 1,228 passed the final examination. In the same year there were 411 students in attendance at the Normal and twelve teachers' schools, and 948 Model School and kindergarten pupils and 22 teachers.

There are now five training institutes in the Province, viz., one at Guelph, Hamilton, Kingston, Owen Sound and Strathroy. The attendance in 1890 was 59; the number who wrote at the final examinations was 125, and the number who passed 88.

The present Minister of Education instituted technical education, and several tables in the report show a rapid advance made in this branch.

THE FRENCH SCHOOLS.

The report contains a special report on French schools in Prescott and Russell by Dr. Donald McDiarmid. It says:—

"The total number of French Public Schools in the counties of Prescott and Russell, including departments in charge of teachers, is 59, of which 51 were in operation at time of visit. Two schools and one department were temporarily closed and five not opened during the last half of the year, owing to the inability of the trustees to secure teachers. There were in the schools visited 3,006 enrolled pupils, of whom 1,461, or about 48½ per cent., were in attendance. The number of English-speaking pupils' names entered on the school registers was 178, or nearly 6 per cent., and of French children not learning English 133, or nearly 4½ per cent.; the majority of the latter consisted of young pupils who recently attended school for the first time. The teachers in charge (not including the four English) may be classed, as to their knowledge of Eogish, as follows:—Good, 20; fair, 14; middling, 7; inferior, 6. Taking into consideration the fact that many of the French Public Schools have only been established within the past twenty years, and that no special attention has been paid to the teaching of English in them till 1886—in addition to the difficulty of securing the services of teachers qualified to give instruction in both English and French, it is gratifying to be able to report that, as far as the teaching of English is concerned, as good progress has been made as could reasonably be expected. It is to be remembered that little or no English is spoken in the homes from which the pupils come, and that very few of them, before attending school, were acquainted with any language but their mother tongue. They, however, appear to have the faculty of easily learning English, which few English-speaking children seem to possess of acquiring French. Formerly the principal methods of teaching English in these schools consisted chiefly of reading, spelling and rendering into French the lessons of the Ontario Readers. For practical purposes such exercises were of little benefit to the pupils. Now, in addition to the time devoted to English reading and translation, a portion is set apart for oral instruction in that language to classes or to the entire school. Generally these conversations are confined to the primary class pupils, while in schools where both the Montpetit and Ontario reading books have not been replaced by the bi-lingual series, the remaining French classes use the Ontario Readers (principally the primers and second reader.)

USE OF BI-LINGUAL READERS.

"From the appended detailed reports it will be seen that the Bi-lingual Readers are now used in some classes in more than one-half of the schools. In sixteen they are the only books from which the pupils are taught reading. No a few of the classes read and translated the English lessons very creditably, but were unable to give in that language required simple explanations. In schools in which special attention had been paid to colloquial and blackboard exercises, the pupils understood and readily answered questions in English. Satisfactory results in the acquirement of English may be expected of the pupils now entering school and proceeding regularly in the study of the Bi-lingual Readers, from the lowest to the highest book of the series. They will have the opportunity of becoming acquainted with many English words and their combination into phrases and sentences. The limited English vocabulary possessed by many of the pupils in the advanced French classes is, in a great measure, due to their not having been taught both languages continuously.

"Notwithstanding the many disadvantages under which they labour, the teachers are doing very fair work. As many of them have not had the instruction equal to that given in good schools, it is necessary, in addition to the professional training, to make good this want in the recently established Model School at Plantagenet, which I visited, and have to express my satisfaction at the manner in which Mr. Cheney, the head master, is discharging his duties. The teachers in charge of schools visited by me, who attended the first session of this school, were successfully putting into practice the approved methods of teaching learned while students at this institution. When the supply of teachers in the above counties is equal to the demand, the sessions should be lengthened, and the standing in the different branches raised till at least equal to that required for third-class certificates. With one or two exceptions, the teachers could express themselves readily in English, and were able to impart elementary instruction in that language. Some of those whose knowledge of English was slight, were placed in charge of schools because others better qualified could not be secured. In schools in which pupils understood English all communications between teacher and pupils in regard to matters of discipline and the management of the schools, were in English. In the majority, however, owing to the pupils' lack of knowledge of English, French is used in some cases. The inspector has directed the attention of the teachers to the observance of the regulation of the Educational Department respecting this matter."

Dr. McDiarmid comes to these conclusions:—(1) With the employment of teachers trained in the Plantagenet (French) Model School, and the use of the Bi-lingual Readers, the principal causes which retarded the satisfactory progress of the French Public Schools will in a few years be removed. (2) Laudable as well as successful efforts are being made in teaching the English language in all the schools, one or two excepted. Some English is, however, taught in these latter schools. The want of suitable teachers is the cause of the backwardness of the instruction given in them in this language. (3) Inspector Dufort is using his power and influence in having the regulations of the Department enforced.

An Assurance for the Ladies.

It should prove cheering to the ladies of Canada, when one of their number considers it to be a duty to speak favorably of Paine's Celery Compound, which is conferring benefits and blessings wherever it is used.

A St. John, N B., lady writes as follows:—"For four years I have been a sufferer from nervous debility and dyspepsia. I was also at times troubled with severe headache, which added untold suffering to my weak state of body. I often went to bed at night wearied and worn out, and remained awake until morning. My medical adviser could not give me any permanent relief, and at times I felt that life was worthless. Hearing of Paine's Celery Compound, I determined to try what a bottle would do for me. Before I had used the first bottle, I was convinced I had found something that had brought a measure of relief. I kept on using it, and in a month's time I found I could sleep better, eat better, and was stronger. Up to this date I have used six bottles, and am compelled to admit that I am now almost myself again. It has been my salvation; and I consider Paine's Celery Compound worth the effort of a dozen physicians. I will always be pleased to recommend it to my friends."

The ladies of Canada will surely see that this great remedy is particularly suited for them in all difficulties.

The Number of Blind People in the World

The majority of mankind always enjoy reading any little item of information out of the usual line. For instance if statistics could be collected showing the number of blind people in the world they would be received with great pleasure, and we are only too sorry that we cannot furnish them. We know, however, that there are thousands of persons practically blind, and simply because they do not choose to see. We refer to those who are daily suffering from the most depressing bilious and nervous disorders, and yet will not seek the most popular and efficient remedy, Beecham's Pills. w12d

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1, Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B B B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health."—Mrs. A. McCullough, Digby, N. S. 2w11d

Rough Skin.

Caused by cold weather, is made perfectly smooth by one application of Dyer's Jelly of Cucumber and Roses. Try it. Druggists keep it. W. A. Dyer & Co., Montreal. 6d51

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

But Mr. Sibley's journey was a long one, into the timber district of a western state. When he came home, six weeks later, he found a very different condition of things from that which he had left. The men were in the woods, the camps supplied, the new year promising to open well, and all had been ordered and attended to by John. But John himself was sleeping in the counting room; as he did not go up to the house any more, Mrs. Sibley was sending dinner down to him; and Annie, his little wind-flower, looking as if the wind could blow through her, had grown into the white shadow of herself, large-eyed, pallid and frail, not a-a flower, but as the ghost of a flower.

They were alone in the warehouse next day, the porter and the boy having gone home for their noonings. "I've been waiting for you to come back, sir," said John, in a voice meant to be calm, but which sounded in his own ears as hollow as if it came from an empty shell. "Because I must take my turn now. It's the close of the year. I find that I cannot be with you another year."

"You mean you want a little rest and change? Certainly," said Mr. Sibley, fussily. "Certainly. That's right. I've been advising it, you know. How long, say?"

"For—for good and all, Mr. Sibley. I—I can't work here any longer."

"John!"

"No, sir. You see, yourself, I'm only good at anything for about so long. I've grown reckless. I must go."

"I don't see anything of the sort!" roared little Mr. Sibley.

"Yes, sir. I thank you for your goodness to me. It's been more than you think. More than you can ever know. It—it breaks me all up—to go. But I must."

"Look here!" cried Mr. Sibley. "I always said they was an out about you, if I could only find it. And here it is! What is this 'bee in your bonnet? John—is it—is it Annie?" he said in a different tone, one that had all a father's tenderness in it. "Because if it is"—as there came no answer—"that's all right."

"I—I cannot—marry her, sir," with downhung head."

"You can't marry my daughter, sir!" began the master, and he stopped, thunderstruck, to comprehend the statement. Then, "You can't marry my daughter, sir!" he cried again, lashing himself into a rage. "I should like to know what's the reason you can't marry my daughter! Do you mean to say that you came here, a young whipper snapper from nowhere, a nothing, a nobody, and break my daughter's heart, and ruin her life, and"—

"Stop, stop, stop, Mr. Sibley!" cried John, as white as ashes. "I should ruin her life, indeed, if I stayed."

He waited a moment, looking his employer full in the face—as Mr. Sibley afterward told his wife—as fixed as if he were a statue carved in marble among all those bales and barrels. "I meant to tell you," he said presently, moving his lips as if with an effort. "I meant to tell you as soon as you began to be so good to me. And then I felt it was my only chance in life, and I couldn't. I thought, too, it would give you a pain—a man's punishment pursues him all his life, you see—and I hated to. And I hated to see the look you would have to give me when I told you. And I thought then, perhaps, you would never know—it was in a state a thousand miles away. And I kept along. And when I found I was beginning to care for her, I made up my mind that I must go—and it was hard—and I—I never dreamed of her caring for me! I would as soon have dreamed of an angel out of heaven stooping to me! And when I had out she did, I felt sure she would get over it with me out of the way—and—and' I only waited for you to come back"—

"What in thunder are you driving at?"

"A man who helps the helpless gave me a suit of clothes, and I worked my passage down here. When you gave me that team to drive I was just a fortnight out of prison for theft."

"That so?" said Mr. Sibley. And he turned on his heel and went into the little counting room and shut the door.

How many minutes, how many hours, John stood immovable, just as he had been left among the tins and bags and boxes, he could not have said. All thought, all emotion seemed to have been wrung out of him: he was not even suffering. At last one of the hands returned; John nodded to him, took his hat and coat and went up to the house to put his things together.

They were few, his possessions there, but his hands trembled so that it took him some time. When he was through he heard the murmur of voices down below. Should he leave the house where he had been so kindly treated, without a word? He went down and hesitatingly turned the handle of the sitting-room door. Mr. Sibley was there, too.

"I—I—only came—to say good-by. Oh, sir! I would give my right hand if"—— "You can give your right hand now, John," said Mr. Sibley. "You can give your right hand to Annie. I'm willing. Her mother's willing. She's willing. As for what you said in the store, we won't consider that. I'm glad that's the only out about you! You couldn't have been anything but a boy when all that happened. You're hardly more than a boy now. I don't believe there's 10 men alive that hasn't taken pennies, or apples, or something that didn't belong to them sooner or later. You got into bad company some way, I suppose, and a temptation came that was too much for you when you were weakened. You've grown since then, grown right way, strengthened. If you'd been born crooked, you've had every chance since you've been with me to feather your nest. You could have run away with a handy capital for a rogue, more than once. You're an honest man by nature, John"——

"Oh, I am, I am. I mean to be!" cried John, with shaking voice.

"We're forgiven our sins," said Mr. Sibley, solemnly, "when we've become so that nothing on earth could make us commit them again. The Lord forgave you long ago, John, when the possibility of doing that wrong again was drowned out of you. I don't know why I should set up to be any better than the Lord. Now we'll never speak of this again. We'll begin the year by putting the old things behind us. You're as honest a man as me, John. Your mother an' me go together here; we believe in you; we're going to prove it by giving you the dearest thing on earth that's ours. It shall be a new year for all of us. It shall give me what I wanted all my life and never had, and that's a son—and if I picked the world over, John, I couldn't find one more to my mind than what you be, John. Come, now," said Mr. Sibley, putting up his bandana, "you ain't going to have time to think it over. Old Peachblow's in the kitchen just down from the woods. I'll send him for the minister. Mother, there's some black cake in the stone jar, ain't there? Well, we'll have a quiet wedding here this afternoon and settle things, and then you and Annie can go off for that little change we was speaking of. You go to Annie in the west parlor, now, John."

EUROPEAN SOCIALISTS.

Cowardly Attempt to Wreck a Train at Meiderich.

DUSSELDORF, March 13.—At Meiderich, near Duisberg, obstructions were yesterday discovered on the track and an express train was stopped just in time to prevent disaster. A number of dismissed laborers, lying in ambush near the scene, were detected, pursued and eight of them captured.

He Took Them Himself.

MATTAWA, March 13.—Johnston, a fanning mill peddler, had a companion named St. Michael arrested on a charge of stealing his team and sleigh. St. Michael strenuously denied the charge and gave information which led Constable Barrard to arrest Johnston himself. Not long after his arrest Johnston confessed that he himself had taken the team out of the stable and in driving across the river they were drowned and the team lost. St. Michael was discharged, and also Johnston, the latter on the ground that he could not steal from himself, the team being in his charge.

The Horse, the Trader and the Pipe.

ST. CATHARINES, March 13.—A man named Karner, a horse trader, living near the jail, was washing a horse with coal oil to remove some vermin and during the process he stopped to light his pipe, forgetting about the coal oil on his hands. The match set fire to the oil and communicated to the horse standing by, which immediately laid down in the water and put out the blaze. Karner was not so fortunate and had his face badly burned by the flames.

Thousands in a Coat Lining.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 13.—Nearly $10,000 was found here this afternoon in the lining of a coat belonging to the late Judge H. M. Cooley. The dead jurist had been one of the leading lawyers of the State, but for ten years had been doing nothing and was supposed to be penniless. In selling some old clothing his son felt something like paper in the coat, and ripping open the lining found $100, $500 and $1000 bank bills to the amount of $9700.

Pauncefote and Blaine Confer.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister, had a conference with Secretary Blaine to-day. It related principally, it is said, to the arrangement of preliminaries for the submission to arbitration of the various questions at issue in regard to Behring Sea fisheries.

Kilrain the Winner.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 13.—Jake Kilrain of Baltimore and George Godfrey, colored, of Boston met in a finish fight at the California Athletic Club to-night for a $5000 trophy. Kilrain was declared the winner at the end of the 44th round.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Mr. Clanton has received a letter from Mr. James McCarroll, who will be well and pleasantly remembered by the older residents of the town as a genial gentleman, one of the best flautists of the day, and a bitterdoer of high order. Mr. McCarroll states that he was fighting for the Crown in the disturbance of 1837 38. He was a member of the 7th Provincial Battalion. Mr McCallum is at present editor of "Belford's Magazine," New York. He is a graceful and vigorous writer, has won his spure by literary work of the highest order, and Peterborough people will be interested in knowing that Mr. McCarroll is contemplating writing some sketches of Peterborough. Whatever Mr. McCarroll undertakes in a literary way, is sure to be well done and worth reading.

The premises have been thoroughly overhauled and fitted up, and the stock is new and first-class in every respect. Mr. Kidd invites all his old customers and others to give him their patronage. He publishes a card in another column. Mr. Kidd guarantees satisfaction, and with fine stock and low prices expects to do a profitable and successful business.

A Voyage in a Blood Vessel.

Next Thursday night at Bradburn's Opera House will be given a lecture by Dr. E. C. Eldis, (the representative of J.C. Ayer & Co.) a discourse entitled "Blood Will Tell," and those who attend will be asked to embark on board a blood vessel. The doctor has visited all the leading cities to the eastward, and wherever he has spoken the press has been unstinted in their praise. He not only imparts valuable information in an interesting manner, but he presents it in such a way by aid of anecdotes and reminiscences that he attracts and holds his audience, who wish the time was not so short, hardly realizing he has been talking over an hour. One startling truth he enunciates, viz.: that if the world paid as much attention to raising men and women, as to the breeding of cattle and horses, the world would be infinitely benefited thereby. He extends a cordial invitation to all the young ladies of Peterborough to attend, promising to tell them how to choose a husband, so as never to make a mistake and get the wrong man, a fact worth knowing. All the druggists have invitation cards, which can be had free of charge by calling at the drugstore. These tickets admit grown people only.

The following is the programme of the concert on the 17th March, 1891, at Bradburn's Opera House, under the auspices of the Catholic Association:—

Northwest Missions.

A meeting under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of St. John's church was held in the school room Saturday afternoon, which, considering the short notice given, was well attended. Rev. J. C. Davidson occupied the chair, and Rev. Messrs. Kadrick and Mc. Cleary, and Mr. Lucas, were present. The Bishop of Saskatchewan delivered an interesting address upon Northwest Missions, the object being to arouse practical interest in that field of work. It being Lent, no subscriptions were taken up, but it is hoped the congregation will bear the mission in mind. The Bishop of Saskatchewan and another Bishop from the Northwest have been making a tour of Ontario, which they concluded at Peterborough. They were to leave for the Northwest to-day. In his address the speaker said there were eight dioceses and six Bishops in the Northwest, though they soon looked for the appointment of a seventh. There were not enough clergymen to do the work, at least one more being needed in each diocese. It was a strange fact also that very little help was received from Eastern Canadians in this respect, Rev. Ronald Hilton being the only clergyman from the east working in the Northwest. The Bishop's address was full of information concerning the mission work in which he and others were engaged, and a plea was entered for more practical consideration on behalf of the public.

Fraternal Sympathy.

At the last regular meeting of Branch 30, C.M.B.A., held on March 10, upon motion of Bro. Lynch, seconded by Bro. Carveth, the following resolution of condolence was passed:—

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God, in His divine and infinite wisdom, to remove from our midst our much esteemed and efficient Brother in the person of Michael Sullivan, and whereas the friendly relations long held by the deceased with the members of this Branch, and as he was a charter member, and having filled the following position with much satisfaction, viz., Recording Secretary, Treasurer, President, Chancellor and Representative to Grand Council Convention held in Toronto in 1888, we the officers and members of Branch 30 deem it proper that we should place upon record our high appreciation of his many services as a member and officer of our association. Therefore, be it resolved that we, the officers and members of St. Peter's Branch, No. 30, Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, whilst bowing to the will of an all-wise Providence, extend our most heartfelt and fraternal sympathy to the wife and family of our late brother; that by the death of Bro. Sullivan a wife loses a kind, loving and devoted husband, his children deprived of a father's care and protection—a grievous loss which cannot be replaced.

We therefore pray that God may protect and strengthen them to bear this irreparable loss in thus their time of sad affliction.

And be it farther resolved that these resolutions of respect to his memory be placed on the minute books of our branch, and the same be published in the local papers, and inserted in our official organ, the "Catholic Record," and the "Catholic Review," and a copy be forwarded to his afflicted wife and family.

May God comfort and console his widow and children, and may his soul rest in peace.

J. J. LYNCH, Rec.-Sec.

The Edinburgh Concert Company.

The Globe of March 13th says: There was a large audience at the Auditorium last evening at the concert of the MacLennan Edinburgh Concert Company. The three nights' engagement of the company last December had acquainted the Scotch citizens of the city with their excellence, and the result was last evening's splendid attendance. Several other concerts in other parts of the city prevented a large number of people who have looked forward to this second visit, from attending last night, and the performances this evening and to-morrow will no doubt be crowded. The company is of varied talents, and without a weak member. It is hardly necessary to say anything about the dancing of so celebrated a dancer as Mr. MacLennan. He was on the programme twice last night and the audience each time called him back; at every appearance he was given an ovation. Encores and recalls were the order of the evening. The numbers merited the warm applause of the appreciative audience, and the programme, itself of generous length, was almost doubled. The company gives the most varied entertainment of any concert company that has visited Toronto for a long time. No touch of monotony creeps in to mar the freshness with which each number comes. Messrs. Finlayson (tenor) and Fleming (bass), and Misses Alice Steel (soprano) and Edith Rose (contralto), make a splendid quartette and singly give excellent solos. Mr. Jules Guiltan, who is a Scotchman despite his French name, plays Scotch airs on the violin with admirable execution and sympathetic conception, and Mr. C. F. Ferguson keeps up the humorous end of the combination. The company gives performances in the Auditorium to-night and to-morrow night, Bradburn's Opera House, Wednesday, March 18th.

Each season has its own peculiar malady; but with the blood maintained in a state of uniform vigor and purity by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla little danger need be feared from meteorological influences. No other blood medicine is so safe and effective.

County Cheesemakers

Held Their Annual Meeting—Subjects of Interest Discussed.

The annual meeting of the county of Peterborough Cheesemakers' Association was held in the council chamber Saturday afternoon. There was a small attendance. Mr. J. W. Moore, President, occupied the chair.

The President made an opening address, in which he congratulated the cheesemakers of this country upon the excellence of the cheese turned out, Peterborough cheese holding the highest position in the Dominion and the continent. He announced the order of proceedings for the meeting.

CHEESE MAKERS AND REPORTS

Mr. S. R. PAYNE read a good paper on "How to reach our patrons and how to get them to improve the quality of their milk." The best way to reach patrons, Mr. Payne believed, was to meet them when they visited factories. He himself always handled the milk for his factory, and thus became acquainted with each patron's milk. If the patron's milk was found to be not up to the standard, a kindly word of advice would have the effect of urging the patron to investigate for himself and see wherein his milk failed. A new patron should also be advised in these respects. Mr. Payne thought the distribution of dairy literature would have a good effect. Patrons should be urged to keep their milk warm so as to retain the quality of the fall make of cheese, and exercise more thoughtfulness in handling it. The taint of leaks, the speaker stated, could be removed by heating the milk to 124 degrees. Milk exposed to the sun would make the cheese unfit for use.

In the discussion which followed Mr. FITZKIN supported the paper and said he found word of mouth better than a written note in dealing with patrons. Patron and maker should be drawn more together.

Mr. PILKEY also spoke in reference to the inspecting of cheese. He considered that mistakes had been made in inspecting in this county. Results of shipments had shown that the inspection had not been as good as was desirable. This matter, however, rested with the cheese board. Mr. Pilkey expressed his disapproval of the contract system.

CONTRACTING CONDEMNED.

Others took part in the discussion. The contract system was generally disapproved of.

Mr. PAYNE asked if the meeting did not consider the deterioration of fall cheese was due, as he had suggested in his paper, to cold milk.

Mr. JOHNSTON thought if coal stoves were supplied to factories the quality of the cheese would be improved.

Mr. PAYNE moved, seconded by Mr. DEVELL.—That the practice of contracting for two or three months in the fall of the year is not a good one and should be discontinued.—Carried.

The PRESIDENT read a couple of messages he had received from Prof. Robertson and Mr. Bailey, expressing regret that they would not be able to attend the meeting.

MILK INSPECTION.

The question of "Milk Inspection and its Abuses" was introduced by Mr. Thos. Johnston. In referring the abuses, Mr. Johnston spoke of a letter to this effect in the EXAMINER last fall, and said the course followed by the milk inspectors in this county was a disgrace. He claimed that the course the inspectors had followed in accusing patrons of tampering with their milk, without in a great many cases giving them a chance of clearing themselves in court, was unbearable. Milk that was simply weak was not necessarily deteriorated, and milk lower than the standard might be as pure as when it came from the cow. All cows don't give the same quality. The milk delivered at the factory should be tested with the milk as it comes from a cow, and proven to be of inferior quality, before a charge of fraud was made against a man. Mr. Johnston held that as long as the Association employed outside men to inspect milk they would be in trouble, for these men are not interested enough in the local trade to deal fairly and generously with the patrons. Every cheesemaker ought to be able to inspect his own milk. He thought no patron should feel insulted by having his milk submitted to the test, but be willing to have his character cleared.

The PRESIDENT said there was dissatisfaction with milk inspectors elsewhere, and petitions were before the Legislature for the appointment of Provincial Inspectors. The milk inspectors appointed by the Dairymen's Association were not reliable, but if appointed by the government they would be satisfactory.

Mr. PAYNE favored the appointment of government inspectors.

Mr. GALVIN said milk ought to be inspected. There was a great deal of adulteration of milk going on. It was the meanest kind of fraud on earth, and ought to be detected. He thought the names of the thirty five patrons who had been fined should have been published.

Mr. S. S. SPENCE moved, seconded by Mr. PILKEY.—That this Association petition the Local Legislature to appoint milk inspectors in cheese making districts.

Speaking to the motion, Mr. PILKEY said he was in favour of getting a disinterested outsider to do the inspecting. Cheesemakers had already enough sins to answer for. But he was not in favour of the inspection as it was carried out here, though it worked satisfactorily in the west. But in this case it was not simply a question of Mr. Bailey or not. The fault lay elsewhere. Those who have attended the annual meetings of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association and been button-holed with a dollar for their vote, know where the fault lies. He thought a Provincial officer would give satisfaction. Mr. Bailey made his inspections all right, but the Association did not follow them up.

Mr. SPENCE stated that it was Mr. Bailey's duty to prosecute.

Mr. PILKEY said Mr. Bailey had told them he had sent in his report and it was the president's duty to prosecute. They ought to find out who was really responsible for the failure of justice. Great harm was done the cheese interest last year. Mr. Pilkey thought the cheesemakers of this county ought to engage an inspector on their own account.

The resolution was adopted, and the chairman appointed Mr. Galvin to draft the petition.

On motion of Mr. SINGLETON, Mr. Moore was re-elected President of the Association and Mr. S. B. Payne Secretary.

The meeting then adjourned.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

Mr. Arthur Jolly gave a very thoughtful and earnest address on the life of Joseph at the young men's meeting Saturday evening. All present felt the power of the impressive words of our young brother, and much blessing followed in the after meeting. The singing was hearty, being led by the orchestra.

Mr. Arthur E Burch led the consecration meeting Friday morning. All present received a blessing for the duties of the Lord's Day.

Mr. R. M. Bansel and others gave touching and convincing testimony to Christ's power to save us from our secret sins, at the personal purity meeting.

Rev. Mr. Torrance, being called away, was unable to give the address at the gospel and song service but Miss Code and others gave short pointed talks, which made a profound impression on all present. The Holy Spirit was present in power to convince of sin and to lead the sinner to the mighty to save.

Church Chimes.

Next Sunday the Sunday school anniversary services of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church will take place. Rev. C. O. Johnston will deliver the sermons. On the following Monday Mr. Johnston will lecture, and on Tuesday the school will give an entertainment.

Revival services are to be held in the George Street Church, beginning to-night. Three special services will be held this week—Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights.

Rev. Mr. McKinnon, of Lorneville, occupied the pulpit in St. Andrew's Church Sunday.

The congregations of the Methodist churches Sunday were delighted with the singing of Miss Stevenson, a young lady from Guelph who has lately been a pupil of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. She sang in the Charlotte Street Church in the morning and the George Street Church at night. Her voice is a sweet soprano, strong, steady, cultured and of wide compass. The low and high notes were taken with surprising facility and ease. Miss Stevenson's singing was a treat indeed, and the public of Peterborough will not lose any opportunity of hearing her magnificent voice at the concert in Bradburn's Opera House to-morrow evening. Miss Stevenson's selections on Sunday were admirably chosen and were adapted to the display of her splendid vocal powers. At the George street church in the evening, additional anthems were rendered by the choir, Mr. Seward having prepared a special service of song. The musical portion of the services were highly edifying. Miss Stevenson's pleasing vocal efforts were backed up by anthems by a choir of thirty voices, nearly one half of which were male. In the choruses the strong bass came in with telling effect. The anthems were exceedingly well given, and were attended with a vim and confidence which filled the immense edifice with "harmonious thunder." Music plays a prominent part in the order of service in the George street church. Rev. Mr. Looke preached an impressive sermon from the text:— "Be not deceived, God is not mocked. Be sure your sins will find you out."

Douro.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The Douro council met at the Town Hall March 9th, 1891, pursuant to adjournment. Members all present. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed. By-law No. 506 was passed appointing pound keepers, fence viewers and overseers of highways for the year 1891. The clerk was instructed to insert on the collector's roll of 1890 the taxes accrued against Andrew Haslip for part of lot No. 1 in con. 12; also to obtain legal advice as to the necessity of publishing by-law No. 505, entitled a by-law to raise by way of loan the sum of $1 000 for the purposes of S. S. No. 6. The treasurer was authorised to allow the collector $6.95, abatement of 5c. on the sum of 109 11, amount of uncollected taxes, and $27.03, amount of taxes charged on roll against collector in 1890—total, $139 18—the collector to pay the treasurer $29.70, being amount in full of five cents on the uncollected taxes on Dec. 14th, 1890, and also that the treasurer pay the collector $80 salary for 1890. The clerk was instructed to post up notices in the vicinity of Clark's bridge crossing the Indian river, stating the council intends passing a by-law at a meeting to be held on the 28th day of May next, closing up said bridge so as to prevent public travel thereon, and also to give notice that said bridge is unsafe and not fit for public travel, and any person or persons travelling over the same will do so at their own risk, as the council will not hold itself responsible for any accidents that may occur to persons travelling over said bridge.

CASTING BRONZE STATUES.

A Difficult Process that Involves Much Time and Expense.

Several gentlemen were standing on Pennsylvania avenue in front of the President's house engaged in discussing the advantages of the new site for the Lafayette statue. The conversation turned to other statues and one of the gentlemen gave an interesting description of how the bronze statues of to-day are molded and cast. He said that compared with the improvements made in other branches of art and mechanical work very little progress had been made in this direction, as the most successful method of forming molds for bronze statuary now in vogue was invented by the Japanese and was adopted by the French sculptors of some 300 years ago. It is known as the wax process. The expense, however, is so great that it is seldom used for large pieces.

The usual method of casting bronze statues is to take from the sculptor's clay model a mold of plaster. When this is hard the clay is cleaned out and plaster poured in its place. When the molds are removed a plaster cast corresponding to the clay model is left, about the plaster cast a new mold is formed, this one of fine sand, tamped hard. The mold is removed from the plaster, and in place of the latter is inserted a sand core, not quite so large as the plaster, so that when the molten bronze is poured in it can run only between the surface of the mold and the core, thus making the statue hollow.

For delicate work the objection to this process is that by expansion and contraction of the plaster molds and casts, and by the unequal pressure by the tamping of the sand, the metal figure is apt to vary somewhat from the model. As the bronze cannot be altered, the sculptor must be content to see his idea interpreted in the metal with some alterations of proportions.

It is to avoid this variation that the wax process of molding is used. After a plaster cast has been made the surface of the latter is scraped off to a depth of half an inch or more. It is then replaced in the mold, which it no longer fills, and melted wax is poured into the vacant space. On taking off the mold the statue is found to be renewed, but with a surface of wax. The artist is then called in, and by working upon the wax he can remedy any defects which may have been caused; molding, adding, or changing at will till the surface is as delicate and perfect as his art can make it.

When the sculptor has finished with it the statue is turned over to women, who with very small brushes, cover the wax with a fine dust or powder of special composition. This dust adheres to the wax, and as soon as one coat has been put on another is given to it. This process is kept up for weeks, and as these coatings of earthen powder are repeated they harden, and when the layers have been built up till they form a covering over the wax of about half an inch in thickness, the work can progress more rapidly, for after that a trowel can safely be used. Thus the wax model is safely inclosed in a mass of hard earthen material.

The entire mold, with the figure and wax inside, is then placed in a furnace in which a great heat is developed, sufficient not only to melt the wax, but to burn out every trace of it. This leaves a perfect mold in which to pour the molten bronze for the final casting, and when the latter comes out it is found to be an exact duplicate in bronze of the wax model, with every line brought out to a nicety. On account of the great labor required in covering the wax with the powdered earth, the process is very expensive and is only occasionally brought into use.—Washington Post.

Purify Your Blood

...importance of ...ing the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing more conclusively proven than the power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

Scratched 28 Years

A Scaly, Bleeding, Itching, Disfiguring Humor Conquered by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES when I was first troubled with my skin, it would have saved me twenty years of suffering. I was troubled with Eczema for twenty-eight years, and tried all the doctors and medicines I could hear of, but got no relief. I was induced to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and before I had used one box of CUTICURA, and one cake of CUTICURA SOAP, I was entirely cured, and my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $500 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2 page 47) in your book "Cuticura Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I have passed twenty-eight years, and it gave me to a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT

THE SEIZURE OF A STEAMER BY THE PORTUGUESE.

Lord Salisbury Says the Seizure was Justifiable as the Vessel Was Smuggling in Arms—The Text of the Newfoundland Arbitration Agreement.

LONDON, March 16.—In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Ferguson, political secretary of the Foreign Office, said the Government had received information that the British South African Company's steamer Countess of Carnarvon was seized by the Portuguese gunboat on the charge of smuggling.

In the House of Lords Lord Salisbury said it appeared the Countess of Carnarvon was landing arms in Portuguese territory. If this was a fact the Portuguese had a right to seize the steamer.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Smith asked for morning sittings for government business on Tuesdays and Fridays. He explained the government was anxious to prorogue Parliament three weeks earlier than usual.

This is held to confirm the report that the government intends to dissolve Parliament next Autumn.

The Seizure Confirmed.

LISBON, March 16.—The Governor of Mozambique confirms the report of the seizure of the steamer Countess of Carnarvon. The steamer was seized after forcing the Limpopo and landing 1000 rifles and 20,000 cartridges for Gungunhema.

HANOVERIAN LABOR RIOT.

Strikers Charged by Infantry and Twenty-Three Bayoneted.

BERLIN, March 16.—The striking glassblowers at Hildesheim, Hanover, became riotous yesterday and the police arrested nine of the ringleaders. The mob surrounded the police, and after a desperate fight, in which one policeman was frightfully beaten, rescued the prisoners.

A detachment of infantry charged upon the mob and speedily quelled the disorder. The military and the police then arrested 100 or more of the rioters and marched them to the guardhouse.

Twenty-three of the mob were seriously wounded by bayonet thrusts and were taken to the hospitals.

NEWFOUNDLAND ARBITRATION.

England and France to Submit Disputed Questions to Arbitration.

PARIS, March 16.—The text of the agreement between England and France to arbitrate the Newfoundland difficulties was made known to-day. All questions of principle concerning lobster fishing and its preparation on the coast between Capes St. John and Ray are to be submitted to the Arbitration Commission.

The modus vivendi of 1890 relative to lobster fishing and its preparation is renewed for the fishing season of 1891 solely. The two Governments agree to carry out the decisions of the commission.

After these questions are disposed of the commission may be asked to examine other questions relating to the fisheries. The commission is to consist of three specialists designated by the two Governments and two delegates from each country, and a majority vote decides, from which there is no appeal.

The commission will meet in Brussels.

LONDON, March 16.—M. Waddington, the French ambassador here, has written to Lord Salisbury that the arbitrators chosen by France in the effort being made to settle the Newfoundland dispute, according to the agreement recently arrived at between France and England, are Prof. Martens of the St. Petersburg University; M. Rivoir, the Swiss consul at Brussels and president of the institute of international law, and M. Grau, ex-judge of the Supreme Court of Norway. The expenses of the arbitration and the arbitrators' fees will be equally shared by the two powers interested in the dispute. The text of the convention provides that the commission to which the matter is referred may, after settling the lobster question, be requested to enquire into the subsidiary fishery question.

Afflicted with Political Ophthalmia.

DUBLIN, March 16.—Timothy Healy in his speech at Newry yesterday said when Parnell was wanted at the tenants' defence league meetings he had always a bad cold. The air of Dublin did not agree with him but the seaside air of Brighton did. The decree of divorce granted to Captain O'Shea had afflicted Parnell with political ophthalmia, but the most revolting thing in the whole business was that Parnell seemed to think they were all fools. He could not remember the difference between Parnell the untainted leader and the Parnell of 1891.

190 Dervishes Killed.

CAIRO, March 16.—A terrible disaster occurred to-day at the arsenal of Omdurman. From the reports received it appears that about 100 dervishes were killed by an explosion there, which destroyed immense stocks of ammunition and scattered the arsenal building and everything in the immediate neighborhood.

Irish Emigration.

LONDON, March 16.—During the year 1890 61,435 persons emigrated from Ireland, a falling off of 9365 from the average. Of these emigrants 32,685 went to the United States, against an average for the four preceding years of 61,785.

Foreign Brevities.

The Persian Official Gazette announces that Malcolm Khan, at one time ambassador at London, has been deprived of his titles, honor and rank.

The Emperor and Chancellor Von Caprivi will, it is announced, attend the Austrian manœuvres on the Moravian frontier in September next.

African advices say Major Wissmann has established fortified stations at Moshi and at Misinde. Chief Machamba is suing for peace and has deposited his son as a hostage.

At a large meeting at Mitchelstown yesterday, many priests being present, the opinion was generally expressed that Parnell would be politically dead sixmonths from now.

Another firm of distillers, the Societe des Depots de Bordeau et Marseilles, employing a large staff of workmen, has been obliged to close business owing to the new tariff on maize.

A despatch from Tonquin states that William Keable, an agent of the Chinese Custom House, and his wife, both of whom were British subjects, have been murdered by the Tonquins, near Bache, a post of the French army of occupation.

The Dublin National Press (McCarthyite organ) says: "Triumph as triumph was scored by Nationalists yesterday throughout the country. The voice of the nation is becoming heard, and it is interesting to watch the daily-increasing intensity of the Parnellites' assaults upon the bishops."

Anxiety For the Queen's Health.

LONDON, March 15.—Great anxiety is expressed in the Queen's intimate circle of courtiers as to her health. Although not seriously ill, the Queen is visibly ageing, and continues to be much excited and distressed at the Sir William Gordon Cumming baccarat affair. For the last few days she has talked of little or nothing else.

Wedding Gifts Subject to Duty.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—A resident of Chicago who was recently married in Canada has been informed by Assistant Secretary Spaulding that the wedding gifts received by his wife will be subject to duty on their importation into this country, as there is no statute exempting such articles from the payment of duty.

Death at the Dance.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 16.—While Officer James E. Tenn was attempting to arrest two negroes in a dance house last night for carrying concealed weapons, he was shot and killed and a bystander named Frank Michaels was mortally wounded. The negroes escaped.

The British Minister had another interview with the Secretary of State yesterday in regard to the Behring Sea fisheries.

WENT DOWN TO DEATH.

NUMEROUS COLLISIONS WITH LOSS OF MANY LIVES.

The Roxburg Castle Collides with the British Peer off the Scilly Islands—Loss of the British Steamer Atrato.

LONDON, March 16.—The steamship Roxburgh Castle has been sunk off Ushat by collision. Capt. Tyrer and one seaman were saved, but it is feared the remainder of the steamer's crew were lost. The Roxburgh Castle was a screw steamer of 1222 tons register. She hailed from Newcastle, England.

The Roxburgh Castle collided with the British ship British Peer 20 miles southwest of the Scilly Islands. The Roxburgh Castle sank immediately, and of the 24 men aboard 20 were drowned. The captain and one seaman, the only ones rescued, have been landed at Falmouth. The British Peer, which was bound from Calcutta to London, was greatly damaged and has been towed to Falmouth.

Collided With an Iceberg.

QUEENSTOWN, March 16.—The steamer Ardencorrah from Mobile has arrived here with her bows stove and her forehold full of water on Feb. 24. She ran into an iceberg. She was so badly damaged that she narrowly escaped foundering.

LONDON, March 16.—The British steamer Atrato from Batoum for Calcutta has been sunk in collision with the Turkish steamer Salonica. Her crew have arrived at Constantinopla.

REBEL ATROCITIES.

Report of a Chilian Battle—Four Hundred Wounded.

LONDON, March 16.—A dispatch to The Times from Santiago, Chili, gives the official version of the recent battle. Robles was short of provisions and abandoned Mount Sebastopol. With 1900 infantry, 25 cavalry and two guns he attacked on the 6th of this month 2500 rebels. The enemy decoyed the Government troops to close quarters, under pretext of a truce, and then fired, wounding two-thirds of the Government troops. Robles, wounded in the side, was placed in an ambulance. The rebels captured the ambulance and riddled Robles with bullets. A general massacre followed of the Government forces. It is estimated that 300 rebels were killed and 400 wounded. President Balmaceda admits the gravity of the disaster, but says he still has 30,000 troops and ample funds.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Little Business Transacted at Yesterday's Session.

TORONTO, March 17.—The Assembly sat for 10 minutes yesterday. When the Speaker took the chair there were 16 on his right and 23 on his left out of a House of over 90.

The Speaker announced that he had granted a warrant to the clerk to issue a writ for South Grey, the seat having been rendered vacant by the death of Mr. J. H. Hunter.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) secured a list of registrars of deeds now vacant and the dates of the vacancies.

Mr. Mowat, in moving to adjourn, said the financial statement for the year would be made on some day which would be named to-day.

The Right Honorable Lord Wantage, Sebastion Z. de Ferranti, Albert D. Shaw, John G. Scott, Benjamin G. Lake, Charles S. Hulse, T. Sutherland Stayner, Thomas McGaw, Charles J. Holman and John D. Irwin seek incorporation as the Niagara Falls Electric Railway Company for the purpose of constructing and operating an electric railway from a point near Niagara to a point near Fort Erie.

A deputation consisting of W. H. Howland, W. Skaife and R. A. Lauder waited on the Attorney-General and Messrs. Dryden and Gibson yesterday to ask that the Government should guarantee the bonds for one-half the cost, estimated at $250,000, of erecting a beet sugar factory. They represented that such a factory would be of immense advantage to the farmers of the province and were prepared to go, if the Government would guarantee bonds for $125,000, one-half the cost. The Ministers promised to consider the matter.

Mr. Harcourt's first exposition as provincial treasurer of the public accounts of Ontario for the year ended Dec. 31, 1890, was laid before the House yesterday. The balance sheet giving the receipts and payments of the treasurer for the year places the receipts at $3,941,116 and the payments at $3,896,325, leaving a balance of $44,791. The receipts were $1,079,502 less than in 1889 and the expenditure $342,878 greater. The principal items of revenue were $1,196,872 from the Dominion, $363,936 interest, $1,085,946 from the Crown Lands Department, $411,74- amount withdrawn from special deposit. The principal items of expenditure were $769,908 on the maintenance of public institutions, $426,142 for education, $370,000 for the administration of justice, $219,563 for civil government, $248,681 aid to railways. The overdrafts of appropriations were $32,347, being $7438 larger than last year. The statement of the consolidated revenue fund places the balance at $8,893,302.

The Prison Reform Commission cost $3793, of which J. W. Langmuir drew $1585 to pay traveling expenses and disbursements. T. W. Anglin $1000 as secretary and commissioner and $51 traveling expenses to the National Prison Association meeting at Cincinnati, A. F. Jury $225 as commissioner and J. H. Taylor $900 as stenographer. The Mining Commission received $3004 in addition to $5302 paid the year before. The cost of the local election was $81,147, of which the cost in Toronto was $9,229. The indemnity paid the members amounted to $56,111.

The 21st annual report of the Entomological Society of Ontario was laid before the House yesterday. It contains several illustrated papers contributed by the members on injurious and other insects, which have been specially prepared for the information of the public and are intended to assist farmers and fruit-growers in contending with their insect enemies. It is a matter of profound thankfulness that the province during the past year has escaped from any serious insect attack. Those that have been specially noticeable are referred to in the president's address or described in the papers that follow.

The 22nd annual report of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario which was presented in the House yesterday gives some valuable information on pomology. The Association is directing its efforts toward t the preparation of a complete list of fruits adapted to Canada with values of a perfect specimen of each variety attached, which it is hoped may form a basis for greater uniformity and fairness in judging fruits at fairs; and (2) the preparation of district fruit lists, which may serve as a useful guide to intending planters, by showing what varieties may be successfully grown in the various localities.

Carpenter Elected by One Vote.

HAMILTON, March 16.—The recount of ballots in the South Wentworth election contest was completed this afternoon. A large number of ballots were thrown out. Judge Sinclair rendered his decision this evening, the result of which gives Carpenter, the Conservative candidate, the seat by a majority of one.

QUEBEC, March 16.—A ferociously insane man belonging to one of the lower parishes arrived by the Intercolonial Railway to be placed in the Beauport Asylum. He was tied with ropes and guarded by four men. It is said that election excitement turned his mind.

NEW ORLEANS MASSACRE

AN INTERNATIONAL COMPLICATION PROBABLE.

Detective O'Malley Condemned to Death By the Murderers, but He Escapes—Funerals of the Slain—All Quiet on the Lower Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS, March 16.—The charges under section A against the remaining members of the Mafia were nolle prossequied to-day by the District Attorney, and three of them were released, four against whom further charge are preferred being held.

All of the victims' bodies were buried today. Those of Marchesi, Monasterio and Trahina were unclaimed up to noon and the charity wagon took them to Potter's Field. Politz and Comites were followed to the grave by a single carriage and in the case of Bagnetto the hearse went alone. Joseph Macheca had the largest and best-attended funeral. He had a half dozen pall-bearers, none of whom were Italians. Caruso and Macheca were taken from their residences to the St. Louis Cathedral and the ceremonies in each case were very imposing.

Father Manoritta exhibited a letter to a reporter to-day that had been sent him on March 9 by the Mafia Society. The letter bore the seal of the organization, the skull and crossbones on the top and bottom. The letter advised the reverend father that he had better not go to the court every day, as his presence did not do the society any good.

Prosecution Unlikely.

New Orleans is as quiet now as it ever was and the sober second thought of the people has returned. The telegram of Secretary Blaine to the Governor caused some commotion, but it was not unexpected. Attorney-General Rogers has investigated Saturday's occurrences at the jail. The prison officials say they recognized some of the persons who were inside the prison, and these names it is understood have been forwarded to the Attorney-General. Some indictments may follow as a formality, but so great a number of people were concerned in the killing that it will be impossible to arraign them all.

O'Malley, the detective who was largely the cause of the trouble, is not in town. His suit against the state for $10,000 damages was to come up to-day.

The Oath of the Mafia.

Jim Caruso, one of those assassinated, told Provenzand, a well-known business man, some time ago that Charlie Matranga was the chief of the gang and that he presided at the meetings dressed in a black domino suit. He said Rocco Gracci was also a leader. Caruso said he only attended one meeting, that he went in and Matranga held up a skull in his left hand and a dirk in his right. He was then sworn with uplifted hands to abide the decision of the order. He said he was informed after taking the obligation that the object was to kill those who were against the Mafia gang.

The better element of the Italians are glad that there is an end of the Mafia, as they have been in dread for years. It is those who have recently come here or the bad element that denounce the action taken Saturday.

Discussed in the Chamber.

ROME, March 16.—In the Chamber of Deputies to-day, Premier Di Rudini, replying to a question regarding the New Orleans tragedy, said President Harrison had recognized the right of Italians in the United States to protection from the authorities; had expressed profound regret at the occurrence and had charged the Governor of Louisiana to guard the Italian residents of New Orleans and to bring the assassins to justice. The Premier added that United States Minister Porter had called upon him to-day to convey President Harrison's regrets to the Italian Government.

Signor Breganze, who had announced his intention of interpolating the Government on the New Orleans matter, said that note had been taken of the minister's statement.

Signor Ferrais urged that indemnities should be demanded for the families of victims.

The Italian Press Uses Strong Language.

ROME, March 16.—The Capitan Fracasa says: The weak in America are at the mercy of a ferocious bloody populace and are tortured and murdered in daylight.

The Don Chisciotte Della Mancia says: Italy ought to demand that instant measures be taken to protect the Italian colony in New Orleans, adding, however, that it is just also to recognize the fact that similar incidents would not occur in the towns on the Atlantic littoral, which were not infested with the ex-galley slaves of Europe.

Excitement in Palermo.

NEW YORK, March 16.—A telegram from Palermo, Sicily, to-day stated indignation there was growing over the New Orleans tragedy. It is the only subject talked of, and the American residents have migrated over to Italy and the south of France.

An Outspoken Pastor.

CHICAGO, March 16.—At the weekly meeting of the Methodist Ministers' Association to-day resolutions were introduced deprecating the tardiness of justice in New Orleans and other cities, yet declaring lynch law "utterly abhorrent to the spirit of our Government and of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence." The resolutions caused a heated discussion, in which widely divergent views were expressed. Rev. Dr. Bland strenuously opposed the passage of the resolutions and said: "When the law will not take care of a lot of murderers it is time the people did something." The matter was finally referred to a committee.

Dying in a Windsor Hotel.

WINDSOR, March 16.—A man supposed to be George W. Glazier of Owosso, Mich., on Saturday evening arrived at the Essex House, Windsor, registered and was assigned to a room. As he did not appear during Sunday the room was broken into and the man found lying on the bed in an unconscious condition. All efforts at resuscitation have thus far proven futile and it is believed the man will die.

Another Wild Goose Chase.

WINDSOR, March 16.—Detective Campau telegraphed from Baltimore this morning that the man in custody here supposed to be Harvey Williams, colored, murderer of William Lyman, is not Williams. This is the third wild goose chase Windsor authorities have been given.

Seal-Hunters on a Strike.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 16.—The Indian schooner Sierra arrived from Behring Sea sealing grounds yesterday. She reports seals are very plentiful, but owing to boisterous weather not many are being taken. All Indian seal-hunters are on a strike and 15 schooners are lying idle awaiting a settlement.

The Victims Numbered 12.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 16.—It is now known that 12 of the patients in the Central Tennessee Lunatic Asylum lost their lives by Saturday morning's fire.

The Dead.

General Campenon, formerly French Minister of War, is dead.

Mr. Adam Charlton, father of Mr. John Charlton, M.P., and Mr. William Charlton, M.L.A., died at Lynedoch on Saturday.

Judge John R. Brady of the Supreme Court was stricken with paralysis Sunday at New York and died early yesterday morning.

Sebastien Compain, whose death was announced in Toronto Saturday, was one of the pioneer hotelkeepers of Canada. In 1845 Mr. Compain opened a hotel on the corner of the Place d'Armes square and St. James-street, Montreal, and his place became the popular rendezvous of the better class of people—the Windsor of the day. It became a favorite resort, and in fact a stranger's visit to the city was not complete until he had visited Mr. Compain's beautiful resort. Mr. Compain's son afterwards built the St. Lawrence Hall, now one of the city's landmarks. Later on he left the Hall and established the Compain Hotel. When the Victoria bridge was opened in 1859 Mr. Compain was the caterer at the banquet held at Point St. Charles, where 6000 people sat down, making it the largest banquet ever held in Canada. His genially made him hosts of friends and his popularity was not confined solely to the people of Montreal. In later years Mr. Compain has not been engaged in business and for the past year had resided in Toronto with his son-in-law, Mr. Gemmell.

SIR CHARLES DILKE.

Smalley On the Prospects of the Baronet Clearing His Name.

LONDON, March 15.—Sir Charles Dilke has chosen what seems an odd moment for his effort to re-enter public life. He puts himself forward as a Gladstonian candidate a year and a half before an election is likely to occur. There is no vacancy in the Forest of Dean, nor is there likely to be any till this Parliament has been gathered to its fathers—probably, if all goes well, in the autumn of 1892. Sir Charles puts himself up to be shot at during all this long interval. So great is his impatience that he forgets and expects others to forget, his own explicit pledge not to attempt to re-enter public life till he had vindicated his character. He has neither vindicated it nor taken any single step toward vindicating it. What he has done is to publish a pamphlet embodying such comments on the proceedings in the Divorce Court as to him or to his legal advisers seem likely to shake the general conviction of his guilt. It is an idle effort. No number of pamphlets will avail against the verdicts of two juries who, after a full hearing, agreed that Mrs. Crawford had committed adultery with Sir Charles Dilke. The second verdict had the full concurrence of Mr. Justice Hannen, who tried the case, than whom no fairer and few abler judges ever sat on any bench. He must do more than upset these verdicts. What damaged him more than the verdict, what was worse than the stains and smirches of the divorce court, what drove him from public life, what destroyed him in the estimation of honorable men, was the feeling that in all this deplorable and despicable business he had not behaved like an honorable man.

That feeling will not be lessened by his reappearance on the political platform in violation of his public pledge, nor by his speech to the Forest of Dean electors. He meets none of the points. He says nothing to justify his present attitude. He has not, so far as one can judge, shaken public belief in his guilt nor softened the common conviction that he is an impossible political leader. The press, with few exceptions, passes him over in silence or condemns him. His return to full communion in the Liberal party would be a considerable event, but they do not believe in his return. The Nonconformist conscience, of which so much has lately been heard in connection with Mr. Parnell, is steadfast against him with, as in the case of the press, just enough exceptions to prove the rule. His former colleagues are against him, Mr. Gladstone most strongly of all. Sir Charles Dilke's object is office. Between him and office stands two lives, Mr. Gladstone's and the Queen's. It is certain that he cannot regain his former Cabinet rank during the lifetime of either. The Liberal, that is, the Gladstonian, party resent his reappearance. They have not recovered from the discredit and despair into which Mr. Parnell brought them. They are indignant that Sir Charles Dilke should emerge into notoriety even for a moment, while the Parnell scandal is still fresh. They do not desire to see Liberalism identified with adultery. The Forest of Dean division of Gloucester is a safe Liberal seat, with 1500 majority, remote enough from London, perhaps, to be ignorant of what all London knows. Its Liberal electors have accepted Sir Charles as a candidate, but the Liberal party would much prefer to see a Tory returned. They would not be responsible for a Tory.

Breaking the Bank.

It has been learned that the English gamblers who have recently been so successful in their operations at Monte Carlo are the agents of a syndicate formed a short time ago in London for the purpose of breaking the bank at that famous gambling resort. The scheme had its origin in the rooms of the Pall Mall Club, and the plotters comprised three peers, a member of the House of Commons, an army officer of well-known sporting associations and a prominent London merchant. The plan devised by this sextette was based on the experience and observation at Monte Carlo of each of the plotters, and contemplated nothing short of capitulation on the part of the bankers of the famous game. Accordingly they pooled the sum of £50,000, which was placed in the hands of two of their number, who selected the representatives of the syndicate at the gaming table. This explains the recent enormous winnings at Monte Carlo in every case by Englishmen.

New England League Formed.

BOSTON, March 16.—A meeting of gentlemen representing the cities of Lowell, Lynn, Salem, Brockton, Worcester, Haverhill, Manchester and Portland, Me., was held last night at the Tremont House, and a New England baseball league was formed to include clubs for the above-named cities. A committee was appointed to visit Springfield and Providence with a view of inducing those cities to enter the league, thus making it a 10-club organization. The salary limits were fixed at $1500 and the guarantee to finish the season was placed at $500.

The Walk-at Madison Square.

NEW YORK, March 16.—At 4 o'clock it was announced that the following contestants in the walking match had withdrawn for good: Manning 56.7, Hill 25.2, Golden 40.1, Happy Jack Smith's unknown 24.5, Grieg 44.1. Golden's retirement was due to stomach troubles.

At 5 o'clock the score was: Curley 102, Howarth 102.4, Hughes 101.1, Hegelman 98, Cartwright 95.5, Moore 90.4, Bennett 93.2, Messier 89.6, Glick 83.9, Burns 86.7, Connor 84, Herty 84.4, Hart 82.5.

Campbell is Tennis Champion.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 16.—The tennis tournament is over and the tropical championship again belongs to O. S. Campbell. To-day's match brought out the largest attendance that has ever witnessed a tennis match here. The following is the score: O.S. Campbell beat E. A. Wright (challenger) 10-8, 6-1, 7-5.

A Wonderful Entry List.

LEXINGTON, March 16.—The record has been broken by the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeder's Association. A few months ago it opened a $25,000 guaranteed futurity stake. The entries are all in and 1093 mares have been nominated; which is the largest list of entries ever known in the history of either the running or trotting turf. Many trotting horsemen predicted failure for this big stake, but the entry list already shows that the winning horse will receive probably $10,000 more than the amount guaranteed. The unprecedented success of the futurity will mark an era in trotting horse history and other great associations are likely to follow.

Parnell to the Backbone.

NEW YORK, March 16.—The Parnellite delegates have received a telegram from Montreal saying, Montreal is Parnell to the backbone; no use for the McCarthyites.

Fire at Hamilton.

HAMILTON, March 16.—E. Brethour, merchant tailor, suffered $500 loss by a fire at his residence yesterday morning, the rear portion of the premises being gutted.

Babe Killed by a Cat.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 16.—A five-months old daughter of Bernard Shrone was suffocated yesterday by a pet cat that was sleeping in the cradle with the baby.

A Church in St. Mary's Destroyed.

ST. MARY'S, March 16.—Knox Presbyterian Church was totally destroyed by fire this morning without the first particle of water being thrown upon it, the engines being out of order. The fire originated from the furnace and must have been smouldering nearly all night. The building was insured in the Western for $3500 and the loss is estimated as about $15,000.

TUESDAY, MARCH 17, 1891.

THE MINISTERIAL PROGRAMME.

The first few days of the Ontario Legislature, according to the orthodox manner of all legislative bodies, is generally devoted to preliminary and routine work—getting ready for the legislative contest. The programme provided by the ministers, especially by the new heads of departments, will be of interest.

AGRICULTURAL LEGISLATION.

This is the Hon. John Dryden's first session as head of the Department of Agriculture. The policy it seems his intention to pursue in his relations with the House, begins to outline itself. Taking a broad view of the scope of his work, the magnitude of the interest put into his charge, he is an advocate of greater liberality in dealing with the institutions established for the development of agriculture. The farming classes of the Province have confidence in him. The deputations from agricultural societies and farmers' organizations when they meet him feel that there is between the Minister and themselves an intimate sympathy, that he understands their lives, has participated in their endeavors for the betterment of farming conditions. The House is waiting with some curiosity to hear the first budget speech from the new Treasurer.

FIGURATIVE ELOQUENCE.

The Hon. A. M. Ross made his financial statements with great clearness and nicety of arrangement, and the House expects nothing plainer than his budget speeches from the Hon. Mr. Harcourt. The curiosity is to see how the dry tables of dollars and cents, capital and interest, receipts and expenditure, will be dressed up by one of the most scholarly speakers in the Province.

This is the first session during which the ripe experience of the Hon. E. H. Bronson has been fully available to the Ministry and the House. The attack upon his appointment by the Opposition will have no effect upon the way the people will regard it. Mr. Meredith himself seemed half ashamed of the ground he took to attack Mr. Bronson, and the sympathy of the House was with the retort Mr. Fraser made upon the Opposition leader.

The place of the Hon. J. M. Gibson was vacant when the House met last February. The Ministerialists welcomed him warmly when he took his seat after the adjournment. One of the ablest members of the Cabinet, the Legislature could but ill spare him.

PUBLIC WORKS.

The Hon. Commissioner of Public Works has entered upon the debates of the session with the spirit and vigor that make him one of the best parliamentary fighters in Canada.

MINES AND MINING.

The Hon. Mr. Hardy has upon his hands, in the question of the administration of the mining lands of the Province, perhaps the most important matter that will be brought before the House this session. Since the last Legislature prorogued the immense value of Ontario's wealth in nickel has been brought to the public attention, and the interest that is being taken in the new regulations to be formed was evidenced by the influential deputation which waited upon the commissioner with regard to them. His course will be weighty with meaning to the future of Ontario's mining operations, and the Province is waiting in full confidence that it will be statesmanlike.

EDUCATIONAL AND OTHER LEGISLATION.

Hon. G. W. Ross has announced a quantity of purposed legislation in connection with his department. The growth in every branch of education and the engrafting of several new branches by which his indefatigable administration has been marked recommend the further measures of progress which he has introduced even before their discussion. One of the measures is to authorize municipalities to provide free school books; other has reference to the establishment of commercial departments in collegiate institutes. These indicate that the hon. Minister is abreast of the quickly-advancing times and has his hand on the public pulse in matters of education.

It appears that no agreement has after all been arrived at between the British and French governments as to a settlement of the Newfoundland difficulty. The British government has, says the Montreal Witness, warily consented to arbitrate the question whether the French have the right to set up lobster factories on the coast, a right which was never contemplated in the treaty, and which the British should have firmly refused to recognise from the first. As a sort of sop to the Newfoundlanders the Imperial Government has apparently decided to assist in the construction of the railway across the island. This was to have been one of the prices of confederation paid by the Dominion Government.

Minority Rule.

"The result of the elections," said Sir Charles Tupper at Amherst the other day, "is to place the balance of power in the House in the outlying Provinces," so that "these Provinces are not only in a condition to demand justice, but to obtain the highest consideration at the hands of the party for the noble support given by them." This is a point to weigh the attention of the Ontario and Quebec people, who pay over three-fifths of the annual burden of taxation, cannot be too closely directed. According to the Government press the Tory majority in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick is 23. Any thirteen of these 23 will be able to place Sir John in the dilemma of framing the appropriations to suit their interests or of being voted out of office. The fourteen Ministerial supporters from Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia are in a position to exercise the self-same power of life and death over the Cabinet. Yet New Brunswick and Nova Scotia contain only 800 000 people, whilst the other three localities do not contain over 350 000, including half breeds, Indians and Chinese. It is a clear case of the tail wagging the dog. Sir John cannot feel secure in the support of a majority from the smaller Provinces. It was the defection of his Maritime supporters that brought about his downfall, under the pressure of the Pacific scandal in 1878, when Tupper proposed that he should be thrown to the wolves. On this occasion the Maritime majority will unquestionably be used to exalt Tupper's authority and push him into the Premiership. These are minor considerations, of course, beside the fact that the Federal treasury is at the mercy of a small minority of the population, which, it is not unjust to say, regards politics more as a game of grab than as a business involving vital consequences to the Dominion. The demands which this handful chooses to prefer must be acceded to, no matter at what cost to the rest of us. As one reads of the country are more injured by the policy of commercial isolation, and as, speaking particularly of the Maritime Provinces, some have had so much experience in organizing raid and trumping up claims upon the public chest, the outlook for the taxpayers of Old Canada is not a comfortable one.

MAKING GLAD THE WASTE (WAIST) PLACES.

"That's what I call making glad the waist places," said Smithson, as he put his arm around a lady's waist. But Lilly won't care much for this show of affection if Smithson does not get rid of that disagreeable catarrh of his. Won't somebody tell him that Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure him.

By its mild, soothing, antiseptic, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the worst cases. This infallible remedy does not, like the poisonous irritating snuffs, "creams" and strong caustic solutions with which the public have long been humbugged, simply palliate for a short time, or drive the disease to the lungs, as there is danger of doing in the use of such nostrums, but it produces perfect and permanent cures of the worst cases of Chronic Catarrh in the Head, as thousands can testify. "Cold in the Head" is cured with a few applications. Catarrhal Headache is relieved and cured as if by magic.

In perfect faith, the makers of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—the World's Dispensary Medical Association, of Buffalo, N. Y., offers to pay $500 to any one suffering from Chronic Catarrh in the Head whom they cannot cure.

Now, if the conditions were reversed—if they asked you to pay $500 for a positive cure you might hesitate. Here are reputable men, with years of honorable dealing; thousands of dollars and a great name back of them and they say—"We can cure you because we've cured thousands like you—if we can't we'll pay you $500 for the knowledge that there's one whom we can't cure."

They believe in themselves. Isn't it worth a trial? Isn't any trial preferable to catarrh?

As good as new

—that's the condition of liver, stomach and bowels, when Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets have done their work. It's a work that isn't finished when you've stopped taking them, either. It's lasting. They cure, as well as relieve. And it's all done so mildly and gently! There's none of the violence that went with the old-time pill. One tiny, sugar-coated Pellet's a gentle laxative—three to four act as a cathartic. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured. As a Liver Pill, they're unequaled. They're purely vegetable, perfectly harmless—the smallest, cheapest, and easiest to take.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Elliott street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McCoanell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B B B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health."—Mrs. A. McCullough, Digby, N. S. 2w11d

YOU HARDLY realise that it is medicine when taking Carter's Little Liver Pills; they are very small; no bad effects; all troubles from torpid liver are relieved by their use. dw

AN INACTIVE or Torpid Liver must be aroused and all bad bile removed. Burdock Pills are best for old or young. dw

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

REV. DR. RAINSFORD.

BRILLIANT SKETCH OF A FORMER TORONTO PASTOR.

A Bear-Fighting Parson—How He Lives and Moves About His Church Work and on His Hunting Holidays—A Practical Kind of Reformer.

THE REV. DR. RAINSFORD.

Many good horsemen are to been seen in Central Park on fine days, but there is one frequent figure among them who never fails to attract attention. If he is not the best, he is among the small group of noticeable superior riders there. He is a tall man, and he is exceedingly well proportioned and vigorous in build. His face is strong, rather broad across the line of the cheek bones, and decidedly bronzed.

At a glance you would know you were looking at a man who had seen a good deal of rugged out-door life. Probably as he swept by you on his fine horse, erect and straight as an arrow, you would at a rough guess put him down as an army officer who had seen a good deal of service on the plains.

The small brown mustache, worn with a decidedly military twist, has a tendency to carry out this illusion—for it is an illusion—and then there is a dash of the plains in the graceful, easy way the man sits his horse, which would tend still further to confirm the army impression.

Yet the face and the figure are decidedly English in type, and through the easy Western style of horsemanship there appears unmistakable traces of the English school of riding. The rider, too, generally wears a short, light coat, which gives a broad hint of the English foudness for plaids. He might be an English army officer, after all. You are very sure at the first glance that you cannot be mistaken about the military strain in the man's training and experience. That is, you are very certain until you get a closer view of his face.

DR. RAINSFORD IN FULL HUNTING RIG.

Then you see something in the expression which does not in the least suggest the army or a life of any kind in which stern authority has a predominant part. It is the face of a soldier and of a man of thoughtful, sympathetic nature. In fact, this particular rider is a decided puzzle in his way, and of the hundreds who turn to admire the fine horsemanship and striking figure of the owner, probably nine out of every ten go very wide of the mark if they stop to guess who and what the man is.

Well, for one thing, he is a man who has probably got more grizzly bear scalps at his belt than anybody this side of the the Alleghany Mountains, not even excepting Ed Mott. Eighteen Rocky Mountain grizzlies is his record, to say nothing of the other big game his Bullard rifle has brought down. He is one of the few really serious hunters we have in New York.

From far up in Canada down to Colorado his name and fame are known throughout all the Rocky range. Old hunters out there who swagger around the haunts of Eastern tenderfeet are tenderfeet themselves as compared to him. He has been everywhere they have been and shot everything in the way of big game they have shot and, in many cases, a great deal more of it.

But his renown as a hunter is by no means confined to the Rocky Mountains. You may go down to the mountains of Tennessee or North Carolina, or in any of the wilder portions of all the Southern States, and there in the heart of the wildest wilderness you will hear the lanky, raw-boned hunters, who are still living on the lines of the old frontiersman days, speak with respect of this same New Yorker.

Up in New Brunswick they know him well, also. He belongs to the Restigouche Club, and in all the Restigouche region there are few more expert salmon fishermen than he. He goes up there every year, and he takes a dash out through the Rockies every year, and not a winter passes but the crack of his gun is heard down in the mountains of the South.

TROPHIES IN THE HALL OF THE PARSONAGE.

In New York he is a great social favorite, and with many young men who go in for athletics he is something of an ideal. He is a member of the Cricket Club, and the recently elected President of the Rugby Athletic Union. He is also on the rolls of the Century and University clubs, and when you are told he is the Rev. Dr. Rainsford, the rector of St. George's Church, you know that he is one of the most earnest and hard-working professional men to have in the city.

How active he is in church work, and particularly in that branch of church work which has charity, in its widest and most beautiful sense, for its object, everybody who knows anything of New York clerical labor fully understands. Some people only see this one side to his character, and so fail to appreciate how evenly developed and all-around man he is. That is the keynote of his philosophy.

To do good work in any one field, he maintains, a man must be healthy and as free from one-sidedness as possible. For that reason he goes in heart and soul for everything which keeps his physical nature in tone and his mind at an even balance. He takes no long vacations, but he takes three short ones every year, and he crowds into each one of them all the hard out-door work he can get.

His hunts because he is a keen sportsman, and he hunts big game in wild places because he likes the spice of danger, and finds his greatest refreshment from the feverish strain of his hard city labor in savage solitudes.

Hunting with Dr. Rainsford is a serious business. That is the reason he does not take much stock in hunting and fishing clubs.

THE ENTRANCE TO DR. RAINSFORD'S STUDY.

"Suppose you belong to a hunting club," he says. "You go and you hunt all day, and at night you come back to the club house and you have to talk, and then sometimes there are things going on which you don't like. No, I prefer to go off alone or with a companion of my own tastes. The club hunters do not go far enough into it, as a rule, to suit me.

"I go into hunting and the rough mountain life because I find in it the most perfect rest and the best physical stimulus to my work here in the church. There is more exhaustive work in the management of a big church like St. George's than many people imagine. It is a great financial concern, for one thing, with details of business as great as in some of the good-sized business houses.

"This is, of course, aside from the regular work which falls to a rector in the discharge of his duties. I hunt in the Rockies about six weeks every year, and I hunt in the South for a few days only. I then take another short run to New Brunswick after salmon. Mrs. Rainsford was with me on my last trip to New Brunswick, and she caught eight fish, which is pretty good salmon-fishing for a woman.

"In the South I go into the mountains among the people and live with them. You get a knowledge of them in that way which you can in no other. The last time I was in Tennessee I lived in the cabin of a mountaineer there, and I always manage to find some of them who will take me in."

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

The EXAMINER has to thank Mr. T. Kelly, merchant, for a fine bunch of shamrock. Capt. Wellis very thoughtfully supplied Mr. Kelly with a liberal quantity, and, with his usual generosity, Mr. Kelly shared his good luck with the press.

Struck His Mother.

In the police court this morning a fifteen year old boy was charged with assaulting his mother, Mrs. Devine. It is said he gave her a bad-looking eye. Will Peterborough Win It?

The agricultural and arts prizes for the best managed farms will be given to No. five district this year. That district comprises Victoria, North and South; Peterborough, East and West; Hastings, East, West and North; Northumberland, East and West; Prince Edward, Lennox, Addington, Frontenac, and Renfrew, North and South.

Lake and River Notes.

Spring has made such advances that the channel through the river and lake is about open.

A vast quantity of ice has been taken out of the Little Lake this season. The C. P. R. and G. T. R. have been getting supplies here, besides the small army of local consumers. It is estimated that from fifteen to twenty thousand dollars have been paid out in wages and horse hire in connection with the ice harvest the past winter.

Gems of the First Water.

The Scottish American says:—"The company of artistes known as the MacLennan Royal Edinburgh Concert Company were engaged for this occasion and were accorded a hearty welcome as they appeared upon the platform. Every member was heralded as having acquired a high reputation in their respective spheres—all 'Stars,' gems of the first water. Great things were consequently expected of them, and individually it cannot be said that they fell short of their reputation." 1d

A Journalist's Bereavement.

The many friends in town of Mr. Harry J. Emerson, at one time on the EXAMINER staff, will read with painful interest the following extract from the Toronto Empire of Monday:—"The news of the death of Mrs. H. J. Emerson, wife of the well-known court stenographer, was a terrible shock to her many friends on Saturday. Her death was unexpected. Mrs. Emerson was a sister of Messrs. Edward E. Horton, official court reporter, and Albert Horton, of the Hansard staff. A bereaved husband and two young children are left to mourn her loss. The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon from her late residence, 316 Wellesley street."

The Jewish Tabernacle.

The annual Sunday school entertainment of the Murray Street Baptist Church will be held to-night, beginning at half past seven o'clock. The children will be given supper at half past five, and at 7.30 the entertainment will begin. It will take the form of descriptive Bible lessons, illustrating the march, encampment and tabernacle of the Israelites, with object lessons. A miniature tabernacle has been erected, a counterpart of the Jewish temple of old, with its burning candles and robed priests, the symbolism of which will be explained by scriptural passages recited by the children. The entertainment has not been given in Peterborough for many years. It was introduced when Rev. John Gilmour was pastor of the Baptist church and was very successful.

"The Beginnings of the Gospel."

This is the interesting title of the London lecture to be given in connection with the evening service in St. John's on Wednesday evening next. The lecturer is Rev. Dr. Mockridge, of Holy Trinity, Toronto, who has a well earned reputation as an original thinker and eloquent speaker. Dr. Mockridge has pronounced views on ecclesiastical matters that affect the people. As is well known, the history, in its relation with Trinity in his refusal to hold the pass rate of Christ Church, Hamilton, because he was unable to secure the adoption of the free seat system, which obtains in its prentine purity in Trinity, there being no "chief seats in the synagogue" there.

A Fine Pair of Portraits.

Mr. T. Workman, our clever portrait painter, has just finished excellent portraits in oil of Mr. and Mrs. D. Bellegham. These portraits are now on view in the southern show window of the Golden Lion Dry Goods Establishment. These pictures attract a good deal of attention and admiration. The "Furniture King" is so well know throughout the district that almost every person who passes is sure to stop and admire his genial features as placed on canvas by Mr. Workman's skilful brush. The portraits, which are three-quarters life size, are admirable likenesses, and the artistic work upon them is of the highest order. There is abundant evidence of careful study and delicate treatment in detail. The coloring is subdued, without being sombre, the clear, gray tones predominating. Altogether, the portraits are all that could be desired, and add another to the many successes in the line of portraiture achieved by Mr. Workman.

Office the Northwest.

This evening at 6 o'clock a C.P.R. colonist car left town bearing from Peterborough half a dozen citizens for different points in the Northwest, together with a large amount of farm stock and personal effects. The party is composed of residents of Smith, with one exception as noted below and comprises:—Mr. J. C. Davies, who goes to the Souris district, Mr. James Jewison, and Mr. — McCall, who are destined for Poplar Point; Mr. Robert Lockie goes to Plum Creek; Mr. W. Walton is booked for Regina, and Mr. W. D. Fletcher, son of Mr. Wm. Fletcher, town, goes to join two brothers who have taken up land in that district. These gentlemen take with them four box cars packed to the doors with horses, cows, poultry, household goods, farming implements, lumber for building, etc. A faithful collie dog bethered in one of the cars will not be one of the least useful immigrants to the Northwest this year. We don't like to lose good citizens like these, but we all hope that they are all going to new homes of prosperity and happiness.

The Wearing of the Green.

To-day is the 17th of March, the anniversary of Ireland's patron saint. Patriotic Irishmen commemorated the event by adorning themselves with a sprig of shamrock or a bit of green ribbon, and by going to church like the good Celtic Christians they are. At St. Peter's Cathedral there were two masses, at 7 and 9 o'clock, the latter being a solemn high mass at which the priests of the Cathedral officiated. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was also present. The choir rendered the Mass in C, and at the offertory Miss Annie Dunn sang in fine voice the soul-stirring hymn "All Praise to St. Patrick." The altar was also decorated for the occasion, a picture of St. Patrick occupying a prominent place above it, while on either side hung emblematic banners. At the close of the service, Rev. Father Scollard delivered an eloquent and patriotic address on "The Life and Labors of St. Patrick." It was a masterly effort, and was listened to with rapt attention by the large congregation present. He urged his hearers to be patriotic and to always remember the land of their birth. As the congregation left the church the inspiriting strains of "St. Patrick's Day" pealed forth from the organ, played in excellent style by Miss E. Land.

Majority for Burnham, 29

This majority is a very narrow one, and, though small, is not to be despised. It is as effectual as one of 500, and perhaps cost as much. Mr. Rork has no reason whatever to feel disgraced by the run he made. The influences used to defeat him should be borne in mind. These were a lavish and unstinted employment of the financial argument, the policy of vituperation, slander and false rumors, and the dead set made upon the riding from the outside. Yet in spite of all these the successful candidate only reached the coveted goal by the small lead of 29, with the possibilities of defeat involved in 20 spoiled and 14 rejected ballots. Under the circumstances—being a new man to the larger part of the riding and brought out at the last moment, and fought with unfair weapons—Mr. Rork made a capital run.

The Village Council.

Regular Business Meeting—Some Interesting Business.

At the meeting of the Ashburnham council Monday night there were present: the reeve, John Burnham, M. P., in the chair, and Messrs. Calcutt, Craig, Throop and Wand.

MUST PAY UP.

A communication was received from the C.P.R., refusing to pay their taxes for 1890, amounting to $36.05, on the ground that they had been over-assessed for the past five years. On motion, the clerk was instructed to write the company that the council had nothing to do with former assessments which have passed the Court of Revision, and that the taxes of 1890 must be paid.

ACCOUNTS.

Moved by Mr. Craig, and seconded by Mr. Wand, that the following accounts be paid:

REDUCING THE RENTS.

It was moved by Mr. Throope, seconded by Mr. Calcutt,—That the store under the town hall be rented to F. Hamilton at $50 a year, payable quarterly; and that Mr. Gould's shop rent be $50 a year from the 15th of March, by his paying $16 for the balance of rent due to that date; that Mr. Hamilton's shop fittings be paid for at a valuation at end of tenancy if the corporation desire, or be allowed to remove them.—Carried.

LICENSES TOO HIGH.

A petition was read from the licensed liquor dealers of the village, praying for the reduction of their license to $150 a year, as their license in the past was more than they could pay. The petition was signed by Asa Swanston, Geo. Lipsett, S. G. Bennett, J. C. Sullivan and Wm. Collins.

It was decided to leave the matter until the government allowance was received, when a sufficient rebate to bring the fee down to that amount will be made.

PROTECTING THE VILLAGE BUTCHER.

Mr. Gould, butcher, asked the council to take steps to protect him from the competition of irregular traders. He complained that grocers and pedlars retailed fresh meat, which cut up his business. He wanted a license by law passed to prevent the peddling of fresh meat. He would be willing to pay a license fee in order to have his business protected.

The question was discussed and it was decided to get a copy of the town by-law in which to frame one for the village.

A by-law was passed appointing Mr. John Craig village pound-keeper, and another authorizing the treasurer to borrow money to meet current expenses.

The council then adjourned.

The Banner Oat.

The following from the Canadian Live Stock Journal deals with the "Banner" Oat, of which Mr. R. Walton, Smith, has some two or three hundred bushels fit for seed. The Journal says:—

No grain is more important to the stockman than the oat. He needs it for his horses and other stock, and wishes to grow it as economically and as carefully as possible. Therefore, he wants the best, the most prolific, the hardest sort he can find.

Every reader of The Live Stock Journal has heard of the now famous Banner Oat, first brought into notice by Vick, the seedsman, of Rochester, and two or three years ago introduced into Canada by Mr. John Miller, of Markham.

These are the points of merit claimed by the growers of the Banner Oat:

1. That it is less liable to rust than other varieties.
2. That it is a much better yielder.
3. That it is stronger in the straw, and therefore not so liable to be blown or knocked down.
4. That it is a superior oat for the making of meal.
5. That it ripens earlier than most other varities.
6. That where other oats fail the Banner oat does well.
7. That it is a hardy variety, and therefore suitable to our northern and northwestern districts.
8. And that while it has these merits, it is also as good for feeding stock, both in the grain and in the straw, as any other variety.

Here are a few items of interest concerning this oat that Mr. Miller has given us:

1. When he first sowed the Banner oat, he planted 1 lb., and his yield from that 1 lb. was 85 lbs.
2. A neighbor of his this last year had 17 acres in all of oats, of which 5 acres were sown with the Banner oat. From these 5 acres he obtained 476 bushels, or an average of 95½ bushels per acre. He sold these all in one sale at 50 cents a bushel. From the remainder of his 17 acres, which in every respect as to soil and treatment were like the 5 Banner oat acres, he reaped only 30 bushels to the acre.
3. In the several competitions open to the whole continent of America, established by the American Agriculturist for the best returns from one acre sown with oats, Mr. Miller with the Banner oats stood third, having a yield of 91 bushels. Mr. Miller is confident that had his acre been in one of his ordinary grain fields, and not in an exposed place in a field devoted to root crops, his yield would have been 20 bushels greater (which would have placed him first in the competition), for his acre was so much exposed that a great deal of the grain on it was knocked down and became lodged.

Provincial Literary Progress.

There has been a rapid growth of the system of free libraries and mechanics' institutes in the past eight years. In 1883 there were 93 of these institutions, with 13,672 members and readers, 154 093 volumes available for lending, and they issued 231,920 volumes. Dr. May's report shows that there are now 217 with about 59,000 members and readers who have access to 390 000 books and 4,000 periodicals and newspapers, and who borrowed last year 977 000 volumes. Dr. May says that the mechanics' institutes are seriously handicapped by the heavy import duties on books. This is one of many instances of the effect of a high tariff in retarding the growth of intelligence and the advance of civilization. The number of volumes is given as follows:—Toronto, over 50 000; Hamilton, between 9,500 and 10,000; Brantford, between 8,000 and 9 500; Elora, Guelph and St. Catharines, between 6 000 and 7,000; Dundas, Kingston, Paris and Peterborough, between 5,000 and 6,000. There are seven towns with libraries of over 4,000 volumes, six with libraries of over 3,500 volumes, and twelve with libraries of over 3,000 volumes.

We all May Live to a Good Old Age.

It has been noted that cases of extreme old age nearly always occur in the ranks of the poor. It is very difficult to find cases of extreme age, say one hundred years, among kings, queens, nobles and members of noted families; yet every child that is well born should live a century. There is no question but what the whole human race does not enjoy the vigor and health which it is possible to attain. People eat improper food, use hurtful stimulants as drinks, they are poisoned by malarias, and subject to contagions due to surroundings. If the health of our people is to be preserved and old age attained, is it not imperatively necessary to guard the condition of nerves, body and mind? Some will ask, "How is this to be accomplished?" Simply by using the proper agent, by taking hold of nature's great restorer and builder—Paine's Celery Compound, like stanzas can now be potated out of men and women who once were low from nervous troubles, overwork, weariness of mind and body, sleeplessness and imperfect digestion, who are now enjoying robust health and strength and perfect vigor of manhood and womanhood, and who have added years to their lives. Paine's Celery Compound gives every guarantee of a good old age and a happy life.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading Eastern publishers, and will be conducted in the same honorable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

That Tired Feeling

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. BEGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

Worn Out

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PIERRE MORNER, 80 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

Scratched 28 Years

A family, Dublin. Spin Diseases was Speedily and Permanently Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

"I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES remarkable properties, it would have saved me years of suffering and unmerited misfortune. For 28 years I was afflicted with a most horrible humor. Commencing on my head in a small pimple, it spread over my body in the form of scabs, which itched and burned so intensely that I was compelled to scratch until the blood flowed, when the scabs would drop off for an hour or so, only to be succeeded by others. Then the water would run from me, and I was a mass of sores. I was a walking mass of corruption, and for months at a time was confined to my bed. Every remedy and physician was tried in vain, and I was pronounced incurable. The best blood and skin physicians in London, Dublin, Paris, and Belfast, all gave me up. I am a gentleman, well known in society, and my case became the talk of the profession. I at last determined to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and the effect was marvellous. In three weeks I was entirely cured, and my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All used of them was 36 worth. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $500, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (in 2 page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it was to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

DENNIS DOWNING, Waterbury, Vt.

THE STEAMER UTOPIA SUNK OFF GIBRALTAR

After Colliding With Two Ironclads in the Bay—The End on Board 760 Emigrants en Route to New York—Many Women and Children Drowned.

GIBRALTAR, March 17.—The British steamship Utopia, from Italian ports bound to New York with 760 Italian emigrants aboard, collided to-day with the British ironclad Rodney, anchored in Gibraltar bay, and sank soon afterward off Ragged Staff. A southwest gale was blowing at the time of the collision. Many women and childrn. were drowned. A large number clinging to the rigging have been rescued by boats from the Channel Squadron.

On entering the bay the Utopia, before colliding with the Rodney, ran into the British ironclad Anson. The Utopia sank within a few minutes. Boats were immediately lowered from the British ironclads and also from the Swedish man-of-war Erera. These boats rescued 180 persons who are now on board the various vessels Many others who were rescued are lodged in Government buildings on shore. It is reputed that the crew of the Utopia were saved, but that [illegible] 200 passengers were drowned.

153 British Peers Own 1530 Places Where Liquor Is Dispensed.

LONDON, March 17.—A blue book issued by the Government discloses the fact that 152 peers of the realm are the owners of places in which intoxicating drink is sold. The number of drink shops owned by these peers is 1530. The list is headed by the Earl of Derby, who is the owner of 78 drinking places. Next comes the Duke of Bedford with 48 drink shops to his credit. Then the Duke of Devonshire with 47, Earl of Cawder 39, Duke of Rutland 37, Earl of Dudley 35, Duke of Northumberland 34 and Duke of Portland 32. Included in the list is the Right Rev. Richard Lewis, D.D., Bishop of Llandaff, who owns two places devoted to the sale of intoxicating liquors.

An Interesting Relic Found.

BERLIN, March 17.—An interesting discovery is reported from the town of Brunswick, Germany. The famous indulgence box in which Inquisitor Tetzel is said to have carried the money collected by him, and of which he was robbed by Ritter Hagen in the Hars Mountains, has been found in the Brunswick Town Hall. It was this tour of Tetzel that is said to have paved the way for Luther's success. Considerable interest is felt in the relic.

Shakespearean Relics to be Preserved.

LONDON, March 17.—A bill has passed Parliament vesting the corporation of Stratford, County of Bucks, as trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace and other memorial places with power to purchase Anne Hathaway's Cottage and Wilcote Cottage which belonged to Shakespeare's mother. The St. James Gazette congratulates the country upon the passage of the bill, which it says is a timely precaution and will prevent the removal of these properties to America.

The Newfoundland Arbitration.

PARIS, March 17.—The preamble of the Newfoundland bill, which was laid on the table in the Senate to-day, says France has protested repeatedly against the English lobster factories on the French shore as contrary to existing treaties. Arbitration, it is added, ought to result in lasting conditions which will satisfy Newfoundland.

TORONTO TOPICS.

TORONTO, March 18.—Creditors of Mr. J. McArthur Griffith, of J. McArthur Griffith & Co., of 101 Bay-street, are feeling very anxious at that gentleman's prolonged absence from town. Mr. Griffith left for Montreal last Friday, and since his departure nothing has been heard from him. On Monday Lawyer W. G. Thurston, under execution on behalf of the creditors of the Collins estate, for whom Mr. Griffith was acting as assignee, sold out the furniture of his residence, No. 36 Metcalfe street. The missing man owed the estate $2500 and is said to be behind in the accounts of three other insolvent estates left in his charge. Up to yesterday no special action was taken in the matter of Mr. Griffith's absence from town, and the hope is still expressed that he will return.

There is a report around town that a body was seen yesterday floating in the Bay towards the Eastern gap, and near the Island shore. An Expressman Michael Rock has been missing for some weeks it is thought possible that this body may prove to be his. Esplanade Constable Williams will make an effort to recover it to-day.

William Lovatt, aged 17, whose parents live at No 7 Sword street, left the city five weeks ago sound in health and limb to work in a saw mill near Bracebridge. Yesterday he was brought back to the city and taken to the hospital maimed for life. On Monday while at work his foot became entangled in some machinery. Before he could be rescued his foot was crushed to a jelly, his ankle fractured and his leg broken in three places. The injured member will be amputated this morning.

Mr. Daniel McLean, the well-known wholesale leather dealer of 32 Yonge-street, has suspended payment. He has been in a tight place for some time, but it was thought that he would be able to pull through. His ultimate collapse is therefore somewhat of a surprise.

The liabilities will aggregate about $190,000, of which $90,000 are direct. The assets consist of the Yonge-street building, on which there is claimed to be an equity of $50,000, book debts and stock. The creditors do not place much value on either and consider their prospects anything but bright. The Bank of Toronto is said to be a creditor for $60,000, and Mr. D. W. Alexander, wholesale leather merchant, is owed $18,000, and Mr. Davis, tanner, of King, $17,000. Mr. Alexander is partly secured.

James Park & Son, pork packers and provision merchants of this city, are in financial difficulties A statement is being prepared. Gunn, Flavelle & Co. are the largest creditors. It is expected that the firm will come out of the trouble all right.

The Seventeenth of March, the great celebration day of Catholic Irishmen, was duly honored in Toronto yesterday.

Sensational Suicide of a Farmer Near Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 17.—Isaac Clow, farmer, living about two miles from Harrowsmith, spent yesterday with his son, Matthias Clow at Hartington, and just before dark wrlked to the cheese factory and was found about an hour later lying on the ice, He had removed his coat and vest, and placing his braces around his neck choked himself to death. No reason is ascribed for the act. He leaves a large grown-up family. Clow was about 60 years of age.

In the Spring the Young Girl's Fancy.

HAMILTON, March 17.—Last night there arrived in this city from Dunnville an old man named Lowrey and his son, searching for a young girl named Rumsden, who had disappeared from Dunnville. By the terms of the will left by Miss Rumsden's father Lowrey was her guardian. It is supposed that she ran away from Dunnville to get married. The former says that the simple creature will not get a cent of the money willed her by her late father, as she has broken the provisions of the will by marrying before she came of age.

Disastrous New York Fires.

NEW YORK, March 17.—H. B. Claflin & Co.'s storehouse was damaged $150,000 by fire this morning.

The gents' furnishing manufactory of Albert Benjamin & Co. and adjoining buildings were damaged $8,000,000. The firm's 8 employes, including 100 girls on the top floor, escaped safely.

THE GRAND OLD MAN

DELIVERS A SERIES OF ADDRESSES IN ENGLAND.

He Pronounces Himself in Favor of Lord Salisbury's Foreign Policy, but Censures the Chancellor of the Exchequer—Parnell's Statements Contradicted.

LONDON, March 17.—Mr. Gladstone received a tremendous and spontaneous ovation to-day. He was leaving Charing Cross station for Hastings when an immense crowd gathered at the depot to witness his departure. The crowd cheered itself hoarse after Mr. Gladstone appeared, broke down the barriers and made a rush for the "Grand Old Man," cheering and waving hats and handkerchiefs as if mad with joy to see the veteran statesman. The railroad station fairly shook with cheers as the train bearing him moved out. Previous to the departure of the train the Executive Committee of the Radical Association presented an address to Mr. Gladstone.

When Mr. Gladstone's train stopped at Tunbridge, Kent, a large crowd was assembled there.

Mr. Gladstone replied to an address presented to him and said he hoped to shake hands with a Liberal member of Parliament [illegible] bridge after the next Parliamentary election. He assured them that whatever measure of Home Rule was proposed, its spirit and basis would be unchanged from those of the former one—[cheers]—that it would be compatible with English honor and would bring peace and contentment to Ireland and life to the nation. The enfranchisement measures of 1884 were of benefit to the whole country. It was now of public interest that every householder should enjoy equal voting power.

Upon his arrival at Hastings Mr. Gladstone received a perfect ovation. The streets were decorated in his honor.

In reply to an address presented to him at Hastings, Mr. Gladstone said he found little to blame in Lord Salisbury's foreign policy during recent years, but he condemned the policy of Mr. Goschen, Chancellor of the Exchequer in concocting fictitious surpluses and concealing the real expenditures from parliament in order to manufacture a satisfactory budget. The finances of the country were intimately connected with its liberties and he protested against insidious attempts to undermine the power of the House of Commons to control the expenditures. Mr. Gladstone said that in 1889 £10,000,000 were set apart for naval expenditures, the payments extending over seven years. This was an objectionable arrangement of granting money. Besides the fashions of ships changed. What, he asked, would be thought of a lady ordering and paying for bonnets for the next seven years based on the present fashions. [Hear, hear.] Last year's exchequer balance, said Mr. Gladstone, was fictitious, and it was actually proposed to devote part of the surplus to buy publicans' licenses at their own prices.

Alluding to the Irish parliamentary party, Mr. Gladstone remarked that it could not be disputed that the members of this party were bound to sink their individual opinion and bow to the opinion of the majority. That opinion had been generally used in the interests of the empire. As to Parnell's speech in which he said he had opposed the claims of the labor candidates in England in consequence of an obligation he was under to the Liberal leaders, Mr. Gladstone said: "There is not one word of truth in this statement as far as I am concerned. [Hear, hear.] Far from opposing the claims of the labor candidates I have always been ready to support them." [Cheers.] Touching upon the disclosures of the Divorce Court, Mr. Gladstone said it was not his place to judge the amount of the delinquency, but it was the part of the Liberals to consider upon what principles they would be guided in the disposal of their votes. The Liberals knew that the cause of Home Rule depended upon them. The Liberals had arrived at a definite conclusion in regard to Mr. Parnell. He (Gladstone) was merely a reporter of the general conviction that the party was against Mr. Parnell. This conviction was arrived at in December. It held good now. [Cheers.] The Liberals were ready to face defeat, exclusion, misfortune, but they were not prepared to create a constitutional leadership for Ireland under such guidance as Mr. Parnell's. No consideration would make them do so." [Cheers.]

Mr. Gladstone contended that Irishmen continued to be deprived of many liberties such as Englishmen enjoyed. It was for the Irish people themselves to solve the question by a prompt and unanimous declaration against the existing administration.

Mr. Gladstone expressed the opinion that it was the duty of the Liberals to prosecute this great and patriotic purpose and to obtain justice for Ireland, knowing that by a courageous application of Liberal principles they could secure the union of the classes the Dominion of the law and the stability of the Crown. [Cheers.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—Delaware farmers and fruit growers say that there are prospects of 7,000,000 baskets of peaches this year. In all the orchards the trees are loaded with buds in a good healthy condition. Old peach growers look for one of the largest crops that there has been on the Peninsula for years.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Government of British Guiana has declined an offer from the Canadian Government for the admission of sugar at a reduction of 25 per cent. on the present duty in return for like treatment of Canadian products and manufactures.

Shot Himself.

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., March 17.—A commercial traveler named W. E. Harding, representing the Lang Manufacturing Company of Montreal, committed suicide here this morning by shooting himself in the breast with a revolver, in his room at the McIntyre House.

The Loss was $4000.

HAMILTON, March 17.—A pot of japanning took fire from spontaneous combustion in the iron works of James Brayley, King William-street, to-day and damage to the extent of $4000 was occasioned before the flames were extinguished.

Eat Half a Gallon of Peanuts.

SHOW HILL, Md., March 17.—Harry Hudson, who lives near here, upon a wager succeeded in eating half a gallon of peanuts at one sitting. During the night he was seized with severe pains and his death is hourly expected.

A mob yesterday went to the house of Mrs. Wigginton at Mt. Sterling, Ky., whose husband and sons are charged with poisoning Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Watts, and hanged her.

A despatch from Madrid says the Spanish Cabinet's project of reciprocity with the United States contemplates admitting into the Spanish Antilles United States industrial and agricultural products at lower rates than those of any other nation in exchange for admittance in the United States free of duty of sugar and molasses from the Antilles. Lowered tariff on the tobaccos imported from the same islands into the United States is also asked.

THE WORLD OF LONDON.

CHRONICLED AND CRITICISED BY MR. EDMUND YATES.

The Queen's Coming Visit to Grasse—"Plon Plon's" Successor—Americans at the Drawing-room—The Baccarat Scandal.

LONDON, March 18.—The arrangements for the Queen's journey to Grasse have again been altered, and according to the latest most favorite the original plan will be followed, and the Queen is to leave Windsor at 4 o'clock next Monday afternoon for Portsmouth dockyard, where she will embark on board the Victoria and Albert. The difficulties of making all the arrangements for the Queen's safe and speedy journey from Cherbourg to Grasse are enormous, as apart from all the ordinary and obvious difficulties of the officials, there is always the chance of an entire change of performance at the very last moment, inasmuch as the Queen would not cross the channel if there was either the slightest fog or a stormy sea. For two days before Her Majesty starts messages will be constantly passing between Windsor Castle and Portsmouth dockyard.

The Queen's retinue at Grasse will consist of about forty persons, and it will require [illegible] and accommodation for the whole of the Royal party at the Grand Hotel—although it is a very large building—as special arrangements have to be made for the pampered Indian domestics the Queen insists on carrying about with her. The Queen's own apartments are to be on the first floor, and a bedroom and a dressing-room which face the north are being fresco'ed. Her Majesty's sitting-room is very spacious and the windows command a grand view. It is to be fitted with furniture sent from Windsor, and the Queen's bed comes also from the Castle stores. There is a workroom for Sir Henry Ponsonby on the same floor, and bedrooms and sitting-room for the ladies-in-waiting. The best apartments on the second floor have been arranged for Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg. The hotel stands on a wooded hill, well above the little town, and there are magnificent views from most of the windows and from the terrace. The Queen's three carriages, her pony chaise and her Bath chair have already arrived at Grasse from England, as well as about 200 packages of various sizes. The Queen takes only one lady-in-waiting, the Dowager Lady Churchill, her private secretary, Sir Henry Ponsonby, and Major Bigge, a maid of honor and a medical attendant.

Empress Frederick has decided to stay in England over the Easter holidays.

The public has heard a great deal too much of the theological and political disputes which have gone on for a week in poor Prince "Plon Plon's" sick room. It is quite certain that he has formally made the younger brother, Prince Louis, his political heir, placing him under the friendly tutelage of Prince Roland Bonaparte, who unites much practical wisdom to the scientific attainments of the recluse of Westbourne Park. Prince Roland is, in addition, enormously rich. It is a curious coincidence that the ultimate fate of the Bonapartes will greatly depend on the sagacity shown by the husband of Mme. Marie Blanc and the son of Prince Pierre Bonaparte, who killed Victor Noir and was long regarded as the black sheep of the family.

Count von Waldersee is once more the man of the hour in the incomprehensible whirligig of German politics; but the inferences that have been liberally drawn from his visit to Prince Bismarck are utterly erroneous. The position of Chancellor von Caprivi is much shaken, and it is the fear of seeing von Waldersee succeed him that has induced the recluse of Friedrichsruhe suddenly to suspend his attacks.

Features of the Last Drawing-room.

There was a strong American contingent at the Drawing-room. The fashion set by Mrs. White was followed by Mrs. Lincoln, who is also in mourning for her son. Her magnificent black velvet gown was smothered with black feathers, standing in upright plumes upon the train, and in her hair was an aigrette. She was accompanied by her daughter, who carried a bouquet of lillies. If equipages are any criterion, it must have been a motley crew who attended the Drawing-room on Friday. One horse flys, with broken-kneed horses, were in the majority, and single-horse landaus surely the most shabby-genteel of all conveyances were to be seen in great numbers. There certainly were not more than 20 decently turned out carriages. The more shabby the turnout, the more gaudy was the bouquets worn by the coachmen and footmen. On one box sat a coachman and groom warmly wrapped in horsecloth. On their bosom blazed an arrangement of daffodils, and they were both smoking big pipes. In a brougham sat a coachman and his love had followed him from the mews and was sitting by his side. Perhaps the carriages of the Salt of the Castle will take the people to later drawing-rooms, but on Friday they were conspicuous by their absence; and passing down the ranks one could but wonder what fossils of society had dug out this array of flys from livery stables last week.

A Clever Thief's Success.

I have mentioned Lord and Lady Cranbourne's new residence in Park Place. They had an unpleasant visitor last Thursday. A clever thief, equipped with a roll of copper wire and some workmen's tools, gained admittance on the pretence of having to repair an overhead telegraph wire leading to Salisbury House. After the manner of rich folks' servants, the butler passed him up to the roof and left him there; and, finding the ground clear, he promptly made for Lady Cranbourne's bedroom and annexed a few of her diamonds. An hour or two afterward the same excuse gained him admittance to a house in Cavendish-square, where he made a still larger haul of jewelry.

Lord Wolseley's Enforced Economy.

The journalists who expressed disapprobation of Lord Wolseley's conduct in continuing to reside on garcon in a Dublin hotel, and so escaping the duties of entertaining, cannot be aware of the unfortunate circumstances of a recent occurrence which has enforced economy on one to whose nature stinginess is as foreign as cowardice.

Progress of the Baccarat Case.

The statement is true which has appeared in the daily papers to the effect that, by an arrangement between the respective lawyers, the case of Sir William Gordon Cumming against Taylor and others is to be tried before Whitsuntide. It is possible that the suit may be adjudicated on without any decision on the intrinsic merits of the case. The defence takes its stand on two pleas—absence of publication of slander on the part of the defendants, and justification. The plea of non-publication adroitly precedes that of justification. It will devolve on counsel for the plaintiff to prove publication before the question of the merits of the case can be gone into. That preliminary issue will be a question rather of law than of fact; and as such the decision on it will be with the judge and not with the jury. If then the plaintiff does not prove publication to the satisfaction of the judge, the suit will fall in limine, to the extreme detriment of Sir William Gordon Cumming and to the warm satisfaction of the parties who, if the justification stage be reached, will have to go into the witness box.

Lord Rosebery Back in England.

Lord Rosebery came home on Wednesday, and with his children went to the country for a few days. He is looking much better and less worn than when he left London and the change has set him up wonderfully.

A Question of Retainers

Those eminent and well-known leaders of the Parliamentary bar, Samuel Pope, Q.C.; Mr. Littler, Q.C., and Herbert Saunders, Q.C., aided, abetted and confronted by Lewis Cossa, Lionel Monetos and other juniors have made a record and carried the strike movement into the realm of the wig and gown. So far as yet appears—for the incident is at present only in medio—Mr. Hanbury and the majority of the select committee over which he presides, thought it inconsistent with their dignity or with their convenience—it does not yet appear which—that learned counsel engaged before them should give contemporaneous attention to business before another committee. On the face of it, the proposition of Mr. Hanbury and those of his colleagues who agree with him appears, to say the least, unreasonable. The leaders of the Parliamentary bar can scarcely be expected so to limit their acceptance of retainers as to be certain of being in only one case at a time; and the duty of juniors is to take such notes of the evidence in chief as shall enable their leaders to conduct a sufficient and satisfactory cross-examination without danger of wearisome iteration. The further course of the consideration of the subject will be looked for with considerable interest. Some two or three years ago a West Country Baronet and M.P., then chairman of a special committee, hinted at a similar rule to that laid down by Mr. Hanbury, but nothing came of it. EDMUND YATES.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Another Short Session of the Assembly Yesterday.

TORONTO, March 18.—In the Ontario Legislature yesterday Mr. Joseph Tait, M.P.P., presented petitions from the various Toronto unions, and from a number of citizens praying for the amendment of the Public Schools Act. He also presented his Pill respecting embalming. It provides that the Undertakers' Association of Ontario may establish a college for the purpose of instruction in branches of science and medicine bearing upon the work of the embalmer and undertaker, etc.

Before adjourning it was agreed that the House should not sit on Good Friday or on Easter Monday, but should stand adjourned from Thursday to Tuesday. Mr. Mowat also announced that the financial statement would probably be made on Tuesday next.

A deputation interviewed the Government and asked for an additional grant to the boys school at Mimico.

Mr. Conmee introduced a bill to amend the Municipal Act by adding to section 479 of these subsections: Any one or more municipalities may pass a bylaw for the issue of debentures granting bonuses or other aid from the whole of such municipality or from any one or more townships or wards thereof alone, or in conjunction with any other ward or township forming part of an adjoining municipality, for the establishment of a mining school in any of such municipalities or elsewhere; or in lieu of such bonus a special annual rate in addition to the other rates upon the whole of the assessable property of the municipality. Every such school shall be under the control of a board of trustees, who shall be elected annually, one by each municipality, ward or township granting aid; provided, however, that if such school is established by only one municipality, township or ward, that such shall have the right to elect three trustees, and if by only two then each of the two shall have the right to elect two trustees.

A deputation from the township of Seymour, Peterboro County, consisting of Messrs. J. M. Ferris, Reeve McCoan and Deputy Reeve Morrison, waited upon the Commissioner of Public Works to ask that the Government should assume the maintenance of a colonization bridge built through that township to connect Northumberland and Durham.

Among the petitions presented were one by Mr. Conmee from the Manitoulin & North Shore Railway Company, praying for power to increase the issue of bonds from $10,000 to $25,000 a mile, and that the time for the commencement of the road might be extended for 3 years from March 23, 1891, and the time for completion for 6 years from the same date; and one by Mr. Dunlop from a large number of residents of Pembroke, asking for the appointment of a game warden or inspector for the protection of game in Renfrew, Muskoka and Nipissing.

Hamilton and the C.P.R.

HAMILTON, March 17.—Mr. Alexander McKay, M.P., went from Ottawa to Montreal yesterday and called upon Mr. Van Horne to get the views of the Canadian Pacific president with regard to railway construction in this vicinity. Mr. Van Horne told him that he was deeply impressed with the desirability of keeping his main line a few miles south of Hamilton, so as to have as good a grade as the Michigan Central and be able to haul as many cars with one locomotive from the Detroit to the Niagara River as are hauled over the road with which the Canadian Pacific intends to compete. He said, when directly interrogated by Mr. McKay on the point, that he would consider the idea of constructing a loop line down the Ancaster mountain, through Hamilton and up the mountain again near Stoney Creek, with a branch from Hamilton to Toronto, if Hamilton would give fair encouragement for that scheme.

"PLON PLON" IS DEAD.

Prince Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte Dead —One of the Familiar Figures of the Second Empire in France.

ROME, March 17.—Prince Napoleon Joseph Charles Paul Bonaparte died this afternoon. Prince Napoleon has been a familiar figure in Europe for more than 40 years. Cousin of the man of destiny who was to become Emperor of the French and second son of Jerome Bonaparte, at one time King of Westphalia, by his second marriage with Princess Frederika of Wurtemberg, he was born in Trieste and his earliest years were those of the exile.

He was a great traveler in his youth, visiting pretty nearly every quarter of the globe before his marriage in 1859 to the Princess Clotilde, daughter of King Victor Emanuel of Italy. As a Bonaparte he was forbidden to reside in Paris until 1845, when Louis Philippe granted him permission, which was soon withdrawn in consequence of the prince's compromising himself with the revolutionists. After the downfall of the Bourbons in 1848 the prince was elected to the Constituent Assembly. At the breaking out of the Crimean war he was put in command of an army corps, but, proving his incompetence, was recalled and placed on "sick leave." His next military excursion was in the Franco-Italian war against Austria, which broke out immediately after his marriage with Clotilde. He crossed the Apennines in a march of great brilliancy and dash, but arrived in time only to witness the signing of the treaty of peace at Villa Franca. He visited the United States in 1861.

He returned to Paris shortly before the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian war, but was again expelled in 1872, this time forcibly, for which he brought suit for damages. He then retired to his chateau, near Geneva, where he has lived with his wife and two sons, spending part of the time in Italy, where he died. Eugenie hated him and gave him the nickname of "Prince Plon-Plon," or "the dipper." His resemblance to Napoleon I. was very marked, and Beranger, alluding to Plon-Plon's fatness, said he was "a genuine Napoleon medal dipped in fat," whence came Eugenie's gibe at his expense. By his death his eldest son, Prince Victor, born in 1862, becomes heir to the Imperial throne—what there is of it.

Facts are Stubborn Things

So is Bad Blood. The difference between them is that a fact is here to stay. Bad Blood can only stay until Burdock Blood Bitters is used, then it must go. DEAR SIRS,—Having felt out of order for some time, and having no energy or appetite, blotches on legs, tumor on neck—arising from impure blood, doctors doing me no good, I was induced to buy some B.B.B. I was very much against patent medicines at the time, having tried so many, but after using two bottles I began to get better, and at the fourth bottle was completely well and around again. I believe in B.B.B. now, I tell you. I send you a photo of myself and little daughter, Lilly. B.B.B. cured her of nasty blisters which came out on her lips. Yours thankfully,

GEORGE BROWN'S PROPHECY.

Twenty-six years ago Hon. George Brown, then the leader of the Upper Canadian Reformers, thundered against a union of Old Canada with Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. He foresaw and predicted the very condition of affairs which exists to-day. Sir Charles Tupper boasts that at present his followers from Nova Scotia "hold the balance of power between the two great political parties," which means, no doubt, says the Ottawa Free Press, that the high commissioner intends to dictate the terms upon which the present government shall remain in office. Writing in the Globe in 1865, Mr. Brown said: Moreover, the effect "of a union with the Maritime Provinces "would be that instead of one sucker being "fastened to the rich udder of Canada there "would be three or perhaps four; a compact "of less advanced sections of the country "for the expenditure of money on local "objects not at all useful in the west "would soon be struck up and carried "into operation." Who can say that Mr. Brown's forecast has not been fulfilled? Do we not see to-day the outlying provinces of the Dominion voting almost unanimously in favor of Sir John Macdonald, not because they believe in his trade policy, which, it is notorious, they do not, but because they think he will spend public money freely to retain their support? The Tories managed to persuade the Nova Scotians and the New Brunswickers that Ontario and Quebec were going solidly for Sir John, and that unless they supported him they would get no money for local improvements. These provinces have a dread of being in opposition to those who control the federal treasury. That is the whole explanation of how New Brunswick and Nova Scotia voted last week for Toryism and high taxation. The Hon. George Brown seems to have foreseen and predicted the outcome of the Intercolonial railway "enterprise." Writing in the Globe in 1865, Mr. Brown said:

"The scheme of the government for the construction of the Intercolonial railway opens an account which will never be closed. Every storm of snow in the inhospitable regions below Riviere du Loup will lay a new burden upon the people of Upper Canada. The taxpayers will watch the passenger travel and the freight traffic with the liveliest interest, as indicating the demands to be made upon them for the year. The road will be run with a perfect consciousness on the part of its managers that there is a prompt payment behind. It is a dream of many persons in Nova Scotia that this Halifax and Quebec railway will draw to their harbors the trade of the west, but it is a dream and nothing more. No passenger will ever think of going or sending to Halifax when he can find shipping at Quebec or Portland. And there is a refreshing coolness in the demand that Canada shall pay for a railway which is professedly designed to draw away trade from its great estuary."

To-day we find that the cost of operating the Intercolonial railway exceeds the receipts of that road by about a million dollars a year, of which sum Ontario has to bear her proportion. And what would Mr. Brown have said had he been able to foresee that the Dominion government, after building the Intercolonial railway at a cost of $45,000,000, and while operating it at an enormous yearly loss, would give some more millions towards building another railway, through United States territory, designed to compete with and take traffic from the government road?

THE friends of the Equal Rights candidate in East Durham, Mr. Grandy, have determined, it is stated by the Mail, to protest Mr. Craig's election. They do not charge the latter gentleman with improper conduct, but they maintain that his majority of 61 was obtained, through his supporters, by bribery, intimidation, and other corrupt practices.

Fruit Growing.

The annual report of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario is a sort of an oasis in the blue book desert. Mr. Dryden, the Minister of Agriculture, deserved the best thanks of all who have the interests of fruit-growing at heart. The volume is most carefully and thoroughly prepared, and in turning over its pages one comes upon no end of pleasant reading about peaches, wine culture, and wine-making in Essex, apples, strawberries, plums, a simple way to make pure grape wine for home use, and how to grow plums, to say nothing of many more equally interesting matters.

The twenty-second annual report of the Fruit Growers' Association of Ontario, printed by order of the Legislative Assembly, was laid on the table of the House on Monday. The report of the treasurer shows receipts, including $2 012 membership fees and $1 800 government grant, of $4,385, and expenditure, in listing expenses of the Canadian Horticulturist and salaries, etc., of $4 301, leaving a balance on the right side of $84. The address of the president Mr. A. M. Smith of St. Catharines, delivered at the annual meeting at Hamilton on 16th December last, is given in full. This address contains an interesting epitome of the society's work, as well as a thoughtful survey of the situation and prospects of the great fruit growing industry. The society has now over 2,000 members and is, as the president says with pride, the largest horticultural society in America, if not in the world. The president says:—"Our towns and cities, which were to merly largely supplied from the neighboring republic, are now abundantly stocked with fruits of our own growing, and many sections of our country to which apples were sent from the States and Nova Scotia district 30 years ago, are now exporting thousands of barrels annually to the old country and even to the United States, and that of a quality, too, which cannot be excelled or even equalled by the whole world. And by careful hybridising and judicious selections varieties have been found that will succeed in many sections where it was thought fruit could not be grown; and, if experiments and plans which are now under way succeed, and I have every confidence that they will, the day is not far distant when every inhabitant of Ontario, if not of the Dominion, who has land capable of being tilled, if he cannot sit under his own vine and fig tree, may at least, if he choose, raise enough of some kind of fruit to supply his own table." Speaking of the loss of time and money involved in private experiments with plants which turn out worthless, Mr. Smith says:—"As testing new fruits is a work that benefits the whole county, I do not see why our Government should not assist us in this work. But it may be said by some that we have agricultural and experimental farms already for doing this work at Guelph and Ottawa. I would ask what can be done at either of these places in testing tender varieties of apples, pears, plums or cherries, much less grapes, peaches, apricots, nectarines, etc.? . . . . I believe if we had an experimental ground carefully conducted somewhere in Southern Ontario, where our tender fruit trees, shrubs and plants could be grown and tested, and where only varieties that were worthy of cultivation would be recommended, it would be a great boon to the county, and in 30 years more we would make much more rapid advances in the improvement of varieties than we have in the past. I hope that a committee will be appointed by this association to interview the Government upon this subject."

A feature of this report which makes it of the greatest interest and value to fruit-growers is a verbatim report of the proceedings at the winter meeting. The report in this respect has been prepared with the same care that marked its predecessors.

Beet Root Sugar.

Reiterating the Co-Operation of the Government.

The establishment of a beet root sugar industry in Ontario is being pushed again. A deputation waited upon the Attorney-General, Hon. Mr. Dryden and Hon. J. M. Gibson Monday afternoon to get the assistance of the Government in setting the manufacture going. The deputation representing the capitalists who are interested in the scheme was composed of Messrs W. H. Howland, W. Skaife and R. A. Lowder. Mr. Skaife has been running a beet root sugar factory in the Province of Quebec, but the results have been discouraging. The conditions for the manufacture down there, he says, are not favorable, while in Ontario it has been, in his opinion, proved that the climate, soil and farmers ensure the successful operation and the great extension of the industry. All the members of the deputation addressed the Ministers. No matter how sure the profit of the scheme could be made to appear on paper it was an experiment and capital was timid, and so what the deputation wanted was that the Provincial Government guarantee bonds for one-half of the cost of putting the first factory into operation. The idea was to build and equip a 300 ton factory and it would cost about $250 000. If the Province would promise to aid it in the way desired capitalists would be found to put the factory in operation. Then with everything complete the company would issue bonds for one-half of the cost and if the thing proved a success the Province would not be called upon to redeem the bonds. In the event of the failure of the industry the shareholders would stand to lose the whole of their $125 000 while the Government for their $125,000 would have the factory and the plant. The Attorney-General promised the usual consideration.

A Canadian Artist and the G. O. M.

Mr J. C. Forbes, a well-known Canadian artist, is to paint portraits of the Grand Old Man from personal sittings. Mr. Gladstone intends that the pictures to be painted by Mr. Forbes shall be the last painted from life, a fact which adds to the importance of the artist's task. The following is the letter written by Mr. Herbert Gladstone to the gentleman who took charge of the matter for the Canadians: "If the Canadian artist will take such opportunities as he can get from painting in my father's sitting room my father has no objection. He come to London, 18 Park Lane, on Tuesday." It is intended the picture shall be painted in duplicate; one picture shall be given to the National Liberal Club by the Liberals of Canada and the other will be kept in the National Art Gallery in Ottawa.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced to try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Ellen street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. w 2w11d

A Fact

WORTH knowing is that blood diseases which all other remedies fail to cure, yield to Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Fresh confirmation of this statement comes to hand daily. Even such deep-seated and stubborn complaints as Rheumatism, Rheumatic Gout, and the like, are thoroughly eradicated by the use of this wonderful alterative.

Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th street, New York, certifies:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months. I am pleased to say that it effected a complete cure, and that I have since had no return of the disease."

Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H., writes: "One year ago I was taken ill with rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced to use Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."

"I have taken a great deal of medicine, but nothing has done me so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I felt its beneficial effects before I had quite finished one bottle, and I can freely testify that it is the best blood-medicine I know of."—L. W. Ward, Sr., Woodland, Texas.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and each customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Coop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

SPORTING BULLETINS.

HOW THE INTELLIGENCE IS ELECTRICALLY TRANSMITTED.

A Machine Free from Complications Which Seems to Fill the Bill—What It Looks Like in Giving the Details of the Game.

A simple method for the automatic bulletining of electrically transmitted intelligence is a problem long sought for by inventors. Instruments have been proposed, and efforts made to apply them commercially which, in practice, have been found too complicated for practical purposes, too expensive for general adoption, or, from their fine adjustments and other deficiencies, liable to derange them and error in working. The ideal bulletin or indicator system must be reduced to the simplest electrical and mechanical organization. The electrical formula, so to speak, must be reduced to the lowest terms, approaching, as far as possible, the Morse telegraph. It should be free from complications and delicate adjustments, capable of being relayed and repeated over any length of line within a single circuit. We illustrate a system having these qualities to a marked degree. It is the invention of Mr. S. D. Mott, of Passaic, N. J., who has reduced it to practice in an interesting and popular way by the construction of instruments for the indication of races and national games.

The annexed illustration shows a bulletin for the popular game of baseball. On the instrument, or in proximity thereto, is a programme of the day's game; the contestants—in this case Chicago and New York—are printed in columns, say red and blue, here indicated in hatched lines, with corresponding colors indicated upon the dial and through the openings in the dial face.

All the details of the game from beginning to end may be indicated, and every feature of play marked upon the board, so that the progress of the game can be watched by any one miles away from the base ball grounds. The plays in base ball follow one another so rapidly that the movable parts of the diagram will be constantly changing, and the interest will be maintained throughout the entire course of the game.

Upon examination, it will be observed that the following points or main features of the game of base ball are as clearly indicated as the clock indicates the time of day: The contestants, time, place, and date of the game, umpire, battery, position of men on field, the inning being played, the side which has the inning, the number of outs, in the inning, the man at the bat, the number of strikes called on him, also number of balls called. It shows how the last man went out, whether by fly, fowl, assist, strike, or sacrifice hit, the base run, home run, base on balls, stolen base, or base on error; the table score or the score by innings. A bell taps when any of these changes take place upon the face of the instrument.

The face of the bulletin, as illustrated, shows a game being played at the Polo Grounds, New York, June 2, 1890, at 3 p. m., between Chicago and New York, to stand 7 to 5 in favor of New York. The first half of the 9th inning is being played by Chicago. Ryan and Comisky are out; the latter went out on strikes. Second baseman Pfeffer is to the bat, one strike has been called and one ball; O'Neill is on third base, which he has stolen. The numbers or letters showing through the openings in face of dial are printed on the Bristol board disks held by aluminum spiders fast on shafts bearing a specially devised ratchet, which is actuated by a local electro-magnet energized by a local battery.

FENCING.

A Most Delightful Sport and Exercise of Grace.

Delightful sport, this fencing! Developing every muscle, steadying and strengthening every nerve in the human frame, producing alertness and agility, teaching the eye quickness of perception, it is quite different from any of the specific forms of athletics. It is no violent strain of any particular set of muscles and tendons at the expense of the rest, such as nearly every other species of sport entails. It means an even and general invigorating of the body, such as is conducive to long life and to a full utilization of every faculty, mental and physical. This is an old secret. The gentlemen of past generations knew it. The raffines of the time of Charles IX., the mignons of Henry III., creatures of an effeminate luxury though they were, the petits crevés and incroyables of later periods all knew it, and they preserved, by dint of incessant practice with the small sword and rapier, a nerve, vous vigor and a splendid general health, which one would not have expected of these men of delicate frame and steeped in every form of excess. The viveur of our own period knows it. In fact, to the knowing ones of Europe, the antidote to high living has been and is fencing. No more efficacious remedy has ever been suggested. It rejuvenates and keeps the body in a state as near perfection as anything that can be devised. Fencing is the true elixir vite, one vying with that of the count of Monte Cristo, and it is genuine, not a novelist's fancy. What better proof of this beside can be found than the lives of many of the famous fencing masters? Didier Lafaugère, the veteran fencer, teach his art until two years before his death, at the age of ninety-two! Did not Grosbert, of France, engage in a lively bout with one of his pupils and vanquish him—at the age of eighty-three! Was not Merinco, the "pride of France," as lively as a cricket at eighty? He, it is true, is dead now, but his son, Emile Merinac, is following in his father's footsteps and seems destined to grow to as green and hale an old age as his father.

Queer Story of a Smoker.

It was after dinner at Young's, says the Boston Globe. A well-known Commonwealth avenue physician had been chatting with a few professional cronies, and as the cigars were lighted the talk drifted to the tobacco habit, first, in its effect upon the race at large, and then of its peculiar effects upon various individuals.

"I know a man," said the older physician, whose income, by the way, runs into five figures, "in fact, he is now in my employ, who is the victim of the strangest whims in regard to the use of the weed that ever came under my observation. He is a Scotchman about 60 years old. Twelve years ago he deserted from the English navy and came to this country, when I gave him a position as coachman.

"One morning I went into the stable and noticed that a hole about two feet square had been cut in a partition between two stalls and a little shelf had been nailed up underneath it. I wondered what on earth it had been done for, but Donald was away at the time, and when he came back it had slipped my mind.

"It was as much as a week afterward before I had occasion to go into the stable again, and when I did I found Donald standing on a stool leaning his elbow on the stall, with a long clay pipe in his mouth, smoking away like a good one, and blowing the smoke through a little window he had cut. Upon my questioning him he told me that of the twenty years he had passed in her majesty's service ten of it had been on board a powder-ship, where the rules against smoking were very strict.

"During all this time he had been accustomed four times a day to stand upon a chest and lean out of a porthole to smoke, so that no one would smell him, and when at last he took French leave he found that he could not get any satisfaction out of a pipe unless indulged in in the old posture, and so, from that day to this, you can find him after each meal, and for half an hour before going to bed, standing on that stool blowing his smoke through the little window."

Striking a Balance.

A good story is told in the privately printed "Reminiscences" of the late Dr. S. K. Lothrop, concerning old Dr. Kirkland, whilom President of Harvard.

One evening the President and a certain Prof. Popkin were sitting together, and the conversation turned upon smoking. The two worthies were agreed that it was a bad habit, and they agreed to give it up, as both were addicted to the use of the weed. Some time afterward at a meeting of the faculty, which took place in the President's study, the cigars were passed around, and Dr. Kirkland took one with the rest. When the box came to Prof. Popkin he declined the cigars, observing with a pointed emphasis:

"I keep my resolution."

"An excellent plan, Dr. Popkin," coolly responded Dr. Kirkland, lighting his cigar, "only I have sometimes observed that one may lose by self-conceit all that one gains by self-denial."—Boston Courier.

A Sister's Duty.

Miss Mittens—What does this mean, Mr. Brotherton?

Mr. Brotherton—These? Oh, these are just a few socks, underclothes, and coats that need mending!

Miss Mittens—But——

Mr. Brotherton—You promised to be my sister last night, you know; and my sister used to do all my mending before she was married.

Very True.

"Please, sir, I am starving. I've had nothing to eat for four days. Won't you give me a dollar?"

"A dollar! That's a good deal, isn't it?"

"Not to keep a man alive for four days, Your Honor."—Harper's Bazar.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little cure and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

A Handsome Gift.

The Toronto World says:—At a meeting of the Biological section of the Canadian Institute, presided over by Mr. Chas. Armstrong, a letter was read from Rev. Vincent Clements of Peterborough, offering a contribution to the library, "The Nests and Eggs of the Birds of Ohio," illustrated by hand paintings. The work is said to be worth $350.

First of the Season.

The season at Stony Lake has begun rather early this year. A party, consisting of Messrs. B. Shortly, S. H. Best, W. A. Sandercoe, and George and John Bennett, drove out to-day to spend a couple of days fishing through the ice for whitefish and salmon. They will also inspect their cottages and plan improvements they contemplate making in the summer.

A Guessing Contest.

Mr. Sam Ray, tobacconist, has started a guessing contest for which good prizes are offered. The ballot box is now ready to receive guesses as to the exact population of the town of Peterborough. The figures of the Dominion census commissioner will be taken as the correct ones. The contest is open from this until the census is completed. First prize is a $5 pipe, second a $3 pipe, and third a $2 pipe. A fee of 25c. a guess is charged. 3165

A Great Company's Consideration.

The terrible disaster at the Spring Hill coal mines in Nova Scotia on the 22nd ult. is still fresh in the minds of our readers. Almost immediately on receipt of the news the Managing Director of the Manufacturers Accident Insurance Company, Toronto, wired the mayor of Halifax to draw on the Company for $100 on behalf of the widows and orphans, and since then it is satisfactory to note that other donations have followed.

A Thrifty Canadian Abroad.

Mr. Wm. Leitch, formerly of this town, writes from Clifford, Dakota, where he has been farming for the past nine years, giving figures showing the results of his farming operations. Last year he raised 1500 bushels of wheat which he sold at 90 and 91 cents—1000 bushels at 90 cents and 500 at 91 cents. He sold also 400 bushels of barley for 45 cents and got $4 per ton for his hay. Mr. Leitch now owns a large tract of land and is thriving well in his new home.

Social at the Parsonage.

The social under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the George street church at the parsonage Tuesday night was quite successful. There was a good attendance, and a pleasant evening was spent. A silver collection only was taken at the door, and refreshments were dispensed without extra charge. A musical and literary programme was presented, consisting of vocal solos by Miss Ella Owens, Mrs Daly, Mrs. McIntyre, Mrs. A. Parker and Mrs. Shorey; instrumental selections by Mr Seward and the Misses Robinson; readings by Mrs. Kendry and Mrs. Locke.

In New Hands.

The Stewart House in its new hands will be more popular than ever. Mr. John Callanane, the new proprietor, is an experienced hotel man from Hamilton, and is taking steps to place his hotel in the front rank. The premises are being improved in various ways, a comfortable sitting room provided for the ladies, and the barns and sheds are being enlarged and fitted up. Mr. Callanane will run his house in first class style, and invites the patronage of the travelling public. He has the best accommodation, and aims to provide a commodious and comfortable hostelry for the convenience of the public.

The Fruit Growers.

Mr. Edwards, secretary, has received letters from Mr. Woolverton, of Grimsby, and Mr. Thos. Beall, of Lindsay, who have promised to attend the meeting for those interested in fruit growing in Peterborough. The date chosen is March 24th, which will be adhered to if Mr. Allan, of Toronto, another prominent fruit grower, is satisfied. These gentlemen will deliver addresses upon interesting topics, and the subject of fruit culture will be thoroughly discussed at this meeting, which will be held at either the court house or the town council chamber, beginning at 10 o'clock in the morning. There should be a large attendance.

Sold Liquor Election Day.

Police Magistrate Edmison held court at Lakefield Tuesday, when Mr. Wm. McFarlane, hotelkeeper of Young's Point, was fined $20 and costs for an admitted infraction of the license law in selling liquor on election day. This is a peculiar case, however, and the circumstances go to show that Mr. McFarlane acted honestly in the matter. He inquired of the nearest magistrate if it was contrary to the statute to open his house election day, and was informed it was not. Later on, doubt being raised on the point, he telephoned to Peterborough and was advised that selling liquor on election day was illegal. Mr. McFarlane at once closed up his house and sold no more, but of course the law had been broken and the penalty had to be imposed. The case will likely be referred to the License Department of the Legislature.

St. Patrick's Day Concert.

An Immense Audience Treated to a Splendid Programme—Song, Music and Elocution at the Opera House.

The anniversary of Ireland's patron saint is regularly marked by a concert in Peterborough, in which all classes of citizens heartily unite, and the result is always a most gratifying success. The entertainment Tuesday evening was apparently satisfactory in every respect, if vigorous applause be any criterion of a people's pleasure. Those who managed the concert may congratulate themselves upon having succeeded so well. Financially, they have nothing to wish for. The programme, also, was varied, well balanced, and contained some of the best local and foreign talent obtainable, and a Peterborough audience is never slow to appreciate a good thing. Encores were almost invariably the order of the evening, the large gathering being enthusiastic and attentive throughout.

A pleasing effect was lent by the drawing room decoration of the stage, the house plants, pictures, portiere, etc., giving the proscenium the appearance of a salon.

The opening number of the programme was an appropriate selection by the Amateur Orchestra, "Sounds from Erin," in which the instrumentation of the seven pieces comprising the orchestra was excellent. The music was light, rapid, and full of catchy Irish airs. In their second number, the overture "Reception," the crossers also gave good account of itself. The services of this fine local organization are always sought after on occasions.

The second number was a duet, "Erin's Isles," by Mrs. McIntyre and Mr. T. Dunn, whose voices harmonized well. They sang with spirit and were vociferously encored, but did not respond. Miss Stevenson, the prima donna of the evening, won the hearts of the audience from the first. Her voice is a rich mezzo-soprano, verging on contralto, and those who heard her sing on Sunday last, as well as those who had that pleasure for the first time at this concert, were loud in their expressions of admiration of her full, rich tones, her unassuming manner and clear articulation, all indicating careful culture of a naturally charming voice. Miss Stevenson is indeed, as has been said of her, a most promising young singer. Her first number was "Should he Upbraid?" which she followed with the familiar song "Suppose," in answer to an encore. In the second part she sang an Italian piece, "O Miei Fernando," and though again warmly encored, simply bowed an acknowledgment. Miss Stevenson's selections showed the resources and elastic compass of her splendid voice.

Scarcely second to Miss Stevenson must be placed the local talent. Three of Peterborough's best known soprano singers, and her popular baritone, filled in the remaining vocal numbers on the programme. A most acceptable song was that by Mrs. J. G. Macklin, whose voice, though not strong, is sweet and sympathetic. Her solo, "Kathleen Mavourneen," was deservedly encored, and in response she gave "The Minstrel Boy." Mrs. J. E. McIntyre, though suffering slightly from the effects of a cold, sang in good form, as she always does, her rendition of Hutchinson's "Say that you Love Alway" being most excellent. She sang with verve and expression. Mrs. McIntyre's clear, high soprano voice is appreciated at home as well as abroad. She was honored with a recall but did not sing again. Miss Annie Dunn has already earned for herself the enviable reputation of being one of the very best soprano singers in town. Her pure, bird-like notes, fresh and musical as the ripple of running water in a brook, have occasionally delighted lovers of song in Peterborough. Miss Dunn opened the second part of the programme with "Cruiskeen Lawn," and being encored gave "Killarney," both charming selections. Little need be said of Mr. Thos. Dunn's vocal efforts. No concert programme in Peterborough is complete without him. We never tire of hearing him. He was in good voice Tuesday night, and sang "The Arab's Bride," responding to an enthusiastic encore with "The Brave old Guard." Mr. Dunn and Mrs. Macklin also sang a duo, Mendelssohn's "I Would That my Love," both taking their parts well. In connection with the singing, mention must not be omitted of Mrs. T. Dunn's share of the performance as accompanist. She played the accompaniments on an excellent piano secured for the occasion with a feeling and intelligence which were of great assistance to the vocalists.

Last, but by no means least, comes the fine work by Mr. S. H. Clark, a popular young elocutionist of Toronto. He appeared three times on the programme, and won an encore each time. His selections were all of a bright, humorous nature and caught the liking of the audience. Mr. Clark's contributions were most pleasing variations of an otherwise entirely musical evening.

The Fire Brigade Band also appeared, and concluded the first part of the programme with a medley of Irish airs, rendered with precision and proficiency. Under bandmaster Miller the band retains its high standard of excellence as a musical organization worthy of the town.

Taken as a whole the concert was a marked success, and reflects the highest credit upon all concerned.

The Cup That Cheers.

But Does Not Inebriate—Our Curlers Enthusiastic Over Their Victory.

If you observed a man on the street yesterday afternoon or last night whose face was suffused with broad three-for-a-quarter smiles and who wore an air of triumphant pride, you are safe in putting him down as a member of the Peterborough curling club. For why? They had signally defeated their old-time adversaries, the Lindsay curlers, and wrested the challenge cup from their treacherous grasp. Peterborough curlers have fairly vanquished the Lindsayites this season, and that is enough to wipe out the Keene humiliation of other defeats. Tuesday's match was the last of the series of 1891-91 between Lindsay and Peterborough, and victory planted both feet firmly on our standard. Lindsay was beaten by 36 shots. Every Peterborough rink came out ahead, and Skip Mobill, particularly, is in high feather over the fact that he floored Champion Fiavelle.

Peterborough has won four of the five games played, and the cup remains here for a year. The scores of Tuesday's match were:

News Nuggets.

—Wanted.—A good appetite. You can have it easy enough by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It tones the digestion and cures sick headache.

Last evenings' C. P. R train from Montreal was about five hours late on account of a freight train being off the track near Montreal. Trains are on time today.

—The managers of last night's concert wish to thank Mr. Jackson for the use of his superb piano which he so kindly loaned them.

Each season has its own peculiar malady; but with the blood maintained in a state of uniform vigor and purity by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla little danger need be feared from meteorological influences. No other blood medicine is so safe and effective.

Obituary.

The Late Hugh Davidson, of Smith.

With as deep a regret as the EXAMINER gives, will the public receive the intelligence of the death of Mr. Hugh Davidson, a well known resident of Smith. The deceased gentleman was widely known throughout the district, and wherever known was highly respected. It will be remembered that about last December Mr. Davidson was prostrated with a serious illness arising from the rupture of a blood vessel in the brain. From this he never recovered, though he rallied somewhat, so that, about a month ago, he was able to move about his premises. But a relapse set in and his condition continued to grow more serious till death came, fully closed the scene on Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock. The deceased gentleman was the eldest son of the late James Davidson of Smith. He was born in this township 52 years ago. He followed farming as a profession and pursued his calling with that intelligent diligence that brought success. He was greatly interested in stock raising, and his farm always contained some choice specimens of well-bred cattle. He practically recognized the importance of tree planting, and not only had a fine orchard, but his residence, "Vine Cottage," was beautifully ornamented with shade trees, and his farm protected with tree belts. His residence and farm is on the 5th concession of Smith, adjoining the old homestead, and contains a hundred well-tilled acres. He had also a stock farm in Harvey township, and during a visit to Manitoba last year he purchased a half section of land in that province. Mr. Davidson took a very warm interest in the promotion of agricultural progress. He was, for years, an active and energetic member of the West Riding Agricultural Society, of which he was a director, and he warmly identified himself with the work of the Farmers' Institutes. He was vice-president of the West Riding Institute at the time of his death. In politics Mr. Davidson was a stanch Liberal, as was his father before him. He was a faithful member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, of which he was an elder at the time of his death, as he had been for several years previously. Mr. Davidson was married about twenty-five years ago to Miss Armstrong, daughter of the late James Armstrong, of Otonabee. To this union there were born four boys and five girls, all of whom are living, and together with the bereaved mother, will keenly feel the loss of the kindly affectionate head of the house for the past quarter of a century. In the death of Mr. Davidson, the vicinity will mourn the loss of a genial and obliging neighbour, and the county generally will feel the loss of a public-spirited, progressive citizen. To his friends, and they numbered many, Mr. Davidson was genial and good natured, and in all the relations of life he fulfilled to the utmost the position of a good citizen, a firm friend, and a Christian gentlemen. The funeral takes place from the family residence, Vine Cottage, on Thursday, March 19th at 2:30 p.m.

The Children's Anniversary.

The Annual Festival of the Baptist Sunday School.

The annual festival of the Murray street Baptist church was held on Tuesday evening and was a very pleasant as well as unique success. The children were feasted in the basement of the church from 5 30 to 7 p.m. and it safe to say that the 140 children fully enjoyed this portion of the anniversary entertainment. After tea the children adjourned to the body of the church where a large company of the general public had gathered to enjoy the tabernacular portion of the evening. Upon the pulpit platform was placed a model of the Jewish Tabernacle, which was to be a prominent feature of the programme.

This miniature tabernacle was constructed on a base about 9x44 feet in dimensions, which rested on the pulpit platform in full view of the audience. The tabernacle was surrounded by a court enclosed by walls of white canvas, supported by pillars and guy ropes, in exact imitation of the tabernacle during the encampment of the Israelites. The proportions and materials of construction were followed out with faithful accuracy. In the middle of the court was the temple, half way between it and the entrance gate being the brazen altar, or altar of sacrifice, with a priest standing on one side and a lamb on the other, and again between the altar and the door of the temple stood the laver. The tabernacle is constructed of wood, with four coverings of skins and linen as a roof. It is braced like a tent with cords. The interior is an exact reproduction on a small scale, so far as is known, of the Jewish temple. The curtain being drawn the holy place is revealed, in which stands the golden altar or altar of incense, a candlestick bearing lighted tapers, the table containing the shew bread, with the high priest standing close by. Then the inner veil of the temple is drawn aside, and between the four upright pillars is seen the ark of the covenant, standing in the "holy of holies." The tabernacle was reproduced on a larger scale upon a platform at one side of the pulpit, which was opened to view so that the audience could get a more intelligent idea of the subject. There were also a couple of crayon sketches illustrating the temple and ark of the covenant. The whole idea was novel and attractive, and probably the object lessons served to inform the general public better than any amount of reading upon the subject of the tabernacle. An interesting exhibition was made of a couple of small phials, one containing sand from the great desert (Deut. viii, 15) and the other shells from the Red Sea, they belonged to Mr. John Babb. The representation was made clearer by the recitation by the pupils, of a large number of Scripture passages referring to the subject, varied by the singing of appropriate hymns. A detailed description would consume more space than can be given. The entertainment was a magnificent sacred object lesson. Rev. Mr. Trotter, the pastor, at the close gave an interesting description of the symbolism of the colors, parts, etc., of the high priest's garments, which was full of interest. A most pleasant and successful evening was concluded by the doxology and benediction.

The Story of Bacchus.

An Original Version of an Ancient Tale—A Clinking Temperance Talk.

The following story of Bacchus is not exactly new, but the Irishman's way of telling it differs slightly from the style in which it appears in Lempriere, so it is given "with variations" as below:

"Did yez ever hear tell of Bacchus? Bacchus was a frisky young fellur who was a bit of a sport in his time. He was a son of Jupther, and a dissolute young woman who flourished in thim days whin wimmin wint gallivantin' around the country wid garlands on their heads 'n' sheets wrapped around them. Well, Bacchus, he was walkin' along wan day wid a bet av a day paipe in his mout' d'ye mind? 'n' a twinkle in his eye, whin he come till a cross road 'n' he saw a bit av a plant growin' there. So Bacchus bein' a bit av a tottynalist in his way, he picked up the bit av a plant 'n' put it intil his pocket, see? So he hitched his pants up 'n' tuk a fresh pull on his bit av a dudheen, 'n' walked on agin till he come till another cross-road, see? 'N' there he found the skeliaytun av a bird. Now, when Bacchus saw that skeliaytun av a bird, he pulled his paipe out av his mout' 'n' he sez, sez he, 'Tar 'n' blazes,' he sez, 'if that ain't the skeliaytun av a bird,' sez he, So he picks up the skeliaytun av a bird 'n' puts it in his pocket 'n' goes on agin. 'N' presently he comes till another cross-road 'n' there he sees the skeliaytun av a lion. So whin Bacchus gets his eye ontil the skeliaytun he pulls his paipe out av his mout' 'n' he sez sez he, 'Tar 'n' bounds,' he sez, 'of that ain't the skeliaytun av a lion,' sez he, so he picks up the skeliaytun av a lion 'n' puts it intil his pocket, 'n' goes on agin. So after he had gone on a bit he comes till another cross-road 'n' there he sees the skeliaytun av an ass, 'n' when he seed it he pulled his paipe from his mout' 'n' he sez sez he, 'Turf 'n' tatters,' he sez, 'of that ain't the skeliaytun av an ass,' sez he. So he picks up the skeliaytun av the ass 'n' puts in intil his pocket, see? 'N' when he had gone a bit further, he bein' a bit lazy 'n' in the moind to have a bit av a toime, he lays down by the roadside 'n' mixes his skeliaytuns up, see? 'n' puts his bit av a plant inside thim. So the plant grows 'n' it grapes, 'n' Bacchus takes the grapes, 'n' squeezes the juice out av toim 'n' drinks it, 'n' whin he drinks it first he sings loike a bird, see? 'n' whin he goes agin the cup agin he roars loike the lion, see? 'n' whin he hits it the last toime he goes on loike an ass. An' there y'are.

METHODIST CHURCH CIRCUIT.—In the absence of the pastor, the Rev. B. Greatrix, the services on Sabbath, March 22nd, will be taken by Mr. James Sutherland as follows: Mount Pleasant, 10.30 a. m.; Fairmount, 2.30 p. m.

A Clear Proof of the Solidity of King's Boots.

To my advice James did attention pay
And of King's boots he bought two first-class pairs,
One for himself, the other for John A.,
To hold them safely through the election scares.

They worked like charms upon their trembling feet;
Shod in King's boots they never could give way;
Only for them they might have shared defeat
And swelled the number of the slain to-day

All that to the Old Chieftain clings,
And feed beneath his outspread wings
Must show if their boots are stamped KING'S,
And bought from KIDD THE BOOTER. 3w12

Fraserville.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

In spite of the hard times and other difficulties, our village seems to be pushing ahead.

On Monday, March 9th, about half a mile north of the village at the Cave school, Mr. Rusk delivered a very interesting lecture to the farmers and laborers of the surrounding country, with a view to organizing an association of the "Patrons of Industry." Some of the most vital questions of the day were suggested to help to bring the farmers to the front. Although the weather was most unfavourable, quite a number of the energetic farmers pushed their way through to hear the questions explained. After listening to over an hour's solid talk, the speaker showed the farmers how to buy cheaper and sell higher. He said that in such a fine farming section as the vicinity of Fraserville, every farmer should join so that they would get more for their produce. After the questions were considered, the association was organized. The officers were then appointed by all, which are as follows:

President—Robert Waterman
Vice-President—Thomas Smyth.
Secretary—Frederick Clarke.
Treasurer—John Smyth.
Guide—Joseph Madill.
Sentinel—George F. Bothwell.
Minerva—James W. Dawson.
Demeter—David Smyth.

This will no doubt be a benefit to the farmers, and all are cordially invited to come to the next meeting and see for themselves on Tuesday, March 24th, at 7.30 p.m.

The mild weather and rains of last week left the roads in a bad state for the general traffic.

Mr. O'Iver O'Hara, of Cacoa, is feeding a very fine steer for the Easter market.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1886 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification, the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

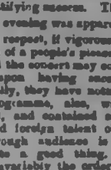
Scratched 28 Years

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease With Terrible Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.



Hi had known of the Cuticura Remedies twenty-eight years, it would have saved me many dollars and untold amount of pain. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head. Of a spot not as large as a cent, it spread over my body, and got to such a state that my skin was one scale of dandruff. The scales would fall off of me all the time, and my clothing was stained with blood and whitened matter. One thousand dollars would not induce me to have this disease come upon me again. I was a great sufferer. I was under the treatment of the best skin doctors in the country, using Cuticura, internally, and Cuticura Soap externally, etc., etc., but all to no avail. I was induced to use the Cuticura Remedies by my brother, who had been cured by the Cuticura Remedies. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All used of them was $3 worth. If you had been here and told me you would have cured me for $300, you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2 page 47) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through Spots of health I rub my hands over my hands and legs to account some in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cost to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

OVER NIAGARA FALLS.

SENSATIONAL SUICIDE AT PROSPECT PARK.

A Stranger, Believed to be a Frenchman, Jumps to His Death—Sixteen Persons Returning from a Ball Precipitated Over the Famous Bridal Veil Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 18.—A man jumped over Niagara Falls at Prospect Point this afternoon. He came from the west this morning and had a ticket for New York, via W. & Shore Railroad. He was about 24 years of age. He was good looking and well dressed and weighed about 160 pounds. He had the appearance of a Frenchman and spoke in broken English.

GEORGETOWN, Col., March 18.—A frightful accident occurred at 8 o'clock this morning opposite the famous Bridal Veil Falls. Sixteen young people had engaged a team and band wagon to bring them home from a St. Patrick's ball at Silver Plume. At the point named the team became unmanageable and turned the entire party down the mountain side upon the rocks below. Those who were not hurt by the fall suffered from the kicks and plunges of the horses so that but one of the sixteen escaped injury. It is supposed the wagon came upon some ice and was too heavy for the animals to hold. Many will die.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Women Franchise—No Money to be Borrowed From British Capitalists.

TORONTO, March 19.—The Legislature met for half an hour yesterday.

In reply to Mr. Waters, Mr. Mowat said it was not the intention of the Government to bring in at this session a bill to enable women to vote for members of the Legislative Assembly. As to any future session the Government had not agreed or formed any opinion on the subject.

Replying to Mr. Waters again, Mr. Mowat said it was not the intention of the Government during this session of this Parliament to introduce any bill or measure having for its object the borrowing of money from British capitalists at English money market rates and the loaning of the same to farmers who may have their farms mortgaged. They all mourned the condition of the farmer, but were of opinion that no such scheme was practicable.

Mr. Monk asked when was Thomas Murray appointed to the office of sheriff of the county of Renfrew? Does he still hold the office? If not, when and how did he cease to hold it?

Mr. Mowat, in reply, said Mr. Murray was appointed to the office Jan. 21, 1890. He does not now held the office, having resigned on Feb. 16, 1891. The resignation was accepted.

Messrs. S. T. Wood, C. Armstrong and B. Kirke, representing the Single Tax Association, asked Mr. Hardy to adopt a system of royalties on the output of mines in the mining regulations which are now in process of incubation.

Dr. Bryce of the Provincial Board of Health and Dr. Ree of Oshawa wanted section 80 of the Public Health Act amended so as to make it compulsory on municipalities to adopt the best practicable method of waterworks. As it is now, the plans of waterworks are submitted to the board, but there is no obligation to adopt the board's suggestions.

Mr. W. K. Patteson and Ald. Maguire of St. Catharines invoked the aid of the Attorney-General to make legal a bylaw of that city granting $10,000 to a street car factory, the bylaw not receiving the requisite number of votes through a misunderstanding as to the number required.

Messrs. C. E. Britton of Gananoque and J. C. Judd of Toronto wanted to know what Mr. Hardy was going to do with regard to the jurisdiction, disputed between Dominion and Province, over the inland lake fisheries, and also what was the scope of the fish part of the Fish and Game Commission.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Three Persons Burned to Death and Many Fatally Hurt—Swarming Down the Fire Escape.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The five-story brick tenement 374 Allen-street, was gutted by fire at an early hour this morning. Three members of Bernard Jaster's family were burned to death. They were: Bernard Jaster, 56 years old; Betsy Jaster, 13 years old, and Sarah Jaster, 18 years old. The following people were more or less injured: Minnie Jaster, 50 years old, burned about the face; Abraham Goldstein three weeks old, thrown from a third-story window to the sidewalk and received internal injuries. The fire broke out at 3.15 o'clock, when the families were fast asleep. The tenants, Hebrew tailors with their families, to a man, roused suddenly to confront death in the most terrible form, swarmed down the fire escapes, shrieking and wailing as they called their dear ones. The ladders were thrown up hastily to drop them down, but some, in the confusion and smoke, missed both wood and iron ladders. The iron rungs of the fire escape were turning white with heat when Max Goldstein reached for them from the third floor and he recoiled in despair. He stood holding his little children. From the street the police yelled to him to throw them down. He threw the first one, Moses, aged five years, and Policeman Beyer caught the boy. Rose, the baby, came next. Abraham followed so quickly that, though the policeman broke his fall, they were unable to catch him. He fell heavily to the pavement and was picked up senseless, injured internally. The father himself jumped after and escaped unhurt. He tossed the children by the twos. The building was gutted and the tenants lost their all. In the fifth story next to the roof the firemen found Jaster and his two daughters dead. They found him kneeling at the window overlooking Allen-street with both hands on the sill, as though he had fallen overcome by the flames on the very threshold of escape. Under him, where she had crept up close in the hall of death, was the body of Bessie. Kneeling by the bed at the other side of the room they found the body of Sarah wrapped in a blanket. All had been burned and smothered to death.

The body of Philip Eisshisay, who lived with Mr. Goldstein, was found this evening. This makes the fourth body recovered.

Half a Million in Ashes.

DUNDEE, March 18.—Wilkes' linen works at Kirriemuir were burned to-day, loss $50,000.

Saved His Life by His Pluck.

PORT ARTHUR, March 18.—J. A. Hunter, brakeman on the Canadian Pacific Railway running between Fort William and White River, was in the act of descending the ladder while the train was in motion at Port Caldwell and had just put his foot on the last rung, when he slipped and fell to the ground, his feet on the rail and right under the wheel. By a superhuman effort he threw himself forward and grasped the brakebeam, drawing his body forward and his feet from under the wheels, but not before he had sustained severe injuries. The wheels had struck him, breaking one ankle and cutting and smashing his feet to a fearful extent. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he now lies.

The Cattle and Hog Embargo.

BERLIN, March 18.—Owing to the efforts of United States Minister Phelps Chancellor Von Caprivi has removed the embargo placed upon American cattle landed at Hamburg, and it is likely Mr. Phelps will be able to obtain removal of the restrictions placed upon the importation of the American hog.

ZANZIBAR, March 18.—Tippoo Tib has been stricken with paralysis, his right arm and side being affected.

800 Operatives in Peril.

ELIZABETH, N.J., March 18.—The works of the Elizabeth Cordage Company, comprising several brick structures covering 20 acres of ground, were totally destroyed by fire this afternoon, involving a loss of $700,000. There were 800 operatives in the buildings, all of whom escaped.

PRISONERS REVOLT

OWING TO A SHORTAGE OF FOOD SUPPLIES.

Interesting Irish Items—"Ireland as a Nation"—Healey Accepts Parnell's Challenge for a Joint Resignation of Their Seats to Test the Electorate.

LONDON, March 18.—A train loaded with provisions for the prisoners and officials of Dartmoor Prison, who had been cut off from supplies by the terrible snowstorm here recently, reached the prison to-day after being blocked for 9 days. In the meantime the rations of the inmates of the prison had to be reduced and there was considerable grumbling among the convicts because they were forced to subsist on salt meat. One prisoner became so angered because his demands for food were not granted that he stabbed and seriously wounded one of the warders.

PELTED WITH STONES.

Two of Parnell's Speakers Driven Away by the People.

DUBLIN, March 18.—Messrs. Dalton and Hayden, Parnellite members of Parliament, attempted to-day to address the throng at the Portumna fair. Their efforts were not well received and they were warned to desist. The crowd began to grow ugly; still the members persisted. At first mud was thrown at them, then they were pelted with stones, and finally they were driven out of town and compelled to fly for their lives. Mr. Dalton was struck on the head by a heavy paving stone and seriously hurt.

"Ireland a Nation."

LONDON, March 18.—Justin McCarthy presided at a banquet last evening at the Canon St. Hotel. There was a large attendance and many ladies present. Cardinal Manning wrote: "Two motives prompted me to be with you, the first my old and tried sympathy for Ireland; the second, my joy at the sudden rise of an organization which more than any party or league hitherto existing represents the religious, social and national life of Ireland." The Cardinal then proceeded to endorse the action of the new party. Mr. McCarthy, proposing the toast "Ireland a Nation," said every day which passed counted for their side and for the nation's cause against the desires of any small party of men. They stood for "Ireland a Nation."

Parnellite Paragraphs.

BELFAST, March 18.—Parnell made an onslaught upon Belfast this morning. The News of this city belongs to the proprietors of The Freeman's Journal of Dublin, which strongly supports Parnell. The News recently has not been enthusiastic in its advocacy of Parnell's leadership, consequently the editor was dismissed to-day and a Parnellite appointed in his place.

CORK, March 18.—Maurice Healey, one of the members of Parliament for Cork city, announces that he accepts the challenge of Parnell that they should both resign their seats in Parliament and present themselves for re-election as a test of the popular sentiment.

In accepting Parnell's challenge Healey requested Parnell to name the date under which they were both to resign their seats in parliament, and says he hopes that Parnell will not resort to "committee from No. 15 or Boulogne tactics" to escape the judgment of the electors.

Speaking at Lambeth to-day Mr. McCarthy credited Parnell with the full blame for the failure of the Boulogne negotiations. He said one good result of the controversy was that Ireland had declared for ever against dictatorship. If the Irish were to be governed by a dictator he would as lief have Balfour as anybody else.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Offer of That Province to Britain Will be Accepted.

LONDON, March 18.—In its final report the Parliamentary Committee on Colonization does not advise a general extension of the system of state aided emigration except in case of the congested districts in Scotland and Ireland.

The committee suggests that the provisions of the Irish land bill dealing with the question of congested districts be also applied to Scotland. They advise that the experiment of sending a hundred crofter families to America be postponed, and also advise the adoption of the proposal of British Columbia to furnish £100,000 from the treasury, free of interest for five years, to assist in the work of colonization.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

Jack Burns Says He Needs Work to Keep Him from Mischief.

LONDON, March 18.—A lively scene occurred at the meeting of the London County Council to-night in the course of the council's discussion of the matter of opening the new Waterloo Park, which the Prince of Wales has undertaken to formally dedicate to public uses.

When the question came fairly before the meeting a Radical member offered a motion that the ceremony of opening the park be postponed until the Prince of Wales shall have cleared himself of the baccarat scandal. In an instant there was a tremendous uproar. Every member was on his feet and all were talking at once.

Finally John Burns obtained a hearing and made a characteristic speech against royalty in general and the Prince of Wales in particular. The Prince, he declared, would be much better employed in opening parks than in gambling, and the city ought to provide for hospitals and asylums to keep him out of mischief. After speaking in this strain for a few minutes storms was howled down and the chairman, Sir John Lubbock, ruled the motion out of order.

Newfoundland to Have a Delegate.

LONDON, March 18.—Sir James Fergusson, Political Secretary of the Foreign Office, in the House of Commons to-day, replying to a question on the subject, said that the Government of Newfoundland had been invited to name a delegate having full local knowledge of the lobster fisheries dispute to represent the colony of Newfoundland on the Board of Arbitration which is to decide upon the differences existing between the English and French Governments as to these fisheries.

Five Members of an Italian Committee Killed.

ROME, March 18.—While the members of a committee appointed for the purpose were crossing a footbridge yesterday to examine the site for the annual cattle show held at Ceffiari, the structure collapsed, carrying the men with it. Five of the committee were killed and the others seriously injured.

Cut His Throat With a Penknife.

WATFORD, March 18.—The neighborhood of King's Court, near Watford, was startled yesterday to hear that a young man named Walter Lewis had attempted to commit suicide. Lewis is employed in the mill there. He had dressed himself in the morning, intending to go to Watford, and left the house to get something in the barn. Later he was found in the stable with his throat cut from ear to ear, the weapon used being a small penknife No reason can be assigned for the deed.

THE LOSS OF THE UTOPIA.

NEARLY 600 ITALIAN EMIGRANTS DROWNED.

Frightful Struggles for Life—A Howling Tempest Adds to the Horrors of the Scene—Full Particulars of the Disaster.

GIBRALTAR, March 18, 5 p.m.—Not until now has it been possible to give a full and authentic account of the sinking of the Utopia, the failing light making it difficult last night to see from the shore what was going on at the scene of the disaster, and the terrible gale making it almost impossible to communicate with the vessels until a late hour to-day. Early last evening the Utopia was seen steaming into the bay in the direction of the anchorage. When abreast of the ironclad Anson the Utopia staggered as though unable to make headway against the terrible current. Suddenly the strong gale combined with the current swept the ill-fated vessel across the bows of the Anson and in a moment her hull was pierced and cut by the ram of the ironclad. The Utopia, after pulling clear of the ironclad, drifted about before wind and sea. The rapid in-rush of water through the dent in her side caused her to settle down in five minutes from the time of the first impact. The Anson's boats were lowered immediately, as were also boats from the other vessels—the British Channel squadron, the Swedish man-of-war Freya and the cable ship Amboy. The ironclads turned their powerful electric search lights on the scene of the disaster to assist the rescuers. On the shore the news spread quickly, an enormous crowd soon gathered on the parade and great excitement prevailed. Little could be seen, however, save the looming hulls of the men-of-war and the white rays of the search lights falling upon the foam-flecked crests of the waves and illuminating the driving spindrift. The shrieks of the Utopia's passengers and crew could be plainly heard above the roaring of the gale. The sea was so heavy that the boats of the rescuers could not with safety approach the wreck, so they were compelled to lie to leeward, where they picked up the people as they were swept from the decks. As the Utopia's bows settled a terrible scene was witnessed from the boats. Those still on board the sinking steamer made a sudden rush en masse to the fore rigging, struggling for their lives and vainly seeking places of refuge. Twenty minutes later the forecastle was submerged and a large number of persons gathered there, who had not dared to leap overboard with the hope of being rescued by the boats and who had failed in their efforts to ascend the rigging, were carried away by the waves. The rescuers, blinded by the wind and rain, saw nothing but a confused struggling mass of human beings entangled with wreckage. A steam pinnacle rescued all those who had taken refuge in the main rigging, but the last ones were not taken off until 11 o'clock at night. They were so exhausted that they could do nothing for themselves. The blue jackets clambered into the shrouds and passed the helpless people to the rescuers in the boats. Both the British and the Swedish sailors did plucky and vigorous work. While a steam pinnace belonging to the British ironclad Immortalite was engaged in the work of rescue her screw fouled and she became helpless and drifted on the rocks. In trying to save themselves two of the sailors aboard the pinnace were drowned. The remainder were rescued.

Scenes of Horror.

The scene after the collision has probably never been before witnessed in the history of marine disasters. On one side was the sinking passenger ship crowded with about 700 immigrants, who filled the air with wild, horrible appeals for help and shrieks of terror as they saw death awaiting them in the dark angry waters of the Bay of Gibraltar. Overhead the clouds rushed furiously, driven along by the strong south-west gale, which had been one of the causes of the calamity. Right and left of the sinking vessel were the two monster battle ships, the Rodney and the Anson, pouring the light of their powerful electric reflectors upon the disabled steamship, lighting up the agony of her passengers and showing clearly, too clearly, the terrible position in which they were placed. Here and there were the warships, small boats manned by blue jackets, who strained every nerve as they bent to their oars in that heavy sea while striving gallantly to reach the drowning passengers of the Utopia.

576 Lives Lost.

The total number of lives lost is now placed at 576. Divers are at work recovering bodies from the wreck. Peterson, a Swedish quartermaster, who had been steering the Utopia a short time before the collision, says that just before the vessels came together he went below. While there he felt the shock of the collision and rushed from below, but before he reached the main deck the Utopia had gone broadside upon the spur of the Anson's ram. The commander of the Utopia, Captain McKeague, was on the steamship's bridge until the last moment. Peterson adds that as the Utopia was crushed by the Anson's ram he clambered up the davits of one of the steamship's boats and cut the ropes holding it. He had no time, however, to lower the boat away, as the bows of the Utopia had passed beneath the warship, and it was evident the passenger steamer was rapidly sinking. Soon after, the boats of the Anson having been promptly lowered, one of the man-of-war's cutters ran alongside the Utopia and Peterson jumped into her. He says that while on board the Utopia after the collision he was surrounded by a terrible mass of human beings, fighting their way desperately and savagely, regardless of sex or age, towards the boats. Men, women and children tumbled and climbed over each other in that horrible fight for a chance of escape from drowning.

Went Mad from Grief.

One poor woman who was rescued by the Anson's blue jackets went raving mad when she was convinced her children were drowned. There were similarly distressing incidents by the score, the most awful of all occurring when the Utopia, with a final desperate lurch, sank with her human freight clinging about her. Many who had sprung into sea as they saw the steamship could not float much longer were drawn down in the whirlpool caused by the Utopia's disappearance. Some came to the surface again for a few moments before sinking finally into their watery tomb. Others were able to cling to pieces of wreckage, floating spars, oars, guardrings, hatchways, boats, life belts, etc., and thus keeping themselves above water until rescued by warship's boats. But the weaker succumbed more readily. Shrieking, praying women sank to rise no more with their terrified offspring clasped to their breasts. Children clung to their parents so desperately as in several cases to cause the death of both, where both might have escaped had better judgment been used. Husbands and wives sank while grasping each other in frantic efforts to keep each other afloat, and many a good swimmer went down with some horrified, fear-maddened person clinging to him with the tenacity of the desperation of death.

Among Utopia's officers and petty officers who were saved by the boats of the war ships were Captain McKeague, the ship's doctor, boatswain, steward and carpenter.

The rescued passengers were most kindly cared for on board the warship or were taken ashore and housed in the Government building. A naval court of enquiry will be convened on board the flagship Anson, Ninety bodies have been recovered.

The authorities of Gibraltar are furnishing the rescued people lodging, food and clothing. The Anchor Line will take steps to forward the Utopia's survivors to their destination in the United States by another steam ship of their line.

The passengers rescued included W. T. Collbron, a stock broker of New York city, C. C. Davis of Boston is missing. The officers and crew of the Anson state that the Utopia foundered [illegible]

Will Probably Not Be Allowed to Land.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The agents here of the Anchor line to-day received the following report regarding the disaster to the steamer Utopia:

The list of the saved embraces two cabin passengers, 230 steerage passengers and 25 of the crew. Fifteen of the crew and 475 passengers were lost. The ship was not insured. The cargo, intended for Mediterranean ports, was valued at $300,000 and the steamship at $400,000. The passengers saved will be brought over on the steamship Assyria of the same line, which was at Genoa at the time of the accident and has been ordered to Gibraltar.

By this delay the Utopia's passengers will not arrive here until after the new law, that no immigrant without personal effects shall be permitted to land, goes into effect. Col. Webber said to-day that the survivors of the Utopia would be probably examined at Gibraltar and the destitute and sick and crippled be left behind, only those with baggage and able to take care of themselves being brought. The Anchor Line was notified by Col. Webber of these facts.

The Utopia belonged to the Anchor Line Steamship Company. She was an iron screw steamer 3,744 tons displacement, 563 horse-power, built in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1874. She was commanded by Captain Mitchell.

Peculiar Accident

PORT ARTHUR, March 18.—John Wright, who resides at Fort William, is now lying in the hospital here suffering from a portion of a darning needle imbedded in one of his legs. It appears that he and a companion were scuffling and Wright, who had a ball of yarn and darning needle in his pocket, fell and the needle ran into the leg and broke. He was brought to the hospital last week, and the attendant physician has so far been unable to extract the piece of steel.

Resulted Fatally.

MONTREAL, March 18.—The man Myers, who was stabbed in Buckey & Reynolds' pool room by one of the proprietors, died to-day at the general hospital. Shortly before his death he made a deposition accusing Reynolds of the murder. The latter is at large, having disappeared before any action was taken in the matter.

Wilfred Brisbois, who fell from a 3-story building while repairing some telephone lines Monday, died at the Notre Dame Hospital this morning.

A Fatal Flaw in the Law.

MONTREAL, March 18.—The first case under the new Thompson Act, which says that any man living in conjugal union with another man's wife is guilty of concubinage, was tried to-day by the Court of Queen's Bench in Appeal. It was decided that conjugal union meant in law the marriage tie, and as there was no marriage there was no charge under the act. The case was accordingly dismissed.

FARMERS' INSTITUTE MEETING.

The second meeting of the series of 1891 of the Farmers' Institute of West Peterborough, will be held in the town hall, Lakefield, on Thursday, March 24th. There will be three sessions; morning at 10 o'clock, afternoon at 2 o'clock, and evening at 7.30 o'clock. The following prominent agriculturists and distinguished specialists will be present:—Hon. John Dryden, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario; Mr. J. J. Hobson, chairman of the Ontario Agricultural College board; Mr. Craig, horticulturist of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and Mr. T. Shutt, agricultural chemist of the same institution. In addition, papers will be read by the following local gentlemen—by Mr. G. J. Galvin, "On the Cultivation and Value of Roots"; by Mr. R. E. Birdsall, on "Permanent Pastures," and by Mr. Geo. Hilliard, on "Ranching in this County." The subject of sugar-beet culture will also form a subject for discussion. The EXAMINER has much pleasure in giving considerable prominence to this meeting, both on account of the importance of the programme to be presented and on the general account of the value and importance of Farmers' Institutes. These cannot be very well over-estimated. There are thousands of farmers who can bear personal and practical testimony to the benefits they have received from the proceedings of these institute meetings. One great and chief benefit, from which all others naturally flow is the increased interest they have led farmers to take in their calling. Increased interest has led to investigation; investigation involves study, inquiry, and thirst for knowledge of better methods, better seeds, better forms of culture, better marketting etc,, and it requires no argument to show that the best of results have followed in due and natural sequence. This is essentially the age of farming machinery, but it is not by any means the age of "machine' farming—the successful tiller of the soil must not be content with the labor of his hands, he must use his head or he will fall behind in the race. No intelligent farmer can afford to despise the advantages which attendance at Farmers' Institutes involves.

The coming meeting at Lakefield will be one of especial interest. We have three or four representatives of the two great institutions maintained by two governments in the interests of the farmers; besides the discussion of the sugar beet question has a particularly pertinent and practical interest to the farmers of this district at the present time. It is to be hoped that a very large attendance of farmers will be seen at the meeting at Lakefield on March 24th.

The Gospel Story.

Thoughts Upon the Four Gospels—An Earnest Address by the Rector of Holy Trinity.

The sixth of the series of Lenten sermons at St. John's Church was delivered Wednesday night by Rev. C. H. Mockridge, D.D., of Holy Trinity, Toronto, on the subject, "The Beginnings of the Gospel." The Bible, he said, was a most wonderful book, in that it was more widely sought after, had a larger circulation, and was translated into more languages than any other in existence. He would deal with the latter part of it, the New Testament, which told the simple story of the life of Christ in the most simple language, so that the poorest and most illiterate could understand it and draw comfort from it, though it contained researches the most wonderful in the world. For this reason scholars were vainly trying to analyze it and throw doubt upon the genuineness of the four Gospels. One set of men say the books are so much alike that they appear to be copies of each other, while others contend that the gospels differ so greatly that they contradict each other. But both arguments cannot consistently be used to prove the same thing. These arguments as a result simply show that there is that in the Gospels which CANNOT BE DISPROVED.

Turn them whatever way you will, they still point upward, and tell us that God made us and Christ saved us. In speaking of the beginnings of the Gospel, at the outset there was a thought worthy of consideration. The Gospels profess to give the life of a certain person, and were simply biographies of Him. What was the idea each of these writers had with regard to the starting point in Christ's life? They were all different, and we cannot conceive of them having anything to do with each other, yet as a whole they are complete and given a continuous story. St. Mark speaks first of Christ as the Son of God, and John as his forerunner, and then plunges at once into the history of his official life. If we had only St. Mark's Gospel we would know nothing of Christ's antecedents or childhood. St. Mark does not note anything but Christ's wonderful life work, deeming that the all-important matter. St. Matthew takes us back to the days of Abraham, and gives us the genealogy of Christ's ancestors. His idea was that the wonderful life he was going to unfold was connected with the old Jewish dispensation, that the gospel began further back than the mere beginning of Christ's work, and that work rested on a solid foundation, on the foundation of Moses and the prophets; and that these things were to be brought prominently before the eyes of those who were expected to afterward believe in Him. In St. Matthew's gospel Christ appears as crowned with

GOD'S GREAT DESIGN.

Abraham was the commencement of the most wonderful people on this earth, the Jewish nation, a people with out a country, and their country without a people; yet they can never be destroyed, and though scattered over the world to-day, they do not intermarry but remain Jews to the last. Then St. Luke's work was the work of a scholar. It contains a great deal the other gospels do not. St. Luke's gospel contains some beautiful things. The third chapter traces Christ's ancestors back right to "Adam, which was the Son of God." Jesus Christ was the only person for whom was ever worked out the claim that He was a direct lineal descendant of Adam. St. Luke gives the name of each connecting link from Adam down to Jesus Christ. How beautiful the reasoning here? Before the fall, Adam might well have been called the Son of God, and Jesus, as the lineal descendant of Adam, was entitled to the same name. When some horrible crime is committed we ask, is it possible such a fiend can be created in the divine image? And again, when we look at the beautiful works of charity, the self-sacrificing lives of some individuals, we say, after all, it is true, a being like that may be made in the image of God. And so in man himself there seems to be the proof of his right to call himself because he is a son of Adam; that he fell, and that one time the evil shows itself in all its forms, but at others the good shines out in all its glory. That is the principle laid down by St. Luke, that Jesus, the Son of God, as the Son of Adam was also entitled to that name. In St. John's book there were few things told in the others. His contains a minute account of Christ's mind, and who was better able to know the Saviour's thoughts than John, the favored of the disciples. His idea of the beginning of the Gospel is given in the grand words, "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by Him, and without Him was nothing made that was made." Here was the divinity of our Lord emphasized St. John evidently means by "the Word" our Saviour for he says "the Word was made flesh and blood and dwelt among us." No genealogy is given, but the idea is fixed that Christ and God were blended together in the beginning. So scholars have busied themselves with these marvelous books trying to unravel the mystery. It is this history we should study, this life we should love, this work should cling to our hearts and give the world to know that we were, like Jesus, sons of God. Christ's life should ever be our guide.

A SON OF GOD,

Our Hope Depends on Woman.

The best physicians in Canada know well that women of all ranks and conditions suffer more or less from nervous troubles. The keen, practised eye can detect the nervous woman on the street, in church, or in the home. Women who are thus afflicted with weak nerves and twitching muscles, know of their infirmity; and many of them endeavour to isolate themselves from society and the world. This nervousness, if unchecked and unheeded, will soon develop into serious troubles, the results of which are terrible to contemplate. Science has brought to such afflicted women this great brain and nerve builder and strengthener, Paine's Celery Compound, which, if used, will surely banish every trace of nervousness, and strengthen every twitching muscle. It will build up a vigorous and strong constitution, and give a rosy glow of health to the pallid and faded cheek. Women of Canada, you owe a duty to your family, to the community, and to your country! Our future greatness as a nation depends upon your vigor and health. Paine's Celery Compound will supply your needs and enable you to enjoy life, and you will thus become a joy to all around you.

Killed by a Train

MAXVILLE, March 17.—Walter Shane, reeve of Pendleton, was driving a team of horses on a cross road near the station and just as the animals were crossing the track the train from Montreal due to pass that place at 11.30 came up, smashed the pole and threw the team on one side. The sleigh was dragged along with the engine till it was smashed to pieces, the reeve having no time to get out of the sleigh and receiving a severe blow on the head from the front part of the engine, from which he died in the course of 15 minutes.

The Mafia Promise Revenge.

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—Parkerson has received the following note, purporting to come from a member of the Mafia society: "Mafia warning.—You are a doomed man and God Almighty cannot save you. We have it sworn. Our comrades you murdered, and we will kill you and your family. You will be poisoned. The stiletto will do for the rest."

The Mafia in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Frank T. Hagadorn stood on the street to-day waiting for a car. Three Italians were near him. Hagadorn talked of the New Orleans lynching and said every member of the Mafia should be hung. The Italians at once drew knives and attacked him. He was severely cut.

Deserved Their Fate.

LONDON, March 17.—The St. James Gazette says it is curious to find the people of Italy lamenting the death of the Mafia conspirators at New Orleans. They were wretches who had been driven out of their own country as pests of society. The grief of the Marquis di Rudini for the men who were lynched will not be long or very profound. If the Mafias had not emigrated they would have received equally short shrift from Sicilian vigilantes.

Premature Explosion and Death.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 17.—A premature explosion of powder occurred at the Beadle colliery at Girardville this morning, killing and blowing to pieces William Mulhern and Richard Craddock and seriously injuring two others.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Price 50c. and $1, Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by acidiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health."—Mrs. A. McCullough, Digby, N. S. 2w11d

Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jas. Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc, Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

Rough Skin.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in price. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

391 GEORGE STREET.

PROF. KOCH AT HOME.

THE DAILY LIFE OF THE NOTED BERLIN BACTERIOLOGIST.

The House He Lives in—Something About His Family—Personal Habits in Living and Recreation—A Thorough Student and a Modest Man.

DR. KOCH.

One of the new streets in the Northwestern part of Berlin, leading to the beautiful and well kept park of the German capital, the Thiergarten, is called the Brucken Allee. The location of the street is not ultra-fashionable, but highly respectable, the neighborhood being inhabited principally by well-to-do people, officials of higher degree, retired merchants and kindred people.

Situated on this street, in close vicinity to the Bellevue street station of the city railroad, and but a few feet from the entrance to the Thiergarten, is a handsome house, three stories high, built of brick, with a front finely finished in white sandstone and surrounded by a few trees and modest grounds. There is not much traffic in the street, but when people pass this house—its number is 39—they stop for a moment or two and look with interest at the row of closely curtained windows in the second story, for those windows belong to the apartments of the man who at the present time monopolizes the attention of the whole civilized world, to Dr. Robert Koch, the celebrated medical discoverer.

IT IS NO EASY MATTER.

for a stranger to gain admittance to the flat occupied by Dr. Koch and his family. Those who are favored with a glimpse at Dr. Koch's family life carry away impressions of the most agreeable kind. Dr. Koch, who, like his seven brothers, one of whom resides in St. Louis, Mo., was born in the well-known mining town of Clansthal, in the Hartz Mountains, where his ancestors for generations occupied prominent positions as mining officials, married while a young practitioner an accomplished lady, and although he is but 47 years of age, his oldest daughter by this union

IS MARRIED ALREADY.

She joined in wedlock Dr. Pfuhl, the most trusted assistant of Dr. Koch in his scientific pursuits, in fact the only one who from the start was initiated in all the particulars of the present work. Besides Mrs. Pfuhl Dr. Koch has two more children, a son and a daughter, who, with their mother, make his home a happy one.

The apartments they occupy are neither numerous nor large and consist of a row of three parlors, a dining-room, the Doctor's study and the necessary bed-rooms. Modest like the head of the family and all it members, is their establishment; the furniture is not showy of costliness but handsome, good and solid, and tastefully arranged in the rooms designated for social intercourse and the reception of friends. The presence of a magnificent piano in one of the parlors indicates Mrs. Koch's fondness for music and good oil paintings on the walls of the room some of them by the best modern masters prove conclusively the finely developed artistic instinct that led to their selection. The doctor's studio, a large sunny room on the two wind ows opening on the garden in the rear of the house contains his well-stocked library, consisting of German, English, French and some Italian works on different departments of the medical sciences, especially on contagious diseases and bacteriology, on chemistry and physics.

THE WALLS ARE DECORATED

with portraits of Dr. Koch's parents, to which he was devotedly attached, members of the family, celebrated physicians, and university friends, and pictures from his travels in Egypt and India, where he was sent by the German Government to investigate the cholera question. A large collection of interesting bric-a-brac, beautiful furs, and handsome arms has been also used in the stylish adornment of the cosy study.

Dr. Koch's early breakfast consists of a little gruel and a piece of toasted rye bread. He is not in the habit of taking luncheon, and eats nothing from the time of his first meal, up to his return home from the laboratory 2 p.m., then dinner is served in a very peculiar manner: there is first a roast, then some sweet dish, and at the end a soup. At 8 o'clock sharp, a horse from a livery stable in the neighborhood of the Doctor's house, is led to the residence by a hostler. It is an old animal with very few claims to beauty. The Doctor mounts and trots at a rather lively gait through the picturesque drives of the Thiergarten. This recreation lasts an hour, and by 4 o'clock the famous savant returns to his laboratory, where he continues to work until 8. After concluding the day's labors he again goes home, where a rather elaborate supper is awaiting him, consisting of fish, three or four different kinds of meat, game, and dessert. At his meals the Doctor drinks large quantities of mineral water, sometimes mixed with wine. Intimate friends he likes to see as guests at supper, when some hours are spent in earnest conversation.

THIS IS THE TIME

when Dr. Koch, the man, not the scientific worker, may be seen to the best advantage, and his company is then most enjoyable. He is very polished in his manners, fond of a good joke, and knows equally well how to tell and appreciate a good story. But there is one thing he does not like, that is to be interrogated in the midst of his scientific pursuits and discoveries by people who do not know anything about what he is at, and from lack of knowledge bother him with foolish questions for curiosity sake.

The personal appearance of the man is a surprise to everybody. He is small, and his figure is rather delicate; his complexion is light, and he has a magnificent head, with a splendidly developed forehead and large blue eyes, sparkling with intellect. Like many men who have gained prominence in the scientific world, Dr. Koch has not much hair, but a rather luxuriant beard and a mustache of ample proportions. He wears gold spectacles, which he is in the habit of pushing up and down a little occasionally. Exceedingly pleasant is his face when he smiles.

Dr. Koch likes to speak of the days of his youth, which he passed under favorable circumstances. His parents were not wealthy by any means, but they lived in comfortable surroundings. While at college in Clausthal, his native city, he was much liked by his companions, and readily [illegible] them

IN THEIR YOUTHFUL PLEASURES.

Although belonging to a family of social prominence and high standing in the community, he did not consider it beneath his dignity to associate with young men who had sprung from the lower walks of life, providing their character and habits suited his taste. He became a member of a society formed by the pupils of the Gymnasium in Clausthal, and even joined a glee club, but, according to his own words, failed to achieve distinction in the latter capacity.

Altogether it appears that true to his modest and retiring disposition Koch never aspired to the part of a leader among the companions of his youth.

Dr. Koch was 10 years of age when he became a medical student at the University of Gottigen in 1862. At that time some very eminent men were connected as professors with the facility, as, for instance, the chemist Friedrich Wohler, the physiologist Rudolf Wagner, the anatomist T. Henle, who was first to claim that contagious diseases originated from parasites living in the human body. The high intellectual qualities of Koch were soon appreciated by the professors in Gottingen, for as early as 1865 he received the first prize for a medical treatise of importance, and in the same year, although still a student, he was appointed assistant to the pathological museum connected with the university.

AT THE CONCLUSION

of his studies, in 1866, he passed the examination with great distinction, and, after an employment of short duration in the capacity of assistant physician in a Hamburg hospital, he practised his profession in some of the little German country towns. At the beginning of the Franco-Prussian war, Dr. Koch went to the front as surgeon of a Prussian regiment. Peace being concluded, he returned to practice in a small Silesian town called Wollstein.

Here Dr. Koch, excluded from all connection with the scientific world at large, spent most of his time in bacteriological investigations, that led to the most important discovery of the "bacillus anthracis," the cause of anthrax or carbuncle. He kept his work a profound secret till it was entirely completed, and by its publication in 1876, caused a great sensation in the medical world. Dr. Koch is the author of thirty scientific essays and reports, most of which appeared in the leading medical journals of Germany, and have been translated into other modern languages

If the Printer is Paid Promptly and his Pocket Book kept Plethoric by Prompt Paying Patrons he Puts his Pen to his Paper in Peace; his Paragraphs are more Pointed; he Paints his Pictures of Passing events in more Pleasing colors, and the Perusal of his Paper is a Pleasure to the People. The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Meeting of Fruit Growers.

Attention is again called to the meeting to be held under the auspices of the Fruit Growers' Association next Tuesday in the town council chamber. The morning session opens at ten o'clock. All interested in fruit growing, or those who have any information to give concerning fruit, as well as persons directly engaged in fruit growing, are invited to attend, give their opinions and information and listen to the addresses of others. Secretary Woolverton, of Grimsby; Mr. Allan, of Toronto; Mr. Beall, of Lindsay; and other prominent fruit growers have promised to attend. The meeting will, no doubt, result in a revival of interest in fruit culture, the great possibilities of which will be laid before those who attend next Tuesday's meetings.

Annual Meeting Board of Trade.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade will be held to-night in the council chamber. The EXAMINER would emphasize the necessity of the existence in Peterborough of a strong, active, aggressive and representative Board of Trade. For this reason it would almost be superfluous to urge a full attendance of the members. There are several projects in a more or less defined condition whose promotion will receive most effective assistance from the Board of Trade and it is vitally necessary that the Board should not only be retained in its present integrity, but strengthened for the important functions the present and immediate future demands from it in the interests of the town. The Board of Trade is a deliberative, investigating and advisory body, with the single object of promoting the commercial, industrial and material interests of the town. Every good member works to his utmost in this direction, and suffers no matter foreign to this end to influence his actions. Let there be a good live business attendance to-night at the annual meeting.

A Site Secured.

The beautiful corner lot, corner of George and Murray streets, opposite Central Park, 60x100 in area, has been secured as the site of the new building—the permanent home—of the Young Men's Christian Association of Peterborough. A building will be erected thereon, combining all the accommodation, appliances and conveniences which the experience of nearly half a century suggests as necessary to the complete performance of the work of the Association. The estimated cost of site, building and furnishings, is $22,000, of which $15,000 is represented by the legacy of Mrs. Nicholls—leaving $7,000 to be contributed by the citizens of the town. Plans are now being prepared for the building, which, it is hoped, will be completed and occupied before the close of this year.

A Business Departure.

Peterborough has lost one of its most pushing and enterprising young citizens in the person of Mr. Bernard Gough, who has gone to Brantford and established a store in that rising city, a mirror to the one with which he was connected here. But what is our loss is Brantford's gain. As one of the famous firm of Gough Bros., the lively hustlers of the clothing trade, Mr. Bernard Gough has gained a reputation for push and business ability. The same alone ought to be sufficient to open up a successful business future for him. The name is a synonym for success, and everyone and everything identified with the firm is stamped with the same energy, shrewdness and business ability which has characterized Gough Bros. throughout their career. From a very small beginning the business has grown to immense proportions so day they own two of the finest stores in Peterborough, with a depth of 130 feet, and do an annual retail trade of about $100,000. In addition to this they own a large establishment in Toronto, which is managed with the same success as has been attained here. Mr. Bernard Gough has been with the firm about five years, and has developed the most thorough business talents. He was a popular young man and good citizen, and enjoyed the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends. In Brantford he will doubtless push the business for all it is worth, and if the people of that city and district don't have their eyes opened as to what can be done in the way of knocking out competition and giving bargains in the clothing trade, it will be because they are too slow to appreciate their opportunities. "Death to high prices," the aggressive motto of the firm in Peterborough, will be Mr. Bernard Gough's shibboleth in Brantford. The EXAMINER wishes him every success.

The Scottish Singers.

Another Grand Musical Event at the Opera House.

This has been a stirring week in musical circles in Peterborough, and lovers of song have had a couple of rare treats presented for their delectation. Following closely upon the St. Patrick's Day concert came the long-looked-for visit of MacLennan's Royal Edinburgh Concert Company, a group of Scottish singers who have been warmly received everywhere throughout their present Canadian tour. They were greeted by a rather small audience in Peterborough, but what is lacked in size is amply made up in enthusiasm. This last is probably the best of the many Scotch companies which have visited this country, and they are worthy of all the good things said of them by the Canadian press. Their voices have withstood the trying Canadian climate remarkably well. Last night's entertainment fulfilled all the high expectations that had had been formed of it, and a better satisfied audience, it is safe to say, never left the opera house. The company comprises two male and three female vocalists, a violinist and a dancer, the latter, Mr. Wm. MacLennan, being the impresario of the troupe. The quartettes were grand numbers, and the solos equally so in almost every instance. Mr. James Fleming has a magnificent bass voice, rich as it is powerful. His singing evidently gave the greatest pleasure. Miss Edith Ross is the same contralto who appeared with the Balmoral choir in past seasons, and she enhanced her reputation on this occasion. Miss Alice Steel is a good leading soprano, and Mr. Finlayson's tenor is apparently not as good as it has been some years ago, though it is yet clear and strong. Mr. Ferguson's comic song and humorous recitation were both good, the latter, "James Kaye's Visit to Queen Victoria," though rather long, kept the audience in continuous laughter. Mr. Jules Guilton is one of the best violinists that has ever appeared here, ranking almost as high as our own De Seva. The graceful dancing of Mr. MacLennan contained revelations of "the human form divine," his sailor's hornpipe in particular being highly pleasing.

In fact every number on the programme was encored, in a number of instances responses being made to gratify the enthusiastic appreciation of the audience.

Following was the programme:—

Quartette—"Hail Smiling Morn"..... Spofforth
Misses Steel and Ross, Messrs. Finlayson and Fleming
Song—"Blue Bonnets over the Border"..... Lane (Scotch)
Mr. James Fleming
Aria—"Bel Raggio." Semiramide..... Rossini

Patrons of Industry.

A County Organization Formed—The Provincial Organizer Here.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of farmers of Peterborough county was held in the new market building Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of organizing a county association of the Patrons of Industry. Probably the farmers know more about the society when the newspaper men can tell them. It is a secret association, and briefly told its objects are to bind farmers and laboring men together to protect their interests, improve their markets and fight combines and every other thing that is contrary to their interests. Farmers have so far been the only unorganized class of men, and just a year ago the Patrons of Industry were established. To-day there are 60 granges and organizations from Sarnia to Quebec. The farmers are apparently taking hold of the idea of organization, and see in it a means to improve their condition. There are 1 200 members of the association in this county alone. Mr. Richard Beck, a pushing young farmer of Middlesex county, has been to this district a couple of months and has organized 26 township societies. The Association is entirely non political, and farmers and workingmen are eligible for membership.

The meeting Wednesday afternoon was conducted with closed doors, only members being admitted. There were over 500 men and somewhere about 75 ladies present. Mr. Brock explained the object and operations of the Association, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. A number of committees were appointed and these officers of the County Association elected:

PRESIDENT.—John Lang, ex-M.P., Otonabee.

VICE-PRESIDENT.—Wm. Quinn, Douro.

SECRETARY.—F. W. Glyde, Otonabee.

TREASURER.—M. Sullivan, Dummer.

SENTINEL.—A. Whibbs, Indian River.

The Northumberland Election Frauds.

Tory Tactics to "Rush the Grits"—Tampering With the Ballots—A Just Judge Defeats the Plans of the Plotters.

The Globe contains the following in reference to the enormity brought to light by the recount in the West Northumberland election matter:—

On Tuesday the recount began, at which H. F. Holland, barrister of this town, represented Mr. Guillet, the defeated candidate, and Mr. W. R. Riddell appeared for Mr. Hargraft. Mr. Hargraft also was present, but Mr. Guillet did not appear except by his counsel. In the very first polling subdivision, No. 1 Cobourg, six ballots were found not initialled by the deputy-returning officer, all of them being marked for Hargraft. As the scrutineers and the deputy-returning officer were all positive that no ballot had been placed in the ballot box without the initials of the deputy-returning officer, this seemed inexplicable. These ballots were laid aside by the judge to hear argument upon them. In the next polling subdivision, No. 2 Cobourg, no less than 19 ballots were found in the envelope, all marked for Hargraft, without the initials of the deputy-returning officer, and in addition to these seven marked for Hargraft had been defaced in various ways. These 26 were also laid aside for argument. Nothing further of an irregular character appeared until polling subdivision No. 10 of the Township of Hamilton was reached, when it was found that eight ballots, all marked for Hargraft, did not have the initials of the deputy-returning officer. In polling subdivision No. 19 of the township of Haldimand it was found that fifteen ballots all marked for Hargraft, had not the initials of the D.R.O. These uninitialled ballots on being more closely examined showed that the paper was slightly different from the other ballots, and that while the type appeared to be the same, the ink was somewhat blacker or heavier than that on the other ballots. The deputy returning officers and the scrutineers in each of these polling sub-divisions swore most positively that every ballot paper put into the ballot box had the initials of the deputy returning officer upon it. There cannot be the slightest doubt that after the ballots were returned to the returning officer a large number of ballot papers were taken out of the envelopes and forged, or counterfeit ballot papers substituted for them, and there can be no doubt that the ballot papers defaced in No. two, Cobourg, had also been defaced since the return of the papers to the returning officer.

The most intense excitement prevailed in Cobourg and throughout the riding as soon as the abominable fraud was brought to light, hundreds of farmers driving in to learn the truth of the matter. The argument upon the uninitialled ballots took place this afternoon. Mr. Guillet's counsel, Mr. Holland, used all the arguments he could think of to induce Judge Benson to reject these ballot. Judge Benson is not Judge Upper and he firmly refused to accede to the arguments of Mr. Holland, but followed the Supreme Court decision and his own precedent made in the East Northumberland re-count in 1888. The uninitialled ballots were allowed and five of the defaced ballots were disallowed, the net result being that Guillet just held his own on his ballots and Mr. Hargraft gained one on his, increasing the majority by one and making it 37. Had the frauds not been perpetrated Hargraft would have gained 7, making his majority 43.

Yesterday when the facts became public Mr. Guillet and his friends were talking magnanimously about Mr. Guillet's sense of honor, and that he would not take the seat if secured by fraud, but it is significant that Guillet's lawyer did all in his power to induce the judge to give Mr. Guillet the seat. " "

A feature worth noticing is that ex-Judge Clark last Thursday was in the office of the clerk of the County Court here, requesting that officer to find a decision of Judge Clark's own, made in 1882, where he held that ballots not initialled must be counted. Much curiosity is expressed as to what could have been the reason of the C. P. R. solicitor's anxiety to obtain that judgment.

The South Victoria Election Returns.

A Re-count Refused—The Matter Blocked for the Present.

LINDSAY, March 18.—Owing to a number of ballots marked for Waters, the Reform candidate, having been rejected by the partisan Tory deputy returning officers and other irregularities in the South Victoria election, the friends of Thomas Walters made application for a re-count and Walters' financial agent gave Wm. Grace, clerk of the court, his check for $100. Mr. Grace accepted the check and gave his receipt for $100 deposited as security for costs in pursuance of the statute. When proceedings were opened yesterday for re-count Fair. Bain's counsel objected to the nature of the deposit and Judge Dean adjourned the proceedings until 10 this morning to give his decision on the objection raised. The judge this morning held that the deposit was insufficient, but stated that he might be wrong, and if so the parties could by a simple proceeding obtain a mandamus and put him right.

Mr. Walters' counsel at once looked into the matter and found there was no power to give a mandamus, and again applied to the judge to reconsider the matter, which he refused to do.

Mr. Walters' counsel say they have no doubt that the deposit is perfectly good, and in fact that nearly all money deposited and put into courts is paid by check, as was done in this case, and that there is nothing in the statute requiring it to be paid in any particular way, as in the case of an election petition, which requires the money to be deposited in Dominion bills, and they say Judge Dean is simply adding a condition to the statute which is not in it; that Mr. Grace could take the deposit in any way he saw fit, and that having taken a check which was proved to have been perfectly good, and given his receipt for the $100, the mere fact of his not having cashed the check could not affect Mr. Walters. The Tories admitted their fear of a re-count, and it is generally understood that it was not so much the possibility of Fairbairn being counted out as the gross irregularities it would bring to light which caused their fear.

Norwood.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Learning that the post officials failed in some way to bring you my last budget of news, I venture to refer to some of the topics therein contained.

The elections are over, and by the official returns East Peterborough is lost to the Liberal ranks by 29 votes. Although Mr. Burnham's majority is very small, yet it is sufficient to disappoint the over confident Reformers. We believed up to the eve of the election that the campaign was being fought out on principle, but desperation drove the Tories to their usual tactics, and mean personalities were used against Mr. Rork. The result shows that money goes a long way further than common sense in winning an election campaign. In this village, for example, if we remove the tried and reliable Grits from the lists, the remaining voters, including imported and unduly influenced men, constituted the Tory ranks, and gave Mr. Burnham the majority which fell to him last 5th of March. However, East Peterborough must be redeemed, and it remains with the disfranchised young Liberals to bring about this reformation.

The May Bell Concert Company appeared here last week and gave an entertainment. Owing to election excitement the attendance was small. The concert was by no means first-class, and although the programme was very select, the presentation was no more than ordinary.

I.O.O.F.—A very pleasing entertainment was given by the above Order in the town hall on Tuesday, March 17th. A large and very select audience filled the seats, while the Rev. Mr. Peer occupied the chair. The performers were all home talent, and their rendition of the various selections did the village great credit. At different periods of the programme Mr. R. M. Roy, of Peterborough, displayed some beautiful views of Canada and the old world with a magnificent stereopticon. The programme was very entertaining throughout and reflects great credit on those who had it in hand.

The basket social given by the Presbyterian ladies at the house of Mr. Wm. Bargess, Belmont was a wonderful success. The attendance was larger, the enjoyment was greater, and the receipts were more gratifying that at any previous one. The next point of attack will be the house of Mr. Chas Nicoll, Dummer on Friday, March 20th.

Our Methodist friends gathered at Mr. S. Elliott's on Wednesday last, and spent a pleasant evening. The interest in these entertainments appears to be increasing.

A Paraphrase.

Lines Written to the Tune of the "Boston Burglar."

Come, sinners, come to Jesus,
And have your sins forgiven,
And travel in the path way
That leads from earth to heaven:
He'll give you joy and gladness,
And fill with peace and love,
And take you to the mansions
Prepared by Christ above.

Now hear His gentle pleadings
And listen to His voice;
Oh cease at once from sinning
And make the happy choice.
Choose Christ and His salvation,
Offered so free to all;
Oh don't reject His mercy
Or slight His gracious call!

Oh shun sinful companions
And go not in their way,
Avoid all evil customs
That would lead you astray;
Ask your Redeemer's guidance,
And His commands obey;
Now seek the one thing needful,
And work and watch and pray.

The way of the transgressor,
The Bible says, is hard,
But to the wise and faithful,
A sure and great reward.
Go in the way of wisdom,
For it will give you peace;
Its path will lead to heaven
And endless happiness.

Remember this, poor sinner,
How brief is life's short day;
Then give your heart to Jesus
And choose the narrow way.
The time to work, dear brother,
Will very soon be o'er—
The shades of night are gathering
When you can work no more.

Then haste, O haste to Jesus;
His arms are open wide.
Behold the precious fountain
That floweth from His side.
Then plunge into that fountain
And be from sin set free;
Then praise your dear Redeemer
To all eternity.

LAZARUS PAYNE, Dummer.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. Intense I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." Suffering 8 Years

N. B. If you decide to take Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other.

Scratched 28 Years

A Scaly, Scaling Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

When I last knew of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $500.00 and an immeasurable amount of suffering. My skin was literally covered with scales, so that I was often not longer than a week. It seemed nearly all over my body. The scales would fall off as all the skin, and my suffering was intense. Physicians did me no good. Finally I gave up all hope of ever being cured. Some one advised me to try the CUTICURA REMEDIES, and I did so with the greatest confidence. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All kind of blood was 25 worth. If you had been here and told you would have cured me for $500 you would have had the money. I loaned them the pictures (No. 2 page 167 in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch, even in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cost to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

SHOT THE BAILIFF DOWN.

PROBABLY MURDER NEAR KINCARDINE LAST NIGHT.

A Farmer Opens Fire on a Bailiff Who Was About to Seize His Property—Two Bullets Lodged in His Breast—The Would-be Murderer in Custody.

BERVIE, March 19.—About 7 o'clock this evening Alexander Campbell, a bailiff of Kincardine, was making a seizure of some stock on the farm of George Oustrum, near here. While leading a horse from the barn Oustrum came towards him and pulling a revolver out of his pocket, when a few feet distant, fired. The ball struck Campbell in the breast. When Campbell saw that the man was desperate he let go the horse and ran, followed by Oustrum, and when overtaken by him he was fired at again, this time the ball striking him under the shoulder blade. At the time of writing the extent of the injures sustained by Campbell is not known. Oustrum gave himself up to the constables.

THE DYNAMITE EXPLODED.

One Miner Loses an Eye, Another A Foot, Two Others Will Die.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 19.—A shocking accident occurred at Malaga gold mines, Queen's county, last evening. A miner named Croft was carrying about 15 pounds of dynamite in a kettle and had just got out of the shaft house when it exploded. The shaft house was completely demolished and the blacksmith shop wrecked. Croft was knocked senseless and received several bodily injuries. Three men named McGinnis, Moore and Bland who were in the blacksmith shop were seriously hurt, McGinnis not being expected to live. Moore had an eye knocked out and Bland a foot taken off. The cause of the explosion is unknown, but it is supposed a spark from Croft's lantern fell on the dynamite.

SOARED AMONG THE MAIDENS.

His Wings Were Those of Cupid and They Got Him in Trouble.

MILTON, March 18.—Hugh Foster, aged 38, of Islington was committed for trial today on the charge of bigamy. Foster was married on Oct. 1, 1873, at the residence of Frank Reid, Trafalgar township, to Maria Smith, who is still living. Rev Samuel C. Phipps, Methodist minister of Weston, deposed that on the 3rd inst. he married the prisoner to Annie C. Clarkson, the prisoner being described in the license as a "bachelor" and Miss Clarkson as a "spinster." Witness has known Miss Clarkson, who is a pretty young woman of 30, for 25 years. When asked by the mayor what he had to say in his defence the prisoner answered: "All I have to say is that I have not lived with Maria Smith for nearly two years, that when we parted I thought we arranged not to live with each other as man and wife any longer. She had taken up with another man named Andy Smith. No relation to her, but of the same name. That I did not take up with Miss Clarkson under secrecy."

Prisoner was prominent in religious and temperance circles here before removing to Islington.

ACCUSED HIS WIFE OF BIGAMY.

But Failing to Prove the Second Marriage the Case Fell Through.

PLATTSVILLE, March 19.—Considerable interest was manifested in the case of bigamy which was entered against Mrs. Hans (nee Blum) by her husband, Stephen Haas of Little Germany, which was heard before Jared Kilborn. Plaintiff, not having lived with his wife for nearly two years, accused her of marrying one John Blum, with whom she is living at present. As the defendant could not produce any positive evidence to show that a second marriage had been performed, relying merely upon the remarks made by the defendant in general conversation and some newspaper paragraphs, the charge could not be sustained and was therefore dismissed by the presiding magistrate.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

The Newfoundland Fisheries Rights in the House of Lords

LONDON, March 19.—In the House of Lords to-day Lord Knutsford, Colonial Secretary, introduced a bill to revise certain provisions controlling the Newfoundland fisheries rights of foreign powers. He hoped that in spite of the difficulties a compromise would be arranged whereby the colony's burdens would be lessened. He believed Newfoundland's protest was founded upon misapprehension. England thought arbitration was the best course, but the opposition of the colony considerably embarrassed the Government.

Lord Salisbury concurred in the remarks of Lord Knutsford.

Lord Salisbury supported Lord Knutsford. He said Newfoundland was now paying the penalty of errors made in past treaties.

The bill passed the first reading.

The bill revives the Crown's authority to instruct naval officers to enforce the treaties of Utrecht, Versailles and Paris securing fishing rights to France. A clause provides that if the Colonial Legislature supplies necessary powers to secure the performance of the treaties upon the international arrangements before the bill is passed the bill will be suspended.

The Daily News thinks the bill is an open confession of failure in Newfoundland.

An Avowed Murderer Acquitted.

ANGOULEME, March 19.—A case which has excited enormous interest in this district was tried here to-day at the Charente Assizes. A tradesman's assistant named Laroche was indicted for the murder, in January last, of an advocate named Artheguier, at Confolens, under the following circumstances, as related by the prisoner himself and confirmed by numerous witnesses. While residing at Bordeaux Artheguier persecuted prisoner's sister with his attentions, and in the end succeeded in betraying her. The girl kept the secret of her shame as long as possible, but was at last obliged to reveal the truth to her brother. Laroche resolved either to obtain redress for his sister's wrongs or to avenge them. Having purchased a revolver he went to Confolens, whither Artheguier had removed, and endeavored to wring from him a promise to marry his sister. This demand being met with a flippant refusal, coupled with gibes and jeers at the situation of the unfortunate girl, Laroche flew into a passion and threatened the advocate with death. "Kill me if you like," Artheguier replied in a spirit of bravado. Laroche then fired three shots from his revolver, and Artheguier was mortally wounded, expiring without regaining consciousness. The trial terminated with the absolute acquittal of the prisoner. The decision was received with general manifestations of approval on the part of the audience.

Gladstone's Narrow Escape.

LONDON, March 19.—It has transpired that after leaving the theatre in Hastings in which he delivered his closing address last night, Mr. Gladstone had a narrow escape from serious injury if not from death. It appears that the coachman who was driving Mr Gladstone's carriage lost control of his horses. It was only after some furious running and frequently coming into close proximity to dangerous obstacles that the animals were finally brought to a halt and the illustrious passenger released. The coachman, who, it seems, was intoxicated, was arrested and fined in the police court this morning.

It is announced to-day that Mr George Reuter, second son of Baron Reuter of Reuter's Telegram Company, and Miss Potter, daughter of the late Mr. John Potter of Philadelphia, Pa., will be married in May.

And the Earth Upheaved.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—Honolulu advices say several changes are reported in the crater of the volcano of Vilanea, and the cone of Halemaumau is stated to have disappeared. Earthquake tremors have been frequent in the vicinity of the volcano.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA.

THE CAPTAIN OF THE UTOPIA ARRESTED.

Parnell to Hedge his Seat for Cork—The Latest Parisian Horror — Gladstone's Narrow Escape From Death—The Newfoundland Question in the Imperial Parliament.

GIBRALTAR, March 19.—Capt. MacKenzie of the Utopia has been arrested for wrongful accounts, improper conduct, negligence and mismanagement.

The accounts given by divers at work on the wrecked Utopia of the terrible sights which they have witnessed increase the appalling character of the catastrophe. The seamen say they found the hatches and the chartroom of the Utopia closely packed with the bodies of the unfortunate passengers, who had become wedged into an almost solid mass in their frantic rush to reach the decks after the steamer crashed into the ram of the ironclad. The positions of the bodies show there was a terrible struggle for life.

Owing to lack of accommodation in the naval hospital here many of the rescued have been compelled to encamp on the Glauster. The military are patrolling the spot for the purpose of securing any bodies that may be washed in by the waves.

The inhabitants of this place who witnessed the disaster are unstinted in their praise of the great gallantry displayed by the men of the British squadron, who hurried to the rescue of the endangered passengers in small boats on an angry sea, in the teeth of a heavy gale. Much praise is also bestowed on the men of the yacht Resolute, who manned a boat and saved 16 persons.

The two blue jackets of the British ironclad Immortalite who were drowned by their boats drifting on the rocks were buried today with full honors.

The inquiry into the disaster began to-day. Surgeon Sellar of the ill-fated steamer said the voyage had been uneventful before the disaster. Shortly after passing Europa Point at 6 o'clock in the evening he heard a passenger exclaim, "We are running into a man-of-war." Whilst the vessel was sinking Surgeon Sellar undressed himself, jumped overboard and was soon rescued. He heard the captain and mate ordering the boats lowered after the collision. He had implicit confidence in the captain.

The Utopia was in first-class condition, having recently been overhauled and put in order at an expense of £5000. Her crew, however, was totally inadequate to her requirements, numbering only 50, and this fact was doubtless greatly contributory to the enormous loss of life, for had there been a sufficient number of men on board some of the boats, if the vessel had any, could have been launched even in the short time intervening between the collision and the sinking of the ship. Inquiry as to whether the vessel was not short-handed will constitute one of the principal features of the investigation which will follow.

The two sailors who were drowned belonged to the Immortalite. Their names are James Crotton, able seaman, and George Hales, stoker.

The Dead Number 563.

GIBRALTAR, March 19.—The revised official count of the lost and saved passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer Utopia shows there were 880 souls on board the steamer. Of this number the saved include 290 steerage passengers, two saloon passengers, three Italian interpreters and 23 of the crew, all the latter being Englishmen or men who had shipped at English ports.

Another British Ship Missing.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—London advices say the British ship Malaysia, hence Aug. 6 for Queenstown, is posted as missing. Fear has existed here for some months that the Malaysia sank with all hands, numbering 28. She left here with the ship Ventura, loaded with wheat, but Sept. 30 the Ventura, returned demoralized, having passed through a fearful hurricane.

Relics From a Wreck.

LONDON, March 19.—A number of barrels containing petroleum have been washed ashore at Beachy Head. They apparently came from a vessel recently wrecked. Smacks from New Haven have rescued many other barrels of petroleum, supposedly from the same vessel.

Attack on the Priests.

DUBLIN, March 19.—United Ireland says Ireland has had enough of Episcopal domination. Over and over again the bishops have become like wax in the hands of the English politicians, and warned by the failures of the past the Irish will no longer submit blindly to priestly guidance. The pretensions of Archbishop Logan, Primate of all Ireland, would deprive Catholics of their political rights.

Parnell is Dilatory

CORK, March 19.—The delay of Parnell in responding to Maurice Healey's defiance, in which the latter announced he was ready to take up the former's challenge that they should both resign their seats in Parliament, has caused the Parnellites of this city to telegraph to Parnell urging him to state his intentions immediately.

It was stated in the lobby of the House of Commons to-day that Mr. Parnell had decided to resign his seat in Parliament in accordance with his challenge to Mr. Healey.

The Conservatives are preparing to contest the seats of Parnell and Healy should they resign. Parnell's dilemma amuses Dublin. Parnell stipulates that before resigning each side must provide two candidates to run in Parnell elections to resign.

The Freeman's Journal article is interpreted to mean Parnell declines to resign.

The Dublin Evening Telegraph declares it would be an impudity for Parnell to answer such an offensive letter as Healey's. If Mr. Healey wants to fight it says let him resign and he will soon find Parnell in Cork.

Polling at North Sligo.

DUBLIN, March 19.—The polling in the Parliamentary contest to take place at North Sligo for the seat made vacant by the death of Peter McDonald will take place on April 2.

Parnell's Veto.

LONDON, March 19.—The Chronicle declares that during the dock strike of 1889 Lavitt and Healey urged the National League to subscribe £1000 to aid the strikers and Parnell vetoed the project.

Killed Wife, Child and Mother-in-Law.

PARIS, March 19.—M. Herbelot of the Boulevard Courcelles, believing his wife to be unfaithful, cut her throat last night, strangled the child sleeping beside her and stabbed his mother-in-law to death. He then ran into the boulevard half clothed and surrendered himself to the gendarmes.

The Caribou Election.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 19.—The election in Cariboo District for the House of Commons was held to-day. As far as heard from Barnard (Conservative) is leading and will probably be elected. All polling places cannot be heard from before Sunday.

Possible Strike on the Gould System.

ST. LOUIS, March 19.—A serious strike is threatened on the Gould system. A grievance committee from the Order of Railway Conductors has been in conference with the officers of the Missouri Pacific road for several days. Negotiations have reached a very critical stage, and the conductors say that if the strike does come the engineers, switchmen and brakemen will go out with them. The railroad officials refuse to say anything except that there is trouble. The conductors want some of the members of their order reinstated.

Five Babies in a Year.

MILAN, Tenn., March 19.—Mrs. Thomas Williams, residing near Bradyville, in one year has given birth to five babies—twins at first and triplets at the present writing; triplets all girls and weighing six pounds each.

HE KILLED HIS CHILD.

BUT A JURY SAY HE WAS INSANE WHEN HE DID SO.

Coutts, the Mount Forest Murderer, Found Not Guilty on the Ground of Insanity by a Jury at the Wellington Spring Assizes.

GUELPH, March 19.—William Coutts of Mount Forest, charged with the murder of his child, was found not guilty on the ground of insanity at the assizes to-day. On the 29th October, 1890, the body of a child was found in a cistern at Mount Forest, which proved to be the youngest child of the prisoner. It appears that he is a married man and had two children. He and his wife separated, the youngest child being left in his charge. Prior to the separation and afterwards Coutts wanted to give the child away. On or about the 1st of November he told his neighbors that he had given it to a farmer in the township of Normanby, and he shortly afterwards left the village, going to live with his mother. The child was found in the cistern some three weeks later and was recognized.

LIVELY TIME IN LAMBTON.

Burglars Rob a Store, are Pursued, Steal Their Captor's Horse and Buggy, but are Finally Caught.

WYOMING, March 19.—About 2 o'clock this morning A. Laing's store was entered by burglars, who blew the safe open but obtained no booty. The glass in the store windows was broken and other slight damage done by the force of the explosion. The burglars, two in number, ran off in the direction of the town line, where they made an attempt at Mr. John Hunter's to obtain a horse and buggy to aid their escape, but Mr. Hunter, hearing the noise at the stables, got out in time to prevent it.

The burglars were pursued by two citizens with a horse and buggy. They came up with the men at Watkins, 4 miles from here. On demanding their surrender the burglars turned the tables on the captors by drawing revolvers, and jumping into the rig drove rapidly away. Another rig having been obtained the pursuit was again taken up and this afternoon the two men were captured 8 miles below Courtright, handcuffed and taken before a magistrate, who committed them to Sarnia jail. A full set of burglars' tools was found in the snow near the place where they took the horse and buggy from those who were following.

Soltykoff's Lord George Wins the Lincolnshire Handicap.

LONDON, March 18.—To-day's Lincolnshire Handicap was not very profitable for English sports. They are all heavy losers over the victory of Lord George, who was only backed by patrons of the stable. There is no doubt that the horse had been reserved for the race. Persons in "the know" shrewdly kept their knowledge to themselves and benefited to a good amount. Col. North wagered heavily on his horse Nunthorpe, while the French school almost brought off a well-planned coup with Seraphine II.

The Lincolnshire Handicap is the first of the big events in England. The winner of the race, Lord George was a long shot in the winter betting: 20 to 1 could be had against him at any time. Last year he won twice out of 11 starts, and was second twice. His two victories were early in the spring at Newmarket, one was the Crawford Plate and the other the Flying Handicap Plate.

Ottawa Gossip.

OTTAWA, March 19.—It was stated this afternoon in political quarters that Mr. Colby has decided to retire from the Cabinet. A meeting of the Cabinet was held this afternoon.

It is well understood that Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John Thompson and Hon. George E. Foster will leave for Washington at an early date in connection with the reciprocity negotiations.

Hon. George E. Foster, Minister of Finance, does not credit the report that British Guiana has rejected the Canadian Government's proposals for a reciprocity treaty in favor of a similar arrangement with the United States.

Sentenced for Heresy.

CANTON, Ohio, March 19.—The official sentence of Bishop Leonard in the heresy trial of Rev. Howard MacQuery was received today. The bishop suspends Mr. MacQuery for six months, and if at the expiration of that time he has not retracted his heretical views Mr. MacQuery will be deposed from the priesthood.

Mr. MacQuarry says he will not submit to the sentence, but will leave the church and preach for some other church.

A Montreal Stock Broker Missing.

MONTREAL, March 19.—J. R. Barclay of the firm of J. R. Barclay & Co., stock brokers and financial agents, Canada Chambers, 16 St. Sacrament-street, is missing from his seat on the Stock Exchange. His partners admit that he has left town, but they are unable to assign a reason. He is known to be short 3000 shares of Canadian Pacific, which advanced to-day to 77. He was one of the best-known Montreal brokers and has been an extensive operator for ten years.

Women Burned to Death.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The four stories of the six-story tenement house 215 East 29th-street were gutted by fire this evening. The fire caused much excitement among the 92 families who lived in the building. Two women perished in the flames. Loss on property $15,000.

Death in the Sardine Can.

CHATHAM, March 19.—The family of William Ball, Cross-street, partook of canned sardines at tea and Mrs. Ball was seized of a severe illness. Dr. Holmes was sent for and pronounced the symptoms those of poisoning. Mrs. Ball lay for hours in an insensible state without a perceptible pulse, but she recovered consciousness and is now out of danger. Mrs. Ball's attack was due to the canned goods.

Taps from the Telegraph.

George Schwartz & Co., private banker, of Louisville, Ky., have failed for half a million.

Heavy rains prevail in the southeast of France. Large districts are inundated.

Eight hundred union carpenters in New York struck yesterday. A general strike has been ordered.

Charles N. Felton has been elected U.S Senator for California.

Ate a Hearty Breakfast, Then Died.

KINGSTON, March 18.—James Hughes, aged 95, rose early this morning, as was his custom, partook of a hearty breakfast and expired.

The Czar and the Shah.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 18.—The Czar of Russia has presented the Shah of Persia with 50 Kirghis horses of the purest breed and a modern battery of artillery with four guns, which are being conveyed to Teheran under an escort of Cossacks. The increasing intimacy between the two sovereigns is looked on with much disfavor by other nations. The Shah is too willing to sell his territory to the Russians, and through Persia lies England's most direct route to India.

A Canadian Charged with Forgery.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Detective Carpenter of Montreal arrested Hamilton Young on Monday afternoon on a telegram from Montreal charging him with forgery. It is said that in 1885, Young, who then lived in Hamilton, Ont., where he was manager of the Hamilton Cotton Company, forged the names of various men to notes amounting to $10,000, which he had discounted at the Merchants' Bank in Montreal. Young, it is charged, then fled to Mexico and was believed to be there still. A citizen of Montreal, who was in Montreal recently, met Young down town and on his return home told the authorities about the circumstances. The telegram which caused the arrest was then sent. Young said that he would return

THE DAY MURDER.

Mrs. Quigley Confesses that She Aided in the Crime.

ROCHESTER, March 19.—Mrs. Quigley, sister of Arthur Heyt Day, who was hanged at Welland, Ont., Dec. 16, 1890, for wife murder, and who was with him at Niagara Falls Sunday, July 27, when he pushed his wife over the precipice near the whirlpool and was a witness against him on his trial, died here to-day at 2 o'clock. On her deathbed she confessed to her mother that she had incited Arthur to the murder and had helped him to commit it by aiding him in pushing his wife over. She held Mrs. Day's dress skirt over her face and pushed on one shoulder when Day pushed on the other. The mother told the story to a special protective officer here, but this evening positively denied having done it to an associated press reporter.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Legalization of Salvation Army Marriages in Ontario—The Speaker's Dinner.

TORONTO, March 19.—In the Legislature yesterday Premier Mowat, in moving the second reading of the bill "to further amend the law respecting the solemnization of marriages," made a brief explanation of its scope. The first provision makes valid every marriage duly solemnized according to the rites, usages and customs of the religious Society of Friends, commonly called Quakers, and is also retroactive. The second provision makes valid any marriage hereafter performed by any duly appointed commissioner or staff officer, being a man of the Salvation Army. The Salvation Army, Mr. Mowat said, was practically a church, but did not call itself so. It has certain officers who occupy the position of the clergy and bishops in other churches, and it wanted the same authority to perform marriages as other denominations. There was no reason why it should not. It was larger now than several bodies already specifically authorized to perform the marriage ceremony. The commissioner occupied the position of a bishop or archbishop and the staff officers the position of the clergy in churches. There were 41 staff officers to 297 preaching stations, and the Army asked that these might have authority to marry. The third provision strikes out the word "pre-contract" wherever it occurs in the Act. The word in the phrase "pre-contract, affinity or consanguinity" is a relic of the days when marriages were performed in England without a clergyman, and is now liable to misconstruction. Mr. Mowat proposes to insert some word or phrase indicating that there is no legal obstacle so far as a prior marriage may be concerned. The bill was read a second time without further remark.

Among the bills introduced were one by the Minister of Education respecting truancy and to make more strict the laws relating to compulsory attendance at school; one by Mr. Evanturel to incorporate the village of Casselman; one by Mr. Monk to empower the Ottawa, Arnprior & Renfrew Railway Company to amalgamate with the Ottawa & Parry Sound Railway Company, and to increase the amount of the issue of bonds from $15,000 to $25,000 a mile.

Memorial From the Grange Organization.

The executive of the Dominion Grange, represented by H. Glendinning, North Ontario; R. Wilds, Kent; J. Robertson, West Elgin and D. Heplantall, Huron, presented the memorial:

To the Honorable the Attorney-General and the Government of Ontario:

GENTLEMEN,—The Executive Committee, by direction of the Dominion Grange, respectfully beg to direct your attention to the necessity of devising some means for reducing the size of county councils in many of the counties in this province.

Being fully aware of the difficulty of proposing any scheme which would be entirely free from objectionable features, they have given much attention to the various methods which have been suggested.

And they would request that the municipal law be so amended as to provide that at the annual municipal election the ballot papers shall contain a blank for the voters to vote "yea" or "nay," and where a majority in the county vote yea the county council shall consist of the reeves only, each reeve having one additional vote for every deputy-reeve which the municipality would be entitled to under the present law.

Such an amendment would leave it with the ratepayers in each separate county to decide whether the council of that county should be reduced or not.

That the Public School Act, chap. 225, Revised Statutes of Ontario, sec. 117, sub-sec. 1, be amended by striking out of the first line the word "may" and substituting the word "shall."

The grange, from various reports which have obtained currency throughout the country, have been led to fear that it is the intention to so change the law that text books for the public schools shall be provided at the public expense. We would most respectfully express a hope that no such change is contemplated, as we believe that were the books furnished free sufficient care would not be taken to preserve them. And further, that when the schools are free it is not asking too much from parents to furnish their children with books, and that it would intensify the dissatisfaction which already exists to a considerable extent on the school book question.

We desire to express our disapproval of tolls upon either markets or roads, and cherish a hope that the Government will see its way to enact such legislation as will lead to the abolition of both are long.

That the Act entitled an Act to Prevent the Spread of Noxious Weeds and of Diseases Affecting Fruit Trees, being chapter 202, Revised Statutes of Ontario, be amended as follows: By striking out of section 2 the words "resident within the local municipality," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "in actual occupation thereof;" sub-section 1 of section 2 be amended by adding, "but the provisions of this sub-section shall not apply in cases where it involves the destruction of the growing crop of grain."

That sub-section 2 of section 3 be amended by striking out of the first and second lines thereof the following words, "may and upon fifty or more ratepayers."

That sub-section 2 of section 4 be amended by adding thereto the following words, "but no such owner or occupant shall be liable to any penalty who has honestly endeavored to comply with the law."

That sub-section 4 of section 10 be amended by adding thereto the following words: "But no inspector or overseer of highways shall be liable to such penalty who has honestly endeavored to discharge his duty."

That the Ditches and Watercourses Act, chap. 220, revised statutes of Ontario, be amended by striking out the word "fifty" wherever it occurs in sub-section 2 of section 8, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "one hundred and fifty." Believing that the experimental work which is carried on at the Ontario Agricultural College is one of much importance to the farmers of Ontario, but from variations of soil, temperature, altitude, humidity of the atmosphere and other causes, the experiments carried on in any one particular place must necessarily be incomplete and misleading to other sections of the province differently situated, we would respectfully ask the consideration of the Government to the propriety of establishing several small experimental stations to ascertain the most suitable varieties of grasses, grain and roots for cultivation in the different localities.

Speaker Ballantyne gave his first dinner last evening.

Flon-Flon's Memoirs.

LONDON, March 12.—Prince Napoleon's memoirs established by written evidence the fact that he never disagreed with Napoleon III., even on the day following the fall of the Ajaccio speech, that he always remained a Frenchman and had nothing in view but the interests of France at the time of the Italian affair. The memoirs include the Prince's correspondence with Napoleon III up to the time of the latter's death.

The Chronicle's Rome correspondent says The Fanfulla both declare that Prince Napoleon was unconscious when the sacrament of extreme unction was administered to him.

Election Frauds.

The "Old" Policy of Trickery and Fraud—Scandalous Supplements to the Gerrymander and the Franchise Act Outrages—The Way "the Fields were Won."

The verdict of the electors of Ontario on March fifth last was a striking example of the condemnation of the policy of the Dominion Government. But when the methods by which the Government conducted its part of the campaign become known it is a wonder that popular disapproval took so decided a form. The details of the corrupt and fraudulent practices are only partially known, but enough has come to light, and is coming to light daily, to show that never have there been so thoroughly organized, systematic and scandalous attempts to silence the voice of the electors, and steal a verdict for a Government. The following instances will give the reader some idea of the extent to which the irregular practices proceeded :

Day by day the Tory plan of campaign in the recent election is more plainly revealed. It is beyond doubt that preparations were made for a bold and shameless counting out of Liberal members if the Government had been defeated at the polls. An election for Ontario was held last June and not one irregularity, not one attempt to tamper with the will of the people, not one fraud in the count was ever claimed by any Conservative candidate. The deputy returning officers did not botch their work. No Tory seat was put in peril by bungling officials. But in the Dominion contest, under the bungling, fraud and criminality of Tory officials, Liberal members-elected have to fight for their lives in many constituencies. It cannot be all accident that so many deputy returning officers neglected to sign their statements. If this defence be made, then it is a scandal that such a set of incompetent partisans should have been appointed to this important work. In North Perth, North Wellington, South Grey, Chateauguay, Kamouraska and elsewhere these officials imperilled the election of Liberals. It cannot be doubted that wholesale personation was practised in many constituencies. The attempt to count out Mr. Hargraft in West Northumberland as mentioned in yesterday's EXAMINER was one of the most barefaced and scandalous things in the history of our politics. The work in North Middlesex and South Wentworth is not creditable to the Conservative party. We publish this morning despatches from Muskoka and Haldimand which show a remarkable and deplorable state of affairs in those constituencies. In South Victoria there seems grave reason to fear that the irregularities cannot be rectified short of a protest. The case in West Hastings, where the Tory candidate's own agent voted twice, was a bad development. The rascalities that have characterized the election tactics of the Tory party here since Dr. Montague first became a candidate in Haldimand were prevalent in this election. At one polling district the deputy-returning officer had the poll open and twelve ballots in the box at five minutes after 8, when the Reform scrutineer arrived. Of these twelve who were so assumed to have voted, several were Indians who have never voted at any election and have always refused to vote. Some were dead and some were in the United States. Nearly all of these twelve cases were instances of glaring personation. Some other cases of personation took place at this poll. Besides, the deputy-returning officer voted when they came in if they could read, and if they answered "No" he instantly asked them how they voted, and procured open voting.

At the election held a year ago this same official acted very arbitrarily, and several personations occurred at this same poll; and the returning officer, prior to this last election, was notified of his misconduct and asked not to re-appoint him, but he re-appointed him notwithstanding.

At another sub-division another old offender was re-appointed, under whom personation has occurred at the last election on the 5th of March inst. Three strangers were let off the train at Belleville, and two of these personated two Reformers. The first of these who came to vote was handed a ballot by the deputy returning officer. Before his name could be entered by the poll clerk, and before he could be required to be sworn, the Reform scrutineer asked that he be sworn, and the deputy returning officer refused to swear him on the ground that the man had his ballot before he was required to be sworn. Dr. Montague's agents, as well as the deputy returning officer, knew this to be personation, and one of these agents went to the door with the personator and told him to skip. While the Reform scrutineer went to Hagarsville to get a warrant the offender was driven away by Tories and escaped, and another individual personated a Reform voter.

A third personation occurred subsequently during the day at this poll. Other personations occurred at other polls. Certificates were given to constables and others, who did not act as agents, entitling them to vote, and their votes were polled for Montague. Ballots were used by Tory bribers outside the polls and given to voters, initialled, numbered and marked for Montague, ready to be deposited in the ballot box, said voters to return the clean ballot and get their money.

There is yet one polling subdivision in Muskoka and Parry Sound to be heard from, but from the returns received Col. O'Brien has an apparent majority of about 100. There are a large number of irregularities. At one polling place, Gibson, Liberal workers say no poll was held, but the returning officer says a poll was opened at noon. Four votes for Mr. Fitzgerald, the Liberal candidate have spent the greater part of the day looking for the polling place, but have to return home disgusted. A score of the agents for Mr. Fitzgerald were not allowed to vote, although they possessed certificates signed by the returning officer. A citizen of many as four agents for Mr. O'Brien were permitted to vote, some of whose names were not on any list of voters. A systematic plan of rejecting votes marked for Mr. Fitzgerald was adopted by the deputy returning officer, the total number of ballots so rejected being sufficient, it is said, to have given Mr. Fitzgerald the election. The Franchise Act disfranchised Liberal voters by wholesale. At Axe Lake, in Monteith, fifteen Liberals were left off the list. At French River, where there were 44 votes polled as the local election last June, 41 Liberals and 3 Conservatives, only eleven voters were on the Dominion list, and these had to travel fifteen miles each way to poll their votes. At Frank's Bay last June there were 61 Liberal votes polled and 3 Conservative, not one of whom was on the Dominion list. In other subdivisions Liberals were left off the list, some of whom have been in the district over twenty years, and one of whom also was an assessor of the township. Many other minor irregularities are reported, and two ballot boxes, one with a majority of 30 for O'Brien and the other with a majority of 7 to Fitzgerald, have been burned. A re-count will be asked for.

Some strange rulings were given during the re-count of the ballots in the South Wentworth election. For instance, in two polling booths more ballots were found in the box than the returning officer had recorded, and in both cases there was one more vote for Carpenter than was reported on the certificate at the close of the poll. This looked decidedly like a case of ballot stuffing, and had these extra ballots been ruled out the seat would have gone to the Liberals. Then a number of ballots were marked on the back by numbers corresponding to the numbers on the voters' list opposite the name of the voter. This would serve to identify the voter, and the counsel for Mr. Middleton claimed strongly that these ballots should be disallowed. Had this been done it would have left Carpenter in at least two of a majority. Some other ballots bore marks that seem to have been deliberately put there—such as a plain dot above the cross—but the Judge declined to rule these out either. Had any of these decisions been reserved Mr. Carpenter would have been unseated.

While the re-count in North Middlesex was proceeding it came to light that the ballots in two sub-divisions had been tampered with. Right in the middle of the pile of ballots that had been counted for Taylor, the Independent candidate, there were found three ballots with crosses opposite the names of both Hutchins and Taylor, the former being the more distinct. It is impossible to suppose that ballots so marked, having run the gauntlet of the Tory scrutineer and the deputy returning officer, would have been counted for the Opposition candidate. And as they were counted for him, and as the deputy certified to the count, the inference is that they were not so marked; that the envelope has been tampered with and the crosses put opposite the name of Hutchins, the Tory candidate, after the election; and this was the general opinion of those present in the court.

In Rimouski it is said that the returning officer gave certificates to vote to eighty men whose names were not on the list.

In Chateaguay Mr. Brown's majority, which, according to the ballots cast, should be 275, has been, in consequence of the neglect or fraud of the deputies, been reduced to nine.

In Kamouraska an attempt has been made to count Mr. Carrol out through the failure of three deputy returning officers to endorse the necessary certificates in the ballot boxes.

Grave irregularities have take place in Prince Edward County, and a recount has been demanded on behalf of the Liberal candidate, Dr. Platt.

There was some queer work in the Muskoka election, according to the Parry Sound North Star. No poll was held in Gibson township, three of the ballot boxes used at the election and containing majorities for Col. O'Brien have since been burned, and at nearly every polling place from two to four good ballots for Mr. Fitzgerald were rejected by the deputy returning officers.

The Canada Gazette on Saturday, March 14th, 1891, gazetted the returns of Alex. McNeil, of North Bruce, of Jas. Masson, of North Grey, and of Dr. Sproule, of East Grey, all Tories. In South Grey, where Dr. Landerkin, the member-elect, is a Reformer, the declaration took place on the 16th, just eleven days after the election and two days after the return of the members for East and North Grey had appeared in the Canada Gazette. The declaration in East Bruce took place on Monday, the 9th, the same day that it took place in North Bruce; but the return of Mr. Truax, who is a Liberal, does not appear in the same Gazette as Mr. McNeill, of North Bruce, who is a Conservative, although East Bruce is nearer Ottawa than North Bruce is.

The general effect of the loose work of the deputy returning officers is to delay the gazetting of Liberal members and to give the Conservatives a great advantage in the entering of protests, and to do by another means the dirty work that was performed by the clerk of the Crown in chancery four years ago. It is hardly open to question that frauds in the count have lost the Liberals a number of constituencies. The peril is not yet past. Liberals must still be on the alert. They must still practise unceasing vigilance if they are to hold the advantage they have gained despite outlawed voters' lists, wholesale bungling and fraud, and extensive and flagrant personation, and if necessary heroic measures must be taken to assert the right of the Liberal party to fair play and freemen's rights in this country.—Globe.

The Trent River Bridge.

A large representation of the township of Seymour, County of Northumberland, headed by Mr. J. M. Ferrie, and accompanied by Reeve McCown and Deputy Reeve Morrison, on Tuesday urged Mr. Mowat, Mr. Fraser, and Mr. Hardy to assist the township in maintaining a bridge across the Trent river. The bridge was erected in 1874 as a work of colonization to connect Peterborough and Northumberland and Durham. Its maintenance has now devolved upon the township in which it is situate, and without Government assistance the municipality is unable to support it, and hence the demand

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credits and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

CHARIOTS TO COACHES.

IN 1491 B. C. PHARAOH IS SAID TO HAVE HAD 600 WAR CHARIOTS.

Steel Springs Were First Used in Coaches in 1750—The Viceroy of Egypt's State Carriage—The Seventeenth Century Model.

By whom carriages were first invented it is difficult to determine. They were in Egypt in the time of the Pharaohs, of which many evidences exist. When Joseph was advanced to the second place in the kingdom Pharaoh "made him ride in the second chariot which he had." Soon after this we learn that Joseph sent wagons by command of the king to bring Jacob and his family into Egypt. Then again, when the funeral procession for Jacob went up out of the land of Egypt, the Bible tells us that "there went up with Joseph both chariots and horsemen." At the time of the Exodus, 1491 B. C., Pharaoh is said to have had 600 war chariots, which according to tradition were invented and first brought into use by Erichthonius of Athens, ninety-five years earlier, 1396 B. C.

These war chariots were curiously constructed, with cases at the sides for the bow and sheaf of arrows, and also for the spears and lances. An archer usually stood on either side of the charioteer, hurling his spears at the enemy. For upward of 150 years after the Exodus the kings of Canaan and Moab used war chariots with iron or bronze scythes attached to the axles, which, driven into the ranks of the foe, were terribly destructive. In the time of David and Solomon the Israelites accumulated them in large numbers. Solomon is said to have had 1,400, which with the horses that drew them were mostly imported from Egypt. The cloth for the chariots and trappings for the horses were richly embroidered, and during a long period were produced from the manufactories in Tyre. The Assyrian war chariot was a two-wheeled, box-shaped vehicle, open in the rear, and was generally drawn by three horses abreast. The Persians later on drove four and often six horses. The march of civilization is forcibly illustrated by the contrast between the famous chariots of the ancient Egyptians and their neighbors, and the carriage of the Viceroy of Egypt, built in Paris in 1867 at a cost of $15,000.

The Romans began to construct carriages in great variety of forms and ornamentation after the Christian era. Gold and precious stones were often used for decorations. Some of these vehicles had two wheels, others four; but the streets being narrow and crowded, driving was anything but a pastime. One historian tells us that Nero took on his travels no less than 1,000 carriages, to some of which four horses were yoked abreast, while others were drawn by six horses elegantly caparisoned. The Appian Way, the most celebrated of the ancient Roman roads, was built in a very expansive manner, 313 B. C.

To render it smooth, large blocks of the hardest stone, accurately fitted to each other, were solidified with a peculiar cement. Chariot races were quickly in vogue, and the nobles of Greece and Rome drove it full speed over this magnificent highway, their chariots trimmed and cushioned in the most luxurious style. During the period of the later Roman empire and the decline of its power, carriages multiplied, but their use was confined to rulers and wealthy noblemen and was an evidence of great dignity and exalted station.

In 1320 Charles of Anjou and his queen entered Naples in a small but wonderfully decorated chariot. When the world was waking from the long sleep of the Middle Ages and began to reproduce the books of the ancients through the newly discovered method of printing, the use of carriages, long practically discontinued, was revived and became more general among the wealthy classes than in the early centuries. The style was somewhat improved, with a canopy sustained by four pillars, which subsequently gave place to a close drapery, concealing the occupant from view. In 1474 the Emperor Frederick III. attended the Council or Diet at Frankfort in a closely draped carriage, and again the following year "in a magnificent covered carriage."

In 1509 we read of a tournament in Rappin, where the Electress of Brandenburg's carriage "was completely covered with gold," and those of the other duchesses were ornamented with crimson and purple curtains and draperies of the richest satin. For several decades about this time the use of carriages was confined to ladies of the first rank, and it was accounted a reproach for men to ride in them; the latter must always be mounted on fine horses. In 1550, it is said, there were only three coaches in Paris.

Meanwhile the feudal lords in continental Europe had supplied themselves with handsome private carriages, and there was great rivalry in the attempt to outshine one another. In 1611, when Cardinal Dietrichstein made his entrance into Vienna, forty carriages went out to meet him. In the same year the consort of the Emperor Matthias made her public entrance, on her marriage, in a carriage covered with perfumed leather. Later in the century the wedding carriage of the first wife of the German Emperor Leopold, who was a Spanish princess, cost, together with the harness, 38,000 florins.

Wheeled vehicles were used to some extent in England during the middle Ages. Chaucer describes a "chare" in one of his poems. Richard II. of England—1377-1399—was obliged in 1389 to fly before his rebellious subjects; he and his followers were on horseback, while his mother was alone in a carriage. The reign of Richard II. is a remarkable period in the constitutional history of England and still more so in literature and religion, for it was the time of Wycliffe, Chaucer and Gower, whom Richard patronized, and the modern English language is usually dated from his reign. The oldest English vehicles were known as chares, chariots, coaches and whirlicotes, these latter being two wheeled, without straps or springs, to which the horses were attached by ropes. All these, however, became unfashionable in the time of Anne of Bohemia, daughter of Emperor Charles IV. and wife of Richard II., who taught the ladies how gracefully she could ride on the side saddle. She died in 1394.

It was not until the time of Queen Elizabeth, about 1569, that the state coach was introduced into use in England. One Walter Ripon, a Dutchman, built one for her Majesty, and she made him her coachman. The same carriage maker also built a carriage of different pattern for Queen Elizabeth when she should be attended by her maids.

"The English nobility were speedily supplied with private carriages, and, as Buckingham says, "within twenty years there became a great trade of coach making." In 1601 the use of coaches had become so prevalent that a bill was introduced into Parliament for their suppression; in other words, "to restrain the excessive use of coaching," which singular bill, however, was rejected on second reading.

The facilities for the accommodation of travellers who did not own horses or carriages were then so meagre, confined to a few hackney coaches, post-chaises and hired carriage coaches, until past the middle of the eighteenth century, that the middle classes as well as the poorer people patronized the grotesque, moving wag ons, and were often seen huddled together on the straw for three or four days at a time. The driver ordinarily rode on a pony alongside the vehicle, carrying a long whip which he was industrious in applying to his team.

All carriages, private as well as public, were absolutely springless until about 1750, and the leather thorough-braces which preceded steel springs did not come into use until near the end of that century. The private carriages introduced into the American colonies were about the same as those used in England, and prior to the Revolution not exceedingly numerous. They belonged to wealthy and aristocratic families, and were heavy lumbering affairs drawn by six large horses.

A REVOLUTION IN DYEING.

Artificial Aniline and Other Dyes Used Instead of Vegetable Ones.

A revolution in the dyeing industry dates from the discovery of the first artificial coal-tar dyestuffs. In this country there are several places where the manufacture of these products is carried on, but, as a rule, the number of dyestuffs made in any one place is somewhat restricted, and in some cases the entire product is confined to a very small number, as magenta, cotton blue, etc. In England, France, Goermany and other countries, but especially in Germany, this industry has attained its greatest growth, and in some cases the works are so large as to resemble a small town or village.

The earlier artificial dyestuffs produced shades so much more beautiful than those produced with the natural dyestuffs that at first the accompanying lack of permanency was not so much considered. As time went on, however, there was a reaction and a demand for fast and bright colors arose, and has of late years been maintained. One great advantage in the use of artificial dyestuffs is that in each group of those dyed in the same way are those which will produce the three primary colors, so that by proper combination all shades can be produced in one dyeing operation.

As the natural dyestuffs do not possess this advantage, and many of the shades produced by them require two or more dyeing operations, the result has been that they have been largely displaced by the artificial products, and only those which present some special recommendation meet with any extensive use. Principal among those are logwood, fustic indigo and cutch, all of which are used in enormous quantities; but even now the first and last have strong competitors in the artificial dyestuffs, and it is not impossible that in time all the natural coloring matters may be entirely superseded.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Calf's-Head Pie.

Boil a calf's head for thirty-five minutes; then cut into pieces, put a layer in a pie-dish, then a layer of sausage meat, then more calf's head, then three hard boiled eggs sliced. Pour one-half cup strong beef broth into the pie-dish and bake. When done, pour into a mold in which is one-half cup of broth, and let stand till cold.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Beefsteak and Kidney Pudding.

Line a basin with moderately thick paste, fill with the steak and kidney cut into pieces, season well with pepper and salt, pour over it a cupful of beef gravy, cover with paste, tie in a cloth and boil for two-and-a-half hours. If liked, mushrooms may be added.

One View.

"Real estate is about the only safe investment nowadays."

"You are off your base. There are too many unscrupulous men after the earth to make it a safe thing to invest in."

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Sunday School Sunday.

Don't forget the interesting services in Charlotte street Methodist church on Sunday next. One of the most attractive preachers of Canadian Methodism, Rev. C. O Johnston, is to preach the Sunday school anniversary sermons. In the afternoon a children's service will be held in the church. Addresses will be delivered by Revs. Johnston and Locke. Special silver collections at all of the services, to be applied to Sunday school purposes.

New Shoe Store.

Mr. James Carey, who removed with his brother, Mr. Johnston Carey, boot and shoe manufacturer, from Peterborough to Goderich about a year ago, has returned to town and started up in business on his own account in the old post office block, George street, north of Brock. Mr. Carey will conduct a custom trade, and rightly considers that the people of Peterborough know enough of his first-class workmanship to guarantee him a fair share of their patronage. Mr. Carey is a practical, and experienced shoemaker and will no doubt succeed in Peterborough, where there is always room for a man of his ability.

Stoney Lake Fishermen.

Messrs. B. Shortly, W. A. Sanderson and S. H. Best returned last night from Stony Lake, where they have been spending a couple of days inspecting their property and fishing. Too snow was so deep on the ice, however, that fishing was carried on with difficulty and poor results. Messrs Geo. and John Bennett and Wm. Brownscombe are spending a couple of weeks at their cottages. A fishing party from Dummer left the lake on the other day with a dozen fine fish. Mr. Shortly discovered that some one had tried to force an entrance into his house by digging into the cellar, but the attempt was unsuccessful. No cases of house breaking are yet reported from Stony Lake.

The Customs House.

Mayor Stevenson was in Ottawa Thursday and interviewed the Minister of Public Works with reference to the new customs house building being erected on the corner of Charlotte and George streets. It will be remembered that at a late meeting of the town council Mr. Moore introduced a resolution urging the government to revise their plans for the building so as to make an appearance more worthy of the town. The mayor laid the matter before the Minister and was told that the town's request would be complied with. The building will be made a uniform height of two stories, with mansard roof. It is expected the work of construction will be about completed this summer.

Meditate and Advertise.

The opera house was crowded last night, when Dr. E. C. Ellis gave a "free lecture" on medical and hygienic topics. The doctor is a genial, humorous speaker, and compounded wit with wisdom in palatable doses. He advised young ladies how to choose a husband, and incidentally introduced advertisements for Ayer & Co.'s patent medicines, which he represents. This is rather a novel and expensive way of advertising. Whatever may be the opinion of the public as to the hygienic and therapeutic value of Dr. Ellis' orations, there can be no doubt that he has most thoroughly and effectively advertised the firm of J. C. Ayer & Co., the great medicine men. The town is thoroughly Ayer-ated, at any rate. The handsome doctor's red-fire wind-up to his campaign, with the opera house packed as it never has been before, will boom Ayer's pills, bitters and hair-renewers immensely.

Resolution of Condolence.

The following resolution of condolence was passed at the last meeting of St. Peter's Branch, No. 21, E. B. A.:—Whereas our bereaved brother, Mr. A. E. Lee, has recently sustained an overwhelming affliction in the loss of his beloved and estimable wife, whose virtues and superior womanly qualities were known to many of us personally; And whereas Bro. Lee has a special claim upon our sympathy in that he was practically the founder of the Peterborough Branch of this association, and he has ever been a faithful, active and conscientious member, striving energetically to carry out the grand principles of our association while at the same time being an exemplary citizen, a loving husband and wise counsellor: Be it therefore resolved that the most sincere sympathy and heartfelt condolence of St. Peter's Branch, No. 21, of the Emerald Beneficial Association, be hereby tendered to Bro. Lee in the hope that these words may afford him some consolation in his grief, and, to some small extent, at least, an expression of our keen feeling for him in his bereavement, and assure him that he has tried friends and true in the Association to which we all have the honor of belonging—who rejoice with them that rejoice and weep with them that weep. And that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the press for publication.

Signed on behalf of the Association.

A Dead Baby

Found in a Pail of Water Under a Bed, While Its Unhappy Mother Sits in the Kitchen Paring Apples.

Chief Roesel yesterday afternoon at four o'clock was called to the residence of a well known lawyer, where the body of an illegitimate child had been discovered. The mother, a servant girl employed in the household, was found sitting in the kitchen paring apples. The baby was born about nine o'clock that morning in the girl's bedroom. The body of the infant was found submerged in a pail of water under the bed. The girl states that it was dead when born, and she put it in the pail as the easiest way of hiding her shame. She confessed readily to being its mother. She was at once sent to the hospital to be cared for, and the body of the infant placed in a tiny coffin and taken to the police station. These are the facts of the case, but as the matter is to the coroner's hand and, therefore, sub judice, names are suppressed. An inquest was held this afternoon, beginning at three o'clock. It was not concluded in time for the newspapers to-day to give any information.

The girl was with her present employer only since Saturday last. She has been working in an hotel in town since last October. The girl is respectably connected.

So far as could be observed by a casual glance there were no marks of violence on the body of the child. However, the physician's post mortem examination will decide whether infanticide has been committed or not.

The girl declines to give the name of her betrayer.

Legislative Laconics.

Local Petitions Presented—Bridge Deputations "shadowed" by Vigilant Representatives—Railway Promotion.

In the Ontario Legislature on Thursday Mr. Bernard presented petitions from the county council of Peterborough—one praying for amendments in the Municipal Act relating to markets and market fees, and another praying that no change be made in the law transferring the authority of county councils to the government.

Mr. Stratton, Dr. McKay (Victoria), and Mr. Bernard lent the weight of their influence to the representations of Mr. Pusey, one of the chief promoters of the Buctouche and Irondale railroad, for which a bonus is asked. The road is already constructed for forty miles, from Kiamcaut, in the district of Haliburton, to Irondale. It is intended to complete the road in Bancroft, in Hastings, through a region which, it is declared, is rich in mines of magnetic and hematite iron ore and in phosphate mines.

Across "the narrows of the Trent," near Peterborough, there has been built a bridge. This bridge is wholly within the township of Seymour, in Northumberland county. Certain engineering difficulties stood in the way of its being built nearer Peterborough.

A deputation came to the city to-day to present as strongly as possible to the Government the wisdom of making the bridge a "county boundary bridge" to be maintained jointly by Northumberland and Durham on one side and Peterborough on the other. Mr. J. M. Ferris, M.P.P., accompanied the deputation to the little room where the Ministers give deputations their most careful attention.

Mr. Stratton and Mr. Bernard, the members for the west and east ridings of Peterborough respectively, went into the little room with the deputation, and spoke vigorously against "any proposed special legislation to compel the county of Peterborough to bear any share in the maintenance of a bridge which is wholly outside that county."

The deputation was bowed out with assurances that the matter would be earnestly considered by the Government

Personal.

Miss K. Ford, of Rochester, left town yesterday for Duluth, Minnesota, to administer the estate of her brother, the late Wm Ford, consisting of real estate in the city, 160 acres of land about twenty miles out, money in bank, and a policy of life assurance. Deceased was unmarried, and Miss Ford and her sister, Mrs. T. Hurley, are the only surviving members of the family.

THE BOARD OF TRADE.

Second Annual Meeting of This Important Body.

Report of Work Done During the Year—Officers Elected for the Ensuing Twelve Months—A Well Attended Meeting of the Board.

The second annual meeting of the Peterborough Board of Trade was held Thursday night. Mr. W. S. Maldrum, President, occupied the chair. Among those present were Messrs. H. C. Rogers, T. A. Hay, MacFarlane Wilson, A. Hall, J. W. Taylor, Wm. Hamilton, D. W. Dumble, Chas. Wynn, Robt. Fair, F. J. Lewis, John McKee, Wm. Monaco, H. Phelan, H. LeBrun, H. S. McDonald, G. W. Ranney.

REPORT OF THE YEAR.

The Secretary, Mr. J. Hampden Burnham, read his second annual report as follows:—

To the president and members of the Board of Trade:—

GENTLEMEN—The year just closed has shown a marked improvement over the previous year in the attendance of members and in the active interest taken in the affairs of the town. At the last general meeting nearly forty members were present.

The reducing of the fee from $5 to $2 has met with general approval.

The Board decided to advertise the town by means of a circular. This was got up with great care and trouble and has been widely distributed, many copies going to England, Australia, India, Jamaica and to all parts of the United States and Canada. Letters of enquiry have been received from time to time, and have been considered and laid before the Manufacturers' Committee of the town council.

The Board played an important part in the acquisition of the Edison Company. The chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee of the town council has expressed to the secretary of this Board his appreciation of the very valuable assistance given by this Board with regard to the promotion of the manufacturing interests of Peterborough.

Communication was opened with the C.P.R. and G.T.R. in reference to the securing of better freight rates from England and the continent. The result was satisfactory.

An estimate has been obtained from Mr. G. W. Ranney, C.E., of the cost of a complete survey of the Otonabee between Lakefield and Peterborough.

Complaints were sent to the management of the railways as to insufficient siding service.

The matter of the railway to Sault Ste. Marie was thoroughly discussed. The Board was urged to look after the vital interests of the town in reference to it, and a partial plan of procedure was adopted.

The Board sent a committee to the county council, urging the co-operation with other representative bodies along the line of the Trent Valley Canal, in despatching a joint deputation to urge upon the Government completion of that work. This movement was interrupted by the elections and awaits fulfilment.

Correspondence has been carried on with the G. T. R. and C. P. R., looking to the extension to Young's Point and the north of a line of railway.

The Board in this regard, as in many others, has afforded opportunity for discussion which can scarcely be entered in a public report.

The business tax was introduced from the town council, more particularly for the opinion of this Board. It was thoroughly canvassed. Whilst no conclusion was arrived at as to its local operation, a resolution was passed and sent to the Ontario Government disapproving of any system of taxation whereby personal property which has not been paid for may nevertheless escape assessment.

The question of collecting bad debts was brought up but no conclusion was arrived at.

Correspondence has been carried on in relation to a scheme for providing an earlier mail service from Toronto with the traffic manager of the C.P.R., but that railway could not comply, and it is a question if the G.T.R. could not carry out some such plan.

Correspondence has been maintained throughout the year in every direction giving information with regard to the town and inviting inquiries.

This is chiefly in reference to our works, and it is not at all improbable that before long Peterborough may have such an establishment.

I have the honor to remain,

J. HAMPDEN BURNHAM,
Secretary-Treasurer

ADVERTISED THE TOWN.

The report was on motion adopted, and Mr. Burnham read the financial statement, showing that the Board had expended $159.81, principally in advertising the town. The report also showed that there were 60 members of the Board in good standing. The report was received and referred to auditors, Messrs. Hay and Rogers, who reported that the accounts were correct.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The officers for the ensuing years were elected as follows:

PRESIDENT—W. H. Maldram (re-elected).
VICE-PRESIDENT—R. Fair.
SECRETARY—J. H. Burnham (re-elected).
COUNCIL—Messrs. Robert Innes, Wm. Manson, D. W. Dumble, Wm. Hamilton, H. Paulin, A. Hall, Thomas Brooks, F. H. Dobbin, J. R. Stratton, T. A. Hay, George Hilliard, MacFarlane Wilson, J. W. Taylor, F. J. Lewis, H. S. McDonald, John McKee.

The following committees was appointed to strike the standing committees, and report at the next meeting:—Messrs. Dobbin, Hay and Hall.

The following new members were balloted for and accepted:—J. E. Belcher, C.E.; H. Thompson, W. G. Bain, E. Green, H. A. Mulhern, F. Matthews, Robert Mailholland, George Hutchinson, W. H. Manning, H. C. Stabler.

AN EXPENSIVE PROJECT.

The report of Mr. Ranney, C.E., referred to in the secretary's report, was read, in which it was stated that the cost of complete surveys of the river between Peterborough and Lakefield would be between $1,800 and $2,000.

The report was received and a vote of thanks passed to Mr. Ranney.

THE TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

Mr. DUMBLE introduced a resolution to urge the Government, in view of the promises made to that effect, to complete the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, at least the Peterborough-Lakefield section However, it was replaced by a resolution moved by Mr. Fair, seconded by Mr. Phelan, that a previous resolution of the Board, appointing a deputation of the Board of Trade, Town Council, and County Council, to visit Ottawa for that purpose was carried. A resolution moved by Mr. Hall, seconded by Mr. Hamilton, that the matter be postponed for four years, was lost. These resolutions caused considerable discussion, and a variety of opinions were expressed regarding the Trent Valley Canal scheme and the government.

A vote of thanks was passed to the town council for allowing the Board the use of the council chamber during the past year, and the Board then adjourned.

All for a Postal Card.

An elegant Special City Prize valued at from $10.00 to $30.00 will be given each day to the person in Peterborough from whom is received the best list of English words (of not less than three letters), formed from letters contained in the two words, "Ladies' Newspaper." This offer is made by the publishers of a large, 32 page, four column journal, edited by women, for the intelligent women of Canada. Over two hundred valuable prizes are offered, in addition to the above extra special prizes given daily. All fortunate enough to secure a prize in this competition will obtain a valuable one, as none other will be given.

This competition will be upon an entirely different plan from any before offered in Canada, in fact, after the style of those introduced by leading English publishers, and will be conducted in the same honourable manner which has governed English competitions.

The publishers of "The Ladies' Newspaper" are not offering these competitions expecting to make any money from direct results, but will expend several thousand dollars in this manner for the purpose of introducing their journal.

The first object will be to make them strictly fair and impartial and establish an enviable reputation for the publication itself. Persons desiring to enter the competition may start at once, but send your address on a postal card and receive a free sample copy with full particulars. Address

LAYING OUT THE GREASE.

The Annual Meeting of the Cricket Club.

The Cricketers in Council—The Secretary's Annual Report—A Favorable Record of Matches—Batting and Bowling Averages—Officers for 1891.

The annual meeting of the Cricket Club was held in the rooms of the Olympic club on Thursday evening. There was a good attendance, and the "Celts", who have a very strong and promising representation on the club were out in force.

Dr. Burnham, President, occupied the chair and after the usual motion called upon the secretary for his report.

Mr. Sam Ray the veteran cricketer and secretary of the club for the past year presented his report as follows:

To the President and Members of the Peterborough Cricket Club:—

GENTLEMEN,—In reviewing the cricketing operations of the past season, I am compelled to report that the general average of the playing of the club the past year has not been up to the creditable mark of other seasons. Still it was on the whole very good. One chief reason which militated against the club's record on the field was the trouble that who experienced during the whole season in getting an eleven together; as a consequence we sometimes were compelled to enter a match with only half a dozen men, having to fill up the team with any material available, no matter how indifferent. And not infrequently we had to impress very immature colts into the service. These circumstances account largely, in my opinion, for the falling off in the average which I am so reluctant to record. Another unfortunate trouble was the failure of men selected to turn up in matches, thus upsetting the best of calculations as to the results of these contests.

[After dealing with some matters affecting the domestic economy of the Club, the Secretary read the following schedule of the season's play:—

The Club played during the season in all thirteen matches, and of these, lost three and won ten. The losses were:—

(1) Toronto, on May 23rd, by 9 wickets;
(2) The return, to Toronto on 1st innings, by 3 wickets; and
(3) To All-Manitoba by 41 runs.

We won from

(1) Toronto University, by an innings and 22 runs;
(2) From Lindsay by ten wickets;
(3) From Lindsay by 72 runs;
(4) From Trinity College on first innings, by 19 runs.
(5) From Campbellford on first innings by 24 runs;
(6) From Lakefield by 60 runs;
(7) rom Lakefield by 119 runs;
(8) From Campbellford, an innings and 31 runs;
(9) From Belleville by an innings and 97 runs;
(10) From East Toronto by an innings and 11 runs;

We also sent an eleven to play a return match with East Toronto but rain prevented the match.

The bowling and batting averages were also as below:

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

BREACH OF PROMISE CASE.

AN AMUSING SUIT TRIED AT THE GUELPH ASSIZES.

The Part an Auction Sale Played in the Affair—The Usual Love Letters and Presents—The Fair Plaintiff Secures a Verdict For $500.

GUELPH, March 20.—At the assizes yesterday Maggie Gray, aged 20, daughter of Francis Gray of Erin, sued James Millar, a farmer of Esquesing, for breach of promise of marriage. Francis Gray, the father of the plaintiff, told how on Oct. 8, 1890, Millar asked for his daughter's hand. After being assured that Millar's parents were willing he gave his consent, together with a severe exhortation on the responsibilities of the married life. All went merry after this and Millar visited the young lady regularly every two or three weeks, as he expressed it as a fellow or a lover's business. The wedding was fixed for Jan. 28 and preparations were made by both parties; furniture was bought, people from a distance invited, dresses made and even some of the baking done.

On Jan. 10 Millar wrote Miss Gray the following endearing letter, beginning sweet enough and ending with the regulation kisses, but a suggestion as to backing out was innocently inserted between the sweets:

GEORGETOWN, Jan 10, 1891.

Miss Maggie Gray:

DEAREST MARGARET,—No doubt you will be somewhat surprised to hear from me in this way Knowing what I told you in Georgetown the other day concerning Maggie as bridesmaid, when it comes to the pinch she thinks she would rather not, as she thinks she has not enough nerve. Of course, it would require some one with lots of nerve say nothing about the cheek: so I will get one of the boys and you can get one of your sisters or any one you choose. Perhaps I may see you before you get this, but I thought I would let you know in case anything came that I could not get away in time.

I will try and come up some night next week Thursday or Friday—and have a talk with you about backing out: how would it suit?

I guess I'll quit, as I can talk more in one minute than I can write all night. Hoping this will find you all right: as it leaves me the same.

I remain yours. J. A. M.

Kisses • • • • till I come.

Oh, how is your cold? Mine is no better; I am all shivery, shivery, shake, the man that could not get warm.

Do you mind that in Hillsburg that night?

Bye-bye.

Millar called on the 23rd, before she got the letter, however, and that was his last call. At this interview, according to Millar's story, she told him that her brother-in-law was going to have a sale on the 26th, and her sister and family wished to go to the sale; and that her father thought "an auction sale and a wedding was too much for one day in one family." Her sister was to be the bridesmaid, and she wanted the wedding to be on the 27th. His story was that he was so anxious to marry her on the 28th that he wanted them to go off alone and be married on the 28th. But differently from most grooms, for whom it is said the wedding cannot be soon enough, the 27th was too soon for him. He, however, concealed this in his own breast, and, telling her he would call again soon, left. But in his own mind he told the jury that the engagement was at an end. He then wrote her another letter, which, to make sure of, he registered. As the judge remarked, the endearment was all gone, and one would almost think one of his lady friends had written it, so frosty is his letter. This is a copy of it:

GEORGETOWN, Jan. 19, 1891.

Miss Maggie Gray:

DEAR FRIEND,—I have been thinking things over that passed between us the other evening concerning the 28th and have come to the conclusion that if an auction sale is of more importance to you than what was to have come off, you can go to the sale and I will go my own road. If that is all you care for it you need not look to hear from me again.

No doubt it will be a little hard for you to give up, but I think you will soon see it was better for us to dissolve, so now you can consider our engagement broken. I am going away from home for a few months. So good-bye, from J. A. M.

Do not blame anyone but me for this, as I have ruled my bargain.

On the receipt of this Miss Gray took to bed, and her father set out to see the delinquent and eased his mind by calling him a mean liar and some other terms and then they parted for good.

Millar himself, who was the next witness, kept the large crowd sufficiently interested and amused. He sprang a new story on the plaintiff, and while in his plea he had denied having refused to marry her now tried to justify his course. Much amusement was caused by the way in which he told how she made him dance to her music. He complained that she had all her own way, and that she refused to milk the cows, and while he, like all the fellows his way that had girls, wanted to show her off at the Toronto Exhibition she didn't want to be shown. She was even of such a retiring nature that she declined to go down and see his folks. He, however, stood all these, but the auction sale was too much, and he broke it off then. His cross-examination by Mr. Guthrie amused the spectators so much that order was frequently seriously disturbed. After much hesitation he declared he never was engaged. He said the expression "backing out" in his letter meant his sister backing out from being bridesmaid and not himself. He wanted always to do the square thing and he thought he had done so.

Mr. Laidlaw of Toronto, for the defendant, occupied an hour and a quarter reviewing the depressed state of the farmers, and pictured mortgage sales and claimed that the boy's feelings were as badly hurt as the girl's and that the jury ought to set off the one against the other.

The jury brought in a verdict for Miss Gray for $500 and costs.

Death Due to a Fall.

BRAMPTON, March 20.—William Hunter, aged 73 years, was in the act of taking water from a cistern when he suddenly fell forward and in striking the ice received injuries which caused instantaneous death. When found the body was completely submerged in water, but a medical examination brought out the fact that death was not caused by drowning, but resulted from a wound found on the head.

Hamilton Man Fatally Injured.

DETROIT, March 20.—Edward Green, 26 years old, switchman in the Michigan Central yards, was engaged in making a coupling this morning when he was caught about the chest and badly crushed. His injuries are internal and likely to prove fatal. Green is a single man, his home is at Hamilton, Ont.

A Female Smuggler.

NIAGARA FALLS, March 20.—Customs Officer J. J. Flynn seized a trunk filled with fine millinery the other day and is holding it pending the action of the department at Ottawa. The lady belongs to Halifax, N.S., and told Mr. Flynn that she had nothing dutiable in her trunk, but an investigation showed goods upon which nearly $175 in duty should be paid.

KILLED IN A CONVENT.

MURDEROUS ROBBERS AT THE CAROLINE ISLANDS.

Two Friars and a Porter Killed and Many Others Wounded—Desperate Battle With the Marauders at Bay—The Priests Hacked With Knives.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—Advices from the Caroline Islands report the attempted pillaging of the Catholic convent on the Island of Santa Rosa, the murder of two friars and a porter, and the wounding of several other friars.

While the friars were at supper about 7 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 15, one of them, Friar Zagara, had occasion to leave the dining room, and in the dimly-lighted hall he stumbled over the body of Thomas, a native, who acted as porter. Thomas was bleeding profusely from a long, deep gash in his throat and from several wounds on the body.

"Robbers," he gasped, as Friar Zagara raised the poor fellow's head. A moment later his head fell back. He was dead.

Friar Zagara shouted an alarm and the friars came trooping from the table. Friar Zagara excitedly explained the scene to his fellow-priests and they at once scattered to catch the murderers.

While Friars Gomez, Morales and Gonzalez were searching on the second floor of the convent they came upon two men, who were ransacking the closets of the room. The robbers sprang at Gomez and Gonzales with uplifted knives, and before they could defend themselves the knives were buried to the hilts in their breasts. As Gomez was falling he was again stabbed by the murderer.

Morales ran down stairs with the robbers in close pursuit. When he was at about the middle of the stairs he suddenly threw up his hands, toppled over and fell dead. One of the robbers had thrown a sharp knife with such accurate aim that it had pierced the base of the skull and caused instant death.

By this time the alarm was given and several officers of the garrison near by came hurrying to the convent and met them with a crowd of natives. The two robbers tried to get to the side of the convent which looks on the river, open a window and jump out. They were foiled in this and then they plunged at the crowd of friars and tried to hack and hew them to death. They were finally overpowered and bound.

At this moment a man was seen running out of the kitchen of the convent with several others in hot pursuit. One of the pursuers was covered with blood. The native, for such he was, looked right and left and seeing the right side of the garden nearly full of his countrymen he made a dash in that direction, gained the river, sprang into it and was lost to sight. The soldiers have been unable to capture him and they claim that the natives did not stop him but opened the road for him to gain the river.

Lomez, Gonzalez and the native porter were killed and about a dozen more or less wounded. The guard house where the robbers are imprisoned, is doubly guarded for fear an attempt may be made by the natives to free them.

Franciscan friars established the convent on Santa Rosa about 20 years ago and it has long been used as a distributing station for supplies for all the parishes on the island.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

Or the Newfoundland Kettle of Fish May Go the Way of the Boston Packets of Tea.

LONDON, March 20.—In the House of Commons to-day a despatch from St. John, N.B., was read. The despatch transmitted to the Imperial Government the resolutions adopted by the Colonial Legislature requesting England to delay any coercive legislation until the colony had been heard in its defence. The message is signed by the President of the Legislative Council and the Speaker of the House of Assembly of Newfoundland.

William Henry Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, commenting upon the despatch, said it touched upon a question of great importance, and upon behalf of the Government he was unwilling to give a hasty answer. As it was, Mr. Smith had been unable to confer with his colleagues, as the despatch had only been received to-day. It was entitled to the utmost consideration.

In the House of Commons to-day Sir James Fergusson, political secretary of the foreign office, said the draft of the House of Lords bill in regard to Newfoundland had not been sent to St. John's. The Government of Newfoundland was requested by the foreign office in November last to procure necessary legislation to empower England to carry out treaties with France. The present bill was proposed in consequence of the refusal of the Government of Newfoundland to accede to the request of the foreign office.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "Unless something is done quickly to bring about rapprochement between the Colonies and the Colonial Office we may find the Newfoundland kettle of fish go the way of the Boston packets of tea."

The gravity of the Newfoundland question only begins to dawn on the country. In yesterday evening's debate in the House of Lords leaders on both sides avoided as far as possible touching probable complications endangering the peace of the empire, yet they could not avoid imparting an impression that developments are likely which may give rise to serious trouble.

Lord Salisbury, in the gravest of recent ministerial deliverances, weighing every word with care, admitted it was difficult to look without grave apprehension to the future in view of the strong feeling in France against the slightest relaxation even of the more extreme and unreasonable of her claims.

The debate has profoundly agitated the members of the House of Commons, and the tenor of communications exchanged by Morley and Gladstone points to strenuous opposition on behalf of the Newfoundland Government. Mr. Smith has promised a reply Monday, and it is prophesied that the Government will pause until the delegates of the Newfoundland Legislature who are coming to London have had time to be heard.

The Russian Arbitrator.

LONDON, March 20.—M. Martens of Russia has accepted the invitation to become a member of the Board of Arbitration in the Newfoundland dispute.

LAWRENCE BARRET DEAD.

The Great Actor Dies Suddenly in New York Last Night.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Lawrence Barrets, the tragedian, died this evening at 10.45 o'clock, at the Windsor Hotel. The demise was due to heart failure and the end was quite sudden, Mr. Barrett being unconscious but a short time before he died.

An Interesting Point Raised in a Toronto Man's Trial at Utica.

UTICA, March 20.—In the trial of James A. Millar, alias James Muidoon of Toronto, Ont., for smuggling Chinamen into this country, now in progress before U.S. District Judge Coxe in this city, Attorney Dengelis, assigned to defend the prisoner, raised an interesting point to-day. The Chinamen came to this country by a rowboat across Niagara River. The statute provides that it is a misdemeanor to aid or abet any Chinese person to enter the United States by land or to aid or abet any such to land from a vessel. Mr. Dengelis argued and the Government admitted that rowboat was not a vessel within the meaning of the statute. Mr. Dengelis argued that coming by rowboats could not be construed to mean coming by land. The effect of this construction of the statute would enable Chinamen to come to this country by rowboats.

The court held that for the present he would accept the broad interpretation excluding Chinamen to this country by what ever means, but promised to give the question further consideration and change his ruling if wrong.

ASTON MANOR ELECTION.

THE UNIONIST CANDIDATE ELECTED YESTERDAY.

The Wreck of the Utopia—Fight Between the Factions in Sligo—Parnell's Bluff as Viewed by Michael Davitt—Raid by Paris Police.

LONDON, March 20.—An election for member of Parliament was held in Aston-Manor to-day to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George Kynoch (Conservative). Capt. Grice Hutchinson (Unionist), received 5810 votes to 2282 polled for W. Philpson Beale (Gladstonian).

The seat was rendered vacant by the death of the Conservative member, Mr. Kynoch. This constituency was formerly a Liberal one and was carried in 1885 for the Liberals by a majority of 1153 votes. In 1886, after the split of the Liberal party, the Conservative candidate, with the aid of the Liberal-Unionists, was elected by a majority of 782 votes, Mr. Kynoch (Con.) receiving 3495 votes to 2713 for Reid (Home Ruler). The constituency is very near to Birmingham, of which Mr. Chamberlain is the uncrowned king. So far as can be judged, Mr. Chamberlain is as popular and influential in Birmingham to-day as he was five years ago, and he is, if anything, more bitterly opposed to the Gladstonians and to Home Rule for Ireland than he was at that time. The result of this election, in which the candidates on both sides were pretty equally matched both as to popularity and as to influence, showed that the Gladstonians of Birmingham and its vicinity have not won back any of the dissentient Liberals who separated from the party in 1886.

The Sad Scenes Witnessed by Divers in the Sunken Utopia.

GIBRALTAR, March 20.—The bodies of 28 adults and three children, victims of the Utopia disaster, were interred together here to-day in a trench dug in ground specially blessed for the reception of the remains. All the clergy of Gibraltar, the town and Garrison officials and the officers of the British Channel Squadron were present.

One of the survivors says that just before the collision he was on deck with a crowd of emigrants. When the collision occurred there was a rush to the hatches, many trying to get below to save their property and to assist relatives to escape. The cabin passengers swarmed to the companionways, trying to escape, the water pouring through the rent in the steamer's side. The two crowds met and the hatches were choked to the top with a surging mass of human beings unable to advance or retreat.

It is officially stated 562 persons lost their lives by the disaster.

During the day divers from the British war vessels recovered eleven more bodies from the wreck. The bodies of many of the drowned were found so firmly clasped together that it was difficult to separate them. Captain McLeague has been remanded for a further hearing.

Capt. McLeague has not given his evidence yet. In addition to the charges against him already mentioned he is accused of feloniously slaying certain persons unknown. He was bailed in $4800.

The bodies buried to-day were conveyed to the cemeteries in wagons covered with British and Italian flags.

At a meeting yesterday a subscription was organized and a relief committee was appointed.

The Anchor Line steamer Assyria has arrived here. She will take back to Italy the rescued who wish to return.

The Thunderer Says the Belgian Flag Can not Wave Over the Nile Regions.

LONDON, March 20.—The Times publishes an article on Congo affairs calling attention to the prohibitory tariff and to the rumors in connection with the Kerkhove expedition which is now well on its way from Leopoldville with the intention of annexing the Nile Valley in King Leopold's name. The Times protests against the "overweening ambition" of the Congo Free State and says, "The Belgian flag cannot wave over the Nile regions. King Leopold ought to realize that such action will inevitably lead to a partition of the Congo Free State among the European powers whose possessions are clustering on its borders."

Parnell's Bluff.

LONDON, March 20.—Michael Davitt in an interview to-day contemptuously referred to what he termed Parnell's "bluff." Davitt said he did not intend to be a candidate in an election in the division of Cork City which Parnell now represents. Two reasons pressed him to make this decision. The first, he said, is that Mr. Parnell will not resign, for he knows he will be beaten should he come forward for re-election. The second reason is that I am not anxious to enter Parliament now or in the future, though I am unwilling to bind myself to remain in this frame of mind for all time. In North Sligo Mr. Parnell's candidate, Ald. Dillon, will be beaten by 2000 votes.

The Pall Mall Gazette, under the heading "Fire Escape Tactics, Mr. Parnell Climbs Down," says: "Mr. Parnell has made his first really weak move, consequently the Parnellites are greatly embarrassed and the patriots are jubilant now it is evident the challenge of Mr. Healey was a mere bluff."

Important Raid by the Police in Paris.

PARIS, March 20.—The police last night raided and searched the houses of a number of leading Boulangists. They also arrested Granger and Roche, members of the Chamber of Deputies, who belong to the patriotic league, and two anarchist leaders, Morphy and Carbu, on charges of fomenting an insurrection and intending to incite a disturbance at a meeting in honor of Jules Ferry to be held to-morrow. Many revolutionary documents have been seized by the police and will be used at the trial of the accused. The police seized at Caron's residence a list containing the names of 1200 men, so arranged in groups as to form military companies.

Shillelahs in Sligo.

DUBLIN, March 20.—The Parnellites were holding a meeting at Sligo to-day when they were attacked by anti-Parnellites, who stoned them, pelted them with mud and broke up the meeting. The anti-Parnellites also stoned the police who came to the assistance of the Parnellites, and a general scrimmage ensued. After the Parnellite party had retired their opponents held a meeting.

A Canard.

ROME, March 20.—It is semi-officially denied that sealed orders have been sent to the Italian squadron in consequence of the lynching of the 11 Italians at New Orleans.

Sheared the Lamb of its Fleece.

BUFFALO, March 20.—John C. Lamb, a Canadian farmer hailing from Delhi, Ont., called at police headquarters and told a story that caused Supt. Morgenstern to smile. A few days ago, he said, a letter came to him from a firm in New York stating that for $300 they would give him $800 in cash at any time he would come to New York and make the bargain. Mr. Lamb at once decided to go to New York. Accordingly he gathered $300 of hard-earned money and journeyed eastward. He met the sharks at New York, was taken to the bunco steerer's den, and the old game of exposing $800 in greenbacks was gone through with. Lamb planked down his $300 on the understanding that the $800 in counterfeit money was to be sent by express here. Lamb came to Buffalo and waited for his package, but it never came, and finally, realizing that he had been duped, went to Supt. Morgenstern and related his tale of woe.

A BIGAMIST ARRESTED.

Wife No. 1 Traces Him to Chicago and Has Him Arrested.

CHICAGO, March 20.—James Kidd Roech, a carpenter living at No. 158 North Desplaines-street, is under arrest at the Desplaines-street Station charged with bigamy. A woman named Catherine Julia Roech appeared at the station yesterday and told Captain Hayes that Roech was a bigamist; that she had been married to him 20 years ago in Toronto, Canada, but that eight years ago he had deserted her. She learned recently that he was living in Chicago and came at once to this city. She found his address in the city directory and went to the house night before last. She was amazed when she found that her husband had married again, and that a little girl six years old was the result of his last marriage. A wordy war ensued between wife No. 1 and wife No. 2, and the latter was compelled to leave the house. Yesterday she swore out a warrant charging the couple with bigamy, and last evening Officers Smith and Tracy arrested them both under arrest. Wife No. 2 is a Scotch woman aged about 40. She says that she had no knowledge of her husband's former marriage, and that she intends to stick by him. Roech is aged about 50.

LA GRIPPE IN THE WEST.

Thousands of Cases in Chicago Among Working People Seriously Interfere With Business—Detroit Also a Sufferer.

CHICAGO, Ill., March 20.—Chicago is in the grasp of the grip. The disease seems to be more prevalent than it was at any time last year. It strikes all classes of society. The residents of the fashionable avenues and the denizens in the tenements of the poor alike suffer from its ravages. Five hundred men employed on the west side street car system are laid off with the epidemic and the company is badly handicapped for help. The south side company has 125 men on the sick list. The north side company has about 75 men out, while many of those at work are suffering from the disease in a mild form.

The large downtown stores are having a like experience. In one store, employing 150 clerks, 40 are sick. Ten per cent. of the police force is laid up and 50 men in the fire department are off. Fifty out of 150 mail carriers in the postoffice are suffering. All of the hospitals are overcrowded. About 50 sufferers applied for admission to the county hospital yesterday and nearly as many the day before. This institution is full and many of the patients are compelled to accept accommodations on the floor.

There is scarcely a boarding house in this city, it is said, but has from 1 to 5 persons laid up with the disease. It has invaded the hotels and fully one-third of the guests are ill. To make matters worse for them, many of the managers and hotel employes are also sufferers, and there is such a dearth of help that some of the guests by their own request have been sent to the hospitals. There are large numbers of grip sufferers in private houses all over the city and the doctors are kept busy night and day.

DETROIT, Mich., March 20.—Detroit is again afflicted with the "grip" or some member of his family. Everywhere in this city are heard complaints of the disease, and in some cases whole families have been confined to their homes with it. A careful canvass of the leading physicians in the city justifies the statement that the prevailing wave of sickness has nearly as many victims as its forerunners.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 21.—The session of the Ontario Assembly was unimportant yesterday.

A deputation from the council of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, consisting of Drs. Bergin, M.P., J. Thorburn, A. R. Rogers of Ottawa, R. A. Pyne and Mr. Wallace Nesbitt waited upon the Government with reference to certain changes they want made in the Medical Act to render it more workable. Among other things they want further power to proceed against faith curers and Christian Scientists.

A large deputation from Owen Sound, Bruce and the County of Grey asked the Government for aid to construct a railway from Owen Sound to connect with the Stratford and Lake Huron Railway near Parkhead, in Bruce, a distance of about 13 miles.

The Minister of Education has issued an interesting and valuable report upon compulsory education in Canada, Great Britain, Germany and the United States. Appended is a summary of answers received from all the cities and towns in Ontario regarding the effects of truancy. In every case except one the answer was that compulsory attendance at school would tend to the reduction of juvenile offences. The exception was London, the mayor of which said compulsory education would make no difference, because all offences were committed after school hours.

Col. Gillmor, clerk of the House, entertained these gentlemen at dinner last night: Mr. Speaker, Col. Clarke, M.L.A.; Mr. Monk M.L.A.; Mr. Dack, M.L.A.; M. A. MacKay, M.L.A.; Mr. J. R. Cartwright, Rev. Mr. Brougall, Major Delamere, the Sergeant-at-Arms, Messrs. L. K. Cameron, W. Houston, E. Holmes, F. J. Joseph, R. A. Kent, A. M. Dymond, J. G. Rossau, S. J. Crosby, C. J. Notman, G. Found Dead by His Wife.

Suddenly Summoned.

STRATFORD, March 20.—Philip Morrison, 20 years of age, died suddenly last night. He was engaged in shovelling coal in Alf. Goodwin's coal yard yesterday and was apparently well when he left off work at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. At about 6 o'clock he was suddenly seized with illness and in a couple of hours expired.

Heavy Purchase of Distillery Fed Cattle.

MONTREAL, March 20.—It is said in cattle export circles that all of the Canadian distillery cattle in Canada have been purchased by Messrs. Goldsmith, New York, and Morrice, Chicago. The price paid is from 3½ cents to 3¾ cents per pound. There are over 10,000 of this class of cattle exported yearly, and about the same number have been purchased by the two American dealers. This is about $5 per head dearer than last year.

DEAR SIRS,—Having felt out of order for some time, and having no energy or appetite, blotches on legs, tumor on neck—arising from impure blood, doctors doing me no good, I was induced to buy some B.B.B. I was very much against patent medicines at the time, having tried so many, but after using two bottles I began to get better, and at the fourth bottle was completely well and around again. SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1891.

MR. CARROLL, the Liberal candidate in Kamouraska, has been declared elected by a majority of 95. A short time ago, it will be remembered, it was announced that owing to the neglect of three returning officers to send in certificates, Mr. Chapais had a majority. The change reduces the government majority by two, making it now 27 according to the Mail's classification of the successful candidates.

THE Labor Advocate, an impartial, non-political publication, and dealing with political issues on their merits, remarks: "The old flag has been triumphantly sustained at the polls and, as the result in the cities shows, largely by the votes of workingmen. Evidently the country is loyal, especially the wage-workers. All right—only next time your wages are cut down or you are thrown out of work don't go round whining for sympathy and complaining about oppressive laws and harsh task-masters. You've got your precious old flag and you've proved your loyalty—what more do you want?"

MR. CLARKE WALLACE, of West York, says the Globe, is one of the thirteen who voted against the Jesuit Estates Act. Another of the thirteen is Mr. John A. Barron, Liberal member for North Victoria. Mr. Clarke's zeal for Equal Rights is shown by the fact that he actually took the stump against Mr. Barron and in favour of Mr. Sam Hughes. Mr. Hughes himself is an Equal Righter of the same stamp. In his newspaper, the Victoria Warder, he used to shriek himself hoarse about the iniquities of Rome; but he has for years carried on a most vindictive personal attack against Mr. Barron; and such influence as his newspaper possessed in East Durham was used against Mr. Campbell, the Equal Rights candidate. Mr. Campbell was opposed in the same campaign by Mr. Sam Hughes' brother, Inspector Hughes, another quondam Equal Righter, who, under that guise, was a candidate for the Legislature in Peel county. Protestantism has three doughty champions in Mr. Clarke Wallace and the Hughes brothers.

THE ELECTION PLOTS.

Evidence of an Elaborate Tory Bribery Scheme.

Ballot Box Juggling—Disclosures of the Prince Edward Island Recount—Curious Contract Presented by the North Bruce and North Essex Returning Officers:

PICTON, March 19.—The re-count in Prince Edward took place here yesterday before Deputy Judge Hubbs, finishing at 10 p. m. Owing to the illness of Mr. Widdifield, Mr. W. R. Riddell, of Cobourg, appeared for Dr. Platt, and G. O. Alcorn was counsel for Mr. Miller. The result of the recount was to reduce the majority for Miller by 15, leaving the majority 39. In one polling division seven ballot papers marked for Platt had been rejected, although they were marked so plainly that the judge counted six of them without an argument. Some of the envelopes containing the ballots were not sealed, and others bore evidence of having been opened after they were sealed. On the declaration day the returning officer refused Dr. Platt's agent particulars as to the number of the spoiled and rejected ballot papers. It was quite plain from the result that there had been a systematic plot to count Dr. Platt out in the case of a close vote.

WHOLESALE BRIBERY.

KINGSTON, March 19.—Evidence is accumulating to prove a great bribery scheme planned and carried out by the Tory party in the last election. The whole arrangement was fixed, and one man, an outsider, was engaged to do the work in each spot separately. The plan was to descend on the places on Tuesday before the day of polling, and do the whole thing that day and the next. The places arranged for were Napanee, Kingston, Cobourg, Brighton, Brampton, Peterborough, Lindsay, Goderich and Clinton (one man for those two places,) St Thomas and St. Marys, Acton and Georgetown (two men for those places,) and one man for the Indian reserve in Baldimand. All that can be learned goes to prove that this plan was carried out, that great sums of money were poured into the constituencies on the eve of polling, and that by this means only the Government escaped defeat.

THE BROME RECOUNT.

KNOWLTON, Que, March 18.—The following facts will give an idea of the manner in which Mr. Fisher was deprived of his seat:—The first summing up was a tie, and the returning officer, of course, voted for the Tory candidate. A re-count was demanded for Mr. Fisher, and in several instances ballots not fastened up or sealed were counted by the judge. At one poll some of the ballots were initialled, but the judge counted them all, making a majority in this instance of ten against Mr. Fisher. The seat unquestionably belongs to Mr. Fisher.

THIS NEEDS EXPLANATION.

WALKERTON, March 19.—Returning Officer Murray for North Bruce must have sent his return to Ottawa immediately after his declaration on the 9th. On Thursday, the 12 h inst., a re-count was applied for by Dr. Bonnar. The re-count closed on Tuesday, the 17th inst., giving Mr. McNeill a majority of 30. B fore the court was over it was learned with surprise that Mr. McNeill's return was already gazetted.

EAST GREY.

OWEN SOUND, March 19.—The re-count in the East Grey election case opened here to-day before Judge Morrison. Dr. Sproule was represented by W. Masson of the firm of Masson & Masson and Mr. Clarke by J. M. Klilbourn and A. G. McKay. Very little progress was made in the re-count to-day, the greater portion of the time being taken up in arguing preliminary points, only one or two votes being gained on each side. It is reported that in several polling divisions the deputy returning officers, when initialling the ballots, put corresponding numbers on the counterfoils. Just to what extent these irregularities have been practised it is impossible at present to say. Messrs. Kilbourn and McKay are thoroughly determined, owing to the gross frauds that have perpetrated in other ridings, to give the case a searching and thorough investigation.

WHY THIS DELAY?

WINDSOR, March 19.—So far the returning officer for the north riding of Essex has not announced the result of the poll of March 5th. The re-count for the south riding is in progress here to-day, resulting so far in an increase in favour of Mr. Allen of two votes.

MR. DAWSON'S VICTORY.

KINGSTON, March 19.—G. W. Dawson, Addington's elect, was in the city to day and was showered with congratulations. To the claim that the Conservatives were taken by surprise he presents positive disproof in the figures. They polled 819 more votes than in 1887, thus showing unusual exertion.

THEY FEARED THE RE-COUNT.

LUCKNOW, March 19.—The Tories of South Victoria are so jubilant over the application by the Reformers for a re count having been disallowed on a legal technicality that they formed a procession and accompanied their candidate, Chas. Fairbairn, to Bobcaygeon. The procession consisted of seventeen rigs, principally occupied by those who feared the result of a re-count. Mr. Fairbairn, with his bosom companions, Samuel Hughes, the defeated candidate for North Victoria, occupied one rig and headed the procession, followed by their admirers.

Death in March Winds.

Poets and novelists go into ecstacies over what they romantically call "beautiful spring," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, everyone is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is after all one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitutions, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not properly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly developes into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. When the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with a persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from Catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure-all—it is an honest remedy, which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price, (50 cents small, or $1 large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont.

Some Foolish People

Allow a cough to run until it gets beyond the reach of medicine. They often say, "Oh, it will wear away," but in most cases it wears them away. Could they be induced so try the successful medicine called Kemp's Balsam, which is sold on a positive guarantee to cure, they would immediately see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Price 50c. and $1. Trial size free. At all druggists. dw

Everybody Likes It.

Wm. Dredge, Eden street, Barrie, Ont., says: One bottle of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil brought back appetite which other Emulsions took away; removed cough entirely, and gained five pounds. It tastes just like cream, the oil being perfectly disguised. Sold by all druggists. dw

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. This was about two years ago, and I still enjoy the best of health."—Mrs. A. McCullough, Digby, N. S. 2wlld

Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2wlld

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2wlld

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G.W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

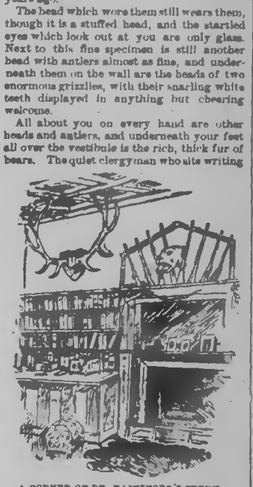
The moment you enter the hallway of the parsonage just back of St. George's Church, you get a strong hint of the rector's tastes. Great antlers are all about you. In the corner just opposite the door there is quite a tangle of enormous horns, one set of which is probably the largest ever brought to New York by an amateur. They adorned the head of an enormous elk which fell under Dr. Rainsford's rifle in the Rockies a few years ago.

The head which wore them still wears them, though it is a stuffed head, and the startled eyes which look out at you are only glass. Next to this fine specimen is still another head with antlers almost as fine, and underneath them on the wall are the heads of two enormous grizzlies, with their snarling white teeth displayed in anything but cheering welcome.

All about you on every hand are other heads and antlers, and underneath your feet all over the vestibule is the rich, thick fur of bears. The quiet clergyman who sits writing



A CORNER OF DR. RAINSFORD'S STUDY.

In the study behind the door at the left is responsible for the extinction of all this wild menagerie.

But what you see in the hallway is nothing compared to the trophies which adorn the walls of the study. High up on the walls, close to the ceiling, and quite around the room is a continuous chain of branching antlers, and scattered through the collection are the heads and horns of great mountain sheep, about the most difficult game to bag that is found in the Rockies.

From a long Afghan gun over the chimney there dangles a grim rosary of grizzly bear claws, curved and fully three inches in length. Above the long, crooked-stocked Afghan piece is a clustered group of rifles—a little armory in itself. Under your feet and scattered all about the hardwood floor are more bear skins, and on the sofa close by the wall on the west side of the room is the skin of the biggest grizzly Dr. Rainsford ever shot—a magnificent fellow he must have been—the faint sheen of his scattered white hairs showing through the rich dark brown of his fur. It covers all the sofa, this skin, and overlaps the edges in ample folds.

Dr. Rainsford is still a young man—but a little over 40. He passed his boyhood in London, where his father was a Church of England clergyman, and, although it seems curious to those who see his rugged physical development now, he was in youth in such bad health that the time most boys spend in school he spent under the care of a doctor.

For two years he lived in Italy, where his health improved, and he returned to England. He was still below par in strength, however, and in 1876 he came to this country for the purpose of trying the rough life of the West to see what that would do for him. He went first to St. Paul, where at that time the railroad lines to the Northwest ended and [illegible] across the [illegible] the Oregon.

It was a wild, [illegible] perilous one as well, [illegible] terrible Sioux revolt [illegible] several times pursued [illegible] it made a strong man out of [illegible] and laid the foundation [illegible] Rainsford's splendid physical condition to-day, but also for his fondness for every wild mountain life which will never leave him.

When he returned to England he entered Cambridge University. After passing his examinations there he came to America again as a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church and with this country, and with everything American that is good, he is in hearty sympathy.

His broad liberality of spirit does not suit the narrow bigotry which still lurks with some force in many quarters but his healthful, manly influence in the immediate field of his labor is making itself more and more felt.

"If I could do it by the raising of my hand," he said the other day, "I would not sweep away the drinking places. I would not take away the poor man's club until I could give him some better substitute for it.

"The drunkard is made by his environment. It is hard enough for people who have good surroundings to keep straight. How much harder is it for those who have the wretched surroundings of the poor! No, the labor must be to better man's condition, to give them better modes of relaxation before we take away those they have, bad as they are.

"That day is coming. We are now all turning up the rough field with the plough and tearing out the weeds. If you want to keep the weeds down you must sow good seed in their place. That is what we are trying to do.

"Here in our building next the church we have a club where our young men go. They can play billiards and smoke—smoking is a safety valve. There is no harm in that. We are making our club more attractive all the time, too, and yet we have only begun."

The Diversions of a Country Maid.

Mr. Murrie-Hills—You say you don't dance, and that you have scruples against theatre-going. What shall we do to amuse you? What do you do at home? I am ready for anything you like.

Pretty Country Cousin—Oh, at home we have church sociables.

Mr. Murrie-Hills—And what do you do there?

Pretty Country Cousin (demurely)—We generally play kissing games.

THE HANDS.

How They May be Trained to Keep Out of Sorrow.

"My dear fellow," said a society woman of great candor to an awkward, timid young Harvard graduate whom she was to present, "you have any amount of talent, you have position, you have money, but you will never be at your ease, never show at your best, until you know what to do with your hands and feet. You must lose them, forget them, be unconscious of them."

This is easier said than done; and yet it is possible by the persistent use of a few simple exercises which bring relaxation and freedom from stiffness, and others which encourage flexibility and strength of muscle. Cultivate the habit of letting the arms fall and place themselves as they will when standing or sitting without occupation. Learn to swing them forward a little, back and forth, like a pendulum hanging from the shoulder, the elbow joint straight and easy, but not taut. Lift the length of the arm as a weight from the shoulder very quietly and slowly as high as it will go, and bring it down in the same manner. The muscles across the back are wakened to a wonderful degree. Try this movement singly, and again with both arms, fifty or a hundred times a day. With the arms hanging at full length, elevate the shoulders slowly and turn them in a rotary motion toward the back.

A daily practice of such simple movements calls one attention to the varied actions and use of just such muscles; the idea of using the arm from the shoulder is understood, and the hand, bringing different sets of muscles into play in alternation and succession becomes second nature. This is the numbering of one's horses, and training them to do each its own part. It is a kind of personal message the virtue of which lies in the minute search for weakness, flabbiness and lack of development in the smallest muscle, and the daily gentle manipulation which strengthens it to action. No woman wants that clean-cut sinew and knotty, woody fiber that many men seek to obtain from athletics. It is entirely opposed to the offices of life to which nature calls her; she does want firmness with flexibility, staying power and endurance.—Emma Moffett Tyng, in Harper's Bazar.

How Phosphorus was Found.

That most useful element, phosphorus, was discovered about two hundred and twenty-three years ago by Brandt, an alchemist of Hamburg, who made himself immortal by accident. Brant was, like other alchemists, employed in the ridiculous search for the philosophers' stone, or material that was to transmute every thing it came in contact with into gold, when he discovered, as the result of one of his chance analytical experiments, a peculiar hard, waxy substance with a luminous glow in the dark, to which the name of phosphorus, or light bearer, was afterwards given. Within two years of this memorable discovery, or in 1650, one Kraft brought a small piece of phosphorus to London, and showed it to Charles II. and his Court. The Hon. Robert Boyle famous as one of the first really scientific experimenters in Britain afterwards independently discovered methods for preparing the element, and instructed Mr. Godfrey Hankwitz, of London, how to procure it from urine. The latter was the first who made it for sale in this country, and he is said to have supplied the world's demand for it for many years. It continued, however, down to the present century to be a very expensive chemical; and we find in the books of the Royal Society in 1731, that six ounces of phosphorus, used by Dr. Frobenius in an experimental lecture before the Prince of Wales, cost ten guineas.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

The Handsomest Lady in Peterborough

Remarked to a friend the other day that she Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when other cough remedies had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merit any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c. and $1. dw

It Does Its Work.

Mrs. James Dix, Brock street, Kingston, Ont., says: I suffered with an inflamed throat and bad cough for seven months. Was treated by physicians without success, when six doses of Miller's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil cured me. It's as palatable as cream. For sale by all druggists. dw

Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Mortuary Statistics.

The mortuary statistics for February show the following figures of mortality. Peterborough being among the lowest:—Toronto, 1.03; Hamilton, 1.53; Ottawa, 1.52; London, .87; Kingston, 1.09; Brantford, .56; St. Thomas, 1.60; Guelph, .85; Windsor, 1.61; Belleville, 1.14; Stratford, .50; Peterborough, 1.07; Woodstock, .75; Brockville, 1.46; Chatham, 1.48; Galt, 1.23. The highest ratio was that of Three Rivers, viz., 2.73. Quebec's was 2 59, and Montreal 1.77.

Lost his Pack.

On Thursday one of the Levine Bros., the Jews, who conduct a junkshop on Hunter street, complained to Chief Round that a package of goods valued at $50 had been stolen from his pedler's cart Wednesday night, when he stopped for the night with Mr. Crough. No trace of the missing bundle was found until to-day, when Mr. Crough brought the pack in to the Jew. Mr. Crough said he had found it lying in a fence corner not far from his house, where it had been left, and during the night covered up by a snowfall. It is thought the parcel was taken as a practical joke.

A School for Girls.

Rev. A. B. Demill, president of the Demill Ladies College, Oshawa, was in town several days during the past week in the interests particularly of a new educational institute to be founding in Toronto—"Demill's Residential Academy and Day School." The character and objects of this school will appeal strongly to the many who have felt the want of an exclusively Protestant residential school, which will undertake the care and educational training of little girls of immature years, who have been deprived of the natural protection of father or mother, or both, and who, without such a school are apt to drift into institutions where undesirable religious tenets are instilled, and wrong life views imparted. At the school of Mr. Demill little orphaned girls, and girls needing a substitute for proper parental training, of a purely Protestant type, are received.

Special silver collections will be taken up at all the services for the Sunday School. On Monday Evening Rev. Mr. Johnston will deliver his brilliant lecture on "Influences." Lesson will commence at 8 o'clock. Those securing tickets for the lecture will be privileged with attending the Children's entertainment on Tuesday evening free. One of the principal features of the Tuesday evening entertainment will be rendering of a piece called "Auction" by the larger scholars. All the children are to be sold and it will interest every one to know who it to get them.

A Great Structure.

The great Bay of Quinte bridge, at Belleville, which has been in course of construction for nearly two years past, was opened for traffic to-day. The swing was completed and worked to perfection, and Friday morning Mr. Thomas Ritchie, the president of the company, crossed on foot from end to end of the bridge, being the first person to do so. The structure, which is of steel, is of a light and beautiful design. The bridge, which connects Belleville with Furry Point, or Rossmore, county of Prince Edward, is 1,868 feet long. It has 13 spans, each of 98 feet long; two of 148 feet each, one of 60 feet and a swing of 238 feet. The northern approach is 800 feet long, and a roadway of nearly half a mile in length had to be built through a marsh to connect the approach to the main land. The total cost of the work will be about $105,000. It is expected that the construction of this bridge, by affording permanent connection between Belleville and Prince Edward, will be of great benefit to the trade of that county and of the city.

Bishop Dowling Remembered.

Thursday last was the festival of St. Joseph, patron saint of His Lordship Bishop Dowling, of Hamilton, formerly of Peterborough, and the sisters and pupils of Loretto Convent, says the Hamilton Herald, amiably conspired to make the early evening especially interesting to Bishop Dowling by means of a festal entertainment in his honor. At 6 30 the pupils assembled in the concert hall and received Bishop Dowling, who was attended by Rev. Fathers McEvay, Hinchey, Coty, Halm, O'Sullivan and the Christian Brothers. The proceedings were of a private nature, but a few friends were present. The chief feature was the presentation of a wreath of flowers and address to the bishop. The floral offering was very pretty, being made up of roses, violets, lilies, pansies, mignonette and, heliotrope. The address referred in poetical terms to the many beautiful flowers in the wreath and their application to the life and good works of the bishop. Bishop Dowling thanked the young ladies for their lovely present and good wishes and gave them much kindly advice. He gave great praise to the pupils for their abilities, shown in so many varied ways.

Boundary Bridges.

The Globe of to day says:—"The representations made to the government by the large deputation from Northumberland and Durham on Thursday with reference to the maintenance of the bridge over the "Trent Narrows," near the boundary of Northumberland and Peterborough, are being followed up to the House. Yesterday Dr. Willoughby introduced a bill which will cover the case, although it is general in its terms. It provides that all bridges within eighty chains or one mile of a boundary line between counties shall be held to be boundary bridges. Even if the principle of the bill meet the approval of the House the distance will likely be reduced. But the members for Peterborough, Messrs. J. R. Stratton and Blezard, are vigorously opposing the bill. They waited upon the members of the government with the Northumberland and Durham deputation on Thursday and talked in opposition to it. They pointed out then that legislation such as the deputation proposed would reopen settled disputes about bridges all over the Province and give rise to a great deal of trouble and expense. No county in the Province has greater reason to congratulate itself upon its representatives in the Legislature than Peterborough. Messrs. Stratton and Blezard are among the most useful members of the House and most faithful guardians of the interest of their constituents.

An Unfounded Rumour.

Sir John too Wise to Take any Chances.

The EXAMINER has received repeated enquiries as to the truth of the rumour that has been current in town for the past week to the effect that Mr. James Stevenson was to be elevated to, or, rather, buried in, the Senate, and that the vacancy caused by Mr. Stevenson's resignation, was to be filled by the election of Hon. Mr. Carling, the defeated of London—that is, in case the electors consented to be represented by Mr. Carling. Much as some of the parties chiefly interested in the consummation of this little arrangement would desire it, the EXAMINER has good reason for believing that Sir John has not the slightest intention of opening West Peterborough on any such basis—or any other consistency for that matter. Sir John's grip on Ontario is too slight to run any risks. The milch cow has to be handled very cannily to induce her to submit to being milked by the ex calves of the maritime provinces without kicking.

The Coroner's Inquest.

Some Evidence Taken before a Jury—A Post Mortem Examination Held.

The inquest into the cause of death of the infant, which was the subject of an item in yesterday's EXAMINER, was begun in the police court room yesterday afternoon before Dr. Bell, coroner. The following jury was empannelled:

JOHN F. MEDHERAL, Foreman.

Rufus Stevenson,	John Irwin,
Thomas Brady,	Alex. Gibson,
Timothy Green,	Samuel Campbell,
George Davidson,	W. J. Green,
Wm. Morgan,	T. McGrath,
H. Newton,	Jas. McComb,
F. Foote,	Geo. Stevenson,
Walter Paterson,	A. E. Ontrem.

The viewing of the body was the first business. Chief Round went down stairs, unlocked the door of the cell in which the tiny coffin lay, lifted the little box and its light burden in his hands, and deposited it on a table in front of the jurors in the court room. The lid was unscrewed and the body of a well-developed female child was exposed to view. Each of the jurors looked at the body and the coffin was carried away again.

The taking of evidence was then begun.

MRS. MOORE, (wife of Mr. W. H. Moore, barrister) the first witness, said she engaged the girl Nellie Whelan (or Phelan) Friday evening as a servant. Thursday morning the girl was about her work as usual, and at seven o'clock in the morning when witness came down stairs the girl was working and did not complain of being unwell. But before their breakfast was over the girl told one of the children she had a bilious attack and would have to go to bed. Mrs. Moore afterwards went up to the girl's room and called her out and spoke to her. She did not see anything wrong with her. The girl came out of her room and while Mrs. Moore was talking to her she seemed to grow worse. She went back into her room and bolted the door, saying she did not wish to be disturbed. Then was nearly nine o'clock, and the girl did not appear again till one o'clock, when Mrs. Moore saw her in the kitchen, looking very ill and as if she had suffered a great deal. Mrs. Moore again asked her if she could do anything for her, but the girl refused all assistance. She continued about her work as usual all afternoon. Mrs. Moore was first led to the discovery of the infant from hearing from a neighbour that the girl was in trouble, and on going to the room she noticed that something unusual had occurred. She called in her friend, Mrs. Dumble, for advice, and together they again visited the bedroom and found the body in the pail. The girl made no statement to Mrs Moore concerning the matter, nor did she question her; but before she was taken to the hospital Mrs. Moore said: "Is it possible, Nellie, that you made away with that poor little child," and the girl replied, "No, Mrs. Moore, I did not." Mrs. Moore had no doubt that the child was Nellie Whelan's; no one else had access to her room.

Mrs. DUMBLE also gave evidence corroborating the previous witness' statements.

The jury ordered a post mortem examination to be held by Doctors McGrath and Yelland, and adjourned to meet Monday next at three o'clock.

THE AUTOPSY PERFORMED.

Doctors McGrath and Yelland, in compliance with the request of the jury, last night made the post mortem examination, the results of which will be made known at the adjourned inquest Monday afternoon.

Committed for Mayhem.

McDonald Proves too Much for a Dancing Party at Crookston.

The Belleville Ontario says:—A man named McDonald was brought to the city last night from Madoc by Chief Huff, on a committment for Mayhem. On Tuesday night McDonald attended a dance at Crookston at which he was not invited. When the spreads were laid he was not offered a plate. He was a stranger in the room and said to one of the company that he would give him twenty-five cents if he would get him a plate. One of the men at the table said loud enough for all in the room to hear him: "Give that man a bag of potatoes." This was repeated several times, when McDonald took offence and asked the man if he would not like to plant them himself. The offender said he didn't care if he did and McDonald proceeded to wipe the floor with him. Instantly there was a free fight. The man McDonald proved to be a bad customer. One man was literally thrown the full length of the room and many others felt the effect of his sledge hammer blows. The man who had insulted him was his game, however, and when the crowd pulled him off he had chewed an ear off his adversary and which he spat on the floor before the assembly. A warrant was got out for his arrest and he was committed for trial as stated. It is believed that McDonald will get off lightly as it was a provoked and unequal fight.

The Undertakers' "Combine."

The following letter was published in the Lindsay Post:—

SIR,—I noticed in your issue of the 27th of Feb. that Mr. J. Bertram and yourself charged Mr. W. H. Hoyle, of Cannington as being the secretary of the Undertakers combine. I am a Reformer and opposed to Mr. Hoyle's political creed, however, I deem it a duty to state that no such thing as a combine in any sense of the term can be applied to the Undertakers' Association of Ontario. It is an educational society pure and simple. Its only object is to instruct its members in the art of embalming and the prevention of contagious diseases, in so far as our calling can prevent it, by abolishing customs hitherto causing the same. Trusting you will in justice to the undertakers of the province publish this contradiction of the charge instanced, I have the honor to remain,

Yours truly,
D. BELLEGHEM,
Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Undertakers' Association of Ontario.
Peterborough, March 12, 1891.

Fish and Game.

Some time ago Mr. A. D. Stewart, Hamilton, secretary of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission, published a letter in the EXAMINER stating that anyone interested in the protection of game or fish, by writing to Mr. Stewart would be supplied with printed forms of questions relating thereto, which, it filled out, would be of assistance to the commission in arriving at a conclusion. Mr. Sam Ray, who is an ardent sportsman, and takes an interest in the preservation of game, wrote to Mr. Stewart, and received a number of question forms, which he will distribute among any parties who have any information or experience likely to be of use to the commission. The question with relation to deer is virtually whether hunting with dogs shall be done away with. Sportsmen can get copies of the questions by calling upon Mr. Ray at his tobacco store on Hunter street.

The Cobourg Post says:—On Wednesday evening last a pleasant and sociable company assembled at the residence of Richard Croft, and assisted that gentleman and his estimable family in holding an enjoyable house warming. Besides a number of our townspeople and immediate neighbors, a party of fourteen came in from Peterborough, Lindsay and Port Hope. The festivities were kept up until after four next morning.

A Serious Battle.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of these ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that along follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken-down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents a box), by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

An Honest and Fearless Physician.

Many physicians come out honestly and boldly in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, and are not afraid to let it be known that it is a remedy of great value to mankind. We give the opinion of Dr. J. W. Small, New York, Corresponding Secretary of the New York Medical Association. He says: "I have used Paine's Celery Compound with excellent success in a case of nervous prostration, complicated with severe facial neuralgia and insomnia. Its effects have been those of a nerve tonic sedative. I consider it to be a valuable therapeutic agent."

This testimony, coming from one of New York's best known physicians, carries great weight, and should induce the doubting and suffering victim to have faith in the greatest remedy known to the medical faculty.

MURDER AT STRATHROY.

FATALLY BEATEN IN A DISPUTE OVER A DRAIN.

Robert Murray of Metcalfe Kills His Relative as the Result of an Old Feud—The Victim a Neighbor of His Assailant—Remanded to Jail.

STRATHROY, March 21.—Yesterday afternoon a most melancholy affair occurred on the town line between Carradoc and Metcalfe, about six miles from this town, by which a young man lost his life at the hands of a neighbor and relative. An old feud had existed between Robert Murray of the 10th concession and William O'Rowe of lot 2 in the same concession over some Government drain that runs through their joint properties. On Saturday afternoon last, as Mr. Rowe was talking to Mr. Herring at the corner of the town line and 13th concession of Metcalfe, Robert Murray and his wife drove up on their way home from Strathroy, and with an oath Murray said to Rowe that if he did not get out of the way he would ride him down. This he did, running over Rowe and throwing him in the ditch. Blows followed, in which it is said that both used clubs, Rowe apparently getting the worst of it, and had to be helped to his home, some half-mile distant. Word was subsequently brought to Strathroy and a charge of aggravated assault sworn out against Murray, who was afterwards bailed out before P. M. Noble, himself in $400 and two other sureties of $100 each. At 1 o'clock this morning Rowe died from the result of his injuries and a second warrant was sworn out against Murray, charging him with murder. This afternoon an inquest was opened before Coroner Lindsey, Drs. A. S. Thompson, W. W. Hoare and A. Thompson being denuted to hold the post mortem. After inspecting the body and hearing some preliminary evidence they adjourned to meet at Strathroy on Wednesday next, when the result of the post mortem examination will be made known and full evidence taken.

A CANADIAN DESPERADO

Kills a Detective and Wounds Several Other Officers.

PITTSBURG, March 22.—Six weeks ago Laura Hill and three men entered Smith's jewelry store at Homestead, knocked down and bound the proprietor and got away with $3500 in cash and jewelry. The girl was arrested soon afterwards and was jailed at McKeesport. There she poached on her pals. Last night Detective Gilkinson of Pittsburg, Detective Pat Murphy and two policemen drove to Peter's Run, reaching the house of the leader in the robbery, A. B. Budd, alias Fitzsimmons. Gilkinson threw open the door and Budd shot him dead. A terrible duel then took place at short range between Murphy and Budd. Each emptied his revolver. Budd's wife brought him another and Murphy took Gilkinson's revolver and the fight continued in the smoke-darkened room. Murphy was shot in the forehead, breast and hip, but was not fatally wounded. Mrs Budd was shot in the arm and the two policemen were slightly wounded. Budd escaped. Mrs Budd was arrested. Budd is a noted crook. He weighs only 100 pounds and is said to be a native of Brockville, Ont.

The Murderer Captured.

Fitzsimmons was arrested near Homestead, Pa., to-night. A satchel found near the scene of last night's murder contained a lot of valuable jewelry stolen at Homestead. A copy of the will of Robert Fitzsimons, dated at Brockville, Ont., Dec. 10, 1890, was also found in the valise. This will shows that the murderer's father was a wealthy man, having about $40,000 in money to divide among his heirs, besides a large amount of real estate. The murderer is named in the will as Frederick Carrollton Fitzsimons and is bequeathed $5000 in money and a good share of real estate.

NEWFOUNDLAND AFFAIRS.

G. W. Smalley Sums up the Matter in The N. Y. Tribune.

LONDON, March 22.—The Newfoundland troubles seem rather more numerous since arbitration was agreed to than before. It was bad enough to limit arbitration to lobsters, though, as the French positively refused to include anything else, Lord Salisbury can hardly be blamed. He took what he could get. The French, in fact, occupy ground very similar to Lord Salisbury's own in Behring sea matters. They decline to submit to arbitration points which, as they allege, are not in dispute, or not open to dispute. Telegrams indicate that Lord Knutsford's new bill is regarded in Newfoundland as a greater grievance still, but Lord Knutsford's bill is very simple. The colony was asked to enact a measure to enable treaties with France to be carried out. The colony refused. Thereupon Parliament is appealed to. It is hard to see how any Government could do less. Treaties must be observed. The Foreign Office and Parliament are reproached if they are violated, and Newfoundland can hardly expect England to allow herself to be embroiled with France by sheer bad faith in treaty matters. In short, Newfoundlanders will have ultimately to make up their minds whether they wish to remain an English colony or not. If not, they have only to say so and may depart in peace, but if they decide to remain a colony they must accept the position. They cannot expect Imperial interests to be sacrificed to the claims of a single and really not very large part of the Empire. Meantime they have the consolation of Lord Salisbury's sympathetic remark that they are the sport of historic misfortune.

There is every disposition here, both in the Foreign Office and the Colonial Office, to do all that can be done for Newfoundland. If they seceded, French treaty rights would survive, and it might be not less easy for the French to enforce them as against Newfoundland than as against England

The Pope and Science.

ROME, March 22.—The Pope has written a letter announcing the re-establishment of the donation for the astronomical observatory at the Vatican. His Holiness declares that he is solicitous for the progress of science and places the observatory in the same rank with other papal institutions.

Big Strike Near Liege.

BRUSSELS, March 23.—A general strike has taken place between the men employed in the collieries and steel works owned by the Cockerills. The managers of the concern are apprehensive of trouble from the strikers and have applied to the authorities at Liege for a force of gendarmes to suppress any outbreaks.

Naphtha Cheaper.

LONDON, March 23.—The Chronicle's St. Peterburg correspondent says that the price of naphtha has fallen 30 per cent. owing to the tapping of a stream at Baku yielding 50,000 tons.

A Malay Murderer Respited.

LIVERPOOL, March 22.—Bhargwar, the Malay sailor who was recently condemned to death for murdering Capt. Lyall of the ship Buckingham, on a voyage from Dundee to New York four months ago, has been respited, another seaman on the Buckingham having made an important statement in relation to the case.

Another Monte Carlo Victim.

BERLIN, March 22.—Albert Gruenwald, a leading citizen of Essen is missing, and his relatives fear that he has been foully dealt with at Monte Carlo.

HE ANNOYED HER.

An Irate Housekeeper Peppers Her Employer's Son With a Bullet.

STRATHROY, March 21.—A colored lad named Harry Brown quarrelled Saturday night with his father's housekeeper, a colored woman named Mary Smith. She ordered the boy out and it is said fired a couple of revolver shots at him, without hitting him, but it caused him to leave the house, after which he commenced throwing stones at the windows, when the woman fired again, hitting the boy in the leg.

SATURDAY'S BOAT RACE.

OXFORD HARDLY PRESSED FROM THE START.

It Looked For Some Time as if Cambridge Would be the Winners, But the Dark Blue Made a Final Spurt and Won by Quarter of a Length.

LONDON, March 21.—The 48th race between the eights of Oxford and Cambridge Universities was rowed yesterday and was won by Oxford. It was the most exciting event that has occurred on the Thames for many years.

The race was over the usual course, of about 4¼ miles, which starts at a point about 100 yards above Putney Bridge, near London, and finishes about the same distance above the Ship Inn at Mortlake.

Oxford captured the great advantage of position on the Middlesex side. This year the tide was high at London Bridge at about 1 p.m and at Putney about an hour later. Four steamers and the umpire's launch followed the rival crews. The attendance as a whole did not equal that of former years owing to the early hour at which the race was rowed and to the prevalence of a sleet storm in the forenoon and bitter cold weather.

The crews were made up as follows:

The race was started at 11.09 a.m. Cambridge at first got away with the lead, pulling a shorter, smarter, somewhat quicker, more catchy stroke than Oxford, and at the Claspers' boathouse the Cambridge boat was ahead. Then Oxford bent to her work, pulling the long, dragging, powerful stroke peculiar to the oarsmen of that university, and Oxford was leading slightly at the Craven cottage, six furlongs from the start. At the Crabtree, 1 mile and 3 furlongs from the start, Oxford had the lead by a length. Cambridge soon spurted neatly and gallantly, pulling their shorter, quicker stroke with plenty of vim and with a good grip on the water, which surged the boat ahead in fine style. One mile and three and a half furlongs from the start the two boats were apparently on a level, "nose and nose," and both pulling evenly and strongly. It was then evident that a stubborn contest was in order, and those who had been laying heavy odds on Oxford began to feel sad, while a corresponding feeling of jubilation was experienced by the friends of Cambridge.

Nearing Hammersmith Bridge, one mile and six furlongs from the start, Cambridge again made a magnificent spurt, pulling finely, strongly together, and passed under that bridge a quarter of a length ahead, amid a scene of tremendous excitement.

Oxford, however did not lose heart, but bent down and the more doggedly to their work, tugging sullenly, grittily at their oars and putting a splendid move on their boat. At the Doves, two miles from the start, Oxford led slightly, Cambridge still sticking to their work in magnificent style in spite of the creeping up of their dark blue opponents. The cheering and excitement was intense. At the oil mills, two miles one and a half furlongs from the start, the two boats were again level with each other. A grand, determined plucky struggle took place as the racing eights passed Chiswick, about two and one-half miles from the start. Oxford, when nearing Chiswick, was leading, but it was by a few feet only. Going towards Corney Reach the boats struck into smoother water, which assisted the lighter men in the Cambridge boat and beyond Thornycrofts they forged ahead, eventually leading Oxford by a quarter of a length. The stream, however, here began to favor Oxford, and at Barnes bridge, over three and a half miles from the start, Oxford was leading by half a length. Time 18 minutes 10 seconds. From that point Oxford had much the best station, getting almost clear from the light blues, though both crews were rowing in superb style. Gallantly, coolly, with out an outward sign of exhaustion, the contesting crews tugged at their oars with the utmost brilliancy and nerve. The struggle in the last quarter of a mile of the course was simply magnificent. Oxford had all the work she could do cut out for her as the boats rounded the Barnes bend of the river. Cambridge was rowing pluckily and with plenty of strength, but Oxford passed over the line first by a quarter of a length amid intense, almost indescribable excitement, winning the grandest race rowed on the River Thames in many years. Oxford's time was 22 minutes. The betting was nominally 3 to 1 on Oxford.

PROFESSIONAL ROWING.

John Teemer Makes a Deposit—O'Connor, Hanlan and Gaudaur.

BOSTON, March 22.—A certified draft for $200, payable to The Globe, was received last night from John Teemer of St. Louis, as a forfeit for a match race with Edward Hanlan for $1000 a side, to be rowed at the Point of Pines, near Boston, May 30, or any other place Hanlan may prefer, to be three miles and a turn. The challenge will remain open 10 days, and if not accepted by Hanlan is open to O'Connor and Gaudaur on the same conditions.

[Hanlan, who has been in New York the past two weeks, will probably accept provided terms can be agreed on. As stated frequently in The World O'Connor is not only willing but anxious for a race with the McKeesporter.]

An Interrogation Cost $40.

CORNWALL, March 23.—At the Assize Court here the suit of Robertson v. Williams for slander was tried. It was proven that defendant called plaintiff a low blackguard, following it up with the question: "Who stole Johnny Cook's whisky?" and "Who went preaching and praying around the back country and collecting money for a supposed church?" The jury awarded plaintiff $40 damages.

WATFORD, March 23.—Burglars entered Swift Bros.' drygoods and Dodds Bros.' hardware and grocery last night. They took some ready-made clothing and other goods from Swift's and pocket knives, revolvers, boots, etc., from Dodds.

Murdered by Christian Scientists.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, March 23.—Within the last week three children have died at Springville, Lynn county, under the care of Christian Scientists, and great excitement prevails there. The first two were children of Mr. and Mrs. John Dean. Mrs. Dean wanted a doctor. The grandfather would not allow it, but summoned two faith healers, Mrs. Pitcher of Anamosa and Mrs. Miller of Town Grove. After the death of the children a daughter of old man Dean sickened and died, and the faith healers fled to the nearest railroad station.

One Patient Leaps to His Death—$12,000 Loss Occasioned.

MONTREAL, March 23.—A fire broke out yesterday afternoon in the reservoir building of the Longue Point Lunatic Asylum and damage to the amount of $12,000 was done. Four men in the fourth story, finding all hope of escape cut off, leaped from the window and one of them, J. B. Lachapelle, was fatally injured. The others were injured in a minor degree. The loss is uninsured.

EVENTS ACROSS THE SEA.

200 MEMBERS RETIRE FROM LONDON 'CHANGE.

Nearly Involved in a Duel—A Malay Murderer Pardoned—Gigantic Strike in Brussels—A Number of Steamers Wrecked and Many Lives Lost.

LONDON, March 22.—Discount was firm during the past week at 2⅝ for three months and 2 for short. The reports of large drafts of gold going to Montevideo in connection with the loan of £10,000,000 negotiated by Uruguay tend to cause a hardening of the money rates. Business on the Stock Exchange was very inactive and there will be no revival until after the Easter holidays. The House will close from March 26 to March 31st. In spite of the paucity of transactions prices generally improved. Rupee paper fluctuated and closed ⅛ lower on the week. In foreign securities the feature was the strength of Argentine nationals, the recovery ranging from ½ to 2¾.

The movements of English railway securities were slight, though the tendency was good. There was an average rise of ¾. In American railroads the feeling was distinctly weak, no initiative being taken in dealings here.

Significant of the condition of business on the Stock Exchange is the fact that nearly 200 members with 200 clerks are about to retire, being unwilling or unable to renew their annual subscriptions.

Although business on the Paris bourse was limited during the week the tendency was toward firmness. The fortnightly settlement passed without a symptom of embarrassment arising from the Society des Depots et Comptes Courants collapse.

The Banque de Paris is negotiating a loan for China.

Ratification of a Treaty of Alliance Between Russia and France.

BERLIN, March 22.—Dispatches received by the Foreign Office from St. Petersburg convey some unwelcome information pointing to the conclusion of a formal treaty of alliance between France and Russia. Until recently the Czar had resisted all attempts of going beyond an entente with France. The draft of a treaty prepared in Paris in 1887 and approved by M. de Giers, the Grand Dukes Nicholas and Vladimir, and the other chiefs of the Imperial Council on the part of Russia, and which was then rejected by the Czar, but was again presented to him after the last elections in France had confirmed the permanency of the republican form of government in that country and was again rejected, has finally received his sanction. As an event of such immense international importance as this cannot be kept secret, it is expected that M. de Giers, Minister of Foreign Affairs, will cause some informal notification to reach the Governments of the Dreibund. As a corollary of the alliance the Czar, it is stated, has signed a decree bestowing on President Carnot the grand cordon of the order of St. Andrew, the highest Russian decoration and one limited to members of the Imperial family. This decoration has hitherto been conferred as an exceptional honor on sovereigns nearly connected with the Russian throne.

If the Foreign Office here has any precise knowledge regarding the terms of the reported Russo-French convention highly placed officials have not been allowed to share it. The honor conferred on President Carnot is the open talk of the diplomatic circle. The announcement that it had been conferred has been telegraphed here under the sanction of the St. Petersburg authorities. No open dispatch can be obtained regarding the conclusion of the treaty.

SWEDISH SHIP WRECKED.

Fourteen of Her Crew Carried Down With Her.

LONDON, March 22.—The Swedish ship Senator Weber, Capt. Winck, which sailed from Cardiff March 9 for Rio Janeiro, was caught off the coast by the recent heavy gale which swept over England. She was dismasted and sprung a leak and when the gale subsided was found to be in a sinking condition. On the 11th inst. the Senator Weber foundered, carrying down with her 14 of her crew.

The steamer Abyssinia stranded at Saigon, but was afterward assisted off. The second officer and two of the crew were drowned. This may be the British steamer Abyssinia, Capt. Lee, which was last reported as having arrived at Hong Kong Feb. 21, from Vancouver.

How Gladstone Spent the Week.

LONDON, March 22.—Mr. Gladstone's public occupations during the last seven days have included a lecture on Homer to the boys at Eton, embellished with interesting passages of autobiography, a journey to Hastings under the guidance of Mr. Harcourt, Sir William's son, a speech of an hour and a half at Hastings, attendance at two dinners given by Lord and Lady Aberdeen at their house in Grosvenor-square to meet him, a reception of the women's deputation, sundry speeches in the House of Commons, and a long correspondence with the Chancellor of the Exchequer, embodying some corrections of errors in the Hastings speech, accompanied by a handsome apology for having made them. His health continues to be a political topic of the first importance. The truth appears to be that, when he has a considerable effort to make, like that at Hastings, he pulls himself together and speaks with much of his old vigor and animation. When this impulse, or inspiration, or, perhaps, stimulus of necessity is lacking, marked decrease of his former energy and vitality is perceptible.

Fortifying the Premier.

ROME, March 22.—The Chamber of Deputies, during the debate on the revised budget to-day, voted confidence in the Government. The vote stood 256 to 96. During the debate ex-Premier Crispi acquiesced in the proposed economies, but said he would leave the responsibility of effecting them to the Government, and would therefore vote against the Cabinet. The large majority received by the Government in the vote of confidence was unexpected and materially fortifies the position of Premier Rudini.

Wife Slavery Abolished.

LONDON, March 22.—The Jackson abduction case is the subject of comment in all the papers. The decision of the Court of Appeal giving the wife her liberty is generally applauded. The ancient law that made the wife the slave of the husband has been extinguished, and it is a cause for general congratulation that anachronism is forever buried.

Bombarding Another City.

BUENOS AYRES, March 22.—A report comes from Chilian sources that Antofagasta is being bombarded by the insurgents.

Alleged to Have Voted Once Too Often.

LONDON, March 23.—George Minhinnick of Petrolia was arrested this morning and brought here by Detective Graham. Minhinnick is charged with having cast more than one vote in the east riding of Middlesex. He will have a chance of telling the magistrate how he exercised his franchise.

Mulcoon Gets Six Months.

UTICA, March 22.—The jury in the case of James Muldoon of Toronto, tried for smuggling Chinamen into this country, found him guilty of aiding and abetting in the smuggling and he was sentenced to six months in the Erie County Penitentiary.

Swept Overboard.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 21.—The British steamship Arthington, from Trapani, arrived here to-day. On the 4th inst. waves swept the second officer, Ernest Jenkins of North Shields, England, overboard.

Newspaper Burnt Out.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., March 21.—The five-story building occupied by The Jersey City Argus was gutted by fire to-night. Loss $100,000. The paper is owned by William W. and Horace Farrier.

Children Cry for Pitcher's Castoria.

THREE OF A FAMILY KILLED.

Frightful Accident on the Canadian Pacific Near London—The Fatal Crossing.

LONDON, March 24.—While driving into the city last evening Wesley Warner, a prominent farmer of London township, and his two daughters, 18 and 19 years of age, met a terrible death at a place called "O'Brien's Cut," about two miles west of here, on the Canadian Pacific Railway. The passenger train from the west which is due in London at 5.30 ran into their buggy, smashed it to pieces and killed both horses and mangled Mr. Warner and both daughters in a frightful manner. Their bodies were brought to the city.

HIS HEAD SPLIT BY A SAW.

Many Men Injured by the Gymtiems of a Circular Saw.

MORRISBURG, March 22.—Mr. Peter Gokey, with a party of men, was sawing some wood with his circular saw in the yard behind Mr. Thomas Eastwood's carriage shop at North Williamsburg, when the boxing which held the arbor of the saw gave way, owing to the saw "pinching," and the saw left its position and with lightning speed tore its way across the iron table, behind which were Gokey and several others at work. It ran up Gokey's left arm and crossed his breast and right shoulder, inflicting terrible gashes in his arm and shoulder. Gokey may recover, but Ransom Hess, who was handing the wood to Gokey, had his head nearly split in two. It seems that the saw took the course of a semi-circle and thus struck him fair in the face and then, after passing over his head, plowed a deep furrow down his back. Hess is in a critical condition. The gash in his head was so deep that the base of the brain could be seen. Both men have families. The other men had a miraculous escape. The large balance wheel passed over one's shoulders and grazed those of another.

Killed by a Falling Roof.

BERLIN, March 22.—Wellington and James Graham, brothers, were engaged moving some hay from the loft over a roothouse at Dalrymple when the roof suddenly collapsed and Wellington was instantly killed. James was crushed through into the roothouse but escaped with some slight injuries. The floor through which he was crushed was damaged with the steam of the roots. The deceased, who was 38 years of age, was a brother of Mr. S. Graham of The Whitby Chronicle. He leaves a wife and four children.

Probably Fatally Hurt.

LONDON, March 22.—Frank Jamieson, employed at the Grand Trunk roundhouse with the boiler-makers, was in the act of holding a rivet while standing under a locomotive, when another engine was moved too far on the turntable, causing some planks to fall where he was standing, Jamieson thus getting the full force of the engine on his side. He was removed to his home. The doctor pronounced it a serious case, the victim being hurt internally.

ALARM IN THE WHITE HOUSE.

Was it an Attempt to Assassinate the President?

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The occupants of the White House had a genuine scare last night. Shortly after nightfall they were startled by a crash of glass in the red parlor on the south front of the building. The special officers were summoned and proceeded to the scene. Under a sofa was discovered a desperate-looking man, with nothing on but trousers and under-shirt and with an ugly-looking knife in his hand. The man made a desperate resistance. He fought like a tiger and it required several officers to subdue him. Strong ropes were secured and the fellow was soon bound hand and foot and forced into a small outbuilding until the patrol wagon arrived. When taken to the police station the man gave his name as Harry Martin and said he was a step-son of Senator Vance. It is supposed that he was suffering from delirium tremens.

Harry Martin, who created a sensation by breaking into the White House last night, has written a note to the President apologizing for his misconduct. The case will probably not be pressed when it comes up in court.

Irish Political Items.

The convention of Irish delegates at Newcastle has adopted resolutions of a lack of confidence in Parnell.

While Mr. David Sheehy, member of Parliament for Galway, was addressing a meeting in the Market-square of Sligo Saturday, Mr. Timothy Harrington and other Parnellites attempted to storm the platform used by the speakers. The mob immediately attacked Harrington. He was thrown upon the ground and severely handled in the free fight which ensued. Finally the police separated the combatants.

The priests of Drogheda denounced from the altar this morning the Parnell meeting announced to be held in the town in the afternoon. The result was a practical boycott of the meeting, only imported contingents being present. The mayor and sheriff refused to attend. Mr. Parnell rejected his usual statements.

Meetings were held this afternoon in several places in North Sligo. At all of these places Mr. Parnell was denounced from the pulpit in the morning. There was some rioting at Tireragh, which was suppressed by the police.

A federation meeting was held in Queenstown yesterday and was addressed by Messrs. Timothy and Maurice Healey and other members of Parliament. Mr. Timothy Healey in his speech asked where Mr. Parnell's impudent challenge was now. For two days they had been engaged in hallooing, but had failed to make the fox break cover. He had understood that the delay had arisen from Mr. Parnell's going to Brighton to consult a lady. Mr. Parnell had not got permission from this Brighton banshee. Mr. Parnell's followers complained that the challenge was impolite. But his opponents did not address Mr. Parnell as a personage who ought to be sued and wooed. Mr. Parnell had broken a solemn pledge in a shameless manner. What could they not think of his stories about the Boulogne negotiations and Hawarden!

HAMILTON, March 23.—Rich and Robinson, the Pittsburg defaulters who paid $40,000 to their creditors, with their wives have taken up quarters at the St. Nicholas Hotel. Their counsel, Mr. Testoni, says they are going to open a large boot and shoe place here.

Caught Between the Drawheads.

HAMILTON, March 21.—A newsboy named Robert Wood, living in Napier-street, attempted to clamber over the drawheads between the cars of a freight train at King-street crossing when the train started and his foot was nipped between the buffers. His ankle was badly crushed.

A Dishonest Canadian Postoffice Clerk Thought to be in Buffalo.

WELLAND, Ont., March 23.—Owing to the mysterious disappearance lately of numerous packages of mail matter containing money from the Welland postoffice Inspector Burnham was detailed to investigate the matter. He arrived here Thursday morning and made some private enquiries regarding the working of the postoffice, leaving in the afternoon. Early this morning he made his appearance in company with Detective Winstanly and at once proceeded to the postoffice, which they found deserted, and Assistant Postmaster Bowes, who was in charge, missing. It is rumored that Bowes took the 5.30 Michigan Central train for Buffalo before the officers arrived. Detective Dawd has started for Buffalo in hopes of running the delinquent official down and bringing him back to Canada if possible.

The Spring Medicine.

The popularity which Hood's Sarsaparilla has gained as a spring medicine is wonderful. It possesses just those elements of health-giving, blood-purifying and appetite-restoring which everybody seems to need at this season. Do not continue in a dull, tired, unsatisfactory condition when you may be so much benefited by Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies the blood and makes the weak strong.

IRONDALE AND BANCROFT RAILWAY.

In the daily issue of the EXAMINER of Friday a paragraph was printed in reference to a deputation that waited upon the Ontario Government to assert the claims which the Irondale and Bancroft Railway has to Government assistance, by way of subvention in the matter of its proposed extension from Kiamount to Bancroft. This project assumes unusual importance in connection with the question of the utilization and development of our great mineral deposits now under consideration of, and receiving such practical attention from the Ontario Government and the Legislative Assembly. The district into which it is desired to further project this line of railway is exceptionally rich in minerals. There is iron in unspeakable abundance and of the best quality, valuable deposits of phosphates, besides other minerals, among which platinum is said to be found. At once, therefore, the question of a paying traffic is settled in the affirmative; but this is a secondary consideration compared to the development of dormant resources and the making tributary to traffic of a wide area of good agricultural country now hampered by lack of means of communication conducive to settlement. The extension of the road from Irondale to Bancroft, taken in connection with the relation of the whole line to the country, make it essentially a colonization road. In view of this fact, the granting of a substantial subsidy to this line, will be quite in keeping with the policy of the Government in the matter of encouraging colonization of unoccupied territory, and of promoting the mining industry. This line, if extended, will not only serve important immediate purposes, but will be within easy reach of valuable connection with the Canada Atlantic and Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie Railways. Whatever way the matter is regarded, it must be admitted that the Government is amply justified in asking, and the House in granting, a liberal subsidy to the Irondale and Bancroft railway extension. Such an action would, we are sure, meet with the approval of the public, who sympathise with the speedier development of our wonderful natural resources. We have at present no adequate idea of the immense mineral wealth now lying dead in within even the limits of this county. Till the extent of this is discovered, and means taken to bring it into use, Canada will always remain an undeveloped national stripling. And the railway extension proposed is one of the most important initial steps in the direction of making our mineral deposits something better than buried monuments of lack of national enterprise.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The sugar social at the residence of Mr. Charles Nicoll, Dummer, on Friday night, was not forgotten. Before seven o'clock sleighs carrying happy people, varying in number from two to twenty, might be seen wending their way up the Dummer road. Everybody turned out. Refreshments were served as usual, but the event of the evening was the taffy pull. We leave the reader to imagine the scene in the kitchen after it was announced that the taffy was ready. The confusion in the barn yard when preparations were being made for departure, also made considerable excitement for a time. We believe that this one is the last of these sleighing parties. The proceeds amounted to $23.

The rising generation does not escape its share of trouble. For the past few weeks mumps and scarlet fever have been visiting our homes, but we are pleased to say that with one exception the result has not been serious.

Mr. Monk, M.P.P., for Carleton, an old Opposition member of the Local House, paid our village a flying visit on Tuesday last.

The many snowstorms of late have given ample opportunity for the corporation snowplough to show itself. We are pleased to state that this piece of public property does noble service.

Council met in Keene. On motion, Henry Michaels to receive $1.50 per week for keep of John Earl. Messrs. Lancaster and Nelson were appointed and oversee the work of putting up railing at the Keene bridge embankment, and Messrs. Anderson and Johnston for the same week at Graham's Hill embankment. James Wilson to be allowed 40 cents per rod for making a wire fence along the concession line opposite his lot. Application was made by the Independent Order of Foresters for the use of the council chamber as a lodge room. Application granted, by them paying a small rent. The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—J. A. McIntyre, cedar, $4 16; J. M. Drummond, salary and account, $241 85; W. E. McCall, mending scrapers, 50 cents. John Kerr refund statute labor tax $1 25. The following persons were appointed pound-keepers: Alex. Wood, Alex. Patterson, George Keen, Chris. Howson, Thomas Thomson, Andrew Shearer, J. G. Weir, Robert Jackson, Johnston Cooney, D. Kennedy, R. J. H. Short, and the following fence viewers:—John Grady, James Hannon, D. P. McFarlane, Samuel Sargent, R. Hanbridge, J. A. C. Burnham, Thomas Blezard, R. A. Deyell. Council adjourned to 20th April.

It Should Not be So.

It is a singular fact, but nevertheless true, that the wealthier a man becomes, the more complaints he has. We talk a great deal about the rate of mortality among the poorer classes, and seem to forget about the alarming amount of sickness prevalent in wealthy homes. There are whole classes of fashionable ailments unknown to the poorer districts; and where we find a condition of poverty, sickness is the exception, not the rule.

Nervous troubles, dyspepsia, indigestion, headache, sleeplessness and irritability are more prevalent among the wealthy than the poor.

There is not the least reason for this state of things enduring; it ought to be a sin to be sick, especially in the ranks of the higher classes, who have advantages for the enjoyment of a perfect physical life.

It is worthy of note, however, that the wealthy and better classes have the greatest faith in that grand health restorer—Paine's Celery Compound. Its great worth and value has been firmly established as a nerve strengthener and flesh builder; it is a banisher of dyspepsia, and a regulator of the digestive system. It gives rest to the tired brain, and insures sweet, natural sleep to all victims of insomnia. Try it, sufferer, if you wish release from your suffering and trouble.

Abusing the Voice.

As the voice is the most delicate of instruments and one which resents at once any abuse of its powers, be sure that you are not misusing it. Emma C. Thursby says in The Ladies' Home Journal. It is the easiest thing in the world to detect such misuse when it exists. After singing for twenty minutes, stop and see if there are any feelings of weariness or evidences of huskiness about the throat. If there are you are forcing your voice, and you will show your wisdom by not singing again until you have learned how to use it properly. Some people learn naturally how to use the voice, while with others it is a matter of necessity that they shall be taught. And as there is no surer way to lose a voice than to abuse it, if you find that it is not as easy for you to sing as to laugh, and if you desire to do anything in the future with your voice, cease singing until you can secure a good teacher. It will not hurt your voice to remain unused, though, of course, early training and constant practice are most desirable.

If, however, you find that you are using your voice properly and that you efforts are pleasing to your friends, sing as often and as much in your home and in your friends parlors as you please, remembering always that it is better to sing half-a-dozen times a day for ten minutes at a time, than once for an hour. Never sing for a longer period than ten minutes, without resting. It is dangerous in the extreme to tire the voice, and this will will take prompt and sure revenge by roughening its quality and spoiling its natural sweetness.

Negatives Which Destroy Each Other.

And Mr. Van Duzen promptly folded her to his arms.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc., Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B B B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

"FROM ATLANTA TO THE SEA."

Sherman's March Described and the Verse Commemorating It.

The death of Gen. Sherman removes the last of the great captains of the war of secession in the United States. After Grant, Sherman was the foremost of them all. He is famous as the hero of the march to the sea. After Atlanta had fallen to him on September, 1, 1864, he thus in his memoirs describes the departure and subsequent events:

"About 7 A. M. of Nov. 16 we rode out of Atlanta by the Decatur road, filled by the marching troops and wagons of the Fourteenth Corps; and reaching the hill just outside of the old rebel works, we naturally paused to look back upon the scenes of our past battles. We stood upon the very ground wherson was fought the bloody battle of July 22, and could see the copse of wood where McPherson fell. Behind us lay Atlanta, smouldering and in ruins, the black smoke rising high in air, and hanging like a pall over the ruined city. Away off in the distance, on the McDonough road, was the rear of Howard's column, the gun barrels glistening in the sun, the white-topped wagons stretching away to the south, and right before us the Fourteenth Corps, marching steadily and rapidly, with a cheery look and swinging pace, and made light of the thousand miles that lay between us and Richmond. Some band, by accident, struck up the anthem of 'John Brown's soul goes marching on;' the men caught up the strain, and never before or since have I heard the chorus of 'Glory, glory hallelujah!' done with more spirit or in better harmony of time and place.

"Then we turned our horses' heads to the east. Atlanta was soon lost behind the screen of trees, and became a thing of the past. Around it clings many a thought of desperate battle, of hope and fear, that now seem like the memory of a dream; and I have never seen the place since. The day was extremely beautiful, clear sunlight, with bracing air, and an unusual feeling of exhilaration seemed to pervade all minds—a feeling of something to come, vague and undefined, still full of venture and intense interest. Even the common soldiers caught the inspiration, and many a group called out to me as I worked my way past them: 'Uncle Billy, I guess Grant is waiting for us at Richmond!'

"Indeed, the general sentiment was that we were marching for Richmond, and that there we should end the war, but how and when they seemed to care not; nor did they measure the distance, or count the cost in life, or bother their brains about the great rivers to be crossed, and the food required for man and beast that had to be gathered by the way. There was a 'devil-may-care' feeling pervading officers and men that made me feel the full load of responsibility, for success would be accepted as a matter of course, whereas, should we fail, this 'march' would be adjudged the wild adventure of a crazy fool. I had no purpose to march direct for Richmond by way of Augusta and Charlotte, but always designed to reach the seacoast first at Savannah or Port Royal, S. C., and even kept in mind the alternative of Pensacola."

The army when it set out on Nov. 15 numbered 60,000 men in prime condition and 64 guns, and a little over a month later Savannah was evacuated, and Gen. Sherman sent this brief message to President Lincoln:

"I beg to present to you as a Christmas gift the city of Savannah, with 150 heavy guns, plenty of ammunition, and 25,000 bales of cotton."

To which the President responded:

"Many, many thanks for your Christmas gift—the capture of Savannah. Please make my grateful acknowledgments to your whole army, officers and men."

Gen. Sherman is most famous as the hero of the "march to the sea," but in military importance that movement was of less consequence than his campaigns just before and after.

"MARCHING THROUGH GEORGIA."

This is the frequently sung song, the tune of which is known to everybody, which commemorates the above exploit.

I.

Bring the good old bugle, boys, we'll sing another song—
Sing it with a spirit that will start the world along—
Sing it as we used to sing it, fifty thousand strong,
While we were marching through Georgia.

CHORUS.

Hurrah! hurrah! we bring the jubilee,
Hurrah! hurrah! the flag that makes you free
So we sang the chorus from Atlanta to the sea,
While we were marching through Georgia.

II.

How the darkies shouted when they heard the joyful sound!
How the turkeys gobbled which our commissary found!
How the sweet potatoes even started from the ground,
While we were marching through Georgia.

CHORUS.

III.

Yes, and there were Union men who wept with joyous tears,
When they saw the honored flag they had not seen for years;
Hardly could they be restrained from breaking forth in cheers,
While we were marching through Georgia.

CHORUS.

VI.

Sherman's dashing Yankee boys will never reach the coast!
So the saucy rebels said, and 'twas a handsome boast,
Had they not forgot, alas! to reckon with the host,
While we were marching through Georgia!

CHORUS.

V.

So we made a thoroughfare for Freedom and her train,
Sixty miles in latitude—three hundred to the main;
Treason fled before us, for resistance was in vain,
While we were marching through Georgia.

CHORUS.

Oxford is the Favorite.

LONDON, March 20.—The betting on the Oxford and Cambridge race, which takes place to-morrow, is 11 to 4 in favor of Oxford. Both crews took their last practice spins on the Thames yesterday. Though the boating authorities inclined toward the Oxford crew as being the most likely to win, here is a belief that the long odds quoted are not warranted by the performance of the rival eights. The race is from Putney to Mortlake, about four miles.

The first contest between the two Universities was at Henley in 1829 and the next in '36. No kind of a storm has prevented the contest from taking place any year since. Oxford won last year and has now won 36 races to 25 by Cambridge. In '77 the crews rowed a dead heat. Oxford won in '49 on a foul.

NEW YORK, March 20.—A cablegram to Mr. R. K. Fox from Sydney, New South Wales, yesterday, says: "John McLean, the champion oarsman of the world, and James Stanbury are to row over the Parramatta championship course on March 26 for £400 and the single scull championship of the world. Stanbury will go to America after the race to row William O'Conner, the American champion."

The Grand National Steeplechase.

LONDON, March 20.—This was the third day of the Lincoln spring meeting. The event of the program was the Grand National Steeplechase of 3000sovs. (inclusive of a trophy value 100sovs) by subscription of 20sovs each, second to receive 200sovs, and third 100sovs from the stake. Grand National Course about four miles and 856 yards. The race was won by Come Away, with Cloister second and Ilex third. Twenty-one started. The winners in previous years were: 1875, Pathfinder; 1876, Regal; 1877, Austerlitz; 1878, Shifnal; 1879, Liberator; 1880, Empress; 1881, Woodbrook; 1882, Seaman; 1883, Zoedone; 1884, Voluptuary; 1885, Roquefort; 1886, Old Joe; 1887, Gamecock; 1888, Playfair; 1889, Frigate; 1890, Ilex.

A Lamp, a Spark and Death.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 13.—While a gang of men were drilling a rock tunnel in the third lift at Centralia colliery to-day a spark flew from a lamp, fastened in a man's cap and fell into a large can of powder. Three men were fatally burned.

Sequel to the Massacre.

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.—There was a shooting scrape here to-night between Arthur Dunn, one of the state counsels in the Hennessy case, and Frank Waters, a well-known newspaper reporter. Two shots were fired. Waters was killed and Dunn seriously injured.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 18.—The Merchants' Exchange has advices that the Norwegian bark Imperiaror, bound from Cardiff to Santa Rosalia, is a total wreck east of Bonavista, Cape De Verde Islands, and that 12 of the crew were drowned.

Drowned in a Cistern.

BRAMPTON, March 18.—William Hunter, a retired farmer, 70 years old, accidentally fell into a cistern to-day and was drowned

The Population of Peterborough is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2w11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

The Edison Works.

Public interest continues in the Edison Company's works, and the rise and progress of the immense structure, now nearly completed, as well as the beginning of the new building, are watched with lively concern. The main building is now being roofed, but the work of raising the huge trusses will be an engineering feat of considerable difficulty. Builders will be deeply interested in this operation, which will probably take place in the course of a few days. The roof will be sheeted over with iron, the contract for which has been let to the Canada Steel and Galvanized Iron Roofing Company of Montreal. Trenches are now being dug for the foundations of the second building which will be erected. It will be almost as large as the first one.

Fruit Culture.

It has been stated, and apparently with reason, that an acre of good orchard on an Ontario farm is worth more than all the rest of the land. Those who have made a study of fruit growing say there are almost unlimited possibilities in it. Be that as it may, it is to the interest of every farmer and resident of the town who has a plot of ground, to attend the meetings in the town council chamber Wednesday under the auspices of the Fruit Growers' Association. Some of the most prominent fruit growers in Ontario will be present and address the meeting. All interested in fruit culture are urged to attend these meetings, and if they have any information to give on the subject it will be gladly listened to. It is the aim of the Fruit Growers' Association to make fruit growing a profitable and extensive occupation in this county.

Good for Both Evenings,

Walking Under Difficulties.

What with ankle-deep slush and streams of many waters, the streets are in an almost impassible condition. A great many people worshipped at home Sunday rather than brave the bad walking. To-day street inspector Pope has men at work doing the best possible to mitigate the unpleasantness by draining the sidewalks and reducing the slushiness of the slush.

The Little Windsor.

A few days ago the EXAMINER referred to the fact that Mr. Cardwell was negotiating for the purchase of the "Little Windsor" hotel, Beck street. Mr. Cardwell has completed the purchase and is now in possession. Mr. Cardwell has had large experience in the business, both in Minden, where he conducted a hotel, and more recently with the Croft House. He is having the hotel made new from top to bottom, repainted, repapered, refurnished, and made a first-class hotel in equipment as it will be in management. The new stables and sheds recently erected render this one of the neatest and completest hotels in town.

Up Went the Price of Butter.

The town grocers rather got a corner on butter Saturday. But was a scarce article on the market, and the retail dealers bought most of it up. There was a lively competition among them, and the price paid was 22c and upward. The market being exhausted, housekeepers had then to go to the stores for their supplies. The active demand insisted the "bulk" to toss the prices up. The original figure was raised to 27c.; at six o'clock 30 cents was asked, and by the time the evening trade began butter was up to 33c. a pound. A great many people refused to pay this unusual figure, and the few dealers who sold cheaply quickly got rid of their stock. There was a great scurrying after butter amongst housekeepers, those "just out" seeking to buy or borrow from the more provident ones who had laid in a supply beforehand. To-day there is very little, if any, butter in town, but it is expected the Wednesday market and other importations will relieve the stringency.

Sunday School Anniversary.

The Charlotte Street Church School Celebrates the close of Another Successful Year.

Another anniversary has rolled around for the Sunday School of the Charlotte street Methodist church, and the occasion is being marked with unusual emphasis, as is fitting in view of the fact that the past year has been a most prosperous and successful one in every department of the school. The special commemorative doings extend over a period of three days. On Sunday sermons were preached by Rev. C. C. Johnston, of Napanee, who delivered most interesting addresses to crowded congregations both morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Johnston is a rising young divine who is bound to become, and is even now a shining light in the Methodist church. He speaks with force and great energy, and never fails to give his hearers some new thoughts and ideas. To-night he lectures on "Influences," and, if his voice is in condition, will sing to his own accompaniment on the guitar. Singing is not one of the least of Mr. Johnston's accomplishments. Tuesday evening a children's entertainment will be held, for which special preparation has been made, and a successful and pleasing evening is promised.

SUNDAY SERMONS.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Johnston spoke on the subject of the value of children and the value of Christ to children.

In the afternoon the usual Sunday school proceedings were altered, and the school met in the church proper, where they were addressed by Mr. Johnston. Mr. O. C. Rowse, superintendent, presided. Music was rendered by a choir of Sunday school pupils, and a couple of solos sung by girls. Mr. Johnston's address dealt with Be's, which he likened to honey bees. Be Good was the queen bee of this moral hive, and Be truthful, Be kind, Be obedient, Be attentive and thoughtful, a few of the others which he wished to impress upon them. His address was interlarded with short stories illustrating the points he dwelt upon.

At night his text was in Judges xvi, 20, containing the account of Samson's downfall. From the story of Samson the preacher drew a number of telling lessons. Samson was gifted with great strength from the Lord, but he betrayed the Lord's confidence and was destroyed. This was the cause of the downfall of man to-day. They misused their talents and wealth, and were destroyed. Samson committed the first sin by being in company with the strange woman, who gave him over to the Philistines. She learned the secret of his strength while he rested on her knee, and sold him for eleven hundred pieces of silver. In betraying God's confidence Samson took himself out of God's hands, and the moment this was done God remained no more with him. Samson's sin, like many another man's, caused his destruction. The different points in the address were beautifully and forcibly brought out, and the lengthening effects of sin depicted in eloquent terms.

During the day collections were taken up in aid of the Sunday School fund. The school has grown to such proportions that more accommodation is required, and it is contemplated to build an addition the coming summer.

At the morning service an excellent vocal duet was given by Miss Fawcett and Mr. A. L. Davis.

Church Chimes.

Following up the beginning made last week, a special season of revival was commenced by Rev. Mr. Bates in the George street church Sunday. Rev. Mr. Bates is an earnest evangelical worker and great good is anticipated as the result of his work here. Every afternoon and evening this week revival meetings are to be held in the church, conducted by Rev. Mr. Bates.

Yesterday was Palm Sunday, and the congregation of St Peter's Cathedral had distributed among them palms in remembrance of the day. The palms were blessed by His Lordship Bishop O'Connor.

Rev. Mr. Shorey preached in Cobourg Sunday and Rev. Mr. Locke in Lakefield.

Personal.

Mr. Joseph Caldwell, foreman of Mr. John Hall's flour mill, leaves this week to settle in Manitoba.

Rev. Mr. Cosgrove, of Port Hope, occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church Sunday morning and evening.

Miss Dennis, of Ottawa, is spending a few days in town, the guest of Mr. W. Henderson, superintendent of the Peterborough Water Company.

Mr. E. B. Edwards is on the ticket for election of benchers of the Ontario Law Association. A ticket representative of the profession outside of Toronto has been adopted.

The many friends of Mrs. Jas. Fanning, Selwyn, will be pleased to hear that she is rapidly recovering from the effects of the serious injuries she received a few weeks ago, by falling through a trap door into the cellar.

News Nuggets.

—Crows have been passing over the town the past two or three days.

—Attention is called to the annual meeting of the P.A.A.A. at the Olympic club rooms Tuesday evening.

—Hood's Sarsaparilla is on the flood tide of popularity, which position it has reached by its own intrinsic, undoubted merit.

—Dave Bennett, who finished second in the great walking match at New York, lived in Peterborough a number of years ago, and afterwards went to Toronto. He began his career as a pedestrian here.

It is not the extremes of heat and cold so much as the sudden changes in temperature that cause certain ailments to be unhealthful. When, however, the system is invigorated with Ayer's Sarsaparilla, these changes are rarely attended with injurious results.

Sermons to Foresters.

Rev. R. F. Torrance Delivers a Practical Address upon the Duties we owe the Widow and Orphans.

The annual sermon to the Order of Foresters was preached on Sunday evening by Rev. R. Torrance in St. Paul's church to a large audience, comprising a good representation of members of the Society. The sermon was a couple exposition of the benevolent precepts of the Order, which is such a marked feature of Forestry, and places it in the front rank of fraternal societies. The widows and orphans of deceased brothers are the chief care of the Foresters, and the broad principle of practical charity is carried out to the letter by them. Many desolate hearts have been consoled, and their grief tempered by the kind thoughtfulness and provisions of the Foresters. Rev. Mr. Torrance's sermon dealt with the duty of providing for the widow and orphan who are thrown helpless upon the world by the death of their lawful protector. His text was I Timothy, v, 8:—"But if any provide not for his own, and specially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." Providing for our families did not mean accumulation of a fortune, which more often proved a curse than a blessing. The teaching of habits of industry, morality and frugal living was a better inheritance from father to children than wealth. Industry secured its own reward, not only being the means of obtaining the good things of this life, but ennobling one's whole life. "Men ought to provide for their own, else when they were taken away the duty of providing for those dependent on them would devolve upon others. No man ought to shirk the duty of making against the proverbial "rainy day." Rev. Mr. Torrance pointed out the advantages of men allying themselves to a benevolent order like the Foresters, in whose lodge room were inculcated principles of charity and fraternity, and who practised systematic benevolence. By joining the Foresters a man "makes provision for his own." The claims of the widow were then dealt with. The words are synonymous and mean bereavement and helplessness. The widow and orphan were placed in their unfortunate position through no fault of their's, but through circumstances. Men are often reduced to penury by profligacy and speculation; but the widow and orphan, deprived of the one whom they leaned upon for support, were the victims of circumstances. Human sympathy should go out to the helpless and suffering. Christ was the great exemplar of charity, for He took compassion on us in our lost estate and died to save us.

AMPLE PROVISION FOR HIS OWN

Some of the consequences of leaving the orphan in want and suffering were pointed out. How many intellects were dwarfed in the struggle for existence. The child thrown upon his own resources is compelled to ply every energy and utilize every moment in providing for present necessities, that there is no time left for study or the pursuit of higher or nobler aims. The very poor have no means to buy books with and no time to read, and as a consequence they lag behind and find life a thorny path with but few roses scattered along the way. Poverty too often leads to crime and intemperance, and the want of opportunities for culture among the poor deprived many a naturally bright mind from rising into the eminence it would attained if properly developed. Instances might be quoted in scores where poor orphans, after being given a fair start in life by the timely aid of some kind persons, have risen to fame and wealth in the world.

Still another reason why the widow and orphan should be provided for, was because of the special interest taken in them by the Lord. God regards favors bestowed on His own people as favors bestowed upon Him. In conclusion Rev. Mr. Torrance impressed upon his hearers the necessity of making the Lord Jesus Christ our guide in all things. The life of the Christian was the noblest life of all. The Christian who was engaged in the active service of the Lord would never be behind in works of charity.

Promise and Performance.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—The Good Book tells us about the impossibility of the leopard changing his spots. If the highly protected Canadian manufacturer had existed at that time he would have been an equally good standard of comparison—for he is the same yesterday, to-day and to-morrow—the same before the elections, during the elections and at the next elections—all for himself, though his greatest solicitude is professed for the honest workingmen, especially the man that has a vote. During the late election campaign we had several of our prominent manufacturers, W. H. Law, Jas. Kendry, Thos. Brooks, J. W. Taylor, etc., on the stump, eloquently pleading the cause of the manufacturer and workingman. We were told if Unrestricted Reciprocity were adopted that their factories would be removed the United States and workingmen thrown out of employment, whereas if the National Policy were sustained, prosperity would continue and the working man would have steady and remunerative employment. It appears that the workingmen swallowed this gush, for Mr. Stevenson got a big majority in town, to which the working classes principally contributed. They were determined to keep their jobs and maintain their families in comfort. What is the result in one case at least? During the first week after the election there were ten men dropped from the pay roll of the Central Iron Bridge Works, and during the second week thirty more names were stricken from the pay roll. Here we have a total of forty men who have enforced leisure to consider the situation. They worked for and voted for the N. P.; they marched in torch-light processions, through snow and slush, they shouted themselves hoarse in favour of a candidate and a policy that was to provide them with steady employment at high wages. Hardly had the echoes of their shouts died away, hardly had they come to their senses, when they found themselves standing outside their factory staring at the tall chimney that was smokeless for them, and only mocked them with the vapoury ghosts of the hopes held out by the stump orators.

These circumstances though they don't provide for the workingman's stomach, provide food for thought for workingmen. They are always sacrificed and tossed aside like a worthless tool the moment they are of no further use in an election contest. It is time that the intelligent workingman began to act for himself and not be led by the nose by an interested employer. If Mr. Hall had been elected or the policy the Liberals advocated adopted, we should have heard that these workmen were discharged because of that but I am anxious to know what plausible excuse will be adopted in view of the re-adoption of the N. P. There is no necessity of moralizing on these facts. He that runs may read. I voted for Mr. Jas. Stevenson on the 5th of March, the first and the last time. Thanking you for your space I remain

A WORKING MAN.

Obituary.

The Late John Tully, of Smith.

The EXAMINER records with deep regret the death of Mr. John Tully, who has for 32 years past been a resident of Smith and Peterborough. Mr. Tully at the close of the past year was attacked with the illness which closed his mortal career on Friday morning. Mr. Tully was 71 years of age, having been born in the north of England in 1820. He came to Canada 37 years ago and settled in Lindsay. Five years later he removed to Smith, where he resided up to a few years ago, when he came to Peterborough, where he resided at the time of his death. Mr. Tully leaves behind him a widow, two daughters and one son—the latter Mr. J. D. Tully, druggist, of Peterborough. The daughters are Mrs. Peter King and Miss Tully. Mr. Tully was a Presbyterian in religion and a member of St. Andrew's Church. The funeral takes place from the family residence, 344 McDonel street, on Wednesday next at 2.30 p.m.

Mr. Isaac Richardson addressed the Pastoral Parley meeting Sabbath afternoon his excellent advice to the young men cannot fail to be both practical and helpful to us all.

The gospel and song service last night was addressed by the Rev. Mr. Torrance whose clear and impressive address was both enlightening and helpful. Rev. Mr. Cosgrove Port Hope followed with a few earnest words of encouragement to the workers.

Rev. Thos. Bone of Welland Canal Mission will address a meeting in Y. M. C. A. hall on work among sailors Tuesday evening at 8 p. m. Public invited. Offering taken in aid of the work among sailors.

EDITOR STEAD.

Gifted, Eccentric, the Chief of Egotists, and Famed for Stepping Over.

The man who gets himself talked about beyond all others in England—with the possible exceptions of Mr. Balfour, Mr. Gladstone, and General Booth, of the Salvation Army, is Mr. W. T. Stead, sometime editor of the Pall Mall Gazette, and now editor and owner of the Review of Reviews, or the Robbers' Review, as some call it, and would-be reformer of the world. Mr. Stead is forever putting his name into print, and blushing to find it fame. He regards himself, and is regarded by many persons, as the nineteenth century Messiah. In America he would be called a crank.

Mr. Stead is renowned beyond all other men in England for his slopping-over propensities. He is always slopping over. It is a serious misfortune for himself, said for many who read his lucubrations, that he has no sense of humor. He is an extremist in all things, an enthusiast without balance; he is arrogantly pious, supremely conceited, and, in his most serious moments, highly ridiculous. "Oh!" he cried, in an interview published a few months ago, "what a precious set of fools people are! I have lived in the midst of them for years on years, and they no more understand the kind of person I am than a pussy cat can understand a steam engine!"

There you have Mr. Stead's opinion of himself, tersely expressed. He is the steam engine of the world, its motive power; the rest of mankind is but an aggregation of "pussy cats."

"The time has come to preach and teach to English-speaking folk in all lands," etc., etc., said he after delivering himself of the engine and pussy cat doctrine. One is reminded of Lamb's reply to Coleridge:—

"Charles, did you ever hear me preach?" asked Lamb's old friend.

"I never heard you do anything else," said Elia."

The world has never known Mr. Stead to do anything but preach. His desire is to occupy the confessional as well as the pulpit. In the first number of his new magazine he delivered himself of the following astounding appeal:—

"No doubt there are many in this world, of both sexes, who, if they could but disburden themselves of the horrid secret which poisons their existence, might once more breathe freely and live blithely on God's earth. Now, is this so? Are there any among the readers of this review who feel the craving for counsel, for sympathy and for the consolation of pouring out their soul's grief? If so, may I ask them to communicate with me?"

Mr. Stead is the last effort of British Philistinism. He could not have been produced outside of the United Kingdom. It must be conceded, though, that he has improved upon the methods usually resorted to for "booming" circulation. To promise to become the repository of the "horrid secrets" of humanity is certainly an original departure in editing. It is probably the only original move with which Mr. Stead can be credited. It unquestionably surpasses the insurance premium dodge, the free ride, free excursion, sword contest, universal coupon business, which many American editors have thought fit to imitate after the success of such schemes in England. How many "horrid secrets" do you imagine Mr. Stead carries home with him of an evening?

Purity of the blood in a pure condition is universally known, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. The taint of scrofula, salt rheum, or other foul humor is hereditary and transmitted for generations, causing untold suffering, and we also accumulate poison and germs of disease from the air we breathe, the food we eat, or the water we drink. There is nothing exclusively Your Blood than the positive power of Hood's Sarsaparilla over all diseases of the blood. This medicine, when fairly tried, does expel every trace of scrofula or salt rheum, removes the taint which causes catarrh, neutralizes the acidity and cures rheumatism, drives out the germs of malaria, blood poisoning, etc. It also vitalizes and enriches the blood, thus overcoming that tired feeling, and building up the whole system. Thousands testify to the superiority of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier. Full information and statements of cures sent free.

Cuticura Remedies.

H I had scratched myself for twenty-eight years, and had used all sorts of medicines, and had been under the treatment of the best physicians, but got no relief. I was a loathsome sight. My body was covered with scales as large as a dollar, and my head was one solid scab. I was induced to try the Cuticura Remedies, and the first application of the CUTICURA gave me relief. I used the CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, internally, and the CUTICURA and CUTICURA SOAP externally, and in three weeks I was entirely cured. That was six months ago, and I have not had a sign of the disease since. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All cost of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and told me you would have cured me for $500 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture (No. 2 page 37) in your book, "How to Cure Skin Diseases," but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my heads and begin to scratch, same as a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cost to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

The Attorney-General yesterday introduced a bill to amend the law respecting barristers and solicitors in certain cases. It provides that when a minister of justice is not a member of the Ontario bar he may be admitted by virtue of his office. It also provides that all barristers registered before July, 1891, may be registered as solicitors upon passing an examination, instead of by the usual three years' course of study in an office.

Mr. Lewis Springer of Hamilton has been appointed to the registrarship of Wentworth, rendered vacant last November by the death of Mr. J. M. Williams. Mr. Springer was born in Hamilton, 1835, was one of the chief promoters of the Hamilton street railway system and has been identified with other business enterprises there. He was returned to Parliament for South Wentworth in 1882, but was not a candidate at the next election. The office of registrar is worth about $6000.

Parnell's Latest Stratagem.

CORK, March 23.—Maurice Healey, when questioned to-day about Parnell's letter to the Leadership Committee, said he had not seen the letter, but if the resignation was genuine he (Healey) would instantly meet it.

Michael Davitt to-day said Parnell's phrase in his letter to the Cork Leadership Committee, saying, "As soon as Healey has submitted himself to the judgment of and has gone to his constituents," is a repetition of the Boulogne trick. Davitt added: "Parnell wishes to make Healey be the first to resign, and he (Parnell) would be guided by the result of Healey's fate."

The Lord Mayor Abolishes the Century-Old Office of City Barber.

LONDON, March 23.—The parsimony of Lord Mayor Savory has excited the indignation and contempt of the citizens. His latest effort at retrenchment is the dismissal of the City Barber, whose office has been in existence for centuries and has been supposed to be as enduring as the Crown itself, and who was paid out of the Lord Mayor's personal funds.

To add to the clamor His Honor has been discovered furtively visiting the establishment of a talked about female barber.

Boy Killed on the Track.

DUTTON, March 23.—Richard McRae, aged 15, attempted to cross the track and placed one hand on the post and one on the buffer of a car, and was in the act of springing across the track when the engine, with eight cars ahead of it, struck the loaded car and caught the boy by the knee between the post and the buffer. The flesh was horribly lacerated, both above and below the knee. He only lived a few hours. He was the youngest son of Alex. McRae, constable. Four years ago another son was accidentally shot at the Wallacetown fair and who has been a helpless cripple ever since.

Killed at a G. T. R. Crossing.

DORCHESTER, March 23.—Mrs. Bone, aged 79 years, was struck by No. 5 Grand Trunk express to-day about noon and was instantly killed. The accident happened at a crossing a quarter of a mile from this station while she was returning from a visit to her grandsons.

New York Tenements Set On Fire.

NEW YORK, March 23.—An attempt was made by an incendiary yesterday to burn the premises 243 East One Hundred and Twenty-first-street, a five-story double tenement of brick, owned by Charles Coleman. Twenty families live there, two on a floor. Another case was at 312 East Sixty-First-street. A policeman saw smoke coming out of the cellar at 2 a.m. Several colored families in the house were aroused. It was found that fire had been kindled in a coal bin and also in a pile of wood in another part of the cellar. A fire was discovered yesterday afternoon in the cellar of a tenement, 843 One Hundred and Tenth-avenue. It was near some ash barrels and incendiary. A tenant located the fire in time to save the building and its occupants.

The Brooklyn incendiaries are still at work. Last night a fire was found to have been kindled under the stairway in the basement of the tenement, 239 Myrtle-avenue, occupied by several families. It was in a storeroom, which is generally kept locked. The lock had been broken.

The Brooklyn firebug has been captured. He is Henry G. Miller, aged 22, of Sash street. The prisoner made a full confession. It was he who set fire to 146 High-street Saturday night. Miller's father says the young man is insane.

MURDER AT BELLEVILLE.

A LABORER STABS HIS WIFE TO THE HEART.

A Butcher Knife the Weapon Used—A Quarrel Resulting From the Man's Drunken Habits the Cause—The Murderer Arrested—Says He Does not Regret the Deed.

BELLEVILLE, March 23.—A horrible murder was perpetrated here this afternoon about 5 o'clock. A laborer named James Kane, who lived in South John-street, killed his wife with a blow from a butcher knife, which penetrated her heart, causing instant death. It was the woman's dying shriek which led to the discovery of the crime before the murderer had time to escape. Two men who heard the awful cry rushed to the house and opening the door saw the woman lying dead on the floor and her slayer standing over his victim with the gory knife in his hand. An alarm was at once given, the police were sent for and Sergt. McCradden took the assassin into custody. He submitted quietly and was at once taken to the cells.

"Had to Die Some Time."

When asked if he was not sorry for what he had done he said, "Not very sorry," that he had to die some time. The couple, who were between 50 and 60 years of age, had been married for about 10 years, the man being the woman's second husband. Her first husband, whose name was Skinner and by whom she had a large family, was drowned here two years before her second marriage. Kane and his wife had for some time lived unhappily owing to the man's drinking habits, which doubtless caused the tragedy. No details are known, as the murderer and his victim were alone, but it is probable that they had quarrelled on that account. Kane was not drunk when he struck the fatal blow, as he was seen up street half an hour before but he had been drinking. He maintains a stolid demeanor and refuses to talk. An inquest is being held to-night.

HUNTINGDON ELECTION.

The Liberal Candidate Elected by a Large Majority.

MONTREAL, March 23.—At the election in Huntingdon to-day Scriver (Lib.) was elected by considerable majority over McCormick (Con.). Mr. Scriver has represented the constituency since 1869. He was elected by acclamation in 1869 and 1872, had a majority of 328 in 1874; was elected by acclamation in 1878 and in 1887 and had 615 majority in 1882.

Mr. Scriver was one of the 13 who voted for the disallowance of the Jesuit Estate Act.

Election returns from all the polls in the county give Scriver a majority of 261. The contest was a keen one and the result was awaited with deep interest by an immense assemblage of electors, some of whom drove over 15 miles to get the news. Mr. Scriver made an excellent speech and was escorted to his hotel by the crowd, headed by a brass band, amid much enthusiasm.

A SERIES OF FATALITIES.

A Series of Fatalities in Ontario Towns Yesterday.

PARIS, March 23.—At Paris station this morning, James Rattan, 20 years of age, belonging to Brantford, who was distributing bills for Montgomery & Co. of that city, was standing on the side track waiting for the express to pass when a freight train, while shunting, struck him. The cars passed over his chest, breaking his back and causing death instantly.

MURDER HIDES MURDER.

Did Mary Tobin's Assassins Strangle Her Father, Too?

OIL CITY, Pa., March 24.—Readers of this article may recall the mysterious drowning of Miss Fanny Tobin, which took place in the East River about two years ago.

Her former home was at Franklin, Venango County, where she was a teacher in the public schools. Subsequently she went to New York to pursue special studies. She was both accomplished and beautiful and at the time of her death was engaged to be married, her disappearance taking place almost on the eve of the expected marriage.

The mystery surrounding her death has never been solved, but that there was foul play connected with it has never been doubted by the relatives and friends in this section.

To-day the citizens of Franklin and vicinity were shocked and mystified by news of the murder of N. P. Tobin, father of the young lady mentioned. He was fifty-two years of age, conducted a merchant tailoring establishment and was prominently known in the business and religious circles of Franklin. Yesterday his wife and two children went into the country and he was at home last night alone.

At 5 o'clock this morning the fire department was called to his residence, which was discovered to be in flames. In the ruins of the building two hours later was found the dead and badly burned body of Tobin, dressed with exception of coat and hat and lying face downward on the parlor floor.

That he expected to drive into the country early for his wife and children accounts for his being dressed. Marks found on his throat clearly indicated that he had been choked to death. The murderers then set fire to the house to hide their crime. Tobin was a powerful and active man and his assailants must have been several in number. A brace and two bits, evidently used in gaining entrance to the house, were found.

The accepted theory is that the murder was committed by tramps. Another and more startling theory, but one which is accorded some credit, is that Tobin obtained information regarding those who caused his daughter's death, that this fact had become known to the guilty party or parties, and that whoever was responsible for the death of Mary Tobin also planned the murder of her father.

Detectives have been at work continuously on the drowning mystery, and Tobin is reported to have said recently that a loop would soon coil in the right place.

Tobin was a man of strong character as well as physique.

When he came to this country from England his special mission was to fight Ben Hogan, the then notorious fighter and bad man of the oil regions. Tobin soon became converted and his life from that time became one of philanthropy and good works. He frequently took poor boys from the streets and supplied them with clothes, looked after poor families and held meetings among the prisoners in jail. Twenty special officers are searching clues to his assassins.

Early Sunday morning, May 12, 1889, Thomas W. Armour, janitor of the Clifton boat house, discovered what he thought was a log of wood floating in the water a short distance from the boat house, but which proved to be the body of a woman. Getting into a boat he secured the body and notified Coroner Hughes. There were no marks of violence on the body, which was considerably decomposed.

The next day the body was identified as that of Miss Mary E. Tobin of Franklin, Pa., who had been formerly employed as assistant to Dr. Samuel A. Robinson, a physician of West New Brighton, S.I., in whose house, up to Saturday, April 13, she resided. On that date she left Dr. Robinson's employ. She was understood then to be engaged to Dr. William Bryan, a former assistant of Dr. Robinson, with whom she was last seen alive on the following Monday evening, April 15. The inquest developed the fact that she was to start that evening for her Pennsylvania home. She did not go to Pennsylvania but remained among the missing until her dead body was found by the boatman. Newspaper reporters took a conspicuous part in the detective agencies employed to solve the mystery, but failed. The Coroner's jury found that the girl was accidentally drowned, and there the subject has rested. It was then and is now the general belief that Mary Tobin was dead when her body was deposited in the water. The mystery of her death has not yet been, perhaps never will be, explained.

NEWS FROM EVERY LAND.

TIMOTHY HEALY THOUGHT TO BE BLINDED FOR LIFE.

Roughs at Cork Drive Fragments of Slis Glasses Into His Eyes—The Newfoundland Debate in the Commons Postponed—Merciful Sentences Passed Upon Insurgents.

LONDON, March 23.—The British Government have decided not to take up the bill to enforce the modus vivendi in Newfoundland until April 23, thus giving time for further negotiations.

LONDON, March 23.—The correspondence between the governments of Newfoundland and Great Britain on the proposed fishery convention between Newfoundland and the United States is published. The despatches show that Lord Knutsford, Imperial Secretary, at first assented to Newfoundland negotiating directly with the United States Government. Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Macdonald protested that Canada should be included in any arrangement that might be made, and Lord Knutsford later decided that Newfoundland had no power to negotiate. He stated that Mr. Bond, the Colonial Secretary of Newfoundland, went to Washington and had unofficial interviews with Mr. Blaine, the result of which was the drafting of a convention by the British Minister. The Governor-General of Canada declared Canada viewed the signing of this convention with alarm and protested against it. Governor O'Brien of Newfoundland urged prompt signing of the convention, but Lord Knutsford adhered to his decision and stated that Mr. Bond had remodelled the convention after several interviews with Mr. Blaine.

PARNELL AT SLIGO.

He Has Put His Back to the Wall and Will Die Fighting.

SLIGO, March 23.—Mr. Parnell in a speech here to-day quoted General Gordon's opinion that tenants should be brought out by compulsory expropriation at a small sum and should be allowed to keep their holdings in perfect security and practically rent free. Eight or ten millions pounds, he said, would be more than ample to compensate landlords for any losses they might sustain. This would be a small sum to accomplish a nobler work than the emancipation of the slaves in the Southern States of America. Mr. Parnell, in referring to the seceders from his ranks, said he preferred Valentine Dillon to a good proportion of the traitors who had deserted the party because Dillon would not run away if the Grand Old Man made faces at him. He would put his back to the wall and die fighting rather than march out with all the honors of war, which the seceders did not do when they hastily retreated from room 15. If the strife had been removed from the heated atmosphere of room 15 and the evil influence of the National Liberal Club some way would have been found out of the difficulty without the present deplorable schism.

At many other meetings Mr. Parnell's difficulty in obtaining a hearing has been so great that the services of the police have frequently been required.

The election agent of Valentine Dillon, the Parnellite Parliamentary candidate for North Sligo, has applied to the magistrates for protection against what he terms "organized mobs."

CORK, March 23.—Timothy Healey, M.P., had a rough experience here to-day. He had attended the assizes, being interested in a case in which his brother Maurice had obtained damages for libel against a member of the Parnellite party. Upon leaving the court Timothy Healey was surrounded by a howling mob, who followed him along the street and made a number of attempts to assault him. The crowd finally became so violent that Healey took refuge in the dressing room of the Victoria Hotel, but soon a man suddenly rushed into the room, turned out the light and then struck Healey a powerful blow in the face, smashing his eyeglasses into pieces. When assistance arrived and the room was again lighted Healey was found to have been badly injured, as he had received numerous cuts from the broken pieces of his eyeglasses, and the blood was pouring down his face in streams. He was removed to a room and as he appeared to be suffering intense pain a number of physicians were summoned. Three doctors are now in attendance on the injured man. They have examined the wounds in his eyes and express the fear that Healey may lose his sight.

Healey's assailant is O'Brien Dalton, who was connected with the Tipperary conspiracy. He first upbraided Healey for an insulting speech made while Dalton was in prison. The glass injured the coats of Healey's left eye and made an incised wound an inch below the eyelid. It is feared inflammation will ensue. Healey's sight, it now appears, is not injured.

Ninety-one of the Victims Buried in Quicklime Yesterday.

GIBRALTAR, March 23.—The funeral of 91 victims of the Utopia disaster took place today. A heavy rainstorm prevailed during the ceremonies. The bodies were placed in rough coffins and buried in a huge ditch, which was filled in with quicklime to prevent infection. Divers who have been down in the sunken vessel report that there are unmistakable indications of the terrible struggles of the victims. Many bodies have been found with the head out of the port holes and the hands grasping the screws at the sides of the ports. Evidently they were trying to pull themselves through the opening. In many cases several bodies were found entangled, their hands tightly clutching each other or the arms intertwined. In several cases it was necessary to cut the hands or arms off before the bodies could be separated.

The local Board of Health has decided that all bodies coming ashore hereafter shall be sewn in tarpaulin bags, weighted and buried in the straits.

In the course of the coroner's inquest it was brought up in favor of Captain McKeague that he had 22 years' experience on the sea and had never before met with an accident.

GIBRALTAR, March 23.—A court martial to ascertain what responsibility, if any, rests on the British warship Anson for the sinking of the steamer Utopia was opened here to-day. The bodies of 50 more victims of the disaster were recovered to-day. They were in a very bad condition and it was decided to bury them at sea.

75 Carloads of Settlers' Effects.

WINNIPEG, March 23.—Seventy-five carloads of settlers' effects have arrived by the C.P.R. during the past two days.

Cheaper Coal.

NEW YORK, March 24.—At the meeting of the coal agents to-day it was decided to reduce stove coal 40 cents per ton, egg 35 cents and chestnut 25 cents. The new prices go into effect April 1 and are 35 to 60 cents below those in effect last year. The agents also resolved to restrict the production for April to 2,000,000 tons.

Transferred to Cork.

CORK, March 23.—William O'Brien and John Dillon, who have been undergoing imprisonment in Galway jail, were transferred to-day to Cork jail. They were recognized upon their arrival here and received an ovation from the people.

Suicided at Sixteen.

WINNIPEG, March 24.—Clara Sanderson 16 years old, daughter of a wealthy halfbreed of Medicine Hat, died to-day from a dose of strychnine, which she swallowed.

AT THE CREMATORY DOOR.

A Woman Prepares Herself For the Grave and Swallows Acid.

NEW YORK, March 23.—The body of a woman well dressed and wearing a handsome Astrachan cloak, black dress and turban decorated with feathers, was found lying on the ground under a tree near the Fresh Pond Crematory at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening by Constable Hebworth and was removed to the morgue at Ridgewood.

The body was that of a refined looking woman of about 45 years of age, and an examination of her clothing disclosed in her pocket an envelope addressed, "Mr. R. C. Riordan, Riverside Flats, or Dayton & Montgomery's, Flatbush-avenue, Brooklyn, L.I. The letter was as follows:

Mr. R. C. Riordan:

Kind friend, please take charge of my body. Let it not be removed from Fresh Pond. Your wife has some money of mine for all necessary expenses and the cremation receipts. Scatter my ashes at the crematory out of doors. Let there be no coffin, no service, and I shall be found when my outer garments are removed prepared for cremation.

Let there be as little fuss as need be about my death. There is no mystery about it and no need of an inquest. I have taken prussic acid. I am sick, alone, homeless, desolate. Life is worthless to me and of no use to any one.

Forty-six years in April. ANNIE S. WHITING.

At her side, when found, was a bottle containing prussic acid, the contents of which she had swallowed almost to the dregs.

Mr. and Mrs. Riordan were seen at their residence yesterday afternoon, at the Riverside Flats, in Furman-street. They are professional nurses, and said they had known the dead woman, Miss Whiting, for eight years. She had been a graduate as a trained nurse from the Long Island College Hospital since 1883.

No cause is assigned for the suicide.

Considerable talk has been occasioned at Police Headquarters and also among the public concerning the death of John Morgan, a man of about 50 years of age. Morgan was arrested by Policeman Flinn in Lombard-street for vagrancy. The accused was an old soldier who resided on that thoroughfare. The veteran complained of being ill and by order of Inspector Stephen he was sent upstairs. The jail physician was notified to look after the old man and he was sent down, more for the reason of trying to bring him around than for any other. With this idea in view instructions were given to have him placed in the hospital. But notwithstanding the very greatest efforts on his behalf the old man breathed his last two hours later.

A meeting of delegates from the different county law associations throughout the province was held at the Rossin House Saturday, in response to a circular issued by the Law Association of the county of Ontario calling for united action in the selection of candidates for the office of bencher, in order to secure proper representation of the profession outside of Toronto. About 15 were present, the chair being occupied by Mr. J. E. Farewell of Whitby and Mr. L. T. Heyd of Brantford acting as secretary. The delegates chose this ticket and by a formal resolution recommended it to the profession: H. H. Strathy, Barrie; W. Douglass, Chatham; J. Idington, Stratford; J. Meles and W. B. Meredith, London; C. McDougall, St. Thomas; Hon. A. S. Hardy, Brantford; A. Bruce, F. Mackelcan, E. Martin, J. V. Teetzel, Hamilton; E. Edwards, Peterboro; W. R. Riddell, Peterboro; D. Guthrie, Guelph B. M. Britton, Kingston; J. Bell, Belleville; A. J. Christie, Ottawa; Hon. C. F. Fraser, Brockville; J. C. Farewell, Whitby.

DEAD IN A SNOWBANK.

The Body Had Been Badly Torn by Wolves—Was it "Capt. Goldie"?

BURK'S FALLS, March 23.—Section Foreman John T. Hawkins of Ballantyne township came across a dead body buried in the snow. He brought it to the camp and searched the pockets of some clothes he had on and found some papers, on which was printed, "Arrow Office, Burk's Falls." Also a book with pictures of apples and other fruit and an envelope with the letters which, as far as could be made out, was "Goldie." The body had been torn by wolves and is now in a frozen state at Camp No. 2, Ballantyne.

The remains are supposed to be those of Capt. G. C. Goldie, well known in Burk's Falls and Magnetawan.

There Will Be No Compromise.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March.—President Von de Ahe returned to-day from Cincinnati, where he had been looking after the interests of the American Association. When asked how he stood on the proposed compromise with the League he replied: "There will be no compromise. We have us to gain by it. I am opposed to having anything further to do with the league, for it never has any dealings with anybody without giving the other party the worst of it.

Powers to Manage the Rochesters.

ROCHESTER, March 23.—The terms of Thomas F. Powers of last year's Baltimore club were accepted to-night by the Rochester club. Powers will manage, captain and play first base for the Rochesters.

Sporting Miscellany.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The failure of the New Jersey Legislature to pass a bill to allow betting on the race tracks has caused considerable discussion about the racing outlook of New Jersey. It is claimed by some that there will be no racing on the summer tracks, and that Monmouth Park, Linden and Elizabeth will be closed up during the season. This would be a great disappointment to racegoers and would cause a loss of money to all classes of people doing business in New Jersey.

Some claim that the Monmouth Park meeting will be run off anyhow. About Linden it is very doubtful.

President M. F. Dwyer of the Elizabeth Jockey Club was with his brother, Mr. J. P. Dwyer, at the Brooklyn Jockey Club office on Saturday. Talking of the outlook Mr. M. F. Dywer said: "The prospects of racing in New Jersey are anything but encouraging, and what the future of racing will be in that state it is hard to say. The meeting at Elizabeth will open April 10. That is certain and the programs are now being prepared. About betting I can't say anything, but the races will take place."

The Oporto Insurrection.

OPORTO, March 23.—The court martial in the case of the soldiers concerned in the revolt of January last has rendered its decision. Capt. Leitao, the principal leader, is sentenced to six years' imprisonment and ten years' banishment in Africa. The other leaders receive more lenient sentences, averaging three years' imprisonment and three years' banishment. Of 500 others accused one-half are liberated, and the other half received smaller sentences.

Both Mother and Son.

WOODSTOCK, March 23.—Alexander McKenzie of West Zorra died last night after an attack of illness which had lasted some time. He had gone to Florida for his health, but not finding any benefit had returned home to die. His mother, stricken by the all too common trouble now-a-days of heart failure, fell dead about an hour after her son's demise.

ELECTION FRAUDS.

History of the West Northumberland Outrage.

Interviews With Officers—The Ballots Must Have Been Forged After Declaration—The Deputies and Scrutineers Speak—Returning Officer Macdona Exonerated From Blame—The Details.

(By The Globe's Own Reporter.)

Cobourg, March 20.—The facts in connection with the attempt to steal the West Northumberland election are coming to light gradually. The attempted fraud has not been successful. Mr. John Hargraft is still member for the riding, but that does not lessen the criminality of the men, whoever they are, who tried to deprive him of a seat honestly won. It may be well briefly to recount the facts of the case. Mr. Hargraft defeated the sitting member, Mr. George Guillet, at the general election. On March 9 Mr. Angus Macdonald, the returning officer, declared him elected by a majority of 36, and a few days afterwards it was stated that there would be no application for a re-count. This, as it now appears, must have been intended as a blind, for on Friday last David H. Minaker, a Tory worker and newly appointed census commissioner, made application for a re-count, which took place on Monday and Tuesday before Judge Benson of the County Court. At the re-count it was found either that the deputy returning officers had through negligence wilfully failed of their duty, or that the ballots in sub-divisions No. 1 Cobourg, No. 2 Cobourg, No. 10 Township of Hamilton, and No. 19 Township of Haldimand had been tampered with between the time of the official declaration and the re-count. It was found that in No. 1 Cobourg six ballots were not initialled by the deputy returning officer, in No. 2 Cobourg 19 were not initialled, and 5 others bore on their face the initials J. H.; in No. 10 Hamilton eight ballots were not initialled by the deputy, and in No. 19 Haldimand fifteen ballots were not initialled by the deputy returning officer. All these ballots were marked for Hargraft, and had they been disallowed by the Judge would have left Mr. Guillet victor. His Honor Judge Benson allowed the uninitialled ballots and confirmed the election of Mr. Hargraft. When the affair became known the deputy returning officers declared that they had initialled all ballots. The scrutineers backed up this assertion and the suspicion became general that there had been committed a bold attempt at fraud.

A SEARCH FOR TRUTH.

It was to discover whether the deputy returning officers had been justified in stating that all ballots were initialled that I came down to Cobourg. For in this matter the whole situation was bound up. It was asserted on one hand that all ballots were initialled when put into the ballot boxes; it was proved on the other hand that when they were examined by Judge Benson they were not initialled. There is no wizard in Cobourg capable of making initialled ballots appear other than what they are, and the natural inference was either that the deputies had been mistaken or that forged ballots had been substituted for genuine ones.

Without much difficulty I found Mr. Wm. Carwell, the deputy returning officer of No. 1 subdivision, a conscientious old gentleman, who has been a deputy in a good many elections and takes the fear of God into his business. In the presence of his wife he assured me that he had initialled every ballot put into his box, and that there was not the remotest possibility of six ballots without initials having been placed in the box by anyone before it was sent to the returning officer. Mr. Chas. Kerr, the inside Reform scrutineer, is prepared to make affidavit to the same effect, and he was present at the sealing of the ballot box. So far this looked like confirmation of the idea that the ballots had been tampered with after they reached the returning officer, but one case does not give proof.

Mr. George Tutt, deputy returning officer, of No. 2, is a boat builder, and he was at work to-day down on the wharf. Before going down to visit him I resolved to look up the Reform scrutineers at No. 2 and hear their story. Wm. F. Kerr, barrister, a son of Wm. Kerr, Q.C., at one time member for the riding, was found in his office, and the following is a statement to which he will subscribe on oath if called upon:—

MR. KERR'S STATEMENT.

"I was the outside scrutineer for Mr. Hargraft at No. 2 Cobourg and went in at the count. All the ballots were crossed, and were printed on precisely the same paper and at the same time. I have been accustomed to take an interest in paper and type, and am confident that the ballots were all alike. There were no distinguishing marks on the ballots then. When the count was completed Mr. H. Sidey, our inside scrutineer, took the returns down to the Liberal committee rooms, and I remained with the returning officer and the polling clerk. The returning office and I sealed up the inner envelopes containing the ballots and the outer one enclosing all the smaller envelopes. He then placed them in the ballot box—I assisting—and locked it. We then placed a piece of common packing paper on the opening of the box and sealed it securely. We then left the booth I was present at the declaration when No. 2 ballot box was opened. There was difficulty in breaking it open so strongly was it sealed up. The returning officer himself made some remarks about it. I looked carefully at it and saw by the paper and the general appearance of the sealing that the box had not then been tampered with. At the declaration—Monday, the 9th—the large envelope was opened because the deputy returning officer had placed his statement in it. On Monday last when the re-count was going on, as soon as word was brought that No. 2 had been tampered with, I went to see Mr. Tutt. He then informed me that he had initialled all the ballots used and counted in No. 2, and that there were no distinguishing marks on the face of the ballots for Mr. Hargraft or he certainly would have disallowed them at the time. He was as much surprised as I was at the state of affairs. In the face of this nineteen ballots were found uninitialled by the deputy, some were uncrossed and five had the initials J. H. on the face of them, doubtless intended for John Hargraft. Mr. Tutt stated the facts as he gave them to me on the street on Monday afternoon to several persons. I went afterwards with a J. P. to get his declaration to the same effect, but he would not say anything."

Here was a plain, unvarnished story, and Mr. H. Sidey, the inside scrutineer, corroborated it when I called on him a short time afterward.

He said:—"I especially watched the book of the ballots to guard against uninitialled ones going in. In the usual number cast at the booth I did not mean seeing the initials on over four at the outside, and that was because of peculiar folding. I am prepared to take oath to that effect. I saw every vote cast except one that was cast while I was out, and Mr Kerr saw that. That five ballots with the initials J. H. on the face of them should escape our knowledge is preposterous. There were present four scrutineers and the deputy returning officer. There was no chance of such a thing."

INTERVIEWING MR. TUTT.

Cobourg wharf is a deserted place when the wind is keen and the snow is deep. Literally following in Mr. Tutt's footsteps—the drift was heavy in places—I went down to the boat house and found him at work upstairs. I stated my business, and asked if he cared to say anything.

"You have come down to try me, eh?" was the response.

Mildly I suggested that such was not my present mission, and that the matter in hand was one of interest to the people of the whole Province,

"I have made my return to the returning officer," said Mr. Tutt, "and I won't answer any questions."

In another way I repeated the question, and again the answer was, "I am only accountable to the returning officer, and I won't speak about the ballot box."

My interview with Mr. Angus Macdonald, the returning officer, was not more satisfactory. He would not say a word about the ballot boxes or the affair. If I wanted information about the returns, he said, I could see it in the Canada Gazette as soon as the work he was then engaged in could be completed. After leaving Mr. Macdonald I heard a good deal of conversation about the matter, and not a single person asserted that Mr. Macdonald had anything to do with the fraud. He stands exonerated from connection with the grave crime of forging ballots. There can be no doubt, however, in view of the positive statements of the deputy returning officers and others, that such a crime has been committed, and every good person is interested in the discovery of the guilty parties. In conversation with Mr. H. J. Snelgrove, of the World, that gentleman suggested that a government detective might find congenial work in unravelling the mystery. Mr. Hargraft himself is as yet undecided as to what course he shall pursue. He said that there was talk of a protest on the part of the Tories, and hinted that he was rather glad to hear of it, for in that case the whole affair would be probed to the bottom and the criminals brought to justice. Mr. Wm. Kerr, Q.C., ex-M.P., talked strongly of the affair, and hoped for the good named of the constituency that the outrage would be investigated and the perpetrators punished.

Rough Skin.

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 180 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Bussell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

TAM-O-SHANTER'S RIDE.

"Yes," said he thoughtfully, puffing ring after ring of smoke into the air above his head, "Tam-o-Shanter's ride through the midnight wind with the uncanny witches pursuing him, was a strange fancy of Burns'. It always reminds me of a certain time in my life when I seemed pursued by every demon of disease. Indigestion, dyspepsia, almost constant sick headache, weak lungs, boils and ulcers, everything seemed to ail me, and my physicians had finally given me up as a sure victim of consumption.

You know, in Burns' story, just as the foremost witch was seizing Tam's horse by the tail, he reached the middle of the magic stream—and his pursuers vanished. Well, just as I was giving up in despair, a friend sent me a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which I took. In an incredibly short time my disease entirely vanished. To-day I am as strong as any man in the room—thanks to the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

Consumption is Lung-scrofula. For Scrofula, in its myriad forms, and for all Liver, Blood and Lung diseases, the "Discovery" is an unequaled remedy. It's the only guaranteed one. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you get your money back. It's the cheapest, Liver Blood and Lung remedy, sold by druggists, because you only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

"Golden Medical Discovery" strengthens Weak Lungs, and cures Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and kindred affections. Don't be fooled into taking something else, said to be "just as good," that the dealer may make a larger profit. There's nothing at all like the "Discovery." It contains no alcohol to inebriate; no syrup or sugar to derange digestion. As peculiar in its curative effects as in its composition. Equally good for adults or children.

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS.—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

HOW BRITAIN'S SOLDIERS ARE PREPARED FOR THE FIELD.

Skillful and Fine Looking Warriors Made Out of Very Raw Recruits—Some of Their Proficiency as Exhibited in Public Tournaments.

VERY few foreigners, certainly not many Americans, are likely to be long in London before they wend their way into Parliament street, and few therefore can be without at least a superficial acquaintance with those outward and visible signs of the British army, the flanking sentinels of the Horse Guards, writes Charles Turner, in Outing.

Tall beyond the ordinary run of men, mounted on high-mettled, glossy black chargers, dressed to perfection, in their white leather breeches, their superlatively high top boots, their spotless gauntlets, their burnished steel cuirasses and their metal helmets, reflecting the nodding plume, they are the never-ending admiration of all small boys, the cynosure of all the nursemaids' eyes and of more than passing interest to all strangers.

To those who see them thus they seem, at first blush, immovable and passive; they show no sign of life and, except for the champing bits of their steeds, they give rather the impression of trophies than of living equestrians; indeed, it is only when you turn from mounted sentinels outside to those in the court yard and note the giants there on foot, similarly accoutred, with carbine on arm, striding the flagstones with mathematical precision, that you are quite sure they are alive.

Every inch soldiers, with the carriage of conscious power, these aristocrats of the British army have not escaped the shrewish tongue of envy and it has been, at recurring periods, a fashionable form of raillery to call them "Knights of the Carpet;" but when these men have been put to the test of active service they have dispelled this illusion, and those who read of them at Waterloo or Inkerman, or who saw them on the sands of Egypt, so recently as Tel-el-Kebir, read or saw feats of arms such as none but the most perfectly disciplined and expert horsemen in the world could have executed.

Nor is this at all surprising when one comes to give a more than momentary consideration to the British army and its functions. How otherwise could it, comparatively small as it is, be relied on to discharge its manifold duties in all parts of the world? If every unit in it were not brought to the highest state of physical perfection and military expertness, how could it possibly withstand the strain which climate and service over a dominion on which the sun never sets imposes upon it?

Such duties are not fulfilled by merely providing, as the great armies of France, Germany and other continental countries mainly do, an immense mass of food for modern artillery to shatter into fragments at distances which must be reckoned by miles; they require a physical ability and trained use in the primitive weapons of the world, the sword and the lance, such as is not called into requirement by the great manœuvring millions who play the game of war in the so-called civilized countries of Europe, where, given the data, the moves, like those at chess, can be forecast and cannot be deviated from. The British soldier has mainly to meet his enemy at the gate single-handed, face to face, and to grapple with him there in personal conflict, as fierce and dependent as much on personal skill and endurance, as did the knights of old who met the ancestors of his to-day's enemies in the crusades.

Hence it follows that the training of the British soldier, to be successful, must be physical, painstaking and skillful. He has to be treated as an individual unit and every ounce of strength and atom of skill he has in him has to be developed to the highest point which care, system, long knowledge of the art and experienced teachers can bring out of him.

And so it is that, when the recruiting officer has once got hold of the raw recruit, the mere frame of bone and muscle fresh from the plough tail, often overgrown and oftener underfed for his years and strength, the first routine is, out of that material, to knit together the man; to loose the stiffened joints, to make supple the brawny shoulders which nature has provided, to strengthen the long legs, to set up the back bones, to turn his muscles into iron and his sinews into whip cord. For this purpose the recruit is handed over to the precincts of the gymnasium, where, for the first three months, he almost lives. When all this is over, and it is done in that time or sufficiently forwarded for further progress to be assured, his own father would scarcely know him. No longer the ungainly slouch which his occupation had tended to produce and habit had confirmed, but straight as an arrow, quick eyed as a hawk, limber as a serpent and strong as a son of Anak, he is ready for the riding school and the swordsman—two ordeals as painful and as painstaking, in their several departments, as the gymnast's, and crowned in the majority of cases with a success as signal.

The admirable results of the rigid training that these men must undergo are best seen at the annual tournaments, held in Agricultural Hall, Islington, where all branches of the service enter into the display and competition.

The exercises which are given may be roughly divided into two classes: Those which come within the ordinary routine of the soldier's duty—such, for instance, as the bayonet and sword practice—and those which are imported from his amusements, such as the "tent pegging," and they may furthermore be more or less again divided into two classes—those which appeal to the eye as spectacles and those which exhibit the expertness, strength or skill of the individual.

As a spectacle, undoubtedly the most pleasing is that produced by the "musical ride," which mainly falls to the Household Cavalry. Indeed, as an exhibition of docility and intelligence on the part of the horse and patience on the part of the man, who train them for the effect as a labor of love and not of duty, it would be difficult to design a more pleasing, or instructive or picturesquely striking feature. The faultless unity and get-up of the man; the spirit which is manifest in every step of the horse and every flash of his eye; the evident desire to which they are under the influence of time and symphony in the music, the mingling mass of flashing steel and glinting color which the uniforms give as they wind in and out the drums or swerve rigid and faultless as the spokes of a wheel round its hub; the precision of movement and magnificent physique could not fail in any assembly in the world to be remarkable, and in one as sympathetic as is gathered in London it is not surprising, or beyond the merits of justice, to pronounce them admirable.

Next to the ride in picturesqueness, though before it as an exhibition of skill in management and carefully on the horse's part to perform exact movements, is that which comes out in the competitions of the Royal Artillery, consisting of teams trotting and galloping the guns through various evolutions. The competition differs from the musical ride in one important point—it is a duty drill; but it is like it in another; in that each of the team rides the same horse he has trained and each man works with the other men with whom he has been in the habit of acting. It consists in each team of six horses, with their gun, driving at a trot round the circle of the hall between twelve sets of round blocks, about a foot high, laid on the ground only just so far apart as that there is altogether three inches more space between them than there is in the external diameter of the wheels of the gun carriage, and, subsequently to gallop, full speed, round the same space, with sets of three feet high gate posts set so that there is six inches more diameter between them than there is between the wheels of the gun carriage. A feat the nicety of which can be best estimated by remembering that each team consists of three pairs of horses, linked on to each other by ropes only; that each pair is ridden and led by a different man; that the gun carriage is perfectly rigid, without spring or joint, and that the gun is attached to it by a peg and pivot at the back, round which the gun can revolve, or swerve, to any angle which awkwardness or accident permit it, and that the slightest touch would topple over the wooden cones which mark the trotting course, or displace the angle of the posts which mark the gallop.

Of the other sports, not strictly drill, perhaps the next most popular is the tent pegging, a pastime which is most frequently indulged in by the troops, both native and regular of India, from whence it was brought some few years ago by the Seventh Hussars and from whom it has spread through all the cavalry of the line. It is not an easy performance; it requires a firm seat, a quick eye and an iron wrist to effect it successfully. When so accomplished it is a very pretty feat of arms, and, withal, a very useful one too, for the man who can lift a tent peg, without fail, has gone as far in the use of the deadly lance as any enemy he is likely to meet in actual war. The peg is an ordinary wooden tent peg, three inches broad and a foot long, driven nearly perpendicularly into the ground until less than half of it remains in sight. At this object, lance in hand, the trooper rides full tilt, strikes it on the gallop, and without one moment relaxing the grasp of his lance or the speed of his horse, he has, to be successful, to wrench it out of the ground and carry it away. Now, seeing that the lance arm will, in the twinkling of an eye after striking, be on the hither side of the stricken peg, it will be seen that the tent peg is a test of no mean nature, and yet, especially in regiments recently returned from India, trooper after trooper will succeed every time.

Weather Probabilities.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2w11d

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2w11d

Prospects are promising for a lively season's sport in Peterborough this year. All the athletic clubs are organizing and getting ready for the summer, with the greatest enthusiasm.

Revival Meetings.

The revival services in the George street Methodist church were begun last night by the Conference evangelist, Rev. Mr. Bates. There was a small attendance, but much spiritual blessing was experienced by all present. Rev. Mr. Bates delivered an impressive gospel address. The meetings will be continued every night this week.

Holy Week Services.

The first evening service of Holy Week was held last night at St. John's Church, beginning at eight o'clock. The service was conducted by Rev. J. C. Davidson, assisted by Messrs. W. M. Loucks and W. D. Parker. Rev. C. B. Kenrick preached the sermon, continuing his course on "The Beatitudes." The choir of St. Andrew's Brotherhood led the singing, Mr Kenrick playing the organ. After the sermon the "Story of the Cross" was sung, Miss Davidson and Mr. Drope taking the solo parts. The same service will be repeated every evening this week.

The Assessment.

The assessors are about through with their canvass and are now making up their rolls. They expect to make a return about the middle of April. A citizen complained to the EXAMINER the other day that the assessment was being raised all over town. One of the assessors was asked if this was the case, and he said it was not. The only place where there has been any general increase in the assessment is the South Ward, where property has risen in value in the vicinity of the Edison Works, otherwise no more than the usual changes in the assessment are being made.

Locked Up for Snowballing.

Mr. F. W. Miller walked into the police station this morning with his hand firmly gripped on the collar of a boy named Willie Armstrong, who marched ahead of him at arm's length. Mr. Miller told the police that last Friday young Armstrong threw a snowball and hit his little daughter in the eye. Mr. Miller has been watching for the urchin ever since, but did not see him again until this morning, when, after a lively chase through the water and slush in Central Park, he captured the lad. Armstrong, when locked up, began to cry piteously. It is time the boys began to learn that snowballing was contrary to law, as well as a dangerous practice.

Fruit Growers' Association.

The meeting to be held at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the town council chamber promises to be very successful. Mr. A. McD. Allan, one of the speakers, is one of the best known authorities on fruit growing in Canada. He was commissioner in charge of the Canadian exhibit of fruit at the Colonial and Indian Exhibition in London. He has been twice elected president of the Fruit Grower's Association of Ontario. Mr. Woolverton, of Grimsby, the secretary of the Association and editor of the Horticulturist, will deliver an interesting and useful address. By a fortunate chance Mr. Craig, of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, was in town this morning on his way to the Lakefield Farmers' Institute. Hearing that an Association had been established here, he called upon the Secretary and was easily persuaded to remain over for the meeting to-morrow. He will give a paper on "Fruits for Northern Latitudes." His experience at Ottawa, in a climate resembling ours, will be very useful. It is hoped that Mr. Beall, of Lindsay, will be present at the meeting. Mr. McLean, of Mount Pleasant, is also expected.

The Athletic Association.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association takes place to-night, and all interested in sport are urged to attend and lend their assistance. An important crisis has arisen in the affairs of the Association, and the advice and support of all lovers of athletics is required. At the meeting to-night a number of leading questions will be discussed. The future prospects of the Association depend upon the amount of encouragement and support received from the public. The Directors contemplate making considerable improvements this year if funds will permit, and for the sake of sport their efforts ought to be liberally seconded. The value of such a recreation ground to the men of the town cannot be over-estimated, and as it must be maintained by the public, the Directors hope for that hearty support they should get. They cannot be expected to manage the Association affairs at their own expense. A large meeting is particularly desired to-night, when the annual reports will be read, officers elected and projects for the coming season discussed.

Second Night of the Anniversary.

The lecture by Rev. C. O. Johnston in the Charlotte street church Monday evening was fairly attended, considering the unpleasant state of the streets. As a lecturer and pulpit orator Mr. Johnston stands in the front rank to-day. He is remarkably versatile, and changes from the gay to the grave, from the humorous to the pathetic, with the greatest freedom and frequency. Smiles and sadness are cleverly mingled in charming proportion. Mr. Johnston tells a good story, and used this knack with effect in his lecture. His subject was "Influence," which, though not perhaps new, is never exhausted, and gives ample scope for the lecturer's ability. He pointed out the influence of the smallest things upon our characters, and said we could not be too careful in guarding against the evil influences which beset us. The lecture abounded with jokes and humorous stories, but through it all ran the steady undercurrent of good common-sense advice. Rev. Mr. Johnston uses good language, and some of his bursts of eloquence, particularly the description of the storm at sea, were admirable bits of word-painting. The lecture was a decided success, and will set a good example for the school. The children's entertainment to-night will be well worth attending.

They Were "Cleaned Out."

Three or four burly young bloods from the country came into town last night. They were already considerably under the influence of liquor and were "just spilin' for a fight." Passing the Grand Central Hotel, one remarked "let's go in and clean the ranch out." They went in and called for drinks. One of them fastened his eyes on a couple of gigerly, well-dressed young men wearing eye-glasses and high collars, who were loudly saying "something soft" at the other end of the bar. "Say, fellers, let's clean out the dudes" quoth the big agricultural boy. This started the row. The farmers stuck together and fought like badgers, but the hotel staff, assisted by the occupants of the billiard room, who cheerfully left their games for the more exciting sport, were too many for them, and after a fierce struggle succeeded in subduing and ejecting the disturbers. Daniel Shanahan was the last to succumb. When Constable McGinty arrived Shanahan was clenched with another man and the two were rolling around and pounding each other to their hearts' content. The officer collared Shanahan and marched him off to the police station. He was the only one arrested, the others having had enough of fighting and gone away. This morning Shanahan was fined $5 for disorderly conduct.

All Not Quiet Along the Potomac.

The rains descended and the floods came yesterday, and the hitherto harmless creek became a turbulent torrent, overflowing its banks and flooding the cellars of adjacent houses, besides threatening destruction to the numerous foot bridges on the various streets. The rain, assisted by the thaw, caused a sudden flood, and the stream becoming blocked with ice the water spread over low-lying ground. The houses west of the railway track on Murray street were quite isolated and approachable only by boat. Lower down, the creek is too much confined to its channel to do much damage. At Paterson's tannery anxious watch was maintained. The bridges at Bethune and Brock streets were a source of danger. Street Inspector Pope had men working night and day to keep the stream running and prevent a blockade, which would have probably resulted in the carrying away of the bridges. Grand Trunk Railway men were interested in the Bethune street bridge, which was in the greatest danger of all. Dynamite was used, and the ice jam broken up as much as possible, but to increase its safety a train of cars was run up to the bridge and left there all night to prevent it from being lifted up by the flood. To-day the turgid stream has but little subsided. The ice in the creek is being broken up as rapidly as possible and no further serious trouble is anticipated if the lower temperature applied for by probe arrives in time.

The Girl Exonerated.

The Coroner's Jury Return a Verdict That the Child was Still Born.

The inquest held the cause of death of the child given birth to by Nellie Whelan last Thursday, was continued Monday afternoon. Doctors McGrath and Yelland, who performed the autopsy, were the only witnesses, and on their evidence the verdict was based.

Dr. MCGRATH said he had held a post mortem examination on the body of the child. He found no external marks of violence whatever. The lungs were hard, firm and resisting. The lungs and heart after being taken out each sank in water. The doctor's conclusion was that the child never breathed. The best referred to in regard to the lungs was the most reliable one known, and the position and condition of the lungs together with other evidences left no doubt that respiration had never taken place. The birth was evidently a premature one. Dr. McGrath said he attended the girl Nellie Whelan at the hospital.

Dr. Yelland corroborated the previous evidence. He had assisted Dr. McGrath in making the examination and said he felt sure the child had never breathed.

In accordance with the above evidence the jury returned a formal verdict that the child was still-born. The girl is therefore not held responsible in any way. As soon as she is able to leave the hospital she will be allowed to go freely.

The girl has confessed that the author of her trouble is a young man in a village in this county where she lived about eight months ago. It is said he has been induced to marry the girl and in as far as possible repair the wrong done her.

Education and Crime.

In the report on compulsory education recently laid before the Legislature there are some interesting facts showing the relation between crime and education. It is stated in one year there were received into the Eastern Penitentiary of Pennsylvania 487 convicts. Of these 82 had never attended schools of any kind; five are reported to have attended college for an average of six years, one of them having attended for ten and another for seven years; seven are said to have attended a Public High School for an average of a little over two years; twelve were said to have been educated at private schools for an average time of seven years and a quarter; 360 had attended Public Schools, 169 of them advancing to the grammar grade, the average age at leaving school being fourteen, and the average time they remained at school being set down at five years. Out of 571 convicts received at the Western Penitentiary of Pennsylvania during the years 1879 and 1880, only three are set down by the prison authorities as possessing what they call a superior education. The two Pennsylvania penitentiaries in 1879 received 799 prisoners, of whom 114 were wholly illiterate; in 1880 there were 722 convicts, of whom 151 were wholly illiterate; in two years there were 1,521 convicts, with 265 illiterates. Thus it is found that one-sixth of the crime of the State is committed by its illiterate citizens, although the illiterates in all are only one-thirtieth of the whole population. There were also 272 convicts who could barely read or write and had received no education beyond that point. The document from which these figures are taken is published by the Bureau of Education at Washington, and it is there stated that the reports of twenty other States show a similar experience to that of Pennsylvania. With this testimony the following conclusions are reached:—

"(1) That about one sixth of all the crime in the country is committed by persons wholly illiterate.

"(2) That about one-third of it is committed by persons practically illiterate.

"(3) That the proportion of criminals among the illiterate is about ten times as great as among those who have been instructed in the elements of a Common School education or beyond."

These facts, comments the Globe, while they are a satisfactory answer to the charge that the system of free public education actually promotes crime, do not give that system due credit for its work in diminishing crime. To get at the truth we should consider the history of all those criminals who are alleged to have received a Public School education. In many cases it would be found that they were exceedingly irregular attendants at school, persistent truants, and in a state of constant rebellion against the school authorities. And at the best the pupils are under the care of their teachers, on an average, only about one-fourth of the hours of the day and scarcely more than one-fourth of the days in the year. It frequently follows that the good influences of the school are neutralized by the bad influences of the street and sometimes of home. On the whole, there is ground for the belief that in the United States and Canada the system of free education has been a preventive of crime.

Matrimonial Extension.

The bill which the Attorney-General has introduced, extending to the staff officers of the Salvation Army the right to solemnize marriages, may grieve the hearts of some few people who have not kept quite abreast of the liberal spirit of the age. In some quarters the opinion entertained by the church people of the army is not high; many excellent people cannot regard the army as an organization, and have to call upon their Christian charity to think no harder of them than that they are guerilla soldiers of Christianity with grotesque methods. But to the great heart of the church they have recommended themselves by their earnestness and devotion, and are recognized as an ally in the work of raising fallen manhood and womanhood. The bill is extending to the Salvation Army what the Marriage Bill 60 years ago gave to the ministers not then belonging to the Established Church.

The Ladies Home Journal.

There is all the sunshine of spring and the fragrance of flowers in The Ladies' Home Journal for April; the exquisite Easter cover, designed by W. Hamilton Gibson, is a fair index to the charm of the whole number. The pervading Easter spirit finds perhaps its happiest expression in the fiction; Mrs. Whitney's delightful serial, "A Golden Gossip," being continued, while Maud Barron and Caroline A. Mason contribute seasonable short stories. The "Mrs. Reviter Lamar" of the latter, an exceptionally strong story, forms as attractive a feature as the clever sketch of Mrs. T. De Witt Talmage, which is accompanied by a fine wood-cut portrait. Other articles which will be widely quoted are Amelia E. Barr's "Mothers as Matchmakers," dealing with a question of universal interest, and the third of Geo. W. Cable's masterly papers on "Teaching the Bible." Among such an "infinite variety" it is difficult to mention anything that is good, but the article by C. F. Kinsler, the New York florist, on "Flowers in the Home"; those upon "Sea-keeping as an Occupation for Women," and Mrs. Mallon's delightful pages of Spring Fashion will no doubt be especially appreciated. The number is complete in every part, and richly illustrated throughout. Issued at Ten Cents a copy, or One Dollar a year, by the Curtis Pub'ishing Company, 425 Arch street, Philadelphia.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting factitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

THE BUDGET SPEECH DELIVERED YESTERDAY.

Mr. Harcourt's Maiden Effort—The Licence Fund and the Municipalities—How the Provincial Monies Will Be Expended.

TORONTO, March 25.—Provincial Treasurer Harcourt made his annual statement yesterday in the House of Assembly.

The total receipts for 1890 amounted to $3,488,154, or $44,747 more than was estimated. The largest items of the receipts remained unchanged. In four years $1,340,000 had been drawn from interest on capital and investments, and it was satisfactory to know that there was so stable an asset. There was a large deficit in the estimated receipts from the Central Prison, but there was $90,000 worth of unsold brick and other articles to make it up.

The receipts from licenses occupied Mr. Harcourt for some time. The receipts last year were $312,007, the largest ever received by the Province in any one year. The receipts of the Provinces, the number of licenses and the number of places in which the Scott act was in force were:

	Prov. Receipts.	Licenses.	Scott Act.
1886-7	$216,000	2000	20
1887-8	300,000	1626	25
1888-9	285,000	1483	17
1889-90	307,391	1609	0

It was said that the Province appropriated an unjust share of the license receipts. There was no ground for such a statement. The Provincial revenue had increased but so had the municipal revenue from licenses in an equal proportion. The amount paid to municipalities in 1886-7 was $153,000; in 1887-8, $156,000; in 1888-9, $190,000, and in 1889-90, $207,000. Or, while the Provincial revenue from that source had increased 45 per cent., the municipal revenue had increased 36 per cent.

Mr. Harcourt broadly suggested that the municipalities had the remedy in their own hands. They could by bylaws increase the fees by from $100 to $140 and the whole of this increase would go to the municipalities. A large number of municipalities complained about the amount of the fees they received, but not one of them had increased their fees to these maximum amounts. The 29 municipalities which petitioned the Government for a fairer proportion would have increased their revenue by $18,570 by these additional means. Moreover, any municipality by a popular vote could increase the fees, although in this case the increase would be equally shared with the province. The municipality received a large proportion of the revenue and yet the province had to pay the whole cost of enforcing the law.

The $82,000 received from the sale of the Toronto Lunatic Asylum land had been applied to the erection of cottages at the Mimico branch. Up to last year $343,893 had been devoted to this purpose. Seven cottages were now completed and it was proposed to add two more. The land at the asylum had become too valuable for gardens and was sold, but the province had received a valuable quid pro quo in the extra accommodation for patients at Mimico.

Taking up the expenditure for the past year Mr. Harcourt said the total estimated expenditure was $3,837,228 and the actual receipts $4,381,969. The latter therefore exceeded the estimated expenditure by $44,747. The estimated expenditure voted last year was $3,545,000 and the actual expenditure was $3,367,000, leaving $178,149 unexpended. The actual receipts therefore exceeded the actual expenditure by $14,000. The expenditure on the maintenance of public institutions is steadily growing. In 1880 it was $726,909 and in 1890 it was $1,070,000, an increase of $40,000 over last year. The efficient management of these institutions requires 64 per cent. of the subsidy and one fifth of the entire supply bill. They must expect that their duty to the public would require further expenditure in a few years. It was not likely they would continue to occupy the Toronto Asylum much longer. The annual cost of the patients was $131 per head. Mr. Harcourt read statistics from a number of American asylums to show that this was economical, only one out of 70 failing below.

Statements were submitted showing the amounts payable annually for certificates for "Aid to railways" and "Annuities." In 1891 $236,174 is payable for railway aid certificates and $52,400 for annuities. These amounts rapidly decrease until in 1903 the only certificate remaining unpaid is that of the Port Arthur, Duluth & Western Railway. The amounts payable that year are $4613 for railway aid certificates and $72,200 for annuities. The total amount payable for railway aid certificates is $1,440,000 and $1,824,800 for annuities. The last certificate falls due July 1, 1920. Mr. Harcourt added that practically that the "railway certificates would probably be replaced by a new issue."

With regard to the disputed Provincial accounts with the Dominion the Treasurer said that at early day they would be settled by arbitration. He gave some details regarding their history.

Mr. Harcourt then presented this statement of assets and liabilities.

The liabilities of the province at present payable Mr. Harcourt placed at only $82.20, including $3.52 for balance due municipalities re land improvement fund interest and $3.672 being Quebec's share of collections for common school fund in 1890. The surplus of assets after deducting liabilities presently payable is placed at $5,809,995.

He said that in the liabilities the railway aid certificates were not included, because they were not a present liability. They were not concerned with them now because it was not intended to meet them out of the present assets. The certificates were to be paid out of future receipts. They were inconsiderable and insignificant.

Mr. Harcourt placed the surplus at $5,800,000. There was another asset, he said, which was not included, the unpaid balance due the province for crown lands amounting to 3½ millions. If his opponents capitalized the railway certificates as a liability, why he would have to capitalize the subsidies and the receipts from crown lands as assets. He would also include the money spent on public buildings, and all this would increase the assets by millions.

The Treasurer in conclusion submitted a statement of the estimated receipts for 1891, following closely the actual receipts for 1890. The total receipts expected amount to $4,308,824 and the total estimated expenditure, including a supplementary estimate of $4000, is $4,531, 6..., leaving a balance of $283,241 unprovided for. Mr. Harcourt got over this difficulty by remarking that the estimated receipts were pared down so closely that they were sure to be largely above the amount anticipated.

Mr. H. E Clarke said that it might have been expected that a new treasurer would have adopted a new system of bookkeeping. Mr. Harcourt had never before taken any prominent part in the discussion of finance, but had always posed as a superior person or a candid friend of the Government. The surplus was a myth.

Mr. Hardy: "Don't give us that chestnut."

Mr. Clarke: "Well, it is as mythical as the modesty pressing over the Crown Lands Department. [Laughter.] The sale of timber every year decreases the surplus, but to the surplus grows just the same. Money is borrowed every year and still the surplus increases. If the members opposite continue in power long enough the surplus will assume monumental proportions.

A plain answer to the questions what is revenue, what is the expenditure, what is the difference, would inform the people of the province where they stood. The subsidy gives over $1,000,000 a year. To claim this as an item of interest is pure humbug. The common school fund, placed at $1,440,000, is really a liability to the Dominion.

Speaking of subsidies, Mr. Clarke said he was in favor of doing away with them altogether. The system placed responsibility for expenditure of the subsidy upon those who had no control over it. The province should collect a tax from the people instead. Stop the subsidies and if Quebec chooses to pay $600,000 in settlement of her Jesuits claims, Ontario will not have to bear the greatest part of the burden. The gentlemen opposite pretend to be free traders. They can't have free trade without direct taxation. They would have a splendid chance of educating the people to accept direct taxation by practising it in the province.

The revenue from the Crown Lands Department since 1880 has been $5,327,616. The average cut of timber for the past five years has been 1,600,000 feet. The product of the forest is the greatest asset of the province. When that asset is wasted at the rate of $1,280,000 a year it is time to sound a note of warning. Not many years ago Maine, New Hampshire, New York and Pennsylvania were covered with forests of white pine which have not a stick left. A similar fate awaits, very soon, Ontario's greatest asset if the Government continues to waste it as it is now doing.

Talking of the receipts from licenses, Mr. Clarke said there was danger of the Government depending too much on the liquor misers. It would punish a Philadelphia lawyer to know whether the liquor traffic supported the Government or the Government the liquor traffic. For his part, he believed the whole revenue from licenses should go to the municipality.

Of the $3,288,097 of receipts Mr. Clarke claimed that only $2,220,000 was legitimate, the remainder being really derived by converting capital into revenue.

The province spent over $3,000,000 a year on education. There was a danger that too much attention was being paid to higher education and not enough to elementary education. The grant to high schools was out of proportion to that to public schools. The grant to high schools amounted to $9 per head of attendance, while that to public schools amounted to only $1 per head of attendance. The system was turning out yearly too great a number of young men educated for a profession.

Mr. Sol. White introduced a bill yesterday, or rather attempted to introduce a bill, with the comprehensive title, "A bill to encourage the breeding and improvement of trotting and pacing horses and for the prevention of fraudulent entries and practices in contests of speed." Mr. Meredith raised a laugh by suggesting that the Attorney-General would second it. Mr. Mowat, however, merely smiled. The speaker hesitated in reading the bill, and then it transpired that it was irregular because no notice of it had been given. Mr. White will introduce it again to-day, having given the requisite notice.

Mr. White says the bill is aimed principally at "ringers" in horse races. It prohibits the entry of a horse, colt or filly under an assumed name or pedigree in any contest for a purse or prize that is to be decided by speed. The name shall not be changed after it has once been entered for a contest unless as provided by the rules of the association under which the contest is held. The public performance of a horse in a previous contest shall determine the class to which it belongs. The penalty for offences under the act is a fine of not less than $10 or more than $100 or in default six months' imprisonment.

Mr. Davis presented a petition from the county council of York praying for legislation to define the rights and liabilities of persons using bicycles upon public roads and streets.

Mr. G. B. Smith presented a petition from the council of York praying for an amendment to the municipal act, sect. 128, chap. 184, R.S.O. 1887, so as to dispense with the unnecessary labor imposed on municipal clerks of making a complete copy of the list of voters for each polling subdivision. In the majority of municipalities not more than one-half of the qualified voters appear at the polls (in York township not over one-quarter).

A NEWSPAPER MAN KILLED.

Ernest Hardenstein Shot in a Quarrel Over the New Orleans Lynching.

VICKSBURG, Miss., March 24.—Ernest Hardenstein, business manager of a weekly publication, was shot this evening and killed by John G. Cashman, editor and proprietor of The Evening Post. The tragedy grew out of the lynching of the Italians in New Orleans. Hardenstein criticized Cashman's editorial treatment of the lynching and Cashman, in a card published this afternoon, denounced Hardenstein's statement as a wilful lie.

The two met in Washington-street this evening and after a brief altercation Hardenstein attacked Cashman with a stick. Cashman drew his revolver and fired two shots in rapid succession, one of them piercing Hardenstein's heart. The other flew wide of the mark and narrowly missed killing George Yoste, who was in the jewelry store nearby.

Hardenstein was 37 years of age and had been employed on nearly all the leading newspapers of the South. He was city editor of The Vicksburg Evening Post up to March 1, when he was obliged to give up the position, as his relations with Cashman were not agreeable. These circumstances added bitterness to the controversy over the lynching.

Cashman is one of the best known newspaper men in the state. He is an ex-Confederate soldier and lost one eye in the seige of Vicksburg. He is under arrest.

KANE'S AWFUL CRIME.

PARTICULARS OF THE BELLEVILLE MURDER.

A Callous Prisoner—He Also Intended to Kill His Stepson — The Murder Undoubtedly Premeditated—History of the Accused—An Inquest Opened.

BELLEVILLE, March 24.—The murder of Mrs. James Kane by her husband last night proves by the evidence taken at the inquest to have been a deliberately planned crime. The knife used by the murderer was obtained in the kitchen of the Queen's Hotel, where it had been used as a carving knife and had been carefully concealed by Kane until he made the attack upon his wife. Mrs. Kane has at intervals been compelled to live with her children in consequence of the treatment she received at the hands of him who in years gone by vowed that he would be her protector. It was at the house whence her son Alfred was removing that the awful tragedy occurred. At a few minutes before 5 o'clock, Kane left the Queen's Hotel and proceeded, in company with another man, to the barber shop of James Skinner (his step-son) in Front-street. Here he inquired of Mr. Skinner if his mother was in, and being told that she was assisting in helping Alfred Skinner to remove, Kane at once started for Albert Skinner's house, situated at the southern end of Church-street, near the bay. At this time Mrs. Skinner and Mrs. Kane were in the house alone. As Kane entered the house Mrs. Skinner was going out. She heard Kane say to Mrs. Kane that "he had something for her." Mrs. Skinner heard a struggle and ran out upon the sidewalk and meeting her husband told him she was afraid that Kane was committing a murder. Skinner rushed into the house, and seeing his mother struggling and also seeing a knife in his step-father's hand knocked him down with a blow of the fist. Mrs. Skinner also rushed into the house by the kitchen door and Mrs. Kane seized her by the arm, but in a few seconds she fell to the floor dead.

Whilst being held down to the floor Kane was told by Skinner that he had killed his wife. The murderer answered that if she was not dead it was not his fault, as he intended to finish her. Kane also told Skinner that he would murder him if he could get the chance. Skinner asked Kane if he was drunk, or if liquor had made him do the deed. He answered that he was not; that he knew what he was doing. His appearance justified his remarks, for although he had been drinking lightly he was in no way intoxicated. Before being removed to the station Kane was informed of the death of his wife, and answered that he was proud of the job which he had committed. He also stated that he would have killed his step-son Alfred had he had an opportunity. Whilst being conveyed to the police station the murderer told the sergeant that he was proud of the act which he had performed and that he had done it through her boys. When searched at the station, all that was found in his possession was a razor and a cotton pocket handkerchief.

The instrument used for the commission of the foul crime was a large butcher knife. It is a dangerous-looking weapon, having a blade about 14 inches in length and ground down to a very fine point. When picked up from the floor it was covered with blood. It had been used in the kitchen of the hotel for carving purposes. With blade and handle it was about 16 inches in length, and was a formidable looking instrument.

James Kane is 52 years of age, having been born in Dublin, Ireland. Whilst in the Old Country he served in the regular army and had seen active serve. No children have been born to them, but Mrs. Kane had a large family by her first husband. He is about 5 feet 6 inches in height, of medium build, partly bald, with grey mustache and short beard. Last fall he was the victim of a serious runaway accident, and it is said that since he recovered he has acted in a morose manner.

UNCLE WAS "PA"

And He Married Another Woman While His Wife Was Still Living

WINDSOR, March 24.—Alexander Cooke moved from some western state and settled in Lambton county about 16 months ago. He was accompanied by a family of nine children, whom he represented belonged to his deceased brother. Soon after coming to Canada he married a Miss Brooke, the eldest boy of the imported family witnessing the marriage ceremony. After living together for a year or more Mrs. Cooke discovered something which led her to believe the children, who had all been carefully trained to call Cooke "uncle," were not nephews and nieces but sons and daughters. She asked some of the older children if her suppositions were not correct and was informed they were and that their mother was still living and undivorced. Mrs. Cooke then left her husband and went to Detroit with her brother-in-law, A. E Jamieson. Cooke skipped back to the United States. The old cat boy who had witnessed the ceremony was arrested as a conspirator, but since his arrest friends of all interested parties have been doing considerable corresponding with the result that all met in Windsor yesterday and settled the affair, Mrs. Cooke the second to receive $400 per annum as long as she remains single.

NEWFOUNDLAND AGAIN.

BRITISH MERCHANTS INTERVIEW THE GOVERNMENT.

The Leader of the Government in the House of Commons Says Arbitration Or War Are Only Alternatives For A Settlement of Existing Disputes.

LONDON, March 24.—A deputation of merchants engaged in trade with Newfoundland visited William Henry Smith, the Government leader in the House of Commons, today. Mr. Smith in addressing them repudiated any desire on the part of the Government to coerce the people of Newfoundland. The British Government, he said, was bound by treaties, and when the other party held views so strongly as France did there was no alternative for arbitration but war. If the Newfoundlanders thought the terms of arbitration were injurious to their interests the Government was prepared to hear their views in the matter. But it must be remembered the conditions of the arbitration were imparted to the colony before they were agreed to by the Imperial Government, which, being responsible for the peace of the empire, must be responsible for the conditions under which it endeavored to procure the settlement of an extremely difficult subject. In regard to objections, omissions and admissions of the treaty a basis of arbitration must be agreed upon between the parties. The French contention could not be ignored. We must ascertain whether their view is right or wrong. One gentleman had objected to limitation of the arbitration. He himself desired it should be extended to include all points of difference, but the Government had every hope that as the arbitration proceeded a decision might be arrived at regarding the most important points of difference. When once the rights of the respective parties were ascertained it might be possible to enter into negotiations to settle difficulties which had existed more than a century. The Government contemplated the probability of arriving at a decision as to other rights which he admitted had been painful subjects to Newfoundlanders and had undoubtedly much impeded the developing of the resources of the colony. Referring to the necessity for the modus vivendi in view of the approach of the fishing season he said a most inflammatory document had been circulated on the west coast of Newfoundland and was likely to seriously imperil the peace. This showed the urgency of the case and the danger to which the colony was exposed to by resistance to an arrangement directed solely to securing the interests of Newfoundlanders. It was perfectly true that it re-enacted old powers, but simply with a view to securing peace and averting terrible consequences which would result from a breach thereof. The Imperial Government was compelled, much against its will, to ensure the performance of the treaty obligations by the local legislature. The Government did not desire to interfere in internal concerns of the colony, but while the treaty remained unrevised it must be respected by all the Queen's subjects wherever they might be. It had been a source of great sorrow that repeated requests to the Newfoundland Government had failed of their object. Successive governments in England had done their best to mitigate the undeniable grievance harassing all existing conditions in Newfoundland. He could only hope that good councils would prevail and that the colony would take steps to obviate the necessity of action on the part of the Imperial Government.

Crofters on Lewis Island Take Possession of Their Old Holdings.

EDINBURGH, March 24.—Despatches from Stornoway state that last night a band of 100 crofters of Lewis Island marched from one point of the island to the other, crossing on their march 3 lochs, arriving this morning at Orissay Park Forest, from which they had been evicted in order to make room for a deer preserve. The crofters upon their arrival at the forest entrenched themselves in the ruins which represented their former homes, the buildings having been torn down by the proprietor of the land. They have formed a camp and announce they intend to cultivate the land formerly held by them, and that they are prepared to resist by force any attempt to oust them.

FRENCH SUICIDES.

Average 23 a Day—Various Modes of Exit to the Whenceless Whither.

PARIS, March 24.—Some statistics just issued by the French Ministry of Justice reveal the astounding fact that during last year there were no fewer than 8451 cases of suicide in France, being at the rate of about 23 per day. The largest number occurred among persons in easy circumstances, and not among the poor, the former supplying half the total, and the latter between 1200 and 1300. Domestic troubles, physical suffering and insanity seem to have driven most of the people who form the subject of these statistics to put an end to their lives. Unrequited love was the cause in about 200 cases. In regard to the means of self-destruction employed, 3600 hanged themselves, 2243 died by drowning, about 1000 blew out their brains, while 442 had recourse to charcoal. Strange to say, the month of May yields the largest number of suicides. In January there were 604; February, 487; March, 715; April, 830; May, 934; June, 851; July, 825; August, 796; September, 673; October, 603; November, 587; December, 574.

A French Nobleman Shot.

VIENNA, March 24.—The Marquis Lebrun de Sesseral, a French nobleman possessing an estate at Boksey, near Szegedin in Hungary, was driving from the railway station to his chateau, with his bailiff, a man named Gabinot, and the wife of the latter, when a volley of shots were fired at the carriage from behind a wall. The Marquis de Sesseral was severely wounded in the side and back, and M. Gabinot and his wife also sustained serious injuries. It is believed that motives of private vengeance are at the bottom of this murderous outrage, and the perpetrators are suspected to be hired bravos.

In Jail for Street Preaching.

LONDON, March 23.—A curious incident in Ireland is the committal to Wexford Jail of two Protestant clergymen, the Rev. Mr. Hallowes and the Rev. Mr. Harrison, on the charge of preaching in the street. This preaching has been obnoxious to the Catholics of Arklow, who constitute nearly all the population and at whom the sermons seemed to be aimed. The police and soldiers have been called on to protect the ministers and riots have occurred. They were summoned for obstructing the road and sentenced to pay a fine of £1, but preferred to go to jail for 14 days instead. They went to prison singing "Hallelujah."

Died in Prison.

KINGSTON, March 24.—Patrick Haley, who was sent down to the penitentiary for three years for stabbing Miss Ellis in Garafraxa last summer, died here and his body was taken home to Fergus. He was sentenced on Oct. 19, 1889, and so has served half of his sentence. It is understood his death was due to some trouble in his head. The incidents of the affair—the assault, the chase, Haley's attempt at suicide—will still be fresh in the public mind.

What It Costs.

Must be cheerfully confessed by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Facts are Stubborn Things

So is Bad Blood. The difference between them is that a fact is here to stay. Bad Blood can only stay until Burdock Blood Bitters is used, then it must go. It takes facts to prove this to your satisfaction, and we give them to you every time we catch your eye. Here is one of them. Don't throw the paper down, but read this letter from Mr. Fred. FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

ONE OF THE GALLANT 90TH BATT.

DEAR SIRS,—Having felt out of order for some time, and having no energy or appetite, blotches on legs, tumor on neck—arising from impure blood, doctors doing me no good, I was induced to buy some B.B.B. I was very much against patent medicines at the time, having tried so many, but after using two bottles I began to get better, and at the fourth bottle was completely well and around again. I believe in B.B.B. now, I tell you. I send you a photo of myself and little daughter, Lilly. B.B.B. cured her of nasty blisters which came out on her lips. Yours thankfully,

It is a certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its Stages.

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.

Many so-called diseases are simply symptoms of Catarrh, such as Headache, Watering of the Eyes, Ringing Sounds in the Ears, Deafness, Hawking and Spitting, Coughing, Sneezing, Offensive Breath, Indigestion, Dizziness, General Feeling of Debility, etc. If you are troubled with any of these or a kindred symptom, you may have Catarrh, and should not delay in procuring a bottle of NASAL BALM. Its warmest friends are those who have been cured of Catarrh, and who know how dangerous it is to neglect it. Thousands are cured every year who have been given up by physicians as incurable, and who have been carried to the grave by consumption and death. SPORTS AND PASTIMES.

The Annual Meeting of the "Triple A."

The Association to be Maintained—The Lacrosse Club Meets—Promising Prospects for Sport this Season.

As spring advances greater activity is manifested in sporting circles, organization meetings are held, plans discussed, and the opening of the season eagerly looked forward to. Last night the annual meeting of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association was held at the Olympic Club rooms. There was a good attendance. The future prospects of the Association were discussed, and it was decided to continue as before, and make a determined effort to wipe out the indebtedness which hampers the work of the Directors. Mr. R. B. Rogers, president, occupied the chair.

The following report was read by the secretary, Mr. W. D. Parker:

SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT.

In submitting the sixth annual report of the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association for the season of 1890, the Directors feel that in the main it passed satisfactorily in the various branches of sport connected with it.

Cricket quite held its own compared with the record of previous years showing 10 wins and only 3 defeats. A decidedly encouraging feature in this department of sport is the increasing interest taken in it by the junior element and the form shown by them in all round play.

Baseball showed to better advantage in 1890 than probably ever before in the history of Association. The games played were of a pre eminently pleasant nature and resulted 9 won to 4 lost. It is also worthy of note that the nines contended against were of superior metal to those of former years.

The bicycle club had an averagg good season though the year with them was not a very eventful one. Their fortnightly games were fairly well attended by the public, though we believe that it could be improved upon if an increased effort were made to make the games prominent and a somewhat more varied programme offered.

In the departments of football, lawn tennis and snow shoeing there was so little done that no detailed comment is necessary.

For each of these different branches of sport there are great opportunities for development if only the members of the Association will use them, and this we sincerely hope will be the case during the coming season.

It was deemed advisable by the Association last year to admit lacrosse to the usual privileges accorded to its different branches of sport, and considering the short time it has been with us there is no reason for complaint at the result. The coming season it is expected will see a great impetus given to the lacrosse department in membership and other ways, and there is ground for belief that a district altogether better suited to the needs of Peterborough than that at present in existence will be formed, into which our organization can enter.

The Directors unwillingly call your attention to the low state into which our finances have fallen and the absolute necessity of doing something to retrieve them. If every member of the Association resolutely puts his shoulder to the wheel in true sportsmanlike manner, there is no doubt but all our present debt will speedily be wiped out, and a tremendous stimulus consequently given to the Association.

THE FINANCES.

Treasurer Geo. A. Schofield read the financial statement showing the receipts and expenditures during the past year and the amount of liabilities standing against the Association, which had been reduced during the year.

Both reports were adopted.

AN ENTERTAINMENT.

In discussing ways and means to raise funds it was decided to hold an entertainment about the middle of April, and the following committee was appointed to make the necessary arrangements:—Messrs. Rogers, Dr. Benham, Parker, Gower, Schofield, Dr. Bennett, Bell, Macaay and Allison.

DIRECTORS ELECTED.

The directors of the association, football and lawn tennis clubs of last year were re-elected, viz., Messrs. Parker, Schofield and Gower. The cricket and lacrosse directors were previously elected, leaving the baseball and bicycle clubs to still appoint their representatives.

Dr. Halliday was re-elected Honorary President.

The meeting then adjourned.

Lacrosse.

Previous to the meeting of the P.A.A.A. the Peterborough Lacrosse Club held its annual meeting, President W. A. Sanderson in the chair. There was a good turn out of the boys, and the prospects are that lacrosse will boom this season as it has not for a number of years past. The new blood developed last season will, it is confidently expected, carry the club into prominence this year. Besides the local players, important acquisitions are looked for among the Edison Works employees, who will arrive here in May. It is possible the club will again affiliate with the P.A.A.A. and use their grounds. This and other questions are in the officers' hands. The following officers were elected:

HON. PRESIDENT—H. LeBrun.
PRESIDENT—W. A. Sanderson.
VICE-PRESIDENT—W. Rudkins.
SECRETARY—Walter Phelan.
CAPTAIN—Jos. Begley.
COMMITTEE—J. Daly, J. McCabe, W. E. Loch.
FIELD CAPTAIN—W. Rudkins.
DIRECTORS—W. A. Sanderson and W. E. Loch.
DELEGATE TO C. L. A. CONVENTION—C. J. Phelan.

For the cure of colds, coughs, and all derangements of the respiratory organs, no other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It relieves the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease, and has saved innumerable lives.

A Serious Battle.

The political battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged also the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we see men with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of these ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that along follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all these distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken-down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents a box), by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EXECUTED THE GOVERNOR.

Prompt Justice Meted Out to an Inhuman Madagascar Governor.

PARIS, March 24.—Prompt vengeance has fallen upon Ramisantra, Governor of Selanona, Madagascar, who recently massacred 278 persons, including men, women and children belonging to the leading families. Despatches just received state that Ramisantra with his brother, who is supposed to have instigated the massacre, have been executed on the spot where the wholesale killing took place under the Governor's directions.

THIS TIME AT HAMILTON.

Boy, Revolver, Didn't Know 'Twas Loaded, Other Boy Dying.

HAMILTON, March 24.—Henry Burrows, aged 12, who lives with his parents at 109 Robert-street, was shot this evening with a revolver in the hands of a boy companion named Catlin. Young Catlin playfully pointed the loaded revolver at Burrows, when the weapon was discharged and the bullet entered Burrows' neck below the chin. The injured lad was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and after considerable probing the bullet was extracted. The doctors have but slight hopes for the recovery of Burrows.

DESERVES THE ROPE.

A Demented Woman Brutally Outraged by a Clinton Man.

William Dempsey of Clinton was tried and committed to Goderich jail for committing rape on the wife of Sam Barr, a respectable farmer of the 16th con. Goderich township, 1½ miles from Clinton. The woman has been crazy for a number of years, and the indignation there is very strong against the prisoner. Barr, it is said, caught the man in the act, and besides giving him a good thrashing held him at the point of a revolver all night long until he was able to secure assistance from the neighbors, who at once sent for Constable Wheall of Clinton and had Dempsey arrested.

Distress in Digby

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. Disappeared from Rockwood.

Last fall Mr. Jesse Johnston, of Rockwood, suffered very much from boils. He says: "I got a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and the effect was wonderful, the boils at once began to disappear, and I was soon totally cured." B. B. B. is a natural foe to impure blood. 2w11d

WHY COUGH,

WHEN a few doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will relieve you? Try it. Keep it in the house. You are liable to have a cough at any time, and no other remedy is so effective as this world-renowned preparation. No household, with young children, should be without it. Scores of lives are saved every year by its timely use

Amanda B. Jenner, Northampton, Mass., writes: "Common gratitude impels me to acknowledge the great benefits I have derived for my children from the use of Ayer's most excellent Cherry Pectoral. I had lost two dear children from croup and consumption, and had the greatest fear of losing my only remaining daughter and son, as they were delicate. Happily, I find that by giving them Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, on the first symptoms of throat or lung trouble, they are relieved from danger, and are becoming robust, healthy children."

"In the winter of 1885 I took a bad cold which, in spite of every known remedy, grew worse, so that the family physician considered me incurable, supposing me to be in consumption. As a last resort I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and, in a short time, the cure was complete. Since then I have never been without this medicine. I am fifty years of age, weigh over 160 pounds, and attribute my good health to the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral."—G. W. Youker, Salem, N. J.

"Last winter I contracted a severe cold, which by repeated exposure, became quite obstinate. I was much troubled with hoarseness and bronchial irritation. After trying various medicines, without relief, I at last purchased a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. On taking this medicine, my cough ceased almost immediately, and I have been well ever since."—Rev. Thos. B. Russell, Secretary Holston Conference and P. E. of the Greenville District, M. E. C., Jonesboro, Tenn.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

A New World Platform Thronged With Representatives of Diverse Races—A Characteristic Collection of Passengers—Indian Pottery Ware.

One of the famous eating-houses of the Atchison road is situated at Wallace, where the train going south stops late in the afternoon. As the cars draw up at the station the long platform is thronged with the people of the country, of diverse races. Rough miners in flannel and heavy boots stand watching the train, cow-boys set off by sombreros and spur- swagger about the platform, and Spanish-Americans with swarthy faces and gleaming black eyes lounge against the railings, looking impassively on the scene. Most picturesque of all there gathered are the descendants of the tribes akin to the Toltecs and Aztecs, those migrating peoples whose first home was in the Northwest, before they went South to colonize the valleys of the Mexican plateau. The Pueblo Indians from Santo Domingo and San Filipe. They are quaintly clad in their characteristic garb of leggings and tunic, with a blanket dress for the women, and sometimes for the men a gaudy blanket wrapped about the body. Some are awaiting the train on the station platform, and others, belated, are seen running toward the cars, bearing on their heads and backs the things they have to trade. They exhibit a great variety of pottery, in the shape of vessels of divers sizes, form, and patterns of decoration, and many earthen idols of infinite ugliness. They offer for sale pieces of what the New-Mexican curiosity dealers call smoky topaz, which in reality is obsidian or volcanic glass, the material used by the ancient Aztecs for cutting purposes, from swords down to razors.

About the train is a characteristic collection of passengers. There are tourists, European and American commercial travellers, young men from the East going to the South-west to try their fortunes, and perhaps in the rear cars some families of emigrants. Representing the Territory are merchants, miners, and cattle-men of American and Spanish-American descent, while opposite the Hindu Eastern lady, in her dainty travelling habit, may sit a dark-eyed olive-tinted beauty with the blood of Aragon or Castile in her veins, and perhaps a darker and not unbecoming tinge from Indian ancestry. Travelling theatrical companies, army officers and private soldiers on leave or on duty, and Indian delegations going on or returning from a visit to the "Great Father" at Washington, are current types in a Southwest passenger train. Almost without exception the passengers are affable and disposed to conversation. Stiffness and reserve among fellow-passengers be strange or it will vanish west of the hundredth meridian.

There is an excellent dinner, plentiful and well served, at the pleasant and roomy railroad restaurant, with so much time allowed for the stay that the traveller, after his simple and leisurely meal, is able to walk about this barbarously brilliant scene and make bargains with the brown and worldly-wise sons and daughters of the country for such of their wares as he fancies. The Pueblo Indians hasten toward any one whose eye they catch, hold up their goods, and address him in a language mainly aboriginal, with portions of low Spanish and American words intermingled; but the only part of the discourse really understood on either side is the extemporized sign language. They ask several prices, expecting to be beaten down to a fair rate, and they seldom will let the possible customer get away without consummating a trade. Demure, swarthy Pueblo children look on the transactions of their elders with great interest, the larger girls helping their mothers by carrying the very young children in a couch made by slinging a shawl about their backs.

The Indian pottery is the ware most purchased by the passengers. It is quaint of pattern, and in its way, much of it is really beautiful. The material of which it is made is a white or gray-ish-tinted clay, which the men bring to the women, who are the pottery makers. The Indians guard jealously the secret of the places where are found the earth that makes the choicest kinds. The hunter, prospector, or railway explorer coming suddenly upon these natives engaged in digging clay for the purpose is likely to remember the terror and consternation which they exhibit as their run toward him, scaring him away. The moulded pottery is buried in dry sheep's dung, which is fired, and thus it is baked. The material used in making the striped designs is a decoction from a certain green root which the Indians call wake. It is painted upon the vessels, and in the baking it turns black. The best pottery is made by the Acoma, Zuni and Cochiti Indians.

A gong clanks at the station, and those passengers who have not already returned to the cars discontinue their promenade, or hastily conclude their bargains. The conductor's cry rings out, "All aboard!" and the laggards enter the cars, but even as the train moves slowly off the passengers are still making last bargains from the car platforms and through the windows with the aborigines, who, at the fast-approaching disappearance of their possible customers, are disposed at the last moment to close bargains at almost any price. The train gathers headway, the last Indian vender is passed, and soon the platform with its multifarious, party-colored assemblage is left behind, and the passengers have turned from the strange and striking scene to gaze at the panorama of the river and the Indian villages against a mountain background on the right, as the train speeds southward down the sandy valley of the Rio Grande toward Albuquerque.

DANGERS OF BALLOONING.

You May Travel All Right if You Keep Out of Air Holes.

H. Henuequin, of Paris, France, who has had some experience in aerial navigation arrived yesterday from San Francisco on his way home and during his stay in Chicago called on Mr. Pennington, of airship fame at the Grand Pacific Hotel. Mr. Henuequin was in Fontenay at the time Tissandier and Gower had their startling adventure in a balloon. The traveler is an intimate friend of Gower, and tells the story of their fall of a mile as the balloonist related it to him.

"They ascended from Tissandier's house in Paris, and floated off toward Vincennes, and as the wind was somewhat strong from the northeast the two men soon disappeared from the view of Paris, having risen to a height of about 1,500 feet. When they reached Fontenay, however, they were fully 6,000 feet above the earth. They were sailing along smoothly, watching the scenes below, when suddenly they seemed to fall into a hole in the atmosphere and down they went at a terrific rate. Gower glanced at the needle of the vertical scale. It was traveling with lightning speed. A roar filled their ears, and both men thought their time had come. Nothing had happened to the balloon. It was in perfect condition, but there seems to be no air to hold it up. Tissandier desperately threw out sand-bags. They were falling so rapidly that the bags were left far behind and disappeared above them. The earth seemed to be rushing at them with the speed of a comet. There seemed to be no atmosphere left, and they could scarcely breathe. As a last resort Tissandier threw over the anchor and the remaining ballast, and the big balloon after a rush of a mile through the air regained its poise and they were safe. The earth was but fifty feet below. This goes to show," continued Mr. Henequin, "that too much precaution cannot be observed in carrying pieces of ballast. There are in the air occasional attractions and when a balloon once gets into one of them it drops like a piece of lead. Gower and Tissandier sailed into a veritable pit in the air and had they cast out lots of ballast aboard they might have been dashed to pieces. If Penning's ill-fated airship ever falls into such a pit nothing in creation will prevent it from shooting down to the earth. The result may be imagined."—Chicago Tribune.

Death in March Winds.

Poets and novelists go into ecstacies over what they romantically call "beautiful spring," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, everyone is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is after all one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitutions, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not properly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly develops into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. When the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with a persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous dropping into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from Catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure-all—it is an honest remedy, which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price, (50 cents small, or $1 large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. Weather Probabilities.

Lower temperature and sudden change often give rise to coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, and lead through them to consumption. A little care and the use of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam will effectually cure any cough and give pleasant relief even in confirmed consumption. 2x11d

It Pays Best.

It pays best to keep a good medicine like Hagyard's Yellow Oil always on hand in case of accident or of emergency. It cures colds, croup, sore throat, rheumatism, wounds, bruises, burns, etc. Price, 25 cents per bottle. 2x11d

One Distinct Point.

One distinct point about Hagyard's Yellow Oil is that it is just as good for external as for internal use. It is a cleanly, prompt and pleasant cure for rheumatism, colds, croups, sore throat, wounds, bruises, sprains and chapped hands, etc. No household should be without it. 2x11d

The latter concluded his Lenten course on the Beatitudes, his remarks being chiefly a description of the Passion and Death of our Lord Jesus Christ. There was a large attendance of the members of St. Andrew's Brotherhood in their surplices, and they led the singing with their usual fervor and heartiness. Miss Davidson again sang the first solo in "The Story of the Cross." The second was given by Mr. James Browne. The remaining portions were as usual sung by the choir and congregation together. This evening the sermon will be preached by Rev. George Warren, of Lakefield, on Thursday the Rector will give an address, and on Good Friday evening the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. R. J. Moore, Rector of St. Church, Toronto. Rev. Mr. Kenrick goes to Toronto to-morrow to preach "The Three Hours' Service" on Good Friday at St. Margaret's.

The Children's Anniversary.

Annual Entertainment of the Pupils of the Charlotte St. Church Sunday School.

The Charlotte street Methodist Sunday School scored another big success last evening, the occasion being the children's annual entertainment. At 8 o'clock, after the school had come to order, the superintendent, Mr. O. C. Rowse, announced as the opening hymn, "Oh! We are the Reapers," which was heartily sung by the children of the school. Rev. S. J. Shorey occupied a position on the platform. Mr. Rowse addressed a few words of welcome to the parents and friends, and thanked them for their presence, which meant sympathy with the work and encouragement to the teachers and officers of the school. He spoke of the rapid progress the school had made during the past year, until now they were compelled to ask for a more commodious Sunday school room. The average attendance of the school was now about 275. The appended programme was carried out in an excellent manner, the little tots carrying off high honors.

Presbytery of Peterborough.

Regular Meeting in Port Hope—Minutes of the Clerk.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met in Port Hope March 17th. There were 12 ministers and 6 elders present.

Rev. John McEwen, of Lakefield, was chosen Moderator for six months.

The independence of Centreville and the union of Millbrook and Garden Hill was reaffirmed.

Elders as well as ministers are to be elected by rotation as delegates to the assembly.

An overture presented by Mr. Bennett praying the Assembly to appoint a committee to consider the question of the desirability of reducing the number of the statistical columns in the minutes and the number of copies of minutes printed, was ordered to be transmitted to the Assembly.

The Presbytery agreed to take the usual steps to obtain leave for Mr. McMillan, missionary at Havelock, to retire from the active work of the ministry.

Permission was granted to moderate in calls in Centreville, Millbrook, and St. Andrew's, Peterborough, as soon as the people shall be prepared for the step.

The usual reports were received from augmented congregations. Very gratifying reports were presented on the subjects of Sabbath Schools, State of Religion, Sabbath Observance, Temperance, Systematic Beneficence.

It was agreed to ask the Assembly to allow the Presbytery to take Mr. D. P. Oswald on trial for license.

The next meeting was appointed to be held in St. Andrew's, Peterborough, on the first Tuesday in July at 9.30 a.m.

Rev. Messrs. Ewing, Windell, Andrews, Bennett, Duncan, Sutherland; and Messrs. G. Morrison, D. Jamieson, Alex. Wood, W. M. Graham, W. E. Roxburgh and J. Craisk, were appointed delegates to the Assembly.

The Presbytery agreed to ask that Havelock be raised to the status of an augmented congregation.

THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE.

Meeting of the West Riding Institute at Lakefield.

A Good Gathering of Intelligent Farmers—Butter Boats—Culture of Small Fruits—Plant Food—Farmers Petitioners—A Highly Successful Meeting.

A well attended meeting of the West Riding Farmers' Institute was held at Lakefield on Wednesday.

Mr. DAWSON KENNEDY, president, occupied the chair. The Government deputation present were: Mr. J. I. Hobson, chairman of the Ontario Agricultural College Board; Mr. J. Craig, horticulturist, and Mr. F. J. Shutt, chemist of the Ottawa Experimental Farm.

Mr. KENNEDY, made a brief introductory address upon the objects of the Institute in general. He referred particularly to the cultivation of the sugar beet, pointing out that Ontario was much better adapted than any other country on the continent for the growth of the sugar beet, the beets having the highest per centage of sugar. He thought both the Ontario and Dominion Governments should assist in the establishment of sugar beet factories in the country. The cultivation of the beet would put farms into better shape for crops, clean the soil and increase its fertility. Besides, the profit of sugar beet culture was double the profit for any other crop. The Government would be asked to aid the enterprise of sugar beet manufacture. In the United States the Government gave a bonus of $2 00 per hundred upon every 100 lbs. of beet sugar made, and the state of Nebraska an additional one cent per lb. The farmers would get $4.25 per ton for beets delivered to the factory. Seeing the importance of the subject Mr. Kennedy appointed the following as a committee to draft resolutions to be submitted to the Governments on the subject: Messrs. H. C. Garbutt, G. W. Mann and Jos. Trennum, and the representatives of the EXAMINER and Review.

The PRESIDENT also invited membership to the Institute, pointing out that, besides the advantages derivable from the meetings, the members would receive, sent direct to their address, all the bulletins issued by the Ontario Agricultural College and the Ottawa Experimental Farm and all the reports of both governments bearing upon agriculture, all free of charge.

MILK PRODUCTION.

Mr. G. W. MANN, of Smith, spoke of milk production. He said one of the most important things in connection with milk production was education on the subject and the preparation of the herd, etc. He said that it was not well to have cows come into milking too early. Later cows gave their best flow of milk when cheese was at the highest price. Cows at calving should have the strictest care—warm mashes, etc., and, if tied up, should have a drink of water before being allowed access to a full supply of water. His practice was to milk his stock till the new year, then the butter made was kept in a cool place (frozen) till the market was the highest. He had found that he had the best results from cows that did not "come in" too early. Cows should be kept well and treated kindly. His cows had supplied the largest amount of milk per cow in the district to a cheese factory. He had been trained to the business of milk production. He father established the first cheese factory in 1865. His output the first year was $700 and the second year $1,200. He fed his cows as to keep them in fairly good flesh. Kind care and treatment were of almost as much importance as feed.

Mr. HOBSON, of the Advisory Board of the Guelph Agricultural College, said that there was in his experience no "second flow of milk," as specialists in dairying claimed, except that derived from an additional supply of succulent and milk producing food.

Mr. C. QUINN did not favor the milking of cows the year round. It exhausted the cow and tended to be prejudicial to the calf, and involved more constant and laborious care.

Mr. JOS TRENNUM said his plan had been to milk as long as the milk was good, and had found that the best milk-producing food in winter before the cow "came in" was bran and chopped wheat straw. Now he fed bran and the corn (ensilage) twice per day. He fed hay besides, in fact, he fed liberally four or more times per day. He thought it more profitable to keep the cow in work producing milk. The cow would wear out sooner, but he turned her into beef, and replaced her with a better milker from the sale of the former. He would not keep a cow that would not milk ten months in the year. He preferred buying calves and heifers to raising them. He found it profitable to feed pigs on the surplus milk products. Winter milking cows paid best, but the farmer could not have so much "fun." His experience with the silo was very satisfactory. His silo held 136 tons, and the cost of that silo filled with corn raised from rented land was 75 cents per ton. Ensilage could not be fed by itself, it was best to combine it with good clover, hay and straw. He raised a few roots to feed in the fall before the silo was opened.

THE AFTERNOON SESSION.

There was a large attendance at the afternoon session.

The committee to draft resolutions asking Government aid for beet root sugar factories, reported, submitting the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:—

Moved by JOSEPH TRENNUM, seconded by G. W. MANN,—Whereas the growth of the sugar beet would be of advantage to agriculture in Ontario, and as a beet root sugar factory would provide a market for beets, besides being a benefit in other ways, resolved, that this the West Riding of Peterborough Farmers' Institute, asks the Government of Ontario to encourage and aid the establishment of such an industry.

Moved by H. C. GARBUTT, seconded by JOS TRENNUM,—That, as the establishment of beet root sugar factories would be of great benefit to those engaged in agriculture and be an important addition to the industries of the country, this Farmers' Institute ask the Dominion Government to assist the promoters in establishing such an industry.

Mr. GARBUTT and the PRESIDENT added that seed would be furnished to all farmers who would undertake the bona fide cultivation of the sugar beet. The seed would be sent in one-pound packages, accompanied with instructions for its growth.

Mr. JOHN STOTHART moved, seconded by Mr. H. C. GARBUTT.—That the secretary of the Institute be instructed to send to Mr. R. H. Lauder for forty pounds of sugar beet seed to be distributed to members of the Institute.

The motion was carried.

CULTIVATION OF SMALL FRUITS.

Mr. J. CRAIG, Horticulturalist of the Ottawa Experimental Farm, Ottawa, spoke on the subject of growing small fruits, which applied to the products of shrubs and vines—strawberry, raspberry, blackberry, currant, gooseberry and grapes. These had a wide range of growth in Canada. In planting small fruits we needed a warm, sheltered and well-drained soil. As to strawberries, spring was the best season of the year for planting—in rows 3½ feet apart and 15 inches apart in the row. One of the principal points was to plant the right varieties alongside for fertilizing—plant two rows of female to one row of male. These could be got thus classified from nurseries. Thus we should have perfect fertilization and the largest yield. Keep down runners the first year till August. After that train the runners in the line of the rows. When winter sets in—as soon as frost comes—cover between rows and well up to the plants, thus preventing thawing and freezing; in the spring draw the straw between the rows. The best general purpose varieties were the Crescent, the Captain Jack, the Bubach and the Wilson.

There were two general classes of raspberries, the red and the black. Plant the red four feet apart in rows, the rows 6 feet apart; remove canes as fast as they have borne fruit. The best red varieties, Hansel, Marlborough and the Cuthbert—from early to late. The best black caps are the Hilborn and Gregg in succession. These two varieties were the most profitable of small fruits.

All blackberries are of native origin. They need damp, very rich soil. The best varieties were from early to late, are the Snider Agawam and Stone's Hardy.

Currants needed rich soil and careful pruning; propagate by slip the best varieties are the red and white Dutch. The native varieties of Gooseberry are the Downing the the Houghton and Smith's Improved, and the best to plant.

The grape needs a warm situation well drained, the roots should be planted deep. Manure with unleached wood ashes. In pruning give the fruit the most of light and heat possible. Always cover with soil, in winter the crown deeply and the cane less so. The best black varieties are Moore's Early Worden and Cottage, and of the red the Lindley and Delaware. The average yield of strawberries is 4000 quarts per acre, black berries 5000, raspberries 2000 and currants from 1500 to 2000 per acre.

RANCHING IN PETERBOROUGH.

Mr. HILLIARD dealt with the subject of ranching in the north part of this county. There were large tracts of land here that could be bought for a dollar an acre, land exceedingly well adapted to cattle ranching. These tracts were in Harvey and Chandos, and some farmers in this county had good farms here for this purpose with good results. There was abundance of beaver hay and abundance of the best spring water. Mr. Hilliard closed his address by advising farmers to form syndicates and purchase tracts for ranching purposes to be used in common, and the cattle kept there in summer. This would largely relieve the home farmers.

Mr. KENNEDY, in commending on this address, said that farmers needed better means of summering their stock—more pasturage. This question brought up the matter of butter manufacturing, which was one worthy of greater development, and success in butter making meant the adoption of better and uniform methods of manufacture, such as had made the manufacture of cheese such a success.

Mr. F. J. SHUTT, chemist of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, professed his paper with a few remarks upon the culture of sugar beets. The experiments have failed where they have failed through bad culture and the use of bad seed. The best seed—thoroughbred seed—should be used, that specially adapted for sugar producing. There was needed great care in the culture of the beet, which required a special course and style of tilth. Referring to ensilage, the speaker said the key to the whole matter of saving it was as complete exclusion of air as possible from the silo, and the best fodder value was secured from allowing corn before cutting to ripen as much as possible. Speaking to the subject of his address, Plant Food and Manure, Mr. Shutt said that plants took a large quantity of carbonic acid gas from the air, which was what animals breathed out. Plants breathed out oxygen, and animals breathed it in. The other constituents of plants were mineral substances and water. The mineral constituent of the plant comes from the soil alone, and the food for plants must be in a soluble form, soluble in water. Soil was that portion of the earth's crust that would grow plants. Referring to manure, he defined it as anything that restored plant food to the soil—potash and phosphoric acid were, therefore, the chief elements in good manure, not to forget nitrogen. Peas and swamp muck were chiefly rich in nitrogen; marl was valuable because it furnished lime. Barnyard manure was a complete manure, containing all the elements of plant growth in a soluble form. Farmers were advised not to allow manure to be washed out with rains. Sprinkling gypsum on stable floors took up the ammonia and preserved it. Sugar beet soil should invariably be manured in the fall.

GENERAL FARMING TOPICS.

Mr. J. I. HOBSON, of the Agricultural College, Guelph, gave a brief, practical address. His several years' experience in judging prize farms had led him, he said, to the belief that there was no matter in which there was greater carelessness in management than of manure. He instanced several ways of how not to make manure—to have a fifty-acre barnyard—to mix too much rainwater with it. His experience taught him that outside was the best place to make manure, from the fact that it was impossible or impracticable to give covered manure the requisite amount of moisture. Keep it outside in heaps as compact and as little exposed to the weather as possible. He had noticed in England and Scotland that the best farmers made their manure outside. He agreed with Mr. Shutt as to the value of liquid manure. In Grey county the best farmers drew and kept on sheds large quantities of dry swamp muck and used it as an absorbent for the liquid manure of the stable. He favoured the use of absorbents in some shape rather than tanks. As to the application of manure, he favoured surface manuring, having in view the proper conditions as to season and selection of field, slope, etc. He drew out his manure after harvest, when the soil was fine and hauling was easy, spread it and ploughed it lightly under—about two inches deep. This allowed weed seed in the manure to germinate and be thus destroyed. As to artificial manures, they should be used with care, unless they had the approval of the analysis of the Guelph and Ottawa Experimental Farms, who were doing farmers good services in this respect. The barnyard manure was the surest. He had found great benefit from salt sown—about 200 or 300 lbs. per acre—sowed with the grain, and on the soil for turnips, before drilling. For roots it should be mixed with gypsum.

Mr. C. QUINN had found great benefit from sowing ashes and land plaster together.

After discussion on general topics, and reference by the chairman to prize farm competitions, the meeting adjourned.

Young's Point.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LUMBERING.—Mr. C. Young has been busy during the last few weeks, making preparations for re-opening the saw mill and shingle mill. Besides having a number of men engaged all winter taking out timber at the head of Sidney Lake, he has secured all the logs on the banks from here to Bobcaygeon, which the farmers have out during the winter. The men began work to-day in the mill, and they have sufficient stock to keep them busy all season.

TELEPHONE.—The Bell Telephone Company are about to extend their line as far as Burleigh Falls Hotel and poles are being placed on the ground for that purpose. This will be a great convenience to campers, as also to Mr. Holmes.

It is also reported that Mr. Stuart and Mr. McFarlane of this place are about to have instruments placed in their respective places of business.

Drowned in a Ditch.

A Five Year Old Boy Meets Sudden Death—Carried a Block With the Current.

A few minutes before three o'clock this afternoon a five-year-old son of Mrs. Jacob Roberts, who lives on Union street, was drowned in the deep ditch which runs along the west side of Aylmer street. Master Roberts and Chrissy Bradburn were playing near the ditch at the corner of London street, when the former fell into the stream, which, swollen by the recent floods, had grown to the proportion of a creek. The strong, swift current carried the boy away, and before he could be rescued the body had reached McDonel street. Chrissy Bradburn gave the alarm instantly and soon a crowd gathered. The body was taken into Mr. Armstrong's residence. Dr. Scott was promptly on hand, and assisted by others, tried every means to resuscitate the poor little fellow, but without avail; life was extinct. There were two ugly bruises on the boy's head, where he had struck against obstructions in his passage down the channel.

Master Roberts is the son of a poor, hard-working woman, who, in the absence of her husband, supports her children by doing washing. She is compelled to leave the children, of which she has several, to shift largely for themselves. The boy drowned was the youngest. Mrs. Roberts was working in Ashburnham to-day when the sad news was conveyed to her, and she hurried home to find her little darling dead and the other children crying with grief. The mother will have the deep sympathy of the community extended to her in the sudden blow which has befallen her.

Those who assisted in the unsuccessful attempt to restore life say that the child's death was evidently due more to cold than to drowning.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes

Scratched 28 Years

A Badly Itching Skin Disease Which Endless Suffering Caused by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me all that I can of an immense amount of suffering. My disease (psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and finally settled on my hands. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors call was incurable. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All cost of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and told me you would have cured me for $500 you would have had the money. I inclose herewith the picture (No. 2 page 47) in your book, 'How to Cure Skin Diseases,' and now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched for twenty-eight years, and it cost me but a trifle to get entirely cured. I thank you a thousand times for my future welfare to me. I thank you a thousand times.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

A Dull Day in the House—A Number of Deputations Heard.

TORONTO, March 25.—Yesterday was a dull day in the Ontario Legislature.

Mr. Sol. White moved for copies of all orders in council with reference to the withdrawal from sale of mining lands since Jan. 1, 1890, and of all returns or recommendations upon which such orders in council were passed. Also, a statement in detail showing the persons by whom applications for grants of mining lands have been made since the first of January, 1889, with the lots or tracts in respect of which such applications were made, and the disposal made of such application. Also, a list of every lot or tract of mining land which has been sold or disposed of since the first day of January, 1890, with the names of the person or persons to whom, and the prices at which the same were disposed of, and of the amounts, if any, remaining unpaid on account of such purchases, with the names of the persons by whom the same are owing. In doing so Mr. White pointed out that, though Michigan and Ontario were similarly situated as regards minerals, the yield of the state was twelve times greater than that of the province. There must be some reason for this stagnation in Ontario and it should be remedied. The report suggests that the Government should aid in the construction of a railway to Whitefish Lake, where there are very rich deposits of ore. He was amused to read in the report a dissertation by one of the commissioners (Mr. Charlton) upon trade relations with the United States, which was more fitted to the Dominion House.

Mr. Hardy said the order in council withdrawing the land from sale could be brought down, but a statement containing all the applications since January, 1889, would be a very serious matter and would involve bringing down hundreds and perhaps thousands of names of applicants all over the country. In many cases there were perhaps dozens of applicants for the same tract. It would be useless to bring down such a mass of information unless some explicit reason was assigned. The request would occupy men for some time with the books, but the books could not be spared because they were in daily use. He therefore suggested that the motion should stand, and in the meantime Mr. White could make it more specific. The suggestion was accepted.

Mr. Wood (Hastings) rose to move his resolution respecting the payment of officials by fees, but at the request of the Government let it stand until next Wednesday, when the discussion will take place.

Mr. Waters occupied the House for some time with his bills to amend the Municipal Act, both of which were read a second time and referred to the Municipal Committee. The first bill abolishes statute labor and fixes a sum not exceeding $1 a day in commutation. The second bill reduces the qualification for voting in townships, towns and villages to $100 and in cities to $300. It also prohibits the diversion of money, levied for a sinking fund, to paying the current expenditure and provides for an infringement of the law that those who voted for such diversion shall be personally liable and be disqualified from holding any municipal office for 5 years.

Notices of Motions.

Mr. Stratton, bill to amend the Public Parks Act.

Mr. Monk, bill to amend the Municipal Act, also) enquiry, Is it the intention of the Government to take steps for the purpose of extending the benefits of the Torrens system of land transfer to other counties of Ontario on the same terms as the system was introduced into the city of Toronto and county of York?

Mr. Tooley, resolution, that in the opinion of this House it is advisable and would be in the interest of the province, that supplies that may be required for the public institutions of the province should be supplied by public competition in lieu of the course at present carried out.

Mr. Ross brought in a bill respecting colleges in affiliation with Toronto University. It extends until 1893 the power of Victoria University to confer degrees because Victoria's new building in Toronto is not yet ready. It also provides that the senate and regents of Victoria may meet outside of Cobourg.

A deputation consisting of Messrs. J. Sharp, M.L.A., A. F. Cockburn, Gravenhurst; D. F. Burk, Burk's Falls, and 30 others waited upon the Government yesterday to ask a bonus of $10,000 to build a tramway from Burk's Falls station on the G.T.R. to the head of navigation on the Magnettawan River, a distance of about one mile.

A deputation representing the municipality of Shuniah will appear before the Private Bills Committee to-day in support of the bill to ratify tax sales of land. They contend that titles to property obtained by sales for taxes are so easily upset upon technical points that purchasers are kept in uncertainty for years, and that as a consequence desirable improvements are held back. Shuniah adjoins Port Arthur and is rich in numerals. Considerable tracts of land are held by residents of other parts of the province for speculative purposes, but in some cases they refuse to pay the taxes and when the land is sold for default it practically has to lie unimproved for years pending the title being made good by the usual statutory limitation. By this time the purchaser often becomes disgusted and the land goes through a second condemnation for taxes. The law as it is they contend, enables mere mineral land speculators to refuse to pay their taxes for three years, then if it is sold and any discovery should make the property of value they can resort to informalities such as "insufficient advertising," "improper notice of sale" and the like for a verdict of the courts upsetting the title. The municipality therefore asks the Legislature to pass an act ratifying tax titles at the end of a certain specified period after the sale. The bill in question places one year after the sale as the limit in which proceedings can be taken to upset a tax title. After that date a tax title would hold. What the advocates of the bill desire is to have titles quieted and made good in the shortest possible way, after the manner of Mr. Crooks' bill of some years ago, one of the most useful pieces of legislation since Confederation.

It contains valuable articles on the best methods of tree-growing and actual results obtained by three of the most experienced tree-planters in Ontario; extracts from Dr. Mayr's report to the German Government on the condition of the North American forests, translated especially for this report; complete statistics gathered from New York and Michigan States and Ontario concerning the effects obtained from windbreak protection; instructive correspondence from all parts of Ontario respecting the forestry experience of different sections; articles contributed by Professor Fernow, Washington, on Forestry, and by Dr Bryce, Toronto, on Forests in Relation to National Health.

Local Option Defeated.

His Aim Was Defective.

WINDSOR, March 25.—After a quarrel with hired man John Cullen, William Quigley, a farmer living in Mersea township, grabbed a loaded shotgun and pointing it at Cullen who was only 10 feet distant, pulled the trigger. Cullen dropped on his knees and the entire charge passed over his head, boring a big hole in the ground. Quigley was arrested and sent to Sandwich jail.

Died of a Rare Disease.

PHILADELPHIA, March 25.—Mary Smith of No. 1632 Columbia-avenue died at the Pennsylvania Hospital of a rare disease known to specialists as anthrax. She was a wool sorter in a factory and a bad taint from the wool passed into her system from a small sore on one of her arms.

NEWS OF THE OLD WORLD

THE CROFTERS ON LEWIS ISLAND PROMISE TROUBLE.

Sensational Reports Concerning the Renewal of the Dynamite Warfare in London—Labor Troubles Feared in Spain—The Queen's Arrival at Cannes.

EDINBURGH, March 25.—The 100 rebellious Lewis Island crofters who have entrenched themselves in the Orinsay Park Forest, from which they were evicted by the owner of the land in order to enable him to convert the forest into a hunting reserve, were to-day engaged in rebuilding their demolished homes and strengthening their entrenchments. Several of the party have been out hunting, and the crofters are feasting upon an abundance of game, fat deer forming the principal part of the bill of fare. Orinsay Park Forest is a fine, densely-wooded tract covering about 95 square miles. Previous to the eviction of the crofters the land was covered with numerous well-cultivated farms. A large force of police is already en route to the forest with instructions to drive the crofters out of their entrenched camp at any and all costs. If the crofters resist, as they have announced they will, there is a possibility of bloody work within a day or so. The sympathy of the people in general is with the crofters.

The Utopia Commander Censured.

GIBRALTAR, March 25.—A diver reports that the damage to the Utopia is slighter than was at first supposed. The Anson's ram ripped the steamer's plates from amidships aft for about 20 feet. The Utopia lies on the Anson's anchor. Twenty-five more bodies were recovered to-day and were buried at sea. The diver says he believes there are still many bodies in the wreck. The Marine Court, which enquired into the Utopia disaster, decided to-day that Captain McKeague, commander of the Utopia, was guilty of grave errors of judgment.

In the Police Court later in the day Capt. McKeague was discharged from custody, the magistrate deciding that the charges of "wrongful acts, improper conduct, negligence and mismanagement could not be pressed in view of the verdict of the coroner" jury and the finding of the Marine Court.

The Queen at Grasse.

GRASSE, March 25.—Queen Victoria has arrived here. She was met at the depot by the mayor and prefect, who presented her with a basket of flowers. The town was decorated with flags. The band of the 112th Regiment played the British National Anthem. The tracks along the route to the hotel were crowded with people, who saluted the Queen enthusiastically. The royal visitor appeared to be in excellent health. She repeatedly bowed her acknowledgments to the people.

Clan-Na-Gael Agents in London.

LONDON, March 25.—There has recently been considerable activity among the Irish secret societies in consequence of the split in the ranks of the Nationalists. The matter has been engaging the serious attention of the Government, as it is known American agents of the Clan-Na-Gael and other American Fenians are at present in London. A close watch is being kept at all ports and it is possible that the near future may develop sensational plots akin to those of the dynamite period.

The Franco-Russian Alliance.

PARIS, March 25.—The Russian Ambassador will to-morrow formally present President Carnot with the grand cordon of the order of St. Andrew, Russian decorations which the Czar, by a recently signed decree, conferred upon the President of the French Republic. This ceremony, according to impressions prevailing in Berlin, is supposed to point to the actual conclusion of a treaty of alliance between France and Russia.

The Light Hour Movement in Spain.

MADRID, March 25.—The Workmen's Congress now in session here has approved of the proposition to declare a general strike throughout Spain should such a step be found necessary to secure the adoption of the eight hour system.

Murdered by Polish Nihilists.

BERLIN, March 25.—A Russian police agent has been found murdered in Dobra, Posen. All the agent's papers were stolen but his valuables were left untouched. It is presumed the assassins are Polish Nihilists whom the agent had been charged to watch.

Foreign Briefs.

The Queen has sent a handsome diamond pin to Manager Hare as a mark of the pleasure with which she witnessed the recent performance of "A Pair of Spectacles" at Windsor Castle.

Replying to a question on the subject in the House of Commons yesterday Mr. William Henry Smith, First Lord of the Treasury, said that he was unable to state definitely what would be the personnel of the labor commission owing to delays in receiving replies from the gentlemen nominated to sit on the commission. He was also unable to state in detail the subjects that would be referred to the commission for investigation.

The Niagara Falls Suicide.

NIAGARA FALLS, March 25.—The man who committed suicide on March 17 by leaping over the falls from Prospect Point is now known to be John L. Hafik of Chicago, who left that city on his way to Bohemia, where he was to take charge of his father's estate. He was a brother of St. J. Hafik, clerk of the police court of the second district of Chicago. His identity has been established by a letter to his brother, containing a money order for £75 and check for his baggage. His despondency is thought to have been the result of parting from friends in Chicago for a long journey. The body has not been recovered.

Taps from the Telegraph.

Isaac Bonnell was killed by an accident at the Sole Mine, Amherst, yesterday.

The car-ferry on the Lexington was wrecked near Sidney, Neb., yesterday. Engineer Roberts was killed.

Two trains collided at Rock Castle, Va., yesterday on the Chesapeake & Ohio, causing the death of Fireman Malone.

Despatches from Kansas say the worst snow storm of the season is raging in that state. The country is covered with snow 5 to 15 inches deep and all trains are blocked, several being snowed in.

In a railway collision near Milwaukee yesterday Engineer Grobben and Engineer Burke were fatally injured. Currency to the amount of $50,000 in the safe of the American Express Company was reduced to ashes. Not a pound of express or mail matter was saved.

G.T.R. Conductor Hurt.

STRATFORD, March 25.—David Culliton, a spare conductor on the G.T.R., was caught by a car in the Stratford yard and crushed against the platform in a terrible manner. Several of his ribs are broken and protrude into his lung and his collar bone is broken. These with internal injuries leave little hope for his recovery.

Big Catch of Seals.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., March 24.—The sealing steamer Neptune arrived here last night with a catch of 32,000 seals. She reports that 10 other vessels have secured 150,000 seals.

Fire at Durham.

DURHAM, March 26.—To-night about 10 o'clock the drygoods store belonging to Mr. Thomas Brown was destroyed by fire together with the stock. The stock was valued at $3000 and the building at $1000; insurance on stock $2000; on building $400.

United After 11 Years.

LETHBRIDGE, March 25.—A very affecting scene took place in the Lethbridge House last Tuesday morning. The wife of one of our miners, an Italian named Rossetti, arrived from the south on Monday night's train, having come direct from Italy. While taking breakfast next morning her husband came to the hotel, and on making enquiries of the manager found to his supreme delight that the lady in question was his wife. Mr. Rooke informed the lady that her husband was in the office, when she instantly left the dining-room, rushed out into the office and swooned away in her husband's arms. The happy pair, reunited after an 11 years' separation, then repaired together to the dining room for breakfast, where they presumed a meal described as the acme of happiness.

THE TIPPERARY TRIALS.

JOHN MORLEY TESTIFIES TO POLICE BRUTALITY.

He Says He Saw Policemen Unmercifully Club Two of the Prisoners Without Any Justification—Secretary Balfour on the Condition of Ireland.

CORK, March 24.—In this city to-day was begun the trial of Michael O'Brien, Dalton and other persons charged with having engaged in rioting on the occasion of the trial at Tipperary of William O'Brien, John Dillon and others on the charge of conspiracy, and for which offence the two gentlemen named were convicted and are now serving their sentences. Besides the charge of rioting the accused are charged with having assaulted Colonel Cadell, who commanded the police at Tipperary during the trial. It is believed that the transfer yesterday from Galway Jail of Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon is connected with this case, as both will be called on to give evidence, the rioting having occurred previous to their departure from Ireland during the course of the conspiracy trials.

John Morley, who was present at the time of the trouble, has been summoned to testify.

In presenting the case for the Crown Mr. Carson argued that the riot was a preconceived one and that it was political in its nature. He also asserted that Mr. Morley was present on the occasion for party purposes.

To-day at the trial here of Michael O'Brien, Dalton and others, charged with riotous conduct and assault at the time of the trial at Tipperary of William O'Brien and John Dillon, John Morley deposed that the police upon the day of the alleged riot, without justification, charged upon and batoned the people. Mr. Morley said he saw the police strike Messrs. Harrison and Keating several murderous blows.

Mr. Morley declared there was no violence to provoke the police and that judging from the English standard the crowd was harmless.

Decline of the Boycott—Flogging for Mutilation of Cattle.

LONDON, March 25.—Chief Secretary Balfour was interviewed to-day relative to the situation in Ireland. He said that the past few months had witnessed a marked improvement in the cessation of boycotting and most other forms of outrage, and that the Government was perfectly willing to have its record compared with that of the Gladstonian administration. The county of Kerry, for instance, had been one of the centres of outrage. In 1887 there had been 273 persons boycotted in Kerry, but only five cases of the kind had been known to the police this year. Murder and murderous assaults were also less frequent. Unfortunately certain crimes more difficult to detect and of a very dastardly character, such as the malicious burning and mutilation of animals, were still frequent, but vigorous efforts were being made to bring the perpetrators to justice. Lord Chief Justice O'Brien had suggested the penalty of flogging for such crimes, but the Chief Secretary was not prepared to say whether he would indorse such a suggestion.

Mr. Balfour spoke approvingly of the efficiency shown by the Irish Constabulary in preventing the two factions of the Irish party from doing each other serious violence, and added that the police would continue to do their full duty without respect of persons or partisan feeling.

While Alexander Blane, Parnellite member of Parliament for South Armagh, and a number of other Parnellites were going to Dunamore to-day to attend a meeting there of Parnell's supporters they were mobbed by a crowd of Nationalists, who compelled the Parnellites to return to Cookstown, followed by a storm of hooting and jeering.

EMIGRATION SEASON OPENED.

A Large Body of Well-to-Do Farmers to Leave England.

LONDON, March 24.—The Allan liner Parisian, which sails from Liverpool on Thursday, opens the emigration season. The Parisian carries the finest body of emigrants for Alberta, Assiniboia and Manitoba that ever left this country, including well-to-do farmers from the best agricultural districts of England and Scotland. The general emigration prospects for the season, however, are not very bright. Experts say that Canada is feeling, and will for some time feel, the effects of her recent laxity in promoting immigration, due to the agitation of the laboring classes in Canada. The reports of the British tenant farmers' delegates who visited Canada last year are being widely circulated, and are directing much attention to Canada's wonderful resources. Unfortunately this interest comes too late to greatly affect this season's emigration.

The British treasury is expected to accede to the proposal of the Commons Colonization Committee, that £150,000 sterling be loaned to the Province of British Columbia at a low rate of interest for the settlement of 1200 Scotch crofters in the San Juan district on Vancouver Island.

UNDOUBTEDLY THE MAN.

The Pittsburg Murderer a Former Resident of Brockville.

BROCKVILLE, March 25.—The despatch sent to the Pittsburg police to the effect that the man Budd arrested there for the murder of Detective Gilkinson could not be Frederick C. Fitzsimmons, of this town, as the latter was at his home here, was evidently bogus. There is no question but that Budd is Fitzsimmons, as the papers found in a satchel in his possession indicated.

Fitzsimmons is the fifth son of the late Robert Fitzsimmons, one of Brockville's pioneers and whose name is revered for his many virtues. He is about 34 or 35 years of age and was widely known both here and throughout the counties. Though well educated, agreeable in manner and a general favorite with his acquaintances, he, early in life, evinced traits which gave his relatives much sorrow. Some 16 or 18 years ago he left Brockville for the west, and after holding a clerkship in Toronto for a time disappeared completely. From that hour very little was heard from him by his former associates here.

Some weeks ago, a former Brockvillian who is now employed in a drygoods store in New York or Brooklyn met him in the latter city and informed him of his father's death, which had occurred several months before. About two weeks ago he suddenly returned home, incited to do so, as is supposed, by news of his father's death. He announced to friends and relatives that he was engaged in the jewelry business in one of the western states, claimed to have done well and in support of his statement made presents of considerable value in the shape of gold watches, etc. By the provisions of his father's will he secured $3000 in cash, and real estate worth nearly if not quite that amount and early last week left town. Nothing further was heard of him until the report came of his arrest for murder.

AN OCEAN TRAGEDY.

A VESSEL'S CREW ADRIFT IN A FLOATING COFFIN.

For Three Months the Crew of the Bark Humboldt of Calderais Down With Scurvy Were Adrift at Sea—Several of the Sailors Dead, Others Dying.

LONDON, March 25.—The steamer Don has landed at Plymouth the crew of the German bark Humboldt, who when rescued had suffered terrible hardships and were in a dying condition. The Humboldt sailed from Alcata, Mexico, on the Gulf of California, in September last, bound for Falmouth. On the voyage the crew were stricken with scurvy and became so weak they were almost insensible. Their teeth loosened and their skins became swollen and livid. When spoken by the Don the Humboldt was dismasted and sinking and all her boats had been smashed. Two of her crew were already dead. The survivors were so exhausted that they had to be hoisted aboard the Don. They had been ill for three months.

A SHOCKING AFFAIR.

A Man Dies From Shock on Seeing His Companion Torn to Pieces.

NEW WESTMINSTER, March 25.—A shocking story has reached New Westminster from Popum. An Indian named Pierre, employed as sawyer at Knight Bros.' mill, while working at his post fell against the circular saw. In an instant he was cut up in a horrible manner; one leg was severed close to the trunk; the intestines were torn out, and the body was otherwise terribly mutilated. Death was instantaneous. Another Indian, named Jim, a strong, healthy fellow, saw the accident and its results, and fell down deathly sick at the sight, and remained almost unconscious until early the next morning, when he died.

Air Swelled His Body Like a Balloon.

NEW YORK, March 25.—There is a queer medical case at Gouverneur Hospital. It is that of a man who at noon yesterday weighed about 130 pounds and for a person of his size was much emaciated. At 4 o'clock last night he was so puffed up that he looked as if he weighed twice as much. It took the hospital surgeons over an hour to convince his daughters that the man was really their father. Air is the cause of this transformation. The victim of this inflation is Paul Shonebein, a German laborer. While at work yesterday on a pile of timber some of the boards fell upon him, breaking his ribs. One of the broken ribs penetrated his lungs letting the air out and into the tissues under the skin. This caused a general puffing out of the skin all over his body from head to heels, until he was totally unrecognizable.

As to Shonebein's chances for recovery, the doctors say if he does not have congestion of the lungs he will recover and gradually grow smaller until he gets down to his natural size. They consider the case a most interesting one.

LACROSSE AT HAMILTON.

The Times Finds that the C.L.A. Will Scarcely Locate There This Year.

HAMILTON, March 25.—Mr. F. C. Mills, who has taken as active an interest in lacrosse as any man in Hamilton and who has done much to keep it going during the past two seasons, was seen by a Times reporter this morning. He expressed the opinion that Hamilton would not be able to put a team in the Canadian Lacrosse Association this year. "We will have two teams anyway, probably three, the Hamilton Lacrosse Club, the Y.M.C.A. Club and one to be started in the West End," he said, "but none will be strong enough for the C.L.A. Several of our best players would be barred from playing in an association club on the ground of professionalism. Some of them have run foot races for insignificant money prizes, but having done so would be considered professionals, under the strict interpretation of the word. I wrote to the secretary of the C.L.A. on this subject some time ago, but have received no reply yet. By next year we will probably be in a position to put a strong team in the C.L.A., but this year we will, I think, have to be content with developing players."

The Barrie Club's Officers.

BARRIE, March 25.—The lacrosse club has organized with these officers: Hon. President, J. A. Strathy; hon. 1st vice-president, Mayor Pepler; hon. 2nd vice-president, Reeve Burton; president, D. Spry; 1st vice-president, E. W. King; 2nd vice-president, C. E. Hewson; 3rd vice-president, Fred Marr; secretary, W. B. Barkie; treasurer, James Muir; captain, William Moore; executive committee, W. B. Barkie, E. W. King, O. Patterson, H. Burns, R. Burton, E. Moore, E. Hunter. The president, D. Spry, and the secretary were appointed delegates to the association meeting in Toronto next month.

Where Pianos Are Not Dutiable.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Assistant Secretary Spaulding, in reply to a question from the Port Huron collector, has decided that a piano owned by a Canadian who intended to teach music in Michigan is not dutiable. As the owner had not previously taught music in Canada her piano could not be regarded as an instrument of her profession.

The Kingston Murder Trial.

KINGSTON, March 25.—At the Assizes to-day W. H. Bedore was found guilty of raping Trebina Baine of Bedford township. This was his second trial.

A true bill having been returned against the Indian, Peter Sharbot, for the murder of his child, he was arraigned. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded. A similar charge against his wife, Cecilia, was dropped.

High Prices for Whalebone.

NEW YORK, March 25.—There is a remarkable scarcity of whalebone in the market at present and in consequence the poorest qualities are being disposed of at prices heretofore hardly ever realized for the best that the hardy New Bedford men could procure. What little bone of first quality that is placed upon the market is sold at prices which will astonish persons not familiar with the trade. A well known Pearl-street firm disposed of several thousand pounds several days ago at $5.30 a pound and a similar figure has been realized by dealers in Europe.

Interim Grants Will Not Be Voted.

WINNIPEG, March 25.—Several amendments were offered in concurrence yesterday in the Legislature, but were defeated by a vote of 11 to 21. One of the amendments was to the effect that the proportion of school grant be paid the Catholic schools pending the decision on the constitutionality of the Public School Act now before the courts.

The First Catch of Sealskins.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 25.—The first shipment of sealskins of this year's catch was made yesterday. There were 510 skins and they were sent to San Francisco by steamer. Four more sealing vessels have left here for Behring Sea.

Death Revealed Their Sin.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 23.—R. S. Hatton, a man 40 years of age, and of high social and business standing, and a woman, whose name is given as Mrs. Russell of Kansas City, were found dead this morning in a room in Walnut-street. They were asphyxiated by escaping gas. They are said to have been lovers, but the woman married Russell after a lover's quarrel with Hatton.

Smallpox in Quebec.

MONTREAL, March 24.—Smallpox has broken out in Shefford county. Measures have been taken to prevent its spreading.

What it Costs.

Must be carefully considered by the great majority of people, in buying even necessities of life. Hood's Sarsaparilla commends itself with special force to the great middle classes because it combines positive economy with great medicinal power. It is the only medicine of which can truly be said, "100 doses One Dollar," and a bottle taken according to directions will average to last a month.

Scientific Temperance.

A Pamph'et on the subject of Scientific Temperance Instruction.

At the request of the Women's Christian Temperance Union we publish the following pamphlet, issued by the Ontario W.C.T.U., Mrs. G. D. Platt, superintendent :—

DEAR SISTER,—Are you anxious to secure to the children of Ontario thorough Temperance instruction in our public schools? If so, let us consider what is necessary to be done. We depend upon County Presidents to appoint County Superintendents of this department, where not already appointed, to carry out the following suggestions :

1st. Secure an interview with the public School Inspector of your city, county or riding, and endeavor to enlist his co-operation in our work. From him a list of the teachers and their addresses may be procured as a means to further operations.

2nd. Make it a point to call upon every teacher within reach, and in case of others, write them, calling their attention to the regulation requiring Temperance to be taught and earnestly requesting their compliance.

3rd. Do not forget to utilize, as far as possible, the Teachers' Institute held once a year, or oftener, in every inspectorate, and give fullest encouragement to those teachers who are faithfully striving to discharge their duties in this respect.

4th. Keep the subject of temperance instruction alive in your community by making it a frequent subject of conversation, and especially by communications to the local press. The following statement of the Minister of Education might be included :—"The same obligation rests upon the teacher to teach temperance and hygiene as any other subject on the programme."

5th. Ask the ministers of your district to aid you in such a way as they may think best, either in the pulpit or during their pastoral visitations.

Will you kindly make an effort to ascertain the opinion of inspectors and teachers in reference to the authorized text-books, and be prepared to report in September.

Now let us work for the advancement of this department during the present year. As mothers, we have a right to insist upon the teaching of temperance, according to regulation. Don't let it be neglected without, at least, a protest from the temperance women.

Hoping that our next report may show great progress,

I am faithfully yours,
MRS. G. D. PLATT,
Provincial Sup't.

Picton, February, 1891.

Mount Pleasant.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

One of our citizens, interested in the Cavan Swamp drain has received the following letter which will be of interest to those concerned :

DEAR SIR,—I made a visit to the village of Millbrook on the 2nd of March with a view to ascertaining from the Township Council of Cavan, then in session, some detailed information regarding the proposed ditch, to be constructed through one of the Cavan swamps. Having for more than eight years made a special study of agricultural drainage and having taken a special interest in this branch of engineering in the interest of the agriculturist, I am desirous of laying before you a few facts in connection with the said proposed ditch. At the outset I might say that I disapprove of an open ditch of any kind where a closed drain can be constructed, for the following reasons.

The strip of land occupied by the open ditch is lost for agricultural purposes, in that it cannot be tilled. The open ditch becomes the receptacle of the cream of the soil in that the water in its course to the ditch carries the nutritious substance of the soil into the open ditch.

Then again the elements of resistance to the water's course are very many in an open ditch, such as grass, weeds, sticks and the tramping of cattle, which gradually destroy the slopes and bed of the drain. Upon examination of the profile of the proposed ditch in the Township of Cavan I discovered that the proposed open ditch is not laid out with sufficient depth to serve as an outlet for the lateral drains which may be directed into it.

I also learned that a complete survey of levels had not been made with a view to laying out a complete system of drains, by which the swamp could eventually be thoroughly drained at a very moderate cost.

It is utterly useless to lay out a trunk drain without regarding the lateral systems which it will be subsequently called upon to serve.

I observed on the profile of the said proposed ditch that the average fall is about 7⅝/100 of an inch in 100 feet, and that the width at the bottom of the open ditch is 4 feet. It is considered impracticable to have a ditch any wider than 2 feet at the bottom.

I also apprehend in the report of the engineer that the work in question proposed to be constructed affects not only the municipality of Cavan, but also the municipality of North Monaghan, consequently under Section 598 of the Municipal Act, the said municipalities have no power to pass said bylaw No. 364, as they propose doing on the 13th of March next, but that the county council in which such municipalities are situate hold jurisdiction in the matter and they may pass the necessary bylaws.

A case similar to the above was tried in court, in the case of the municipality of the township of Nissouri vs. the township of Dorchester, in which Judge Gait decided as recited above, and which was subsequently confirmed.

I observe also that the method of assessment is indiscriminately made upon the lands at a rate per acre only, without any discrimination in the location of the land with respect to the proposed drain, or the position of the land with respect to the outlet of the drain.

The percentage of fall, and percentages of absorption in consequence of the nature and porosity of the soil of the various portions of land reported to be benefitted, have not been considered in making the assessment.

I also learned from the township officials that immediately beyond the proposed outlet there is a very much increased fall in the natural course of the creek bed, and in consequence of this there is no reason why the proposed ditch should not be continued further, until a deeper ditch can be obtained and a better rate of fall secured. The present proposed scheme will carry off some of the surface water only, without giving a material benefit to the land for which the farming community are assessed. It will doubtless prove a great benefit to the municipality in that it will enable them to open up the road allowances.

Yours truly,
L. M. BOWMAN,
County Engineer, Victoria County.

A VERDICT OF MURDER.

The Metcalfe Farmers' Fight Investigated at Strathroy.

STRATHROY, March 26.—The coroner's jury at the inquest on the body of William O. Howe of Metcalfe, who was killed in a scuffle with Robert Murray on the 9th concession of Caradoc Saturday last, this evening returned a verdict to the effect that Murray did "wilfully, maliciously and with malice aforethought" kill the deceased. From the evidence it appeared that when Murray drove up to where the deceased was standing the latter said if prisoner would get out of the wagon he would soon fix him, and he also called Mrs. Murray a liar and said that she wasn't a decent woman. Murray then got out of the wagon and commenced disputing. Howe struck at prisoner with a club, after which Murray possessed himself of a club and beat Howe over the head.

NEW FAST STEAMSHIPS.

An Important Change in the Company—Announced Fast Passenger Service.

MONTREAL, March 26.—Mr. H. Montagu Allan and Mr. J. S. Allan of the Allan steamship line have arrived in England on business connected with a new steamship project. It is proposed to form a new company, of which the Naval Construction and Armament Company of Barrow-in-Furness, presided over by the Marquis of Hartington, and the Allan Line Company will be the chief promoters. The intention is to have the new company take over the existing Allan line steamers and run them principally as freight steamers. The new line will be under control of the Allans, and will be neutral as between the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific Railways. The new company is working to secure the Government subsidy. Three or four fast steamers will be built similar to those running to New York, and it is expected that the traffic to and from Chicago and the Northwest will be thus directed towards Montreal, the natural route. Montreal will be the summer port and either Halifax or St. John the winter port. The steamers will be built by the Naval Construction and Armament Company.

Mighty Words of Truth.

A Persian poet has said : "There is not a single dispensation of Providence, which if properly viewed, will not afford an excellent lesson. Never repine at the good fortune of others, for many there are who wish to be raised to your station."

You may not possess fame, wealth, position or honor in the world, but Providence may have bestowed upon you health, happiness and contentment, which the wealthy and those of high station often look for in vain. People of high position, wealth and fame, generally have themselves to blame for any lack of health and contentment. In the hurry and worry after gold, fame and honor, their health is neglected, and ailments and troubles brought on which shorten life. They are victims of nervousness, insomnia, irritability, headache, morbidness, bad circulation and dyspepsia in its worst forms. For them there is no royal pathway to health ; they must take the same simple remedy which their less favored fellows use—Paine's Celery Compound. It is a universal and infallible remedy, and will benefit all who use it. Reader, if you are one of the wealthy, and noted in your community, and long for health, joy and happiness, Paine's Celery Compound will give it. This remarkable preparation is as necessary for your troubles as is the rain for the dry and parched fields of the farmer.

Distress in Digby.

DEAR SIRS—I was troubled by costiveness and sick headache, and in fact felt very miserable until I tried B. B. B. I used seven bottles with Burdock Pills also, and they made me as well as ever I was. A Good Practice.

If the children suffer from pimples, irritated skin, headache, etc, Burdock Blood Bitters is by far the best remedy. Mr. McConnell, 28 Henderson Avenue, Toronto, says, "Since I have made a practice of using B.B.B. my children have got strong and well." 2w11d

The Safest

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, M. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.

CHANGE IN BUSINESS.

I beg to announce to my late customers that I have sold out my business to Messrs. Hilliard & Peplow, and I would bespeak for them the same support as has been accorded me.

C. N. BROWN.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Flavelle's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credit and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

Goods delivered to any part of the town or Ashburnham.

LEO XIII.'S SUCCESSOR.

WHO WILL NEXT SIT IN THE CHAIR OF ST. PETER?

Can an American be Pope?—The Cardinals Who are Next in Line of Succession—The Strange Ceremonies that Follow the Demise of the Supreme Pontiff—How the Voting is Done at the Vatican.

SINCE the almost violent withdrawal of Bismarck from the stage of European politics, nothing has occurred to give such a shock of genuine surprise to those who are closely observing the current of affairs in Europe as the downfall of the Italian premier Signor Crispi. By far the strongest leader of a generation, his retirement proceeds from causes similar in a large degree to those that contributed more immediately to the deposition of the German premier, persistent self-assertion and over-confidence in his own ability to force through measures to which the state, and a very large majority of the Italian people, were alike opposed. He has been the most picturesque figure in Italian politics in half a century, and his premiership has afforded a remarkable contrast to the conservatism which characterized that of Depretis, his immediate predecessor.

But while the Italian people, and especially the politicians, are still discussing the cabinet troubles in a way that shows their uncertainty as to the outcome, and while King Humbert is yet apparently undecided about taking the risk of a temporary ministry, under the Marquis de Rudini, or awaiting a fitting opportunity to recall the disgraced premier, there is one element in Italian affairs that is profoundly glad of the downfall of the old-time Sicilian revolutionist. The Vatican bears no love to the ex-premier, whose hand of steel has more than once been raised against it in sullen menace, and who aimed, with the assistance of the anti-clericals, to control the approaching papal conclave, with the ultimate view of influencing the choice of a successor to the present pontiff who would be acceptable to the alliance.

These matters, together with the unsettled health of the aged pontiff, have again brought the question of the papal succession into prominence. There is now a mere possibility of a break in the long line of Italians who have been chosen for the high office, although, as Vatican politics crystallize slowly, it is yet too early to venture a prediction in that respect. Among the cardinal candidates who are likely to be prominently before the conclave when it assembles are seven who are considered to be ambitious of occupying the chair of St. Peter—viz., Parocchi, Battaglini, San Felice, Agostino, Vannutelli, La Valletta, and Dusmet. The first is the vicar of Rome and president of the sacred college, a vigorous Genoese, still under 70, with a strong nature veiled by a mild paternal manner. He was formerly archbishop of Bologna and is to-day virtually the ruling spirit of the church. He is a man of the rarest erudition and the broadest and most liberal views, although in matters affecting the church he is full of bile. His most powerful rival is perhaps Cardinal La Valletta, the dean of the sacred college, who is Parocchi's senior by some four or five years, and who traces noble blood in his veins. His candidacy would be peculiarly acceptable to French influence, since he is by descent a Gaul. Moreover he is quite the equal of Parocchi in matters of church law and government and stands very high as an authority. Simonda is a Turinian of venerable aspect. He has had the most intimate relations with the royal house of any of the cardinals, and this, together with the fact that he is not so vigorous a theologian as some of the others, may set him aside. Agostino is a moderate and one of the oldest members of the sacred college, being nearly 70 years of age. Dusmet is still older, and Battaglini is 70. The latter, like Agostino, is a man of conciliatory nature and would, on that account, be probably acceptable to the monarchy. San Felice is also very old and somewhat frail in health, but he is greatly beloved in Naples, and indeed throughout Italy. The foreign element in the college is represented by Gibbons, of America, Zigliara, of Corsica, and the venerable Lavigerie, the leader in the great African anti-slavery crusade. Of the last named three, however, little is to be predicted, for, except in an extreme emergency, there is hardly a chance for other than an Italian pope being chosen. The retirement of Signor Crispi makes this probability the more remote.

When the present pontiff dies, this is the strange and unique ceremonial that will be observed, and which has been heretofore observed in all papal elections. The moment death is announced, the chamberlain or "camerlengo" of the Vatican will enter the room in which the body lies, bearing in his hand a small mallet. Advancing, he will reverently raise the instrument and tap thrice upon the forehead of the dead pope, calling him by name at every stroke, but by his official title, but by the Christian name and surname. He will then wrench from the finger of the dead the signet ring of St. Peter, known as the "Ring of the Fisher," from the fact that it has graven upon it the figure of the apostle drawing from the sea a net full of fishes.

When the sacred college assembles, the second week after the pontiff's death—the funeral having taken place meanwhile—steps are taken for the election of a successor. The gathering is called a conclave, and is one of the most solemn offices associated with the history of the Vatican. It is held in an apartment that is shut off from all possibility of communication with the outer world, and to secure the absolute privacy of which the most extraordinary precautions are taken. Doors and windows are bricked up, a single entrance being left for the use of the cardinals. In the interval between the death and the funeral, ample opportunity has been afforded the cardinals living in Rome, as well as those from a distance, to meet their friends, and during these days there is apt to be a good deal of political maneuvering; but after the tenth day, each cardinal retires to his own little apartment—which is more like a cell than anything else—and thereafter he sees no one but his confreres, until the election is over. On the day of the conclave all are summoned from their cells by a bell thrice rung, and repair to the assembly chamber. From this moment until the result of the voting is announced they have no communication save with the Vatican officials, who act more like turnkeys than servants. Their clothing and even their food is searched, lest they should contain correspondence from friends outside. If, by the greatest exercise of leniency, a visitor is admitted, he must speak to the immured cardinal through a grating of iron, and in a tone loud enough to be heard by the watchers. After a night of this imprisonment, the conclave is formally assembled early next forenoon, and all repair to the Sistine chapel, where a desk has been provided for each cardinal. In the middle of the hall are six tables, and behind these an altar. Immediately in front of the altar is a table on which are two silver bowls for holding the ballots. Before proceeding further, a search is made in the chapel to assure the conclave of the fact that none but those entitled to vote are present. Three inspectors of the election are then chosen by ballot. Should any cardinal be so ill that he is unable to leave his dormitory, a committee is appointed to visit him and take his vote, which is brought to the conclave sealed and deposited in one of the silver bowls.

Weather Probabilities.

FRUIT GROWERS GATHER

Launching the Local Association.

A Most Successful Initial Meeting—Practical proof of Interest in Fruit Growing—Addresses by Successful Growers—Local Men Join the Discussion.

A Short time ago a local Fruit Growers Association was formed, largely through the exertions of Mr. E. B. Edwards, and on Wednesday an initial public meeting was held which was attended by a large number of our local fruit growers. A deputation was present from the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, consisting of Mr. L. Woolverton, secretary-treasurer of the Association and editor of the Canadian Horticulturist; Mr. A. McD. Allan, Goderich, director for division No. 10, Goderich; and Mr. Thomas Beall, director of district No. 5, Lindsay. There was a fair attendance at the morning session, which was largely increased at the afternoon meeting.

Mr. Geo. Hilliard, president, occupied the chair.

The secretary, Mr. E. B. EDWARDS, began the proceedings by reading a paper from Mr. Wade, of Brighton, upon storing, sorting and shipping apples. The best varieties for the English market were — Early: Duchess, when shipped in small boxes and properly packed, and Alexandrias, when similarly treated. Later autumn varieties: Ribston Pippin, Wealthy and Snow, when clean, the latter when otherwise should never be shipped to the English market. The early winter varieties are the Rhode Island Greenings, the King, Twenty-ounce Pippin. Late winter varieties: Northern Spy, Golden Russett, English Russett, Ben Davis, Baldwin, Phœnix, Mann Seeks and Talman Sweets. As to sorting, packing and shipping, detailed instructions were given to secure the conditions of safety from bruising and frost, careful grading should be made, and grades carefully labelled, so that the brands may be sold on their merit. Careful packing will get the shipper the confidence of the buyer. Shipping by cars needs care—place a layer of straw on the bottom covered by slats, on which rest barrels on sides; place barrels a distance from side of cars with straw packed between. One of the most important points of packing apples, was to place them tightly in the barrel so their can be no shifting. Always ship as soon a car load has accumulated. Mr. Wade considered that Canadian apples were far superior to any apples grown on this continent and command the best prices in the English market. To establish a good market in England some of the best should be sent. Can and evaporate the second quality and feed culls to pigs and other stock.

GENERAL ORCHARD TOPICS.

Mr. ALLEN, of Goderich, dwelt upon the importance of better cultivation of the orchard, and keeping the trees in a healthy state of growth. Wood ashes should be liberally applied to apple and fruit trees. Leached ashes thrown up into the branches of the trees would lodge in crevices of moss and bark and leach down with rain and clean the tree, while the soil would get the full benefit or what fell.

Mr. STEPHEN PAYNE had found great benefit from manuring trees with wood ashes and mulching with straw manure. His crops had improved largely under this process.

Mr. ALLEN and Mr. WOLVERTON said that both soft and hard wood ashes were valuable, and no matter what kind of ashes they were, they were worth 25 cents per bushel (unbleached) for the apple orchard. Ashes were much cheaper than commercial fertilizers for these purposes.

Mr. ALEX. ROBERTON, Springville, had succeeded well with the Greening and Northern Spy. The Wealthy was promising. His Greenings bore good, clean fruit every year.

Mr. ALLAN emphasized the importance of putting trees far enough apart to let the sun at the soil. From thirty to forty feet apart, according to habit of tree—the King or Greening wide apart and the Spy and St. Lawrence closer.

Mr. WM. COLLINS had found the Northern Spy and Ribstone Pippin, and for an autumn apple, he had found the Summer Queen very profitable.

Mr. FRED STENSON, North Monaghan, said the Ben Davis was a first class keeper, and he had found it profitable, because it came to market at a time when there were no other apples.

Mr. F. EDWARDS recommended the Arrachan, the Spy, the Russets and the Ontario—the latter a splendid apple—

Mr. ALLEN—That's the apple of the future.

Mr. FRED STENSON said there was not a better apple for this section than the Northern Spy. He found the Ben Davis a very thrifty bearer. He had got $3 00 per barrel for them on the market the middle of May. He also recommended the Yellow Bellflower. In pears, Flemish Beauty had not succeeded well with him, but the Clapps' Favorite was perhaps the best—less liable to blight—a good canning pear—will keep till Christmas.

Mr. G. M. ROGER said the Bellflower and Snow apple had succeeded well with him.

A discussion brought out that wood ashes were a most valuable fertilizer for orchards.

THE AFTERNOON SITTING.

At this session Mr. E. B Edwards occupied the chair till the arrival of Mr Hilliard, the president. There was a larger attendance than in the morning. The chairman opened the proceedings by reading a paper on the origin, etc., of the local branch of the Fruit Growers' Association. He pointed out that there were several hundred fruit growers in this district, and the object of the Association was to bring them together for interchange of ideas. The soil in this district was admirably adapted for fruit growing. In growing fruit trees a man acting individually was only experimenting in buying trees and vines. In this Association he had the benefit of the experience of all the other members. He also detailed other advantages to be derived from the Association. By association members will be able to dispose of their crops to better advantage, and keep well-informed as to prices, etc. He pointed out various means that could be adopted for dispersing of fruit crops. He believed that with proper care the Peterborough brand of apples would bring top market quotations. He also indicated the importance of a canning or evaporating factory to utilize fruit not suitable for first-class marketing.

Mr. J. W. GIBBS read a paper on black-knot in plums. In the beginning there appeared a green excrescence which eventually developed into black-knot. The disease came from an insect that burrows in the inner bark and the excrement from this mixing with the gum exuding from the wound caused the black knot. The remedy was to cut out the green excrescence and the black knot itself. The remedy is never complete till the evil is cut and burned.

In the general discussion that followed, Mr Gibbs showed that the Northern Spy which took from 12 to 13 years to come into bearing, would come into bearing in a year or two if top grafted on a bearing Talman Sweet, and Mr. Allen and Mr. Wolverton endorsed his suggestion.

THE COMMERCIAL ORCHARD.

Mr. ALLAN treated of the "Commercial Aspect of the Orchard." He instanced as a few leading points: First, see that the ground for an orchard is thoroughly underdrained. Not only the surface, but subsoil thoroughly cultivated. In planting make large holes enough to take in the roots of the tree without bending or distortion. Be sure not to plant trees too deep. In filling in, pack earth well around roots, and use water only when the weather is very dry. A medium sized nursery tree was better than a larger tree. The smaller the tree the better the root power, and the more satisfactory the growth. Mulching after planting was very important, and continuous and regular cultivation was necessary. Except when the orchard was young, it was not wise to crop much. The object is to prepare good healthy wood for the future bearing function of the tree. Pruning should be done from the very start. The larger the limb removed the more damage to the tree. A good general rule was to train outgrowing branches inward and downwards. The object is to make a top that will admit the sunlight generally to the top of the tree. For young trees green shoot trimming or pinching was the scientific plan. In the older stage prune regularly so that no large branches need to be sacrificed. The importance of cultivating the orchard after it came into bearing was insisted upon, as well as the necessity of periodically fertilizing the soil. Healthy strong wooded trees were the best adapted to resist disease. The best varieties to plant was a relative matter—the grower should see what thrives best in the neighborhood.

Subject to these conditions, Mr. Allen recommended the following apples in order of ripening: The Yellow Transparent, the Duchess of Oldenburgh, the Indian Rareripe, the Gravenstein, Colbert, Wealthy, King of Tompkins County (a very valuable apple for top-grafting on grown trees), Peewaukie (the best general purpose winter apple in the country), the Golden Russett, the Blenheim, (are apples a lively demand in the English market and does well in this district). In pears "Clapp's Favorite" was put at the head of the list. Pick before ripe. Then in order the Tyson, Flemish Beauty (subject to being adapted to the district), the Belle Lucrative, the Sheldon, Bosarre Hardy, the Howell, Bosarre D'Anjou, the Oswego Beurre, the Keeper and the Lawrence. In plums we have Moore's Arctic, the Lombard, the Imperial gage, the McLaughlin; the Yellow Egg rentets the black knot well; the Weaver, German Prune, Coe's Golden Drop (the best cooking plum grown). In cherries there should grow in this district the Early Richmond, the Ostrel and the English Morello. In grapes the suitable varieties suggested were, Lady, the Worden (a magnificent grower, good bearer), the Brighton, the Delaware, Concord, Niagara, Moore's Diamond, the Wilder. In the past mistakes have been made in planting too many varieties. Plant a few good approved varieties. In planting orchards, put spreading varieties by themselves, about forty feet apart, and high-growing varieties about thirty feet. Always strive to grow the best article. There was no danger of glutting the market, if we only grew the best—this means a large consumption. There was market enough in Ontario to take scores or four times the amount of fruit now grown. The value of an apple tree just coming into good bearing, making a low estimate, was $25. An acre of orchard is more valuable than any other acre of the farm.

In answer to questions, Mr. Allan said that the Bellflower and Mann were good apples, but not for shipping to Britain, and that pruning could be done now, but paint when large limbs are cut. The Magog Redstreak was undesirable.

ORCHARD DRAINING.

Mr. BEALL, of Lindsay, next addressed the meeting. He prefaced his address by pointing out that a means of saving an old and valuable apple tree, in which a large cavity existed, was to fill with Portland or other cement. He said that future success in growing an orchard depended on thorough underdraining—neglect meant failure. Place drains deep enough to be beyond the roots of the growing tree or crop. The rule for placing drains was to make the distance between them equal to the square of the depth, so that deep drains were no more expensive, and certainly less effective, than shallow drains.

PROFITS OF THE ORCHARD.

Mr. EDWARDS gave some particulars of the experience of the orchard of his father, which was carefully planted. The most successful apple was the Blenheim Orange; it keeps well, and bears well. Red Astrachan is a good summer apple. In winter apples the Canadian Red was very successful.

THE SECRETARY'S CONTRIBUTION.

Mr. WOLVERTON said he was perhaps too sanguine and enthusiastic in regard to fruit growing. He had gone into it extensively, having planted 100 acres to apples—perhaps the largest orchard in Ontario. He believed that in some cases, it would pay to grow apples to feed stock. He now believed in perfect culture—the best way—without other crops. He had found that in default of having barnyard manure, ashes would pay. In an acre of apples, an average crop, there were removed from the soil, 16 lbs. of potash, pears, 36 lbs., and grapes 50 lbs. to acre. Bone meal was good to add to the potash. About 100 lbs. of sulphate of ammonia to the acre would furnish the required nitrogen. Every 1000 lbs. of wood ashes contained of potash 60 lbs., of phosphoric acid 36 and lime 70 lbs. of the value of $10. Importance was placed on the necessity of careful pruning. Cutting big limbs was injurious; when the cut was over two inches in should be painted. Referring to the oyster shell bark louse, he said the best remedy was a strong soap suds (4 to 6 quarts), to which add a quart of coal oil and then dilute nine times and apply; or use half a pound of soda to a pailful of water. He sprinkled with Paris green just after fruit was set, for the Codlin moth. The best method of grafting for old trees was crown grafting—cut a big limb off square, bevel the scion on one side and insert two or three scions, cut surface inside, tie manilla paper round so that it forms a cup about half an inch deep and fill with mud. That was all. Pruning in June exhausted the tree too much; not so pruning does this time of year. Study the habit of the tree and follow nature in forming a top. A spreading tree with a spreading top should be trimmed with reference to that habit of growth, and a high growing tree should have its form of growth respected. Mr. Woolverton's address was full of interest and information and it was to be regretted that in order to catch the train he had to considerably curtail it.

THE LOCAL ASSOCIATION.

The following gentlemen were appointed a committee to manage the affairs of the local association: Geo. Hilliard, E. B. Edwards, G. M. Roger, B. R. Matthews, Fred Stenson, Geo. E. Elliot, Jas. McKibbin, Wm. Collins and John Bell.

A vote of thanks, moved by Mr. EDWARDS, seconded by Mr. COLLINS, was passed to the members of the deputation from the Ontario Association, to which Mr. Woolverton responded in a few words to the effect that it was a pleasure to him and his friends to promote the interests of fruit growing in any way in their power.

Pas to Province Personals.

The following is taken from the Vancouver (B.C.) News-Advertiser of March 19th:—

Mr. William Hamilton, of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Co., of Peterborough, Ont., has been staying at the Leland for the last few days. He went over to Nanaimo on the Catch yesterday, but will return in a few days, and will stay here for about a couple of months. This firm is well known throughout the Dominion, and the machinery in most of the mills here has been supplied by them.

Mr. H. W. Keet, the popular Superintendent of the Telephone Company, has been kept hard at work since his arrival in this city, and a great improvement in already noticeable in the telephonic system in this city. Amongst other alterations will be the substitution of two metallic wires between this city and New Westminster instead of the present wires. Centreville.

On Wednesday last Mr. Albert Fellis, of Cavan, was married to Miss Minnie Larmer, eldest daughter of Mr. Isaac Larmer, of Cavan, by the Venerable Archdeacon Allen, of Millbrook, at the residence of the bride's father. The groom was supported by Mr. Geo. Fowler, merchant, Millbrook, and the bride by her sister, Miss Effie Larmer, and her cousin, Miss Jennie Hillier, of Millbrook, all of whom were handsomely dressed. There were a large number of friends present and the bride received many valuable tokens of regard. Shortly after the marriage ceremony they all sat down to a sumptuous supper. We wish the happy couple happiness and success in their relationship.

Mr. James Bateman, of South Monaghan, was moving wood with his machine for Messrs. Wm. Earl and Hugh Porter last week.

Mr. John Craig who has been living west of here this winter, left last week for Uncle Sam's territory. Thus they go.

The Rev. Mr. Tullar, Teronto, preached in the Presbyterian church here, last Sunday.

It reminds us of former times to see the light in Mr. John Byers' new store here, opening up the fourth line of Cavan.

On Monday, March 16th, Miss Mary Hutchings, formerly of Port Hope, died at her father's residence in South Monaghan. In the death of Miss Hutchings, the Fraserville Methodist church have to mourn the loss of one of their most earnest workers.

Last week on the eve preceding Miss Minnie Larmer's wedding day, her Sabbath School class presented her with two handsome presents and an address read by Miss Alice Stewart. Miss Larmer will be missed in the Presbyterian church and Sabbath school here, where she was an earnest worker, and also an active member of the Centreville Auxiliary of the W. F. M. S., and we trust that she will soon find her way into Christian usefulness in the vicinity of her future home.—[Guide.

Young's Point.

From Our Own Correspondent.

BOATING.—As Stony Lake has gained a widespread reputation as a camping ground, we have every reason to expect a larger number of tourists and campers this coming season than has heretofore frequented this favorite summer resort. The proprietors of the various steamers are making ready to accommodate this increased passenger traffic. A new steamer is being built at Lakefield, and the "Cruiser" is being enlarged. Mr. P. P. Young, proprietor of the "Mary Ellen," wishing to keep abreast of the times, and being keenly alive to the fact that he will have increased competition, has placed his boat in the hands of competent workmen, who are giving it a thorough overhauling, and in a few weeks she will be turned off the dry dock here, a staunch, speedy, comfortable craft, second to none on the Trent waters.

FISHING.—A fishing party consisting of Messrs. Bird, Grylls, D'Aroy and Percy Strickland, of Lakefield, and Messrs. Young and McFarlane, of Young's Point, are camped on the shore of Stoplog Lake, and judging from the excellent samples of mountain trout sent home from day to day, they are having very good luck.

A Railway Gentleman Speaks.

"For many years past," says a gentleman employed by one of the largest railway institutions, "I have lost considerable time, and suffered from fever and general weakness. My life as generally came on about spring time—a time joyous to many, but always dreaded by me. About the end of the winter of 1890 I was advised by one of my office companions to use Paine's Celery Compound, which I was assured would cleanse my system, and build it up so that I could safely pass through the season and avoid my usual time of sickness. I procured the Compound at once from my druggist, and received an assurance from him which corroborated my friend's statement. I used, before the spring was over, four bottles, which made me a different man. I increased in weight, my appetite was full and natural, and my physical and mental activity was greater than ever before. This spring I intend to use more of Paine's Celery Compound, and would advise all my fellow men so do likewise if they value good health, and wish to avoid sickness."

Surely this convincing testimony will have some weight with all who wish to be thoroughly cleansed and made strong for the extreme hot weather of the coming summer.

King of Medicines

A Cure "Almost Miraculous."

"When I was 14 years of age I had a severe attack of rheumatism, and after I recovered had to go on crutches. A year later, scrofula, in the form of white swellings, appeared on various parts of my body, and for 11 years I was an invalid, being confined to my bed 6 years. In that time ten or eleven sores appeared and broke, causing me great pain and suffering. I feared I never should get well.

"Early in 1888 I went to Chicago to visit a sister, but was confined to my bed most of the time I was there. In July I read a book, 'A Day with a Circus,' in which were statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was so impressed with the success of this medicine that I decided to try it. To my great gratification the sores soon decreased, and I began to feel better and in a short time I was up and out of doors. I continued to take Hood's Sarsaparilla for about a year, when, having used six bottles, I had become so fully released from the disease that I went to work for the Flint & Walling Mfg. Co., and since then on account of sickness. I believe the disease is expelled from my system, I always feel well, am in good spirits and have a good appetite. I am now 27 years of age and can walk as well as any one, except that one limb is a little shorter than the other, owing to the loss of bone, and the sores formerly on my right leg. To my friends my recovery seems almost miraculous, and I think Hood's Sarsaparilla is the king of medicines." WILLIAM A. LEHR, 9 N. Railroad St., Kendallville, Ind.

Scratched 28 Years

A Sooty, Reddish, Skin Disease With Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $500.00, as treatment of nothing else but the worst cases (practically) commenced on my head (a spot not larger than a cent). It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I am not proud the CUTICURA REMEDIES put much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All need of them was 65 years. If you had been here and told me you would have cured me for $500, you would have had the money. I looked inside the pictures (No. 1 page 67) in your book, 'How to Cure Skin Diseases,' but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my hands and legs to scratch, even in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it seems to be a kind of second Nature to me. I thank you a thousand times.

AS A RESUTL OF THE NEWFOUNDLAND TROUBLES.

France Takes Advantage of Them Merely Because She is Irritated Over British Occupation of Egypt—Reported Agreement for the Simultaneous Mobilization of French and Russian Troops.

LONDON, March 27.—Lord Salisbury, just before starting for San Remo, held a long conference with Lord Knutsford and Mr. Currie, the permanent secretary of the Foreign Office. A work of supreme difficulty requiring the most delicate handling was confided to Mr. Currie relating to engagements of England to protect Belgium. King Leopold during his recent visit pressed for an answer as to what practical co-operation England would give under the existing treaty for the defence of Belgian neutrality in the event of war. Lord Salisbury, according to a report credited within the Foreign Office, promised English aid by a fleet and contingent of troops if demanded to defend Antwerp, leaving the Belgian army free for defensive operations in the forts of the Meuse.

Something occurring behind the scenes of European diplomacy sharpens apprehension that the final move in the long game preluding war will not be long delayed. Apart from the renewal of the concentration of troops on the Russian-Austrian frontiers and the Czar's demonstrative friendship for President Carnot it is reported that an agreement has been reached between the French and Russian Governments in regard to the simultaneous mobilization of troops and other movements in the event of war. The heads of the European powers are soon to be informed of a Russian scheme of attack, which is likely to declare itself in the autumn. The question of Belgian neutrality is intimately associated with England's attitude in such a conflict, and it will be Lord Salisbury's justification if the agreement with King Leopold comes up in parliament.

The presence of Lord Knutsford at the conference with Lord Salisbury was probably due to the relations of Newfoundland with other disputes with France. Questions of which notice has already been given in the House of Commons, to be answered after the Easter recess, demand that the government explain whether or not the fisheries trouble has become a mere pawn on the diplomatic chess board on which the English occupation of Egypt is king. Lord Knutsford damaged his reputation among Conservatives through his tactful treatment of the Newfoundland matter. He required coaching by Lord Salisbury, who is blamed within his own circles for allowing the Colonial Minister too free a hand.

Sir Charles Dilke, in an article written for to-morrow's papers, discloses a source of uneasiness prevailing among Ministerialists. "If," he says, "the strange foreign arbitrators picked up in the Russian foreign office and elsewhere should fix political reasons declare against us then the modus vivendi under the Knutsford Bill becoming an act will have to be forced on the colonials by deeds of civil war. If Newfoundland was an American state France would sell her rights in five minutes to the United States. She only refuses to sell them to England because she is irritated about Egypt."

Sir Charles Dilke is right. The inner official circle distrust arbitrations. They fear the results of the proposed arbitrators and know that the fate of Newfoundland is interknit with the Government's Egyptian policy.

Irish Affairs.

Tim Healy was hopeful to-night that he will be able to go to Sligo Tuesday. The Parnellites got up a deputation of Sligo dock laborers in order to give their chief a chance to expatiate on his late sympathies. Replying to deputations Mr. Parnell declared that ever since he was 21 years of age he had felt keenly for the cause of laborers, that he had encouraged his own employes to form unions, that he never had any workman in his mines who had struck and that there had always been perfect accord between him and his employes. Michael Davitt will opportunely arrive on the scene to-morrow to dispel the Parnell glamor. Mr. Healy's accusing Mr Parnell and Valentine Dillon of inciting the Dalton outrage will be the subject of an action by Mr. Dillon after the North Sligo contest has been decided. The general feeling is that Mr. Healy ought to have had substantial evidence before speaking. The language used on both sides is becoming utterly unrestrained. The Parnellites' Dublin evening organ calls the McCarthyites "stinking carrion floating on a stream of corruption." It apologizes for Dalton's attack on Healy as being provoked by "the libelous work conducted under sanctum Christian patronage." The priests' practical response to the continued abuse of their order has been to suppress the circulation of the Parnellite press. The leading Parnellite paper has lost over 5,000 clerical subscribers.

The Message from Leo

Archbishop Walsh will leave Rome Tuesday bearing a deliverance of the Pope, invoking the people to sustain the church during her present trial. Communications wired to the Vatican urged that the papal message be read in the churches on Sunday prior to the Sligo election. But Archbishop Walsh obtaining information that the district needed no external impulse to go solid against Parnell has postponed announcing the message until his return. The securing of Sligo will give a total to the Nationals in Parliament, counting Sheil-Dillon and William O'Brien, of 52 members against the Parnellites' 32. The funds of the National federation are daily increasing, while the Parnellite funds are nowhere.

BURNT TO THE GROUND

THE CORK COURT HOUSE TOTALLY DESTROYED

While the Tipperary Trials are in Progress—The Presence of Mind of the Presiding Judge Alone Prevents a Stampede in the Densely Packed Building.

CORK, March 27.—While the judge was summing up to-day in the Court House here in the case of the Government against Michael O'Brien, Dalton and others charged with assaulting the police and with rioting at Tipperary at the time of the trial of William O'Brien and John Dillon the court house was suddenly set on fire and a scene of alarm and confusion followed. All the occupants of the building escaped safely into the street. The police are investigating the affair.

The fire was discovered by a barrister who noticed the reflection of the flames on the glass dome of the roof. The court was packed at the time and only the coolness of the judge and the police prevented a panic.

Despite all efforts to extinguish the fire the flames spread rapidly and the building was soon all ablaze. The court house, including the municipal chamber and the city and county offices, was totally destroyed. A heavy wind, which was blowing at the time, baffled the efforts of the firemen and aided in the rapid progress of the flames. The intense heat melted the lead on the roof and molten metal poured to the ground in streams, further hindering the work of the firemen. During the height of the fire the roof of the courthouse suddenly fell in with a crash and the walls collapsed to the imminent peril of a large number of bystanders. Some of the archives were saved, but many documents, some of them dating back for centuries, were destroyed. When the flagstaff which surmounted the building was burned away and the Union Jack fell into the flames the onlookers sent up a great cheer.

The fire, it is now thought, was caused by a defective flue, which ignited the woodwork of the roof.

Justice Monroe in summing up the Tipperary case said Mr. Morley was justified in visiting Tipperary to see how justice was administered, provided he gave an accurate version of what he had seen. The justice referred sympathetically to Dillon's evidence. When the fire was observed the prisoner and witnesses were hurried away. Justice Monroe will resume the summing up to-morrow in the School of Art.

They Lodge at Different Inns.

SLIGO, March 27.—As soon as Mr. Parnell arrived at the Imperial Hotel yesterday evening a number of McCarthyite members of Parliament, including Mr. Sexton and Dr Tanner, secretly left and went to another hotel carrying their baggage with them. When Mr. Parnell and his friends were informed of the action of the McCarthyites at breakfast this morning they chuckled and Mr. Parnell asked a waiter if the McCarthyites had paid their bill. A truce was declared in the electoral hostilities to-day.

Capt. O'Shea's Suits for Libel.

DUBLIN, March 27.—It is announced Capt O'Shea has brought suit against the Catholic bishop of the united dioceses of Galway and Kilmacduag, the Most Rev. Francis J. McCormick, D.D., and against Canon John O'Mahoney of the Catholic diocese of Cork. O'Shea sues the two reverend gentlemen mentioned for alleged libelous utterances in regard to his relation with Mr. Parnell which have been attributed to the bishop and canon in the public press.

£5 Notes Flying Around

DUBLIN, March 27.—Ald. Collery, the anti-Parnellite candidate in North Sligo, avers that the Parnellites are distributing £5 notes among the rowdies of Sligo.

Dilke's Candidature.

LONDON, March 27.—Over 3000 dissenting ministers have signed the protest against Sir Charles Dilke's return to public life. Sir Charles persists that he will stand as a candidate for Parliament until he receives the official veto of the Liberal chiefs. He has invited the opinion of Mr. Morley and Sir William Harcourt on his candidature with out response. Mr. Schnadhorst, the Liberal caucus chief, disapproves the candidature on the ground that if the Forest of Dean electors return Sir Charles Dilke many thousands of dissenters will withdraw their votes from Liberals at the coming elections.

British Labor Commission

LONDON, March 27.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Sir John Gorst will represent the Government on the Labor Commission. John Morley has declined to serve. Messrs. Fowler and Mundella are still considering whether to serve or not. Otherwise the list of members is complete, and it will probably be gazetted during the Easter recess.

Anarchists Arrested for High Treason.

BERLIN, March 27.—An anarchistic conspiracy has been discovered in Constance. The Baden papers are perplexing international relations between the German, Swiss and American anarchists. Three persons were found while searching for the murderers of the Count Schladeback, who was killed last Sunday, traitor to the anarchist cause. Three men have been arrested secretly on a charge of high treason and others have escaped to Switzerland.

PARIS, March 27.—A handsome English woman, Evaline Nosl has been married for marriage trade. She had wrought 43 men to marry her by advertising herself as a wealthy widow. Her last victim was a viscount, who almost ruined himself by gambling.

POISON IN THE PORRIDGE.

Narrow Escape of a Family from Death by Poisoning.

CORNWALL, March 27.—The family of Mr W. Panniston had an exceedingly narrow escape from being poisoned. The breakfast had been prepared and the youngest member of the family, a little girl, was given some oatmeal porridge before the rest of the family sat down. She remarked that it had a peculiar taste and only swallowed a small quantity, leaving the table and complaining of pains in the stomach. As the symptoms became worse a doctor was sent for and pronounced it a case of poisoning. Fortunately the child had not taken enough to cause any serious consequences and soon recovered. It was afterwards found that there were traces of strychnine in the oatmeal, but how it came to get there is a complete mystery.

A Terrible Affliction.

BEETON, March 27.—One of the saddest cases of bereavement that has ever been known in this neighborhood occurred in the family of Mr. Harry Marr, a wealthy farmer who resides a short distance north of Thornton. Diphtheria broke out in the household and deprived him of his two boys and eldest girl: Miss Aggie Grant, who was staying at the house at the time, also took ill and died from the effects of the disease.

One Year for Bigamy.

MILTON, March 27.—Hugh Foster, committed for trial for marrying two wives, one, Maria Smith, in 1878 and the other, Annie E. Clarkson of Islington, three weeks ago, appeared before Judge Miller this morning was convicted and sentenced to a year in the Central Prison.

THE STILETTO'S VICTIM.

MURDER BY THE MAFIA IN THE PICTURESQUE TYPOL.

A Merchant Stabbed to Death While Boarding a Train—A Madman Discharges a Shot Gun in the Midst of a Party of Dancers Bulgaria's Finance Minister Assassinated.

VIENNA, March 27.—A despatch from Kufstein, a fortified town of the Tyrol on the Inn River, and near the Bavarian frontier, says that a well-known merchant of Kufstein, who was upon the point of entering a railroad car at that place, was confronted by an Italian, who plunged a stiletto in the merchants breast, killing him instantly. The Italian, who was a workman employed in the neighborhood, was arrested. The police found that the Italian was a members of the Mafia Society and had killed the merchant in mistake for a compatriot whom he had been detailed to kill for some real or imaginary wrong done to the Mafia Society and for which the prisoner's compatriot had been condemned to death by the Mafia's secret tribunal. The murder has created considerable excitement and there is a feeling of dangerous indignation growing against the Italian secret society.

A Minister Assassinated.

SOFIA, March 27.—At 8 o'clock this evening while Premier Stambuloff and M. Batcheff, Minister of Finance, who had been walking together, were about to enter their official residences, which adjoin each other, a man suddenly confronted them with a revolver and fired three shots point blank at M Batcheff, who fell dead. A crowd immediately collected at the scene, but the assassin escaped owing to darkness and the confusion which prevailed. A number of persons who witnessed the murder report that the assassin had three accomplices who assisted him to escape. The shooting of Minister Batcheff has caused the greatest excitement here and the police are scouring the city for all those connected with the deed. No motive has been suggested for the murder of the Minister of Finance. It is presumed the conspirators may have sought to take the life of Premier Stambuloff, but that in the darkness they mistook Batcheff for their intended victim.

A Boy Sentenced to Death

LONDON, March 27.—The trial took place at Chelmsford Assizes of Arthur Leatherhead, 17, charged with murdering his uncle at Salcot, Essex, on Dec. 20 last. The case against the prisoner was that, after frequent quarrels with his uncle, who complained of his alleged habit of pilfering, prisoner left home on the date named and did not return, but stayed at Colchester, where he gave it out that his uncle had gone for a holiday. Suspicion was aroused, and the relatives searched the house a few days later and found the uncle's body with the head in a sack, the head being shattered by a gun shot. A plea of insanity was set up, but the accused was found guilty and Baron Pollock sentenced him to death.

Woman Suffrage.

LONDON, March 27.—It is rumored that the Government intends to introduce at the next session of Parliament a proposal to permit women to vote under certain conditions in Parliamentary elections.

Suspended for Six Months

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—The Government has warned the Hebrew journal, Woskodsr, for the third time and has prohibited the issue of the paper for six months.

TIRED OF LIFE.

Several Suicides in Canada Yesterday—A Defaulter Takes His Life.

ST. JOHN, N.B., March 27.—Newton Worden of St. Stephen, employed as a clerk in the store of F. Rose, was discharged Saturday and on Monday a deficiency of $1000 was discovered in his books. Worden was hunted up and he asked Mr. Rose to accompany him to his house, which he did. Arriving there Worden went into his room for something and while gone Mr. Rose heard the report of a revolver and he rushed into the room and found Worden lying on the floor with a smoking pistol in his hand and a bullet wound in the temple. Worden lived two hours after the shooting. The dead man has a brother living near Toronto, Ont.

Preferred Death to Marriage.

LANSING, Mich., March 27.—Miss Myrtle Coates, 17-year-old daughter of well-to-do parents living at North Lansing, committed suicide last night by poison. Miss Coates was a bright and pretty blonde. She was engaged to a young man named Conklin and next Wednesday had been fixed for the date of the wedding.

Despondent, He Cut His Throat.

STRATHROY, March 27.—James Fraser of the town line, Adelaide, under a temporary fit of insanity attempted to take his life by cutting his throat with a razor. It seems he has lately had a long spell of sickness and at times became very despondent, and in one of these the rash act occurred. He inflicted a gash about four inches long, severing some of the smaller arteries, which caused a great loss of blood.

HER LIFE FOR HER BABE.

A Captain's Wife's Heroism Refused to Leave the Ship Without Her Babe and Both Perished.

NORFOLK, Va., March 27.—The Norwegian bark Dictator, from Pensacola, Fla., to West Hartlepool, Eng., laden with pine lumber, with a crew of 15 and the captain's young wife and little boy of three years, came ashore in a strong easterly gale this morning two miles north of Virginia Beach Hotel. Great fears for life-saving stations rescued eight men. At nightfall there were still nine persons on the bark and among them the captain, his wife and child. The captain had urged his wife all day to take the boy and come ashore, but she steadily refused, as she would not leave her husband and could and only one could take the boy at the time. An attempt to continue the work of rescue was made, but tonight the bark went to pieces and those who remained on her were lost, including the wife of the captain. The captain, just before the ship went to pieces, sprang into the sea with his boy strapped on his back and reached the shore alive, but the boy was lost, making a total loss of six lives.

DEATH IN THE DRAUGHT.

Strange Death of a Township Clerk in Renfrew County

ECANVILLE, March 27.—Eugene Straine for many years known in this section as a highly respectable and efficient school teacher and clerk of the united Townships of Griffith and Matawatchan, came into the village to do some business in connection with the taking of its census, and while here fell in with some friends, one of whom produced a small bottle and both partook of the contents. A throwing off soon followed and an investigation proved that the professional friend had got hold of a bottle of high wines containing corrosives. The visitor got a heavier dose than his friend, and while the latter speedily recovered Mr Straine, although under skilful medical treatment, gradually sank under the effects of the corrosive poison until yesterday morning, when he passed away. He was about 65 years of age.

Unpaid Tailor Bills at Auction.

NEW YORK, March 27.—At the Real Estate Exchange to this city to-day Martin F. Hatch, acting for the Merchant Tailors' Society, sold to the highest bidder about 31 unpaid tailor bills. These bills bore the names of well-known New Yorkers. The lucky fellows who could settle up had their names stricken from the list. Several bills, amounting to seven hundred odd dollars, were sold in a bunch to a Hebrew tailor for $1.

THE DANCE OF DEATH.

A Madman Discharges a Gun Amongst Throng of Dancers

BELFAST, March 27.—A terrible scene occurred last night during the progress of a charity ball which was given at Stragaddy county Donegal. At the height of the festivities an insane man suddenly made his appearance, armed with a shotgun. Before his intentions were divined, or before he could be disarmed, the madman fired both barrels of his gun among the dancers. One young girl was shot in the back, and was so dangerously wounded that she was removed from the ball room in a dying condition. The man was secured by some of the gentlemen present and handed over to the police.

NOT ON THE BILLS.

Two Actresses Killed in the Spokane Falls Casino by a Box Occupant. Who Afterwards Kills Himself.

SPOKANE FALLS March 27.—Early this morning, at the Casino Variety Theatre Charles Elliott, a faro dealer, who was occupying a box near the stage, fired several pistol shots at the performers. One bullet took effect in the breast of Mabel Debabian killing her instantly. Another bullet lodged in the back of Carrie Smith also a variety actress, inflicting a fatal wound. Elliott then placed the muzzle of his revolver in his mouth and blew out his brains. His shots were intended for an actress named Lulu Durand and who was on the stage at the time and of whom Elliott was insanely jealous.

KILLED BY A BULL.

Terrible Fate of a Farmer Near Whitby—Mangled Beyond Recognition.

WHITBY, March 27.—Sylvianus C. Brown met a horrible fate last evening, being gored to death by a Jersey bull. The animal has been in Mr. Brown's possession two years and was not regarded as dangerous. It turned upon him whilst he was leading it to drink. He was powerless to protect himself against its mad attack and was mangled in very short time. The fury of the brute after smelling blood was awful, and 20 men failed to capture him until a rifle was secured and he was shot. Mr. Brown was one of the leading members of an old Quaker family residing here, and was widely known as a progressive farmer. His age was about 45. He leaves a wife and family well provided for.

A Verdict of Wilful Murder.

BELLEVILLE, March 27.—The coroner's inquest respecting the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Kane, who was murdered by her husband James Kane on Monday last, was concluded last night. Dr. Yonker, who made the post mortem examination, testified that the wound made on the left side in the region of the heart was the immediate cause of death. The jury returned a verdict of wilful murder against Kane, who will be tried at the assizes which open here on April 13 before Justice Rose.

Later developments in the Kane murder case show that the prisoner had intended to murder the entire family and then cut his throat with a razor.

Spent $2,000,000 in Six Years.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Alcede Vadore, a Greek, 33 years old, told a weird story at the Barge Office to-day. He arrived on the Aurania yesterday. He says that he inherited £425,000 in 1885, upon the death of his mother. His father, he said, was chief engineer of the Suez Canal. To-day Alcede has not a cent of the $2,000,000 of money he inherited and he is in America looking for work. Speculations in cotton futures and "plunging" on the race tracks of England and France are the causes attributed by Vadore for the complete disappearance of his fortune in six years.

$800 Damages for Seduction.

BERLIN, March 27.—An action by George Nicoll, farm laborer, who resides near Ayr against Robert Elliott, machinist, who for merly lived at Ayr, for the seduction of plaintiff's daughter, Mary Nicoll, a girl of 16, was tried at Waterloo Assizes. Defendant is a married man, and it was while Mary Nicoll was living with his family as a domestic servant that defendant seduced her. A child was born in September last when the girl had just arrived at the age of 16. The defendant did not appear and evidently has no defence to the action. The jury awarded plaintiff $800 damages.

Objected to Being Dubbed "Papa."

MILTON, March 27.—Agnes Clark of Georgetown, aged 20, committed for trial for deserting her illegitimate infant, appeared before Judge Miller. It was proved that the prisoner had left the child at the house of Mr. Hugh McEwan, charging him with being its father. This accusation is believed to have been a mere bluff, the court took a stock in it and Agnes was sent to jail for three months.

The Grand Duke's Illness.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—The Grand Duke George is at Algiers in a serious condition. The proposed visit of the Imperial family to Central Asia has been abandoned. The proposed summer tour of the Crimea will also be abandoned unless the documents reconsider the trip for the benefit of the health of Grand Duke George.

Boiled to Death in Brine

PITTSBURG, March 25.—The body of Henry Reddy, 55 years old, was found in a salt vat at Haller, Beck & Co.'s works in Beaver avenue, Allegheny, yesterday, where he had been boiled to death, last Thursday night. It is supposed he fell backward into the vat and was unable to call for help. After he had been missing several days the vat was drained and the body found.

Everybody Knows

That at this season the blood is filled with impurities, the accumulation of months of close confinement in poorly ventilated stores, workshops and tenements. All these impurities and every trace of scrofula, salt rheum, or other diseases may be expelled by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier ever produced. It is the only medicine of which "100 doses one dollar," is true.

THE PROTESTANT HOME.

The directorate of the Peterborough Protestant Home would like the public who sympathize with the success of their work to take into practical consideration the pressing necessity there is for funds to carry on the regular work of the Home. This is all the more imperative from the fact that many persons are withholding their contributions on the supposition that Mrs. Nicholls' donation makes it unnecessary. Now, Mrs. Nicholls' contribution does not become available 'till a year from her death — next May — and as it would be bad policy to use the capital for current expenditure there will be no income derivable from interest till six months have elapsed. It will thus be seen that it will be seven or eight months before any funds will be available from this source, and the public cannot efface their responsibility for assisting to maintain this worthy charitable institution. It is to be hoped that this matter will be taken to heart, and that no person will permit, what has been in the past, a misconception of the facts, to check his or her impulses to aid the Protestant Home.

THE GAME AND FISH COMMISSION.

In another column there appears an advertisement announcing the sitting of the Ontario Fish and Game Commission in the Town Council Chamber, in Peterborough, on Wednesday, April 1st, and Thursday, April 2nd. Through the efforts of Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P., a sitting of the commission has been got for Peterborough, and all interested in the subject to which the investigations of the commission is addressed will, it is hoped, be in attendance, and give what assistance is in their power. Let those who can give testimony, by a little reflection refresh their memories, and collect whatever data and documents may bear on the question and come prepared to give evidence. The Commission's sitting here will be the more useful the more local gentlemen interested in sport, extend their personal assistance in giving information.

A Flutter of Excitement in Montreal.

An Aged Citizen Surprises his Friends—Business Men and Citizens Generally Express Astonishment.

Unlooked for events in Montreal from time to time occur, which for a few days furnish food for conversation and newspaper articles for thousands of talkers and readers.

It can, however, be asserted with safety, that for years past no item of information has caused so much excitement, astonishment and comment, as the letter published a few weeks ago, written by an aged citizen — a gentleman of high social standing, and one possessed of the most amiable qualities, and who is almost as well known as Montreal's present popular Mayor.

Mr. B. Hutchins, of the firm of B. Hutchins & Co., is well known in connection with his large business as a real estate, rental and financial agents. He is known by all classes interested in the buying and selling of city property in Montreal; and from his unbounded trust to him your properties, knowing that they can always confide in his ripe good judgment, strict integrity and vast business experience.

Mr. Hutchins suffered periodically for fifty years with neuralgia in the head, and rheumatism in the arms. We can imagine the terrible tortures he must have endured for so many years, the weary, darksome nights he passed, and the long tiresome days experienced, made up of pain and business. To add to the intensity of suffering, Mr. Hutchins was afflicted with nervousness, and his memory was at times impaired.

We stand amazed, when we calmly think of his sufferings; and cannot but admire his heroism and great tenacity of life.

But happier, better days were awaiting the aged martyr and hero. Providence was kind and mindful of him as the days rolled on, and after his fortitude and courage had been sufficiently tested, this same Providence directed his attention to what proved to be to him the "Aqua Vitæ"—the "Water of Life."

Mr. Hutchins faith, notwithstanding previous trials and failures with other remedies and aid treatment, was strong and bold enough to take hold of the remedy that has raised up in the past thousands from the deep and miry clay of despondency. Such faith is indeed, well worthy of success in man or woman. As the outcome of this great faith in a grand and life-giving preparation, what is the result to-day?

Mr. Hutchins' letter which we now give, speaks volumes; it leads to a serious contemplation; it directs to the path of duty; it plainly points out that living fountain—that healing pool; those ceasing waters, from which all the young and old, the rich and poor, may drink and become new men and women. Mr. Hutchins says:

MONTREAL P. Q., Dec. 29th, 1890

Messrs. Wells & Richardson Co.:

GENTLEMEN,—I have very great pleasure in adding my testimony to the great merits of "Paine's Celery Compound." I have been a great sufferer, periodically, for fifty years with Neuralgia in my head and Rheumatism in my arms; and now at an advanced age, after taking a few bottles of this "Celery Compound," I am entirely free from both. Moreover, for over twenty years past I have been unable to use my forefinger in writing, through nervousness, and to day I can do so. My nerves are much strengthened, my memory is improved, and altogether I feel greatly invigorated. I can, therefore, recommend the use of "Paine's Celery Compound" to all who are suffering from Neuralgia, Rheumatism and Nervous Debility.

Yours respectfully,
B. HUTCHINS.

The above are not the idle, boastful words of the young and foolish. They are not the gushings of one financially interested in a scheme for money-making, or notoriety; neither are they the words of a man who has been paid a price for the sake of booming an article of no intrinsic value. That great modern preparation, Paine's Celery Compound, requires no such efforts; and its proprietors will never allow spurious testimonials to be used or published, to entrap and deceive the unwary and suffering.

The words of the above letter are penned by a gentleman above reproach, and too well known to Montrealers for probity and uprightness, to lend himself to deception and fraud.

Have you reader, experienced any of the symptoms which for years threatened Mr. Hutchins' life? Have you a worn-up feeling; a weary, tired brain; sleepless senses; a restless, disturbed mind; palpitating nerves; defective memory; a tiresome feeling when you get out of bed every morning? These troubles all lead to fearful consequences—terrible diseases. Neglect of them rapidly brings on disordered and enfeebled brain; a broken down nervous system; morbidness; hysteria; paralysis; insanity, and exhaustion of nature. Is it not your earnest desire to avoid all these fearful ills which lead direct to death and the grave?

You have now before you a mighty proof of the efficacy of Paine's Celery Compound, and the opportunity of laying hold of a fresh existence. This God-given remedy is a purely vegetable preparation, culled from the lap of Nature. It builds up the weak and shattered nerves, it gives sweet and natural sleep, bodily and mental vigor, and thoroughly rejuvenates. Try it weary and suffering ones, and be a partaker of those blessings which only this wonderful remedy can bestow.

One Secret of Health and Beauty

The physical battle is over, but the battle with disease must be constantly and unceasingly waged else the grim reaper will come out victorious, and loved ones will be gathered to their long home. On all sides may be seen pale and listless girls who should be enjoying the health and glow of rosy youth. Everywhere we are met with women young in years, yet prematurely old, who suffer in silence almost untold agonies, the result of these ailments peculiar to the female system. To all such, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills come as a blessing. They restore wasted vitality, build up the nervous system, enrich the blood, and transform pale and sallow complexions into glowing, rosy cheeks that along follow perfect health. In a word they are a certain cure for all those distressing complaints to which women and girls are peculiarly liable. A trial of these pills will convince the most sceptical of their wonderful merit. For suffering men Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are equally efficacious. For overwork, mental strain, loss of sleep, nervous debility, and all those diseases that lead to broken-down manhood, they are a certain specific, stimulating the brain, reinforcing the exhausted system and restoring shattered vitality. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are nature's restorative and should be used by every weak and debilitated person. For sale by all dealers or sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents a box), by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Safest

AND most powerful alterative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective as this medicine, while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly. Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body. At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether. The child is livelier, its skin is fresher, and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Grills, Long Point, Texas.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

For some time past we have thought a strictly cash business in Flour, Feed and Provisions could be successfully carried on in Peterborough, and to test this question, we have purchased the above business from Mr. C. N. Brown who will still continue as manager in Fitzville's old stand, Simcoe street.

In order to be successful we intend to make it the interest of everyone to pay cash with order by selling at wholesale prices.

We will positively give no credits and cash customers will not have to keep up the losses made by others on the credit system.

We will keep a full supply of the very best quality of Flour, Feed, Chop, etc., and our customers need not fear that the quality of the goods will be lowered to make up for the reduction in prices. We are simply giving them the benefit of the margin necessary to cover losses and interest charges incurred on the credit system.

A PREACHER'S FRAUD.

The Rev. John Jones was an undoubted success. His uptown church was crowded Sunday after Sunday with an appreciative congregation. So much did he add to the attractions to hear him and bathe in the flood of his eloquence that it became necessary to rent in the sittings, for which there were always the most spirited bidding. Like all phenomenal persons, his most earnest and enthusiastic admirers were to be found in the emotional sex.

Though the reverend gentleman was endowed by nature with lofty stature, an excellent voice and a good delivery, he was unfortunately not prolific in ideas. He discovered this early in his career. He had tried valiantly to write his own sermons, but had finally drifted into another method, which had one great justification in the magnificence of its result. He had got into communication with a religious publisher not forty miles from Lafayette place, who always keeps a second supply of manuscript sermons in stock. The Rev. John took these Sunday after Sunday as the skeletons of his discourses.

By a method of simplification he turned them into homilies, which were the very thing liked by the flock of which he was the venerated shepherd.

The Rev. John often noticed that these sermons were written in a very unmasculine hand. He had, occasionally, also to rectify the sentiments when his trained nose scented the traces of a faintly suggested heterodoxy.

One evening at a quiet tea party he met a young woman whom he had never seen before. The eloquent parson, who had escaped all the pitfalls laid for his capture by his own maiden parishioners, went home deeply in love with a girl who had scarcely noticed his presence. A friend, to whom he spoke about her a few days after, told him she was a clever girl, with rather unsettled opinions on religious matters and rather poor. The Rev. Jones had many opportunities of marrying money, but he resolved, everything notwithstanding, to have nobody but her.

Fortune smiled on his suit, and before six months the lady had almost capitulated, and the pair were trembling on the verge of an engagement.

Though Mr. Jones did his best to keep the matter secret until the latest possible moment, it leaked out as such things always do. There was real though concealed indignation among the aligned beauties of his congregation. Miss Briggs, the daughter of his principal elder, was ambitious to benefit humanity as a clergyman's wife in general and Mr. Jones's wife in particular. Her papa had fostered the ambition. The Briggs family solemnly came to the conclusion that their pastor was a deceiver.

In the meantime Mr. Jones had been devoting so much time to Miss Everett that he sometimes found little time to devote that consideration to his bought sermons which had been his custom heretofore. He sometimes even had to preach them just as he bought them.

The first Sunday that he ever had Miss Everett to hear him this was particularly the case. In the middle of the sermon he chanced to look down at her, where she sat close to the pulpit. He noticed with apprehension that the girl had become deathly pale. He had almost to stop, but the next time his eye caught hers she had recovered her ordinary composure.

The next time Jones saw her her manner towards him was marked by a chilling coldness. He used all his wiles, but was not able to drag from her the cause of the change.

The sermon of the preceding Sunday had made a great impression. An enthusiastic admirer of the preacher had taken it down in shorthand as it fell from his lips. There was a meeting of the committee, at which the discourse became the subject of remark, and a prominent pillar of the church offered to get it printed at his own expense from the said manuscript, as a delicate compliment to their pastor. It was resolved to keep this a secret from him till the dainty pamphlet was in the hands of the public.

Jones had come home from seeing Miss Everett one evening. He was feeling very much depressed on account of the unsatisfactory couple of hours which he had just passed, when the servant brought in a parcel that had just been left for him.

He opened it, and his hair almost stood on end with amazement when he saw what it contained.

There was his bought sermon staring at him like a guilty thing surprised. There was the horrible laudatory notice on the title page, which seemed to be trumpeting his shame for the whole world to hear. He sat down in his chair and covered his face with his hands. What would Miss Everett say if she knew what manner of man he was? If he had not been a clergyman he would have cursed the well-meaning fools who had betrayed him.

Yet, how was the fault theirs? Had he not preached the hateful thing as his own, and held them spellbound with it?

Just then the thought came, who will ever know? He went to bed with his mind made up to simply do nothing, for he felt nothing could be done.

For a week he carried his secret about with him. Was it the love of this woman that had given things a different complexion from what they had formerly had? He had not seen her during that time. Everything had become so unbearable that he finally made up his mind to go to her with the whole truth.

That evening he put one of the printed copies in his pocket and went to her house.

He found her in the drawing-room alone. They had not been talking five minutes, during which time he felt like a man going to be hanged, drawn and quartered, when he drew the little booklet from his pocket.

"Have you seen this?" he asked. "Yes," said the girl, coldly.

"Well, I wish to tell you something about it which will probably make you give me up, just as it will make it necessary for me to leave my congregation when I tell them."

He paused for a moment and then continued: "That sermon is not mine—I bought it."

"I know it," she answered, "for I wrote it."

"You wrote it" he burst in.

"Yes," she continued; "you know I am poor. Well, I have a gift that way, at least Smith & Folio think so, and I have written bundles of such things for them."

"My fault is all the greater," he said, putting out his hand. "Good-by."

"If you go," she said, slowly, "it is not because I have sent you away." She stopped and then continued. It was because I thought you a coward and were going to let the lie stand that I got almost to, well, hate you."

The Rev. John Jones did not go.

"But," he said suddenly, as if remembering something, "what will happen when I tell the people at the church? I shall have to give it up."

"No, you shall not," she answered, "because whenever are married if I write the sermons and you preach them, they will be yours all the time. We are not husband and wife one person!"

HEREDITY.

Some Arguments Against the Theory of Transmission of Qualities.

It is exceedingly difficult to find any actual cases to illustrate this point, since either natural or artificial selection has almost always been present. The apparent efforts of disuse in causing the diminution of certain organs, such as the reduced wings of some birds in oceanic islands, and the very small or aborted eyes of some of the animals inhabiting extensive caverns, can be well explained by the withdrawal of the cumulative agency of natural selection, and by the economy of growth as by the direct effects of disuse. The following facts, however, seem to show that special skill derived from practice, when continued for several generations, is not inherited, and does not therefore tend to increase.

The wonderful skill of most of the North American Indians in following a trail by indications quite imperceptible to the ordinary European has been dwelt upon by many writers, but it is now admitted that the white trappers equal and often excel them, though these trappers have in almost every case required their skill in a comparatively short period, without any of the inherited experience which might belong to the Indian. Again, for many generations a considerable portion of the male population of Switzerland have practised rifle shooting as a national sport, yet in international contests the show no marked superiority over other races, who are, in large proportion the sons of men who never handled a gun.

Another case is afforded by the upper classes of this country, who for many generations have been educated at the Universities and have had their classical and mathematical abilities developed to the fullest extent by rivalry for honors. Yet now that for some years these institutions have been opened to Dissenters, whose parents usually, for many generations have had no such training, it is found that these Dissenters carry off their full share, or even more than their share of honors. We thus see that the theory of the non-heredity of acquired characters, whether physical or mental, is supported by a considerable number of facts, while few, if any, are directly opposed to it.—A. R. Wallace in Fortnightly Review.

The Dangers of Spring.

Poets and novelists go into ecstasies over what they romantically call "beautiful spring," and "gentle spring," and while, no doubt, everyone is glad to see winter release its icy grasp, "beautiful spring" is after all one of the most deadly seasons of the year. Sudden transitions from warmth to extreme cold, with piercing chilling winds; from dry to sloppy, "muggy" weather, all combine to make the season a most trying one, even to the hardiest constitutions, while to those with weak constitutions the season is one of positive danger. Undoubtedly the greatest danger at this season of the year is from cold in the head, which very few escape, and which if not properly and thoroughly treated, develops into catarrh, with all its disagreeable and loathsome effects. Catarrh, neglected, almost as certainly developes into consumption, annually destroying thousands of lives. At this trying season no household should be without a bottle of Nasal Balm. In cases of cold in the head it gives almost instant relief and effects a speedy cure, thus preventing the development of catarrh. When the latter disease has already secured a hold it is equally efficacious, and with a persistent use will cure the worst case. From the outset it sweetens the breath, stops the nauseous droppings into the throat and lungs, dispels those dull headaches that afflict the sufferer from Catarrh. Nasal Balm is not advertised as a cure-all—it is an honest remedy, which never fails to cure cold in the head or catarrh when the directions are faithfully followed, and thousands throughout the country have reason to bless its discovery. Nasal Balm may be had from all dealers, or will be sent on receipt of price, (50 cents small, or $1 large size bottle) by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Population of Peterborough

is about 10,000, and we would say at least one half are troubled with some affection on the Throat and Lungs, as those complaints are, according to statistics, more numerous than others. Weather Probabilities.

Facts are Stubborn Things

So is Bad Blood. The difference between them is that a fact is here to stay. Bad Blood can only stay until Burdock Blood Bitters is used, then it must go. It takes facts to prove this to your satisfaction, and we give them to you every time we catch your eye. Here is one of them. Don't throw the paper down, but read this letter from Mr. Fred. Taylor, a detective of Winnipeg. We present his portrait, together with that of his little daughter, mentioned in his letter.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

ONE OF THE GALLANT 90TH BATT.

DEAR SIRS,—Having felt out of order for some time, and having no energy or appetite, blotches on legs, tumor on neck—arising from impure blood, doctors doing me no good, I was induced to buy some B.B.B. I was very much against patent medicines at the time, having tried so many, but after using two bottles I began to get better, and at the fourth bottle was completely well and around again. I believe in B.B.B. now, I tell you. I send you a photo of myself and little daughter, Lilly. B.B.B. cured her of nasty blisters which came out on her lips. Yours thankfully,

F. TAYLOR,

The Improvements at St. Luke's.

The newly decorated chancel at St. Luke's will be open for service on Easter Sunday for the first time. The work was commenced at the first of the week, and it was thought it would perhaps be finished about Friday. It required a great deal of time and patience, however, and this morning had not been quite finished. With the appropriate Easter flower, etc., there ought to be a very beautiful effect on Sunday morning. If the day is fine, as Easter generally is, large congregations are looked for.

Wait for Me.

Coming to see you again—the old reliable favourite, Zera Semon. See what the Lansing, Mich., papers say about our big show: Zera Semon's entertainments in that city the Lansing Republican said:—Prof. Zera Semon had a packed house last night, and most deservedly so, for he gave the Lansing public a rare treat, and in every way fulfilled the promises of his advertisement. One of the beauties of the show is its infinite variety, so that the tastes of all are satisfied. There are singing, dancing, comicalities of all kinds, and many things besides to charm the eye, please the ear and tickle the humor. The Marionettes were "immense" and caused roars of laughter. The minstrel troupe is a first-class one, and the conjuring was also of the best; in fact everything was well done. The feature of the evening was the giving out of the prizes, and here too Prof. Semon fulfilled all promises, distributing more than a hundred really valuable presents. Altogether the show was a great success, and was well worth the entrance money, even without the prizes.

A Midnight Runaway.

Thursday about midnight Mr. B. A. Jackson's groom hitched up to drive to another part of the town after Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, who were spending the evening at a friend's house. In passing through the gate the horse got away and ran down Hunter street, with the buggy attached and no driver. Turning up George street he disappeared in the darkness at full speed. Many anxious hours were spent in searching for the runaway, but later in the day the equipage was recovered near Lakefield, where it had been found in the morning by some farmers, the horse standing shivering by a creek.

Found Dead in the Snow.

This morning a telegram came to Peterborough announcing the finding of the dead body of William Trenwith in the forests of the North Shore district. Deceased was well known in town. He has a sister living here. He worked in a lumber shanty, and one day during the early part of the winter left the camp and was not again seen alive. It was feared he had perished in the woods, and a reward was offered for the discovery of his whereabouts. A day or two ago his frozen remains were found under the snow it was rumored that the body had been partly devoured by wolves, but the report is not credited. This case has doubtless been outdistanced with that of the man found a week or more ago north of Orillia in a half-eaten condition.

A Very Quiet Wedding.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. M. Fawcett, Stewart street, Thursday evening, when Mr. Joseph Armstrong was married to Miss Ella Thorne. The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock by Rev. J. H. Locke in the presence of only two persons. After the wedding the bridal pair drove to the Grand Trunk station and took the nine o'clock train for points east. They were given a hearty "send off" by a large gathering of their friends. They will return to town in a few weeks and take up residence. Both young people have the warmest wishes for a felicitous future of a host of friends. The bride was the recipient of a fine lot of presents. She was greatly esteemed by all who knew her. Miss Thorne came to Peterborough from the vicinity of Millbrook a few years ago, and as head milliner for H. S. Griffin & Co., was well known to the ladies of the town. In her connection with the George street Methodist church, as teacher in the Sunday school also, Miss Thorne made sincere friends by her quiet, Christian character and many womanly qualities which go to make a true wife. Mr. Armstrong is well and favorably known in Peterborough, having spent most of his life here. He is now traveller for a Montreal firm. His fellow travellers expressed their congratulation on the happy event by sending the bride a handsome silver tea set.

Pastoral Reception.

Rev. Mr. Trotter, pastor of the Baptist Church, was tendered a congregational reception Thursday night. The new pastor is a young man of an earnest spiritual character, a good preacher, and an energetic church worker. He has already secured the confidence and esteem of his congregation, and will, no doubt, be the means in his Master's hands of doing a vast amount of good. There was a good attendance at the reception, some of the ministers and members of other congregations being present to make the acquaintance of Rev. Mr. Trotter. Supper was served at six o'clock, the ladies, as usual, looking after the tables. At eight o'clock the people assembled in the body of the church, and Mr. J. C. Turnbull took the chair. After devotional exercises, Rev. S. J. Shorey, on behalf the Methodists, tendered a welcome to Rev. Mr. Trotter. Rev. Mr. Locke was present earlier in the evening, but had to leave to fill another engagement. A letter was read from Rev. J. C. Davidson, Rector of St. John's, regretting that on account of special services he would be unable to be present. A selection was given by the choir, after which Mr. R. J. Colville spoke on behalf of the Y.M.C.A. A vocal quartette was then rendered by Dr. and Mrs. Scott, Miss Hutchinson and Mr. Geo. Matthews. Following this Rev. E. F. Torrance of St. Paul's, on behalf of the Presbyterians expressed a welcome to Rev. Mr. Trotter, the latter then replying to the previous speakers. He said he felt extremely grateful for the kind reception which had been tendered him and hoped his relations with his congregation and all the other Christian people would continue to be pleasant. The meeting was closed in the usual manner.

Good Friday.

How the day was Spent in Peterborough.

Good Friday was a public holiday, but the day was passed very quietly in Peterborough. The church services were well attended. There was a large influx of visitors, young people coming home from school or business to spend their holidays.

At St. Peter's cathedral there were three services during the day. At 9 the mass of the Pre-Sanctified was celebrated by his Lordship, Bishop O'Connor and the cathedral clergy. At 3 00 and 7 p.m. the ceremony of the Stations of the Cross was performed.

At St. John's Church services were held at 10 and 11 a.m., at 3 p.m. for children, and at 8 p.m. In addition a service was held in the south ward Mission building, at which Rev. R. J. Moore, of St. Margaret's church, Toronto, delivered an unusually eloquent and earnest address upon topics suggested by the day.

At St. Luke's church the services were held in the school room at 10 30 a.m. and 8 p.m. Rev. J. W. McCleary, Rector, conducted the services and preached the sermon.

This morning Mr. J. R. Stratton, M.P.P. and Mr. Thos. "535 a. It shall be the duty of county councils to erect and maintain bridges over any river or stream of 100 feet in width or more, which may be within eighty chains of a boundary line between one or more counties, such bridges shall be erected and maintained by the councils of the counties, and in case the councils fail to agree as to the respective proportions of the expense to be borne by the municipalities interested, it shall be the duty of each to appoint arbitrators as provided in sub section 1 of section 535 of this Act, and the award so made shall be final.

A deputation consisting of Mr. Warden Hughes; Mr. John Burnham, Reeve of Ashburnham; Mr. John Moloney, Reeve of Douro; Mr. Michael Sanderson, Reeve of Smith; Mr. George Stewart, Reeve of Otonabee; Mr. Jas. A Hive of Industry.

Visit to the Edison Works—Half a Million Dollars' Worth of Buildings—Some of the Work now Going On.

The visitor to the Edison Works is amply repaid for his trouble. The premises are a scene of great activity during working hours. While yet some distance off the ear is greeted with the busy clatter of scores of hammers, trowels, chisels, saws and picks, while above all rings out the cheery "yeheave-so" of the men engaged in hoisting the roof timbers to the top of the immense structure. Men cling like huge spiders to the wooden web, which rears its dizzy height a hundred feet from the ground. The building is, of course, the chief centre of activity, but on different parts of the ground men are digging, and deep carpenter and mason work, and teams move to and fro, and the scene is momentarily enlivened by the smoke and steam and puff of a locomotive hauling carloads of material over the switch line into the grounds. Mr. Martin, the able engineer in charge, superintends the work and directs the energies of this hive of industry, so that every blow of the hammer, and every clink of the trowel, tells in the general result. The work has been carried on almost without interruption during the whole winter, an unprecedented feat in the history of building in Peterborough. However, it but indicates the indomitable spirit and enterprise of the company and its officers. Peterborough is proud of the acquisition of such a live corporation.

EXTENSIVE PLANS.

An EXAMINER reporter had the pleasure of inspecting the plan of the thirty-acre lot occupied by the company. The plans show that buildings to the value of half-a-million dollars are projected, which will about fill up the whole area. The general plan shows two rows of buildings extending westward from Park street. The buildings are fifteen in number and are arranged seven on each side, being divided by a street running up the middle of the grounds. In the middle of the street will be the warehouse, 400 feet long. All the buildings will be of brick. Three of them will be of the same size as the machine shop now being erected, and the remainder about half the size. Work on the construction of the wire shop has been already begun. The grounds will be a perfect network of railway. There will be four main lines, one for each side of the central warehouse, and each face of the other buildings. Branch lines leave these arteries at right angles, and each building has a set of rails running down it length, which connect with the main line by turnabouts. It will thus be seen that the railway facilities are about perfect. At present the C.P.R. switch is the only one with which the grounds are supplied, but the Grand Trunk spur is staked out and as soon as the ballast pits can be opened work will be begun on the second connecting link.

THEIR NEEDS WILL DEVELOP.

Mr. Martin expects the plant and employes from the Sherbrooke department of the Edison Company about the first of May. The company's lease there expires then and cannot be renewed for a short period. Every effort is therefore being made to complete the machine shop in readiness for the reception of the plant. It is hoped to have the wire shop, foundry and a couple of the other buildings erected this summer, with which the company will be able to carry on business. The premises are palatial as compared to the present ones and probably all the new buildings will not be required at once; but as the company's business develops it is confidently anticipated that all the immense space will be taken up. At Shenectady, N. Y., the company have seventy buildings in use.

LITERALLY "RAISING THE ROOF."

For the past few days the work of raising the huge trusses to the roof has been going on, and it is a most interesting operation. These trusses are almost as wide as a street, and rest upon the sides of the annex. The trusses are constructed by the carpenters on the ground. They are then loaded on hobs and dragged into the building directly under the airy elevation intended to be their resting place. A tall mast is fixed in the centre and by means of tackle and winch the mass is slowly raised to the top, where the calculations being made to a nicety, it fits in with its supports exactly. There are fourteen of these great trusses, all of them being now in place. The carpenters worked yesterday (Good Friday) in order to lose no time in completing the job, as it was not considered safe by the engineer, in the uncertain March winds, to leave the trusses without braces and supports to prevent them shifting in case of a storm. The roof is to be sheeted by a Montreal company of iron and steel roofers.

THOROUGHLY DRAINED.

One peculiar thing in connection with the ground was mentioned by Mr. Martin. The soft, marshy nature of the soil was well known, and drains were laid down last fall to carry off the water. Mr. Martin has found that these have drained the whole field, for in digging for the foundation of the wire shop no water worth mentioning was encountered. This fact will demonstrate the usefulness of draining and its wide-reaching benefits.

The Foresters' Entertainment.

A Splendid Supper and Concert Given by Court Peterborough—"Pumpkin Ridge" Brings Down the House.

Court Peterborough, of the Canadian Order of Foresters, is one of the most live and enterprising societies in town. One evidence of their enterprise is shown in the frequent concerts and entertainments held under their auspices, all entirely successful and encouraging the Foresters to repeat them. The tea and entertainment Thursday evening was not one of the least of the many successes scored by this society. There was a good attendance and everything passed off most harmoniously and pleasantly. Supper, of the substantial and generous sort always provided by the skilled cookery of the Foresters' wives and daughters, was served at six o'clock, and probably a couple of hundred appetites were appeased. Among the ladies who rendered valuable assistance in the culinary line were Mrs. Hooper, Miss Graham, Miss Comstock, Miss Mulligan, and others.

With the incentive of a full feast to enjoy the entertainment which followed, it was no wonder that the audience was highly gratified. A good programme was presented under the chairmanship of the Chief Ranger, Mr. A. Carpenter. The programme was as follows:—

Chairman's address.....
Selection.....Orchestra
Recitation.....Mrs H. S. Dixon
Violin Solo.....Miss Watson
Quartette....."Hunters Chorus".....Jones [Family
Reading.....A. Clegg
Reading.....O. C. Rowse
Mouth Organ Solo.....W. Burdick
Duet (Piano).....Misses Comstock
Piano Solo.....Geo. Baker

The performance concluded with the presentation of a laughable farce "Pumpkin Ridge," prepared by a number young ladies and gentlemen of St Luke's church Ashburnham. This little comedy has been presented several times already with great success. All concerned took their parts well, but Mr. "Jerry" Packenham in the humorous role of "Jonathan Scruggins" rendered the character with the skill of a practised comedian. The cast of characters was as follows:—

Jonathan Scruggins.....F. Packenham
Augustus Simroy.....J. J. Turner
Mr. Brown.....Alf. Gaskin
Harry Clifton.....T. Byah
Policeman Moloney.....Bert Everett
Miss Brown.....Eva Tivy
Annie Brown.....Miss Armstrong
Melinda Jane Hopkins.....Miss Long

"Bridge Building and the N.P."

To the Editor of the Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—In the Review of Thursday appears a letter in answer to the letter I sent to the EXAMINER on Monday. There is only one paragraph in it which calls for any notice from me, that which says that my purpose is to "give vent to a little spleen" " " " by publishing the private business" of the proprietor of the bridge works. Now when "the proprietor" makes it public by standing on a public platform and publicly declaring that if the people of Canada pronounced against the 'N.P.' he would have to remove his factory to the United States, I have, as a workingman, in the interests of my fellow-workingmen, a perfect right to call attention to such a manly veiled intimidation. I ask what dependence can be placed on the assurances of the manufacturing employer when their own interests are to be served? And I ask what does their pretended interest in workingmen amount to the moment an election is over? I have no quarrel with Mr. Law. I have much respect for him in his legitimate line. He is a first class bridge builder, but a mighty poor politician—and it was as a politician I dealt with his; and the establishment with which he is associated is not the only one in which hands are dropped when their usefulness is at an end as factors in an election, as witness the following paragraph which was was reprinted in your paper on Thursday from the Mail:

"The Canadian Rubber Company has decided to dismiss 175 female and 75 male employes, who will be notified that their services will not be required after to-morrow night. The reason given for the discharge is that the company wishes to reduce its stock. Many of the discharged employes at the recent elections voted for Sir John Macdonald, because they were given to understand that if the Liberals got into power the factories would have to close down. They voted all right, but now they will have to go all the same."

I think in view of such facts I have a right as a workingman, especially when for the purposes of political effect apprentices are put on the pay roll of a manufacturing establishment, and dropped therefrom when there is no further use for them to call attention to the matter as I have done. As to the N.P. twaddle talked by a "Bona fide Workingman," I am too busy to discuss ancient history and exploded theories.

Yours truly,
A WORKINGMAN.

Police Court.

SATURDAY March 28th.

The police were instructed to shoot a vagrant dog which had bitten George Wright.

Inspector Pope had Mr. Michael Lovecque arraigned on a charge of violating the building by-law. Mr. Lovecque was burned out some time ago, and in repairing his house on Lynn street built a wooden addition, contrary to the by-law which was framed for fire purposes. The case was enlarged to give the defendant time to block the addition over.

Three young farm labourers, Thos. Graystock, John B. Perry and Wm. Oglestone, were charged before the magistrate this morning with disorderly conduct in front of the Salvation Army barracks last Wednesday night. From the evidence it appears that, while inside the barracks, they threw matches and paper at a young man and a couple of girls sitting in front of them, and added insulting language to their misbehaviour. On going outside they got into a fight with the young man whom they had been previously annoying, and were summoned before the magistrate. The defendants denied the statements of the other witnesses in toto, and claimed that they were set upon for doing nothing. However, the evidence was strong against them, and Gray stock was fined $20 and the other two $10 each.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea and indigestion. I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia. I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken I had regained my former weight and natural condition. I am today well and I ascribe it to taking Hood's Sarsaparilla."

Scratched 28 Years

A Bony, Rotting, Skin Disease With Stubborn Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago, it would have saved me $500.00 and an immense amount of suffering. My skin came (spontaneously) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body, and got under my nails. The scratching would draw off on me all the skin, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I am sure when the CUTICURA REMEDIES are much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All used of them was $5 worth. If you had been here and told me you would have cured me for $500 you would have had the money. I inclose herewith the picture (No. 3 page 67) in your book, 'How to Cure Skin Diseases,' but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my heads and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well I scratched twenty-eight years, and it cost me but a trifle of money. Words fail me. I thank you a thousand times.

THE NEWS OF EUROPE.

RUSSIA HELD RESPONSIBLE FOR THE ASSASSINATION.

Funeral of the Murdered Bulgarian Finance Minister Discussing the Recent Warlike Rumors The Other Powers Posted as to the Czar's Movements.

BERLIN, March 29.—Semi-official organs are advised to ignore the renewed war alarm and not to notice reports coming from various sources which indicate early agressive action on the part of France and Russia. Persons high in political circles refuse to say more than that the intention of Russia to abandon her attitude of reserve has been for some time known to the chiefs of the dreibund, and that nothing can happen for which they are unprepared.

The recent indiscreet prediction of Signor Crispi, ex-Italian premier, that war was certain to occur during the current year, has elicited from the official papers at Vienna a comment to the effect that Signor Crispi is no longer in the secret of great events and has become incompetent to prophesy, and that what he says ought not to disturb the tranquility of Europe. This sort of denial, however, is not reassuring, as the fallen statesman is known to possess still ample information regarding everything relating to both the political and military powers of Europe.

The Cologne Gazette to-day asserts that it is the intention of the Czar to initiate and develop an offensive policy on the old lines by claiming supremacy.

It is believed in Bulgaria that the murder yesterday of M. Baltcheff, Bulgarian Minister of Finance, is the opening of a game of secret intrigue, preceding open conflict. The conferring by President Carnot of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor upon Baron de Mourenheim, the Russian Ambassador at Paris, is merely a part of the general effusion of the alliance and of the endearments exchanged between France and Russia.

A Czar to-day decorated M. Brions, military attache of the French Legation, personally presenting him with an order set with brilliants and also giving him a rare malachite vase and a portrait of himself and the Czarina. M. Brions will shortly return to Paris. He is fully conversant with Russia's projects for the mobilization of her forces, and upon his return to Paris some scheme for simultaneous action will be agreed upon by the French War Office. It is for this reason that the Czar has conferred upon him a distinction never before accorded a military attache.

The candidate of the Freisinnige party for the Reichstag in Gesternunde, finding no support, has withdrawn, leaving the contest to Prince Bismarck and the Socialists' candidate. Nobody doubts that the prince will receive a great majority. The warmth of his reception at Altona, and the extent of the preparations throughout the country for the celebration of the 76th anniversary of his birth, on Wednesday, prove the unabated popularity of the prince. The committee here have arranged for a torchlight procession, in which over 3000 of the ex-Chancellor's adherents desire to appear. The Society of German Industrials will present the prince with a silver table service of immense value designed by the artist Heyden.

Are These the Murderers?

VIENNA, March 29.—Benderoff, who forced Prince Alexander to resign the Bulgarian throne, was lately at Bucharest passing under an assumed name. He there had an interview with Karaveloff and left Bucharest on Thursday, departing in company with two other men for Belgrade. It was announced that the party were well provided with money. It is supposed that it was Benderoff and his companions who shot M. Baltcheff, the Bulgarian Minister of Finance, on Friday last.

Prisoner before the tribunal deceased, who was described as a kind hearted man. Prisoner was found guilty and sentenced to death.

London Money Market.

LONDON, March 29.—There was a fair demand for discount during the past week at 2⅞ for 3 months and 2¾ for shorts. Quarterly payments of loans to cover the holidays and Stock Exchange requirements for the settlement kept up terms. On the Stock Exchange business was almost nil but tone was good. There is a general expectation of activity after Easter and once the Argentine Republic gloom is dispelled things generally will begin to mend.

A Blaze on the City of New York.

LIVERPOOL, March 28.—An outbreak of fire occurred last night in the hold of the Inman Line steamship City of New York which arrived in the Mersey on Thursday from New York. The flames are supposed to have originated among a number of bales of cotton. Little damage was done and the vessel will sail Wednesday for New York.

Birchall's Example Not Enough.

LONDON, March 29.—Notwithstanding the issue of the Birchall murder; the business of collecting premiums from young men who wish to learn farming in Canada is flourishing this spring almost as much as last year. Representative Canadians have published warnings against the practice and advise parents that an outfit, a little money and a good letter of introduction is all their children need.

She Wore Trousers.

QUANAH, Tex., March 29.—As the state rangers were on Wednesday in search of J. F. Morris, a murderer who had escaped, they discovered two persons in the Pease River brakes. Upon search being made of their persons for weapons it was found one of them was a woman in man's attire. Last evening the Montague owners of stolen horses arrived and identified the thieves. They also recognized the female prisoner as Pearl Starr, daughter of the notorious Bell Starr, and reputed daughter of the noted desperado, Cole Younger. Pearl Starr is a good-looking girl of 18, with large blue eyes. She looks every inch a typical cowboy with her sombrero and high-heeled boots.

Poisoned by Herbs.

STIRLING, March 29.—Yesterday at the residence of Mr. William Warren, near Stirling, the family and some friends who were visiting there had a very narrow escape from poisoning. Mr. Warren dug up, as he thought, some horse-radish and had it ground up for table use in the usual way. After the family and friends partook of it they became very ill and a doctor was at once sent for. An examination proved that another herb had been dug up and ground with the horse-radish. Prompt remedies, applied by the doctor, saved them from death by poisoning.

A LIVELY TIME IN SLIGO.

MANY PERSONS INJURED BY FLYING MISSILES.

Police Armed with Bayonets Prevent an Attack Upon the McCarthyites with Blackthorns—The Clergy Unite in Denouncing the Parnellite Candidate at Mass.

DUBLIN, March 29.—Mr. Parnell made a triumphal entry into Sligo yesterday. He was escorted by fifty car loads of supporters from the rural districts, armed with blackthorns. He was received with jeers by the townspeople. Mr. Davitt and his supporters afterwards made a counter-display. Three hundred police and a squadron of cavalry were in readiness to prevent any collision between the opposing factions. Previous to the arrival at Sligo of Mr. Davitt, a fight with blackthorn sticks took place on the steps of the town hall. Subsequently Mr. Parnell complained that he had been assaulted during the progress of the affray by one of the residents of the town.

The voting classes here are unmistakably hostile to Parnell. The struggle which took place on the steps of the town hall, in which Mr. Parnell claimed to have been assaulted, was a contest between the two factions for possession of the hall. Each side fought fiercely, but the Parnellites, being assisted by the police, finally overcame their opponents and victoriously entered the building. When his friends succeeded in getting inside the building, Mr. Parnell made a speech in which he described a "cowardly attack" which had been made on him by a townsman named McHugh, who, Mr. Parnell claimed, had threatened to "swim the streets with his body." The remainder of the speech was a mass of vituperation of the seceders from his ranks.

On returning to his hotel Parnell made an attempt to deliver a speech from one of the windows, but was compelled to desist, owing to the hooting and yelling of a body of McCarthyites, who drowned the speaker's voice.

A Typical Sunday.

Sunday was the liveliest day so far in the North Sligo election campaign. By 8 o'clock this morning the streets were alive with people listening to the music of several bands.

Parnell met with a hostile reception at Strandhill, where he found it impossible, to hold a meeting owing to the piercing yells of his opponents, and was finally compelled to retreat to Sligo.

The bishop of the diocese, together with the priests of the whole district, denounced Parnell to their congregations at mass this morning.

Meanwhile the anti-Parnellites, Messrs. Sexton and Collery, Maurice Healy and Michael Davitt, and their party started at 9 o'clock in the morning for the Tireragh district, addressing small gatherings on their way till Templeboy was reached. Here hostile camps had been formed. The Parnellites gathered on the brow of a hill, filled with blackthorns and other weapons, threatening to move toward their opponents, but the police interfered, and with a line of bayonets awed the antagonists, and the storm subsided amid muttered threats and curses.

All now moved in the direction of Dromore West, where after a similar scene the Parnellites pelted their opponents vigorously with stones until they were chased and clubbed by the police. Michael Davit led his adherents, all ducking their heads and some covering themselves with rugs to avoid the fusilade of stones. Mr. Pinkerton, M.P. for Galway, had his head cut and several others were injured.

The Poor Reporters Suffered.

The fusilade of stones continued until the party was a half mile from Easkey. A car with a couple of newspaper men, following 100 yards behind the Davitt party, was attacked by Parnellites and the occupants were thrown to the ground and were so seriously injured that they were obliged to stop at a village to have their wounds dressed. On learning who the wounded men were their assailants expressed contrition.

On trying to enter Easkey the anti-Parnellites found the road barred by a formidable array of Parnellites, and on the advice of the police they retreated in the direction of Sligo, amid another shower of stones and other missiles. The party reached Sligo in the evening, where they addressed a large meeting and vowed vengeance.

Michael O'Brien Dalton has written to Timothy Healy apologizing for the assault he made on the latter at Cork on the 23rd.

Mr. Morrough, M.P., for the southeast division of Cork in a speech at Youghal today challenged his colleague Dr. Kenny to seek a re-election with him.

NOT GUILTY.

Verdict of the Jury in the Case of Michael O'Brien Dalton and Others.

YORK, March 29.—The trial of Mr. Michael O'B Dalton and others charged with rioting and assaulting Constables at the time of the trial of Messrs. O'Brien and [illegible] Tipperary was given to the jury, who after a short deliberation returned and announced that they were unable to agree upon a verdict in the case of Mr. Dalton, but rendered a verdict of "not guilty" as to the other prisoners.

The Soudan Campaign.

CAIRO, March 29.—It is the general opinion in well-informed circles that the capture of Tokar is only part of a larger scheme, as, taken alone, it would possess a considerable increase in the Soudan military establishment and furnishes additional points for attack. The next stage indicated is the capture of Berber, which would then serve as a basis for an advance on Khartoum in a future campaign. In short, the capture of Tokar may be the first step towards the reconquest of the Soudan—a measure which is becoming inevitable, in consequence of the Italian progress towards the Nile, and is called for for the relief of the peaceable inhabitants from the terrible cruelties inflicted under dervish rule. The season is getting late for further operations on any large scale this spring.

A Clergyman Sent to Penal Servitude.

LONDON, March 29.—At Hertfordshire Assizes William Gregory Tyler, 33, described as a clerk in holy orders, pleaded guilty to forging a certificate of character with intent to obtain money by false pretences from the rector of Estree, to forging a certificate purporting to be a marriage certificate between himself and a young woman named Emily Ada Hall and, further, to obtaining money by false pretences from the vicar of Little Amwell. Baron Pollock sentenced him to six years' penal servitude.

Engine and Cable Cars in Collision.

CHICAGO, March 29.—A Baltimore & Ohio switch engine pulling a heavily loaded train of freight cars was in collision with a State-street cable train at the Sixteenth-street crossing last evening. The grip car and first trailer were demolished and 60 passengers had a narrow escape from a terrible death. The engine struck the car in the middle, and the 15 occupants were hurled through the air. All escaped injury, however.

Four Pullman coaches comprising the rear portion of the eastern express on the Pennsylvania Railroad jumped the track at Devon station yesterday and toppled over. Miss Goddard of St. Louis had several ribs broken and C. V. Kidd, New York, D. H. Roberts, New York, and George T. Crain, St. Louis, received slight flesh wounds.

Freight Wreck.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 29.—While a freight train on the Philadelphia & Reading road was ascending the grade from Locust Summit last night the locomotive jumped the track near Barry station and rolled down the embankment, carrying with it 32 freight cars. Engineer Andrew Willey and Fireman John Oches and Frank Ayers and a passenger engineer, who was riding to his home at Tamaqua, were instantly killed and several others injured.

A NEW RAILWAY DEAL.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC TO ENTER NEW YORK.

Van Horne Perfects an Arrangement With the Vanderbilts—The St. Lawrence River to Be Bridged at Brockville and New York to Be Reached Over the West Shore.

BUFFALO, March 29.—The New York Sunday Herald says: "A desperate but very quiet struggle between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Vanderbilts came to an end Saturday and peace was formally declared. For six months President W. C. Van Horne of the Canadian Pacific has been trying to beg, borrow or buy a railroad that would give his trains an entrance to New York. He has priced half a dozen lines and talked seriously of building one for himself if he could not find a bargain. But the fight is over now. President Chauncey M. Depew and the vice-president, H. Walker Webb, met Mr. Van Horne at the Grand Central Station yesterday and made an agreement with him by which they will give him his entrance into New York. His freight cars will come over the St. Lawrence at Brockville and the Vanderbilts will bring them to this city over their Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg and West Shore roads. The Canadian Pacific is to build a bridge across the St. Lawrence at Brockville and then it will have the privilege of running a passenger car or as many of them as it likes directly into the Grand Central station.

Mr. Van Horne besides having his eye on this city has long sought a foothold in Boston and Philadelphia. Many people think that he would like to make a deal with the Lehigh Valley Railway for the latter city and with the Boston and Maine for Boston.

The agreement made yesterday will have an important bearing probably on the "Soo" freight line. This line uses the Central Vermont and the Ontario & Western. It will doubtless use the West Shore exclusively now.

DR. CROSBY DEAD.

The Great Educator and Preacher Passes Away at New York from Pneumonia His Life History.

NEW YORK, March 24.—Dr. Howard Crosby died at 5.43 this afternoon. The death of Dr. Crosby loses to New York one of her greatest educators and preachers. He was a native of New York, a son of William Bedlow Crosby, the philanthropist, and was born in 1826. He was graduated at the University of New York in 1844. In 1859 he was called to the chair of Greek at Rutger's, but two years later he entered the ministry of the Presbyterian Church and in 1863 became pastor of the Fourth-avenue Presbyterian Church in New York city, which place he has held to this time. He has also been chancellor of the University of New York and a member of its council. In 1870 he received the degree of D.D. from Harvard and in 1871 that of LL.D. from Columbia. In 1873 he was chosen Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States. In addition to his work as an educator and clergyman Dr. Crosby has taken a lively interest and exerted a beneficent influence in public affairs, particularly in advocating temperance as distinguished from total abstinence. In 1877 he was instrumental in founding the Society for the Prevention of Crime and has been prominent in independent political movements in New York city. He has also been actively interested in the welfare of the Indians and was one of the heartiest promoters of the scheme for an international copyright law. His published literary works include "Lands of the Moslem," "Ethnic Tyrannies of Sociocles," "Scholia on the New Testament," "Social Hints," "Life of Jesus," "Bible Companion," "Healthy Christian," "Thoughts on the Pentateuch," "The Christian Preacher," "The Humanity of Christ" and "Commentary on the New Testament." He has also written largely for periodicals, and was a member of the American committee to revise the New Testament.

Death Terminated the Journey.

GUELPH, March 24.—Thomas Lyons, residing near Cheltenham, Peel County, accompanied by his wife and a neighboring farmer named Hendry, arrived here yesterday. He was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and was on his way to the General Hospital for treatment at that institution. Being in a very poor condition before he left home, he was so exhausted when he reached the city that his wife and friend were glad to secure a comfortable room for the sick man at the nearest hotel, where every attention was given him, but he only lived a few hours.

Seen the Money Closely.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A sensation has been caused at the Treasury Department by the discovery of a counterfeit $2 silver certificate so nearly perfect in all its parts as to be almost impossible of detection. The Treasury Department has practically decided to suspend the issuing of the two dollar silver certificates and to institute a new series of the same denomination. These will contain a vignette of Secretary Windom, and will be issued as soon as the necessary plates can be engraved.

Details of the Murder of the Bulgarian Minister of Finance.

SOFIA, March 29.—The police of this city are actively investigating the assassination of M. Baltcheff, the Minister of Finance, who was shot and killed yesterday evening by a man armed with a revolver, the supposition being that the murderer mistook M. Baltcheff for M. Stambuloff, the Bulgarian Premier, with whom the Minister of Finance was walking at the time he was fired upon. As a result of the police investigation 20 persons have been arrested. The prisoners include M. Karaveloff. All the persons taken into custody are members of the party which M. Karaveloff represents.

Details of the murder show that, as is customary, a gendarme followed MM. Baltcheff and Stambuloff on their walk. Coming to a dark portion of the road the gendarme noticed four strangers who were following the ministers and acting in a rather suspicious manner. Almost as soon as they were seen the strangers began firing. Their bullets missed M. Stambuloff, who had fallen a little to the rear of M. Baltcheff and had a very narrow escape. M. Baltcheff was struck in the breast by two bullets. He only uttered two cries before he died. The gendarme at once fired at the assassins, but missed his mark. He then rushed at one of the men and cut him on the shoulder with a sword, but failed to disable him, and the four strangers escaped in the darkness.

Among the prisoners taken into custody to-day is a Greek who recently purchased a revolver here, and who, it is thought, is the man who fired the fatal shots.

The Sensation of the Day.

Public opinion in London holds Russia responsible for the crime on the ground that Russian intrigue contrived the kidnapping of Prince Alexander, and was proven to be at the bottom of the Panitza conspiracy against the life of Prince Ferdinand. Stambuloff is acknowledged to be one of the ablest men in Europe. His genius and energy have created Bulgaria and made it the most respectable of the Balkan states, with the possible exception of Roumania. He has made it a military power which not even Russia can despise, has maintained the finances in excellent condition and compelled Turkey to yield to Bulgarian demands in the face of menaces from Russia. Bulgaria is the most decently administered state in Eastern Europe and Greece, which a few years ago hardly recognized its existence, now regards Bulgaria as a formidable rival for the future possession of Macedonia. While Stambuloff lives, it does not matter how many princes Russia may kidnap or assassinate, Bulgaria lives. Stambuloff's death now would be what the death of Bismarck would have been in Germany 15 years ago, or of Cavour when Victor Emanuel was not yet in sight of the promised land of United Italy. Therefore his murder would be of the greatest service to Russia, and also in accord with many dark precedents of Russian history. As it is, the plot, like that of Panitza, has miscarried, and Stambuloff still lives to hunt down the assassins of his fellow-minister.

The men arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of Minister Baltcheff are detained, but an examination has shown that the actual assassin has not yet been captured.

The funeral of Minister Baltcheff took place to-day and was a pompous affair. Among the mourners were Prince Ferdinand and Princess Clementine, who returned to this city for the purpose of attending the funeral.

A GHASTLY WITNESS.

Pr. of Emma Pfitzenmeyer's Vertebræ Produced in Court—How Doctors Differ.

MEDIA, Pa., March 29.—The defence in the trial of Caroline Schmidt, charged with the murder of her sister, Emma Pfitzenmeyer, added to the sensational character of the case to-day by producing in court the neck and shoulders of the dead girl and with this they attempted to prove their theory of suicide by medical experts. The testimony failed to strengthen the defence materially.

The damage to the building does not exceed $1000.
